THE NORWAY SYSTEM

Strongly Endorsed by Representatives of the Bay State.

It Blends Prohibition, Restriction and No License.

A Method Calculated to Extinguish the Present Type of Saloons.

BOSTON, March 29.—A largely attended meeting in the interest of the Norwegian bill was held at the new Old South church last night. Hon. George F. Hoar presided. Senator Lodge sent his regrets from Washington and a letter strongly endorsing the movement, and letters were read from ex-Governor Brackett, ex-Lieutenant Governor Haile and Robert Treat Paine strongly favoring the bill.

Senator Hoar briefly reviewed the history of the temperance movement from the start; showed how it had failed in the cities, and how Massachusetts is becoming a cluster of cities, and pointed out how, for those cities, this is an undertaking to remove from the drink habit, where it must exist, its siren power to lure men to ruin. He sketched the glory of the ideal city, but said that the city with rum shops at nearly every door, as in parts of Boston, rivals Dante's Inferno.

Richard H. Dana said that the present high license system is one of rewards for heavy sales and violations of law. This system sweeps these rewards away. Its trial has been successful. He contrasted the authorities for the system with those against it, vastly

To the Former's Advantage.

Mrs. A. F. Palmer told of her experience as "crusader" when a girl; pointed out how neither love (as in that movement) nor law (as since) has succeeded, and showed how this is an experiment mediating between these, and having the chance of saving many persons from drink.

Dean Hodges said that present methods attack the drink traffic with open and extended figures, rather than with a compact fist; that this system, in blending prohibition, no license and restriction, constitutes such a fist, and showed how in Norway, prohibitionists, as a rule, favor it and use it for their ends.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore believed in the system as extinguishing the present type of saloon; deprecated the division of temperance forces; said it was, in this case, because people do not get the matter fairly into their heads; showed how, in the same way, earlier, some persons opposed no license as savoring of some license, and pointed out that it is the motive which determines right in this case.

Capen's Comparisons.

Samuel B. Capen said that water is to be used to put out this fire, that is, prohibition; but that it keeps burning, notwithstanding the water, because the oil of private profits is continually put into the fire from behind. This system cuts off the oil and gives the water of prohibition a chance. To turn the hose on those cutting off the oil was a false act.

Rev. J. N. Brandelle said that Scandinavian protests against the system do not represent the best judgment; that the system greatly furthers temperance and prohibition.

Mrs. Julia W. Howe was impressed by the testimony for the system; felt that its ethics were more just than those of the current methods, and saw in the system a way to overthrow the present saloon system.

Custis Guild, Jr., likened the refusal to a city like Springfield the privilege of substituting a better license system for the present abominable one to forcing the opium traffic on China by England.

George A. Denison of Springfield pleaded for that city being given the chance to exclude saloon politics and to cut down drinking.

Dr. Alexander McKenzie said if people would think clearly they would not oppose the bill. It does not set up license; it is not like the Norwegian system; it is a Massachusetts remedy for a fearful evil. To come out into the open, unite to apply this remedy and not sulk in their tents was the duty of all friends of temperance.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, March 29.—The house voted to engross the bill prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors in this state on George Washington's birthday and the Fourth of July. Some amendments to the tuberculosis bill were proposed in the senate The bill went over to April 9. The house refused to reconsider its vote on the 2-cents-a-mile bill. The bill authorizing Haverhill to take land for parade drill and target practice for the local militia was engrossed. The bill relative to oyster culture was amended so as to provide that no shells shall be placed on the property of any riparian owner without his written consent, and was engrossed. A motion to reconsider the vote on the Lowell charter was defeated. The Boston firemen's bill, which was engrossed in the house, was defeated in the senate. The finance committee approved an appropriation of $150,000 for the extermination of the gypsy moth.

Feast of Gloucester Business Men.

GLOUCESTER, March 29.—The second annual banquet of the Gloucester Business Men's association had the largest attendance of any dinner ever held in the city. The association which gave it is less than two years old, and, from only a score or so of members, has grown to have 330 names upon its rolls. The rooms, as well as the banquet room, were elaborately decorated with everything effective. There was not a vacant chair in the room. Toward the close of the day the committee had to stop the sale of tickets.

Held For Arson and Robbery.

GLOUCESTER, March 29. — William A. Woodwell, 17 years old, of Beverly, is charged with breaking and entering and arson. Edward Butler, 14 years old, and William Sheehan, aged 16, of Gloucester, were arrested with Woodwell, and the trio are charged with having feloniously entered and robbed during the last two months several unoccupied, but furnished, summer cottages at Manchester Point.

Corset Makers on Strike.

SPRINGFIELD, March 29. — Twenty-five girls, employes of the Bay State Corset company, struck yesterday on account of a change in the arrangement of their work. The managers say the places of the strikers will be easy to fill.

Gave Battle to a Burglar.

WINCHENDON, Mass., March 29.—Miss Turner, aged 18, who lives in the family of Miss Anjanette Todd, was awakened shortly after midnight by Miss Todd calling to her, and, going to her room, found a man there, to whom she pluckily gave battle, succeeding in driving him into an adjoining room. She then summoned neighbors, but before their arrival the intruder had made his escape.

Decided on a Foul.

BOSTON, March 29.—Pat Fenton of Boston was given a decision over Eddie Connolly of St. John, N. B., last night. Two minutes and thirty seconds had elapsed in the 15th round when Connolly punched Fenton in the groin. Amidst cries of foul and excitement among the seconds the gong clanged and Referee Williams awarded the contest to Fenton.

Took Chloroform to Relieve Pain.

DEXTER, Me., March 29.—Dr. Orrin Fitzgerald of Boston comes out in a voluminous statement denying the charges which have recently appeared in the daily papers regarding his alleged attempt at suicide. He states that the chloroform taken was to relieve pain, and that he has been in the habit of taking it for a long time past.

Maine Solons Visit Boston.

BOSTON, March 29.—The legislature yesterday welcomed a delegation of 35 of the Maine legislature. In the senate Acting President Lawrence gave the address of welcome, and in the house Representative Roe delivered an address. The guests were afterward dined at Young's hotel.

An Early Start.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., March 29.—Wesleyan will open her season of baseball with a game at New Haven tomorrow. Yale and Wesleyan have played four games in the last two years, with a result of 29 runs for Yale and 26 for Wesleyan, so that a close game is expected.

Newport Will Help.

NEWPORT, March 29.—The Natural History society of this city, in answer to an appeal made by Mrs. J. D. Peary, for aid in sending a steamship to her husband, who is now in northern Greenland, passed a resolution recommending that its members assist in the undertaking.

Rev. W. H. S. Barton Located.

SACO, Me., March 29.—Rev. W. H. S. Barton, the young North Saco pastor who deserted his parish last summer, leaving many unpaid bills, has been heard from again. He is now confined in a Virginia jail on the charge of committing fraud in connection with a horse trade.

In Commissioner's Favor.

NEW HAVEN, March 29.—The hearing on the charges of malfeasance in office preferred against Police Commissioner Gilhuly opened last night. The testimony was generally in Gilhuly's favor. Late at night the hearing was adjourned until next Wednesday.

In the Lap of Spring.

CHATHAM, Mass., March 29.—A heavy northwest gale prevailed here, accompanied by a driving snowstorm. An unknown three-master grounded on Chatham bars, but got off by crowding on head sails and she gradually drifted out of sight in the storm.

Doings of New Hampshire Lawmakers.

CONCORD, N. H., March 29.—The house yesterday passed bills taxing the surplus of national banks and increasing the salary of adjutant general to $1500. In the senate the bill exempting loans from taxation secured by New Hampshire real estate was killed.

Losses Comparatively Light.

BOSTON, March 29.—The Boston Fire Notification company, in their report for February, give the total number of fires in Boston as 151, with an estimated gross loss to property of $60,000. One person was killed and 13 injured.

To Fight the Railroad.

NEW BEDFORD, March 29.—The city council appropriated $500 to carry on the fight against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad in trying to get the company to restore the ferry between New Bedford and Fairhaven.

Edgerly's Successor.

SPRINGFIELD, March 29.—At a meeting of the directors of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company, John A. Hall, secretary of the company, was chosen to the presidency to succeed the late M. V. B. Edgerly.

Woke Up at Last.

GLOUCESTER, March 29. — Virginia Pierce, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ward A. Pierce, awoke last night after a six days' sleep. The physicians attribute her condition to over-exertion at play.

Car Shops Starting Up.

LYNDONVILLE, Vt., March 29.—The car shops of the Passumpsic division of the Boston and Maine railroad will start on full time at once. The shops give employment to 100 men.

Chelsea School Burned.

CHELSEA, March 29.—A four-story brick school building was damaged $25.00 by fire last night. The fire was probably of incendiary origin.

Two Rounds Enough.

ROCKLAND, Me., March 29.—Joe Donovan and Tobias Seavey fought two rounds here yesterday. Seavey was knocked completely out.

Griswold Admitted to Bail.

HARTFORD, March 29.—Dr. E. R. Griswold, charged with arson, was yesterday admitted to bail in the sum of $10,000.

Passed the Danger Point.

SHIMONOSEKI, March 29.—Li Hung Chang is making favorable progress toward recovery. There is no discharge from the wound and the pulse and temperature are normal. All danger is passed.

Confirmation of Stories of Awful Doings by Bloodthirsty Turks.

Women, Children and Unborn Babes Slaughtered.

LONDON, March 29.—The Daily News this morning publishes a long account from a Turkish source, confirming the stories of the Armenian outrages. Editorially it says: The bare facts will have their natural effect on all who are responsible to our relations with a power which is the very negation of God.

A correspondent investigating the circumstances of the atrocities perpetrated in Armenia recently attaches great importance to a statement of a Kurd "who killed many innocent women and children in Sassoun" and with whom he "exchanged daggers." The correspondent took this man's deposition before respectable non-Armenian responsible witnesses, and from this deposition he telegraphed the following blood-curdling extracts:

"The Turkish soldiers took little children by the feet and dashed them against stones. I saw an Armenian priest. Soldiers tortured him, squeezed his neck, goughed out his eyes and tore off his flesh with pincers. We hate that; we only stab or bayonet or cut off heads. We dislike needless pain. I saw a Turkish sergeant bind an old Armenian head downward to two or three branches and slowly cut him through with an ax.

"Armenians who implored protection and surrendered were butchered at night. I saw it done. The soldiers stood in double lines of three on each side. The Armenians were marched in, and they were then bayoneted and flung into the pit. Not all were dead who were in the pit.

"I saw the soldiers take a woman and stand around her, joking and making bets as to the sex of her unborn child. She was then cut open and the money was paid to the scoundrels who had guessed rightly." The correspondent telegraphed the details on this revolting deed, but the paper suppressed them as being too horrible for publication.

Continuing, the Kurd said: "The Kurds killed people with bullets and daggers, but the soldiers delighted in torture. They put some to death with scissors, cutting them and opening veins in the neck. Others were sawn, others had their tongues cut out, eyes gouged out and several fingers cut off before death. I saw men and women thus mutilated, and they laid about the camp for two hours before they were killed."

The Times' Story.

The Times publishes a long report on the Armenian atrocities, written by a competent and trustworthy man who made a personal investigation on the spot. This report was written in January, but only arrived in London yesterday.

The writer says he is convinced that both in 1893 and '94 the Turkish government gave both oral and written orders to the Kurds to attack the Armenians, promising them the bounty and relieving them of responsibility for the consequences. In the first attacks made upon them the Armenians defeated the Kurds.

Undoubtedly but for Turkish help the Kurds would have been unable to have gained a permanent victory. The Kurds in the earlier skirmishes did not harm women and children. Even when incited by the Turks they did little in comparison with the latter.

The account proceeds to confirm the pit incident, and the report of the governor of Bitlis reading at Djellyegoozan the sultan's firman ordering the Kurds to destroy the disaffected villages, sparing nothing, for their sultan and prophet. This occurred about the middle of August, and the massacre which followed

Beggars All Description.

The Occidentals of the 19th century cannot comprehend it. Youths were bound, covered with brushwood and burned alive. Others were hacked to pieces. At Shenig a house filled with 50 men, women and children were set on fire and all were cremated. The officers forced their men to acts of cruelty from which the latter shrunk.

A young priest at Dalvorig persuaded 70 of his followers to yield. They were ordered to dig a trench, and when enough earth had been thrown up, all were hacked to pieces and cast into the trench. Priests suffered horrible deaths. One was thrown into the air and allowed to fall on a number of bayonets that had been stuck upright in the ground.

Won't Happen Again.

MADRID, March 29.—Prime Minister Castillo says that the government is satisfied with the attitude of the United States, and has ordered the commanders of Spanish cruisers and the colonial authorities to observe international usuages in regard to maritime jurisdiction and the right of search, with a view to avoiding a conflict with the United States and other powers.

Challenge to Englishmen.

PHILADELPHIA, March 29.—President Kendricks of the Intercollegiate Athletic association has sent a challenge to Oxford and Cambridge to a field and track meeting between the winners of the meeting of those two colleges and the following meeting at Mott Haven.

A pension was this week granted to a child of the late Charles E. Burke of Wollaston.

Another dance to be held in Doble's hall on Saturday evening. Gents, 35 cents; ladies, 10 cents.

Wollaston Lodge, Knights of Honor, will have an initiation, stories of army life, a smoke talk, etc., at its meetings Monday evening.

The Christian Endeavors of Norfolk Co. will hold a convention in the Congregational church on the afternoon and evening of April 19.

The account of the Wollaston anniversary of 1875 prepared for this paper, is crowded out with other articles, because of the space given to the anniversary of Miss Underwood.

Mrs. G. F. Pinkham entertained the Elliot Home Missionary society at her home Thursday evening. It was the annual meeting and four ladies were elected life members. A pleasing part of the programme was a talk given by Miss Reynolds of Boston. Tea was served at seven by the young people of the society.

The ordination services of George H. Watt will take place tonight at the Presbyterian church, Water street, at 7 o'clock. The regular prayer meeting of the Calvary Baptist church will not meet in Doble's hall as usual, on account of the above, but will have charge of the services in the church where the ordination takes place, Mr. Watt being a member of this church, soon to leave town. We wish him Godspeed in this grand and noble work to which he has been called.

The Orange Ball.

The affair was more than a success as the attendance was very large. It would have been hard to accommodate many more in the hall.

Dancing commenced a few minutes past eight o'clock and continued uninterrupted, but for a brief intermission, until the early hours of morning.

The members of the order were out in full force, and as they were clothed in their handsome regalia, the sparkle of the jewels added brilliancy to the scene.

Floor director Frank Tinney led the grand march with Mrs. Tinney, and they were followed by over seventy couples who completely encircled the hall.

Superintendent Nicol.

The much disputed and sought for position of superintendent of Mt. Wollaston cemetery was settled Thursday night at the adjourned meeting of the board of managers, they appointing James Nicol of Coddington street. Mr. Nicol has for many years been foreman at the yards of McKenzie & Paterson, but aside from this he has shown a great fondness for plants and flowers, and has taken prizes in horticultural shows. His residence is handy to the cemetery, and all in all he should acceptably fill the position.

Christian Endeavor Union.

On Tuesday evening last, delegates from the various Christian Endeavor societies of Quincy met at the chapel of the Centre Congregational church and voted to organize a Quincy Christian Endeavor union. A committee was elected to draw up the constitution and by-laws and another to arrange for the first union meeting to be held sometime in May, probably, and to nominate officers for the union at that time.

A severe rheumatic pain in the left shoulder had troubled Mr. J. H. Loper, a well known druggist of Des Moines, Iowa, for over six months. At times the pain was so severe that he could not lift anything. With all he could do he could not get rid of it until he applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm. "I only made three applications of it," he says, "and have since been free from all pain." He now recommends it to persons similarly afflicted.

Forty Years of Service as Teacher Completed Today

BY MISS JULIA E. UNDERWOOD.

Thursday was a day of surprises for Miss Julia E. Underwood, Quincy's most successful teacher, the events commemorating a remarkable record of forty years service completed today as a primary teacher in the Quincy public schools.

Miss Dearborn and the teachers at the Coddington planned surprise No. 1 and the children have been happy for some days in anticipation of a pleasant occasion. Thursday afternoon all the grades assembled in the connecting rooms of two upper grades ostensibly to sing "America" and hold patriotic exercises. Miss Underwood soon learned the import, however, for three presentations were the main feature. Three children presented a beautiful willow rocker, three more a five dollar gold piece, and three more a choice bouquet. Penny contributions of the children had secured all these and they were so happy over the event, that it was a very enjoyable occasion to all, and Miss Underwood thoroughly appreciated it.

At the Teachers' Meeting.

Thursday evening the regular meeting of the Teachers' association was held, and it was a notably gathering. Besides the teachers and assistants of all the public schools of Quincy, there were present the teachers of the Woodward Institute, Adams Academy, members of the School Committee past and present, Supt. Lull and ex-Supt. Aldrich. and others.

We will pass over part one of the programme briefly, although it merited more. It included:

Trio, for violin, cello and piano,—Messrs. Barker and Harlow.

Religious life at Rugby,—Miss Dolan, Adams school.

Soprano Solo,—Miss Hastings.

Solo,—Mr. Ferguson.

Cello Solo,—Mr. Barker.

Part two was a surprise to Miss Underwood. It was to commemorate her forty years of service as a teacher, and President Merrick resigned the chair to Superintendent Lull.

Such is our high-pressure life today that we have good reason to rejoice if a score of years of work and usefulness is our portion here; but if by reason of an unusually happy fate two score years are alloted us, we may count ourselves doubly blessed. Tonight we have the pleasure of recognizing such a happy lot, for one of our number completes with tomorrow's duties her fortieth year of service in the same city, school and grade.

If you examine the records of the School Board you will find this statement: Miss Julia E. Underwood "was examined and found qualified for primary school No. 2." The date is April 3, 1855, and the secretary was Edwin W. Marsh. In the report of 1855-56, Miss Underwood's name appears for the first time with a flock of 43 children. Since that date year after year appears the same name as the teacher of a never-ending procession of little ones in whom "The sum of the world in soft miniature lies."

Miss Underwood has dealt with 2,000 of these "soft miniatures" and on their moulding characters and in their receptive minds has left an impression that will never be erased.

Reports follow report until we come to that of 1879 80. In this you may read:

Another teacher of the Coddington richly deserves special mention here. Miss Julia E. Underwood will finish on the first of April next, twenty-five years of faithful earnest teaching in this one school. When I came to Quincy I found her in the basement room of the Coddington School, surrounded by nearly eighty little ones. She had then taught in this half cellar twenty years. There is not a teacher in Quincy today more faithful or more earnest than she is to learn new and better ways of teaching and treating the little ones who are so fortunate as to be under her care. The citizens of Quincy especially those who reside in the Coddington district, owe her a lasting debt of gratitude.

FRANCIS W. PARKER, Supt.

The last two sentences might have been electrotyped and used in later reports, for they are as true now as then.

The years sped on again after the anniversary of '80. At last came '90 and '95, and the fortieth cycle is now revolving. Holmes says:

"There's nothing that keeps its youth,
So far as I know, but a tree and truth."

Forty years of character building; forty years of loving, conscientious development of the child mind! Let me help you realize the time. An old lady of this town points with pride to the fact that her son, grandson, and great-grand-son have been taught by Miss Underwood. Two generations have gone out into the world and now the third sits where great-uncle and father sat before him,

Edwin W. Marsh, Esq.

Who was on the School Committee when Miss Underwood was first engaged, was first introduced. He told his old friends and young friends that it gave him great pleasure to be present on this occasion. Little did I think 40 years ago that a young slim girl would be so successful. Little did I think that she and I would be here tonight on such an occasion. Little did she think how I pitied her. How so young a girl was to be sacrificed. But she succeeded from the start as a quotation from the first report shows, a report which I wrote and therefore must be true.

Mr. George L. Gill and I are the only survivors of the board of 1855. Little did we think then that we were selecting a teacher for a half century.

In 1855 we feared Miss Underwood was too young, and when Col. Parker came in 1875 some feared she was too old, and doubted if she would adopt the "new fangled ideas." But she did and is as successful as of old, and has the same smiling face as in old lyceum.

Emery L. Crane,

Chairman of the School Committee, followed, adding his congratulations and testifying to her merit. He then read and presented these resolutions adopted by the School Committee at their meeting this week:

WHEREAS,—Miss Julia E. Underwood has been a teacher in the Coddington school for forty years, therefore the School Committee, being desirous of expressing their approbation and good will after so many years of devoted work, spread upon their records the following resolution:

Resolved,—That the School Committee tender to Miss Underwood their best wishes and esteem and congratulate her upon so long and honorable a service in which she has had the good will of the parents and the support of the School Board.

Resolved,—That a copy of this preamble and resolution be sent to Miss Underwood.

Hon. Charles H. Porter

Sub-Committeeman at the Coddington, spoke from a personal recollection of Miss Underwood from childhood. We were old neighbors and I was twelve at the time of her appointment. Quincy has grown from 5,000 to over 20,000, from town to city, but she continued to take each new class with the same interest as ever, and to mould their future, and the pupils remember her as a fine, moral, pleasant woman. Think of it, two thousand pupils sent forth. There was hardly another record like it in the State. We should be proud to think such a woman was still in our schools. He congratulated her on her long service.

Col. Francis W. Parker

MY DEAR MR LULL—Your esteemed favor of March 22d is at hand. It is much to my regret that I cannot be present at the celebration of the 40th anniversary of Miss Julia Underwood's services as teacher in the Quincy schools. I well remember the 25th anniversary of Miss Underwood's work, at which the teachers of Quincy did her honor.

Please convey to Miss Underwood my sincere congratulations upon forty years of thorough work in the school room. Her pure sweet soul has been transfused into the souls of thousands and tens of thousands of little ones who live to call her blessed. Through her magnificent work, she has won the only immortality worth the having "to live in lives made better by her presence."

The remembrance of Miss Underwood brings up pleasant reminiscences of my life and work in Quincy, and of the teachers who so effectually assisted me during five fruitful years. The word "reform" is often used in relation to our work in Quincy. Be that as it may, the best thing that we did was to recognize the instinctive and spontaneous power of the little child. We began dimly to understand him and his marvelous possibilities. Out of a deep sympathetic love, such as Miss Underwood always displayed, must all progress come. Therefore, I would not only congratulate Miss Underwood upon her work, but all the teachers who have been fortunate enough to be associated with her. With such teachers for our children, the future of the Republic is safe.

Faithfully yours,
FRANCIS W. PARKER.

George I. Aldrich

Of the State Board of Education, and a former Quincy superintendent, was warmly welcomed, and seemed much pleased to be present. He spoke of the revival of learning in Quincy, in fact in the Commonwealth, in 1875. He was unable to be present at Miss Underwood's twenty-fifth anniversary, but could not miss this. People who deserve praise don't often relish it face to face, but no word had been spoken tonight of Miss Underwood that was not nobly deserved. We can all take a lesson from her faithful service. Men and women strive for various things, but what are these to the consciousness of good work well done. This true value was carefully and beautifully cherished in Miss Underwood. He was pleased to add his congratulations on this notable and happy occasion.

A Presentation by Mr. Lull.

No doubt Miss Underwood will most carefully treasure up in memory, as one of the brightest and happiest days in her life history, all these words of reminiscence, commendation and thanks, but the time may come when all this may seem as intangible as a dream, and she may wonder if it really were a fact. It has seemed best, therefore, to her friends in the schools, on the Board and in the district to come down from the immaterial to the substantial—the tangible. Psychologists say that touch is the fundamental and pre-eminent sense. Tonight, at least, we accept the verdict and appeal to the sense of touch, as well as to sight and hearing, to help us and Miss Underwood accent strongly this very unusual anniversary. "All is not gold that glitters," but these eight pieces are. They glitter by reflected light, to be sure; but in the reflection we expect you, Miss Under-

Bicycle Wisdom.

Of course there are hundreds of different bicycles in the market, and to many people all bicycles seem alike.

It is practical experience and continuous years of untiring effort that place Columbias today the first bicycle in America.

Not an experiment but a scientific piece of machinery, manufactured by skilled workmen, each part fitted with the most exact nicety and thoroughly tested before leaving the largest and most reliable bicycle factory in the world. Yes, Columbias are models of beauty, grace and lightness. The best bicycle in the world—with no exception—prices $50.00 to $100.00.

Full line of Columbias at our store. Instruction in riding, and free use of the Columbia Riding School to our patrons.

"Perhaps you would not think so, but a very large proportion of diseases in New York comes from carelessness about catching cold," says Dr. Cyrus Edson. "It is such a simple thing and so common that very few people, unless it is a case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. There are a great many cases of catarrh and consumption which have their origin in this neglect of the simplest precaution of every day life. The most sensible advice is, when you have one, get rid of it as soon as possible. By all means do not neglect it." Dr. Edson does not tell you how to cure a cold but we will. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will relieve the lungs, aid expectoration, open the secretions and soon effect a permanent cure. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

TODAY'S COURT.

The Gambling Case Comes Up—All East Milton Present.

The cause of the large gathering was the hearing on the complaint against Joseph L. Rogers for keeping a gambling house.

Rev. Mr. Vrooman was the first witness and he testified as to the rumored reputation of the place kept by Rogers.

On cross examination he exhibited a paper he had drawn up for Rogers to sign which was in consideration of the present complaint being withdrawn or compromised he would agree to pay all costs of present complaint and to use his influence to prevent gambling, and would not gamble himself or allow gambling on his premises while a resident of Milton, and should he violate this promise he would forfeit $500 to the society for Concerted Moral Effort.

Besides Mr. Vrooman there were a large number of witness who were examined at length. When one witness was testifying the others were excluded from the room so that they contradicted each other somewhat, although none of them had seen cards at Rogers place or taken part in any game or had not seen others at games.

The court considered the evidence unsufficient and ordered Rogers discharged.

William E. Daley of Braintree was arraigned for trespassing upon property of John Fallon and the cutting down of 330 trees valued at $330. Case continued until next Friday.

Patrick Hannafin and Frank E. Larmey of Weymouth were arraigned for having smelts in their possession contrary to law, and were fined $3 each.

wood, to see our smiling faces and this gathering of your friends. We hope, too, that in this form or in any other in which you choose to change these coins, they may remind you of our appreciation of your pure and strong life; for

"No life
Can be pure in its purpose, and strong in its strife
And all life not be purer and stronger thereby."

Dr. John A. Gordon

Was asked to respond for Miss Underwood, which he did at length. From the feeling manifest this evening we might all feel that our work is appreciated, even if it is not always demonstrated. But praise is a stimulus for good work. He could hardly believe Miss Underwood had been teaching 40 years were it not for the records and a secret he had learned. The facts were she had found perpetual youth at the Coddington school, in love for our fellow being and love for little children. He returned the thanks of Miss Underwood for all that had been done for her in all these 40 years by the School Committee, superintendent and teachers.

Miss Dearborn at this point presented forty fragrant pinks, and the exercises closed with the singing of "A Song of Forty Years," dedicated by Frederic Allison Tupper to Miss Julia E. Underwood, and sung to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne." The words:

I.

Of all the callings in the world
The teachers' is the best,
And one who's taught for forty years
Earns honor from the rest.

CHORUS.

And honor she shall have, my friends,
In measure full to-night;
All honor to her forty years'
Devotion to the right!

II.

Call not those great who rise to fame
By tyrant's cruel art;
I call her greatest who best holds
The key to childhood's heart.

CHORUS.

And she has always held that key,
So sing her praise to-night!
All honor to her forty years'
Devotion to the right!

III.

Talk not to me of flower or gem,
Or stars that flash above,—
There is no star, no gem, no flower,
So rich as childhood's love.

CHORUS.

And she has always had it, friends,
Ours, too, she has to-night;
All honor to her forty years'
Devotion to the right!

March Sociable.

The Wollaston Unitarian society's March sociable was held in the vestry on Thursday evening.

The committee having it in charge were Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop, Mrs. George C. Ela, Mrs. Edward L. Mitchell, Mrs. Joseph N. Smith, Mrs. David Phelan, Mrs. Walter M. Hatch, Miss Weston, Mrs. Charles S. Adams, Miss Bennett, Mrs. Isaac G. Wilbur, Mrs. Frank L. Merrill, Mrs. Edmund Kingman and Mrs. Frank N. Bates.

An alphabet supper was served from 6 30 to 7 30 o'clock. The menu included articles of food, the initials of which included all the letters of the alphabet.

Supper was followed by an entertainment, including vocal solos by Mrs. Frederick Berry Smith and Mrs. William E. Rowe.

"Class Day," a clever farce in one act, by Francis A. Harris, as originally played by the Pi Eta society of Harvard, was staged and played very successfully. Mr. W. E. Simmons was stage manager, and the cast was as follows:

Hon. John Buncombe,—Mr. Arthur Sibley.

Frank Buncombe, Ned Taylor, Howard, students,—Mr. C. K. Crane, Mr. Groves, Dr. C. S. Adams.

Lottie Taylor,—Mrs. C. K. Crane.
Olive Hale,—Mrs. Groves.
Mrs. Taylor,—Mrs. H. W. Lull.
Levy,—Mr. W. E. Simmons.

—We publish in the course of a year column after column of notices in the interest of churches or moral or philanthropic associations. This we do without charge. Our annual contributions in this direction probably amount to close upon $200, a sum vastly in excess of that which any other member of the community is called on to contribute as his or her proportionate part of the cost of moral reform. We notice, however, at times a tendency on the part of those through whom these favors are done to work into their notices an advertisement which does not pertain to their work, but may perhaps be a favor to some party who is employed by them. This is hardly a fair thing to do. It is imposing somewhat on the good nature of a publisher to send him such notices under the circumstances.—Waltham Free Press.

☞ Cook County, Minn., is one of the most thinly populated counties in the union. It had, by the census of 1890, only 98 inhabitants, a gain of but 63 in 10 years. Bowman county, N. D., has but six inhabitants, and Sheridan county had but five; Choteau county had only eight inhabitants, and Martin county seven. Most of these sparsely settled counties of the new states have doubtless gained considerably since 1890, but the sparsely settled counties of Texas are probably little changed in this regard. Lamb county had four inhabitants. Parmer seven, Yoakum four and Loving three.

THE CUBAN REVOLT.

A Lack of Influential Leaders---Newspapers Said to Have Suppressed Facts.

TAMPA, Fla., March 29.—Olivette arrived from Havana last night, bringing a number of passengers. One of these, a Cuban planter of vast estates, says the Cuban revolution means the ruin of the island; that there are no influential men at the head of it. He predicts a dismal failure in four months. He thinks the Cubans have much injured themselves by this insurrection, when Spain was just beginning to give them home rule.

If reports are to be believed, the Cubans allege that if there are 200,000 Spaniards sent there it will not suppress the present movement. They declare they are out to win and win they must.

An American passenger on the steamer stated that the newspapers were giving only the government side and sending out wrong reports; that in all the engagements the patriots had been victorious. He further states that there were fully 20,000 repeating rifles in the patriots' hands.

Living Up to His Pledges.

NEW YORK, March 29.—A delegation called on the mayor yesterday afternoon and asked him to appoint Peter J. Carpenter a dock commissioner. The spokesman referred to the fitting qualities of Mr. Carpenter, and added: "He is a Republican." "I am sorry," answered the mayor, "otherwise I would appoint him. You see I have already named two Republicans for the dock board and I want to put a Democrat there to watch them."

Insurgents Have Friends.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Minister Muruaga has recently advised the state department of several shipments of arms and ammunition from this country to the insurgents in Cuba. Instructions were given to have suspected points watched, and for the prosecution of parties engaged in the business. The prosecuting officers, however, have been unable thus far to secure sufficient evidence to make cases.

Mississippi Justice.

JACKSON, Miss., March 29.—Three young women riding in company with their little brother were overtaken by an unknown negro, who requested that they let him ride. They declined, and he undertook to force himself into the vehicle, but they beat him off. They told friends what had happened and a posse was organized. They found the negro and riddled him with bullets.

Kaiser's Telegram Held Back.

BERLIN, March 29.—The president of the reichstag yesterday decided that it would be contrary to order to submit to the house the proposed resolution asking it to take some action in regard to the telegram which Emperor William sent to Prince Bismarck after the reichstag refused to congratulate him on his birthday. The president refused to entertain the motion.

Japs' Onward March.

SHANGHAI, March 29.—Thousands of Japanese have landed at Hai-Chow, in the province in which Shanghai is situated. The landing was effected under the protection of a squadron. The Chinese resisted, but were defeated with a loss of 300 killed. The movement foreshadows an advance on Nankin, capital of the province of Kiangsu.

New Englanders For Annapolis.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Forty-three of the candidates for admission to the United States Military academy have successfully passed examinations, and will enter the academy in June next. Among them are W. S. Brown, North Bridgeton, Me.; C. B. Clark, Medford; M. J. McDonough, Boston, and Lewis Brown, Jr., Newport.

Sent a Communication to France.

LONDON, March 29.—In the house of commons Sir Edward Grey stated that the government had received information from the Niger company that two French expeditions had entered their territory. Sir Edward added that the communication in regard to the matter had been sent to the French government.

Will Become Totally Blind.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Isaac A. Cockran, the real estate broker, who was shot in a saloon by Bessie Fairbanks, was last night discharged from the hospital. The sight of his left eye is entirely gone and the right eye is fast failing, and he is expected to become totally blind.

Old Mariner Dead.

NORFOLK, March 29.—Captain Charles H. Simmons of Frederick, Md., died at a hospital here yesterday of cancer of the liver. He was 66 years old. He was resident representative of the Pacific Mail Steamship company at Tokio and Hong Kong for many years.

Over a Million to Be Divided.

DENVER, March 29.—The will of the late Mrs. Augusta L. Taber was sent to probate yesterday. The entire estate, valued at over $1,000,000, was left to her son, N. M. Taber, and other relatives, most of whom live in Maine.

Students Are O. K.

GREENPOINT, L. I., March 29.—The catboat Frolic, containing a party of Yale college students, which was reported missing, is safe and all on board are well. Owing to the gale the boat had to put into Orient Point.

Ancient Agricola Ashore.

BROOKLYN, March 29.—Schooner Agricola was blown ashore at the foot of Thirty-fourth street and a hole was stove in her bow. The crew landed in rowboats. The Agricola was built at Biddeford in 1836.

Frozen Out by Bears.

CHICAGO, March 29.—The commission firm of Malcom & Waterbury assigned yesterday. The bears in the pork market and the rise of the product forced the assignment.

Colored Man Won.

DECATUR, Ind., March 29.—Harry Bryant and W. Burden (colored) fought with five-ounce gloves in a field near this city. Bryant was knocked out in the 10th round.

Vermonter Wants to Secure Himself.

TOPEKA, March 29.—A suit was begun yesterday asking for a receiver for the Columbian building. The plaintiff is Wallace C. Clement, a Vermont capitalist.

More Gunboats For Cuba.

MADRID, March 29.—Four gunboats, the Janez Pinzon, Martin Pinzon, Galicia and Filipinas, have been ordered to Cuba to re-enforce the fleet there.

Stock Increased by $5,000,000.

NEW YORK, March 29.—The stockholders of the Postal Telegraph Cable company voted to increase the capital stock from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

CONGREGATIONAL CONCERT.

A Pleasing Programme at First Entertainment of the Course.

The first concert in the series by the Congregational Chorus was given in the chapel last evening. An hundred or more were in attendance. Most of the talent was from Quincy excepting Monsieur Alfred DeSeve, the violinist. He was the favorite of the evening and under his skilled touch his violin fairly spoke. In every case he was recalled several times.

Prof. Frank C. Gilbert opened the concert with a piano solo, Ballad No. 1, G Minor by Chopin. As he stepped on the stage he was warmly greeted, as he is a favorite with Quincy audiences. At the close of the solo he responded to the loud encore.

The Adams Male Quartette sang several selections and were in good voice and harmony with each other. This quartette was made up of Mr. E E. Bullock, 1st tenor; Mr. A. W. Ferguson, 2d tenor; Mr. A. L. Hood, 1st bass, and Mr. Walter Arnold, 2d bass.

Solos were sung by Mrs. Mattie S. Curtis, contralto and Miss Grace M. Isaac, soprano. Mrs. Curtis has a very deep contralto voice and is a very easy singer. Her selections were most favorably received and a response called for each time. Miss Isaac gave but one selection, "Alla Stella Confidente" with violin obligato and and piano accompaniment, which was received with much applause and a repetition given.

The piano solo "Sontagsmorgen" by Mr. Gilbert was beautifully rendered.

"Refuge" by the quartette closed the concert.

The next in the series will be given Thursday evening April 11th, and there will be a chorus of 50 voices and an orchestra of 8 pieces.

A Park for Hyde Park.

Several Quincy men were interested in a town meeting at Hyde Park, Thursday evening, as they had offered to the town a beautiful tract of thirty acres for $17,000. It was a part of the estate of Sally Sumner, of which Samuel Crane is executor and George W. Morton and Frank F. Crane his agents. It was a spirited town meeting where there was considerable talk pro and con, but it was finally voted, 394 to 14, to purchase. The town also took some adjoining land of the Hyde Park Real Estate and Building Co.

BRAINTREE.

The Micmacs will probably open their links for the first game of golf next week.

Frank R. Arnold comes home today from Southbridge for the spring vacation.

Mr. W. H. C. Watkins has secured a position with Mr. C. H. Bidell of Avon, Mass.

Business is good at the cotton mill on Adams street. The shop was run till nine o'clock three nights last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Tuttle are congratulated on the birth of a son at the home of Mrs. Tuttle's parents, in New London, Connecticut, March 13th.

Engineer Sears of Worcester and Chief Williams of Quincy have been looking at the new hose wagon, with a view of purchasing similar ones for their respective cities.

Next Sunday afternoon at the Braintree Baptist church the hand of welcome will be extended to several new members in connection with the regular service. All are cordially welcomed.

Miss Elizabeth Ellsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ellsworth, gave a small party to her intimate friends the other day. There were eight babies present to enjoy the affair.

Mr. Allen Gage carries a dozen girls from A. S. Morrison's mill to West Quincy each night in his barge. The girls are the ones recently hired for the knitting department, which has been transferred to the Braintree mill.

There was a short circuit on the electric light wire, just opposite Mr. E. F. French's house, one night recently. The insulation had all been rubbed from the wire by friction against a limb; when the tree became wet there was a brilliant arc, at the point of contact, and the big limb soon burned off and fell with a crash to earth.

The firm of R. H. Long & Company has been incorporated as the R. H. Long Shoe Company. Mr. Richard Long is treasurer and Mr. Theophilus King of Quincy, president.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the First Parish church held one of the most successful fairs in its history. Preparations had been made patiently and diligently to have this fair a big grand event, and it fulfilled every promise.

Superintendent Horne met the parents of the school children of Mayflower Park, in the schoolhouse there Tuesday evening; in answer to their petition to the school committee to have the school reopened. This petition represented a decided minority of the people interested. Mr. Horne talked the matter over with those present and nearly all came to the conclusion that for the present no action should be taken, at least not till next winter.

The selectmen appointed Mr. Andrew Dyer superintendent of our streets yesterday. This action was taken in accordance with the vote of the town at the annual meeting. Mr. Dyer has had much experience as a road superintendent and has held that position in this town under the old system.

"From Shadow—Sun."

We must live through the dreary winter
If we would value the spring,
And the woods must be cold and silent
Before the robins sing.
The flowers must lie buried in darkness
Before they can bud and bloom,
And the sweetest and warmest sunshine
Comes after the storm and gloom.
So the heart from the hardest trial
Gains the purest joy of all,
And from lips that have tasted sadness
The sweetest songs will fall.
For as peace comes after suffering,
And love is reward for pain,
So, after earth is heaven,
And out of our loss the gain.

TUPPER'S CONTENTION

Was to Go to the Country on the Separate Schools Question.

Manitoban Legislature Adjourns Until May 9

That Statesmen May Give Due Consideration to the Vexatious Matter.

WINNIPEG, March 29.—Sir Charles Tupper's resignation and his attitude on the schools' remedial order is the subject of much comment here.

Briefly stated, Sir Charles Tupper's contention was that the Dominion government should have gone to the country on this important question and should not have called a session at all.

The government has already opened communication with certain eminent constitutional lawyers, and has submitted to them for their advice some of the chief points affecting the jurisdiction of the legislature. The opinions of these gentlemen will doubtless have a bearing on the policy to be adopted by the government before the house reassembles in May.

Will Hold Its Ground.

Premier Greenway made an official statement to the Manitoba legislature late yesterday afternoon on the separate or parochial school question. He stated that his government saw no reason whatever why it should change its position in regard to the school system of Manitoba, viz.: National schools for all and no separate schools.

The receipt of the message from Ottawa, with a copy of the remedial order made by the Dominion government, raised constitutional questions exceeding in gravity and importance, to his mind, any constitutional question that has heretofore arisen in any legislative assembly in Canada since the day the Canadian provinces were federated. These questions affected not only the province of Manitoba, but every province in the Dominion of Canada.

In view of these facts, the government had decided to ask that the legislature adjourn till May 9, in order that ample time may be given for full and deliberate consideration of the whole matter. The premier's remarks were received with cheers, and the motion to adjourn was agreed to.

The Catholics charge that this is an attempt to shirk the issue, but it is denied by the government. They say that the order from Ottawa is an unprecedented one and must be well weighed, or there is danger of a Disruption of Confederation.

The premier was asked whether the Dominion government would be likely to take this proposed adjournment of the local house as a refusal on the part of the province to act in the matter of the order. He replied that no such construction could be put upon the adjournment, inasmuch as the provincial government was taking the order into consideration. There was no likelihood that the Dominion government, having a clear three weeks of session before the provincial house meets again and sends its answer, will act in the matter before hearing from Manitoba.

"You can depend upon it," said another minister, "that the Dominion government is not going to touch this school question any sooner than it has to. The important point in the matter is whether the reply of the provincial house will or will not be final, and whether the action of the Dominion government will or will not be final. Of course, the Dominion government will not act until the reply from Manitoba is received. It is not a question to hurry over."

Dignity Cast Aside.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 29.—The senate was the scene of great confusion yesterday afternoon by a personal encounter between Senator Stewart and Sergeant-at-Arms Stewart, which precipitated a free fight between a number of senators and bystanders. Senator Stewart was called to order, and upon his ignoring the chair, the sergeant-at-arms was called in. The fight followed.

Booming Atlanta's Show.

ATLANTA, March 29.—A. Macchi, European commissioner for the Cotton States and International exposition, states that arrangements have been perfected for a British section, filled with exhibits covering many of the most important textile industries in England. At Paris the minister of commerce will announce the exposition through the official journals of France.

Would-Be Biters Bitten.

LITTLE ROCK, March 29.—Sam McWilliams, George Sanders and Sam Butler rode into the town of Braggs Station, I. T., and announced that they proposed to hold up the town. A fight with the citizens ensued, in which McWilliams and Sanders were killed. Butler escaped after being wounded.

Valuable Package Missing.

HARTFORD, March 29.—Postoffice officials are searching for three state of Washington general fund warrants, valued at $2375.11, which were mailed on March 20 from this city to the People's Savings bank of Rockville. No trace of the package has been found since that date.

Progressive Women.

KANSAS CITY, March 29.—The Non-Partisan Woman's Christian Temperance union has made a decided stand on the Hatch-removal proposition by adopting resolutions against women wearing headgear in churches and at all in-door meetings.

Buildings and Timber Levelled.

BRIGANTINE JUNCTION, N. J., March 29.—A fierce forest fire has burned the district between Pleasantville and this place. Many buildings and a large quantity of timber were consumed. The origin of the fire is unknown.

"Mysterious" and Ryan to Meet.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Manager Kennedy of the Seaside Athletic club has arranged for a 25-round glove contest between Tommy Ryan and Billy Smith. April 29 is the date selected.

Unwilling to Assume Risk.

AMOY, March 29.—European ladies and children are leaving the island of Formosa, fearing that an attack will be made by Japanese.

Minnesota Town Burned.

WYCKOFF, Minn., March 29.—This town was almost completely destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss will approximate about $100,000.

APPROPRIATION TOO SMALL.

Solid Men May Help Uncle Sam in the Nicaragua Canal Undertaking.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Messrs. Warner Miller, Smith Weed, Hitchcock and Bartlett of New York called on the president, Secretary Gresham and Secretary Lamont yesterday in connection with the appointment of the commission to examine the Nicaragua canal route, as provided for by a clause in the last sundry civil appropriation bill.

This clause makes an appropriation of $20,000 for the purpose of ascertaining the feasibility, permanence and cost of construction and completion of the canal on the present route, and provides for the appointment of a commission of one army engineer, one naval engineer and one civilian expert to visit and inspect the canal.

The work is to be done under regulations prescribed by the secretary of state and the president is to appoint the commission. The latter are also authorized to suggest any deviation from the present line that they may deem desirable.

One of the most important features of the conferences was a tender by the canal people of facilities and equipments necessary for the expedition. The government appropriation is only $20,000. This is much too small for the work to be done. A force of 50 or 60 men will be necessary. They will have to cut roads, carry boats, establish depots of supplies and equip provision trains.

A Kentucky Tragedy.

PRINCETON, Ky., March 29.—A stranger yesterday walked up to Lee Dorron, who was plowing, and whose family Miss Mollie Easley was visiting, and coolly remarked that "That young lady who was in the house by herself had cut her throat." Dorron rushed to the house and found the girl's throat cut from ear to ear. There was evidence of a struggle about the room. The stranger deliberately took the horses from the plow, turned them loose and then disappeared.

Japs Not Altogether Peaceful.

LONDON, March 29.—Nagasaki and Pekin correspondents of The Times comment upon the war frenzy that pervades the Japanese people. The other Chinese peace envoys were attacked while they were in Japan, though the assaults upon them were less serious than the one upon Li Hung Chang. The envoys maintained silence in regard to the attacks in order to avoid embittering the situation.

Epworth League Propositions.

DETROIT, March 29.—Resolutions were adopted by the Epworth league state convention requesting the legislature to prohibit the sale of liquor within five miles of the university and the state normal school; requesting a resubmission to the people of the question of constitutional prohibition, and recommending active participation in primaries and elections by Christian citizens.

Crazy Woman's Queer Freak.

ROCHESTER, March 29.—Mrs. John Gute committed suicide yesterday afternoon by cutting her throat with a large case-knife. The woman was mentally deranged through constant reading of the Bible. With blood from the gash in her throat, she painted disconnected words in huge letters on the walls of her bedchamber.

Can Be Readily Terminated.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—President Cleveland has signed the proclamation of the new Japan treaty. While the treaty as proclaimed shows some ambiguity, it is believed that the intent of the senate has not been balked, and that an early termination is practicable if it should become desirable.

Queen's Man-o'-Warsmen Shifted.

HALIFAX, March 29.—Steamer Carthaginian arrived here yesterday from Glasgow and Liverpool. She brought 100 British men-of-warsmen, whose destination is Bermuda. Augumented by 200 others, who had arrived previously, the British tars left for their destination last evening.

Provisional Government Contemplated.

HAVANA, March 29.—General Maceo, together with 26 other leaders of the insurrectionary movement, is about to form a provisional government. This government will, among other things, levy taxes to be devoted to meeting the expenses of a filibustering expedition to the island.

Russia Ready For Business.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 29.—The Cronstadt Naval Gazette states that 21 Russian men-of-war are now in Chinese waters. The Novoe Vremya urges the government to occupy the Pescadore islands in order to provide accommodation for a large squadron of warships.

Another Government Victory.

COLON, March 29.—The government troops have been victorious in an engagement fought with the rebels at San Carlos. The rebellion is now ended, and river steamers which have been operating against the rebels are now being disarmed.

St. Augustine Flame Swept.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 29.—The northwestern portion of this city was swept by fire yesterday afternoon, destroying 49 residences and business houses, besides several small structures, entailing a loss of fully $100,000.

New Car Company Organized.

KANSAS CITY, March 29.—The Williams Palace Sleeping Car company has been organized, with a capital stock of $5,000,000, to manufacture in this city a new palace car, the invention of a local railroad man.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

TOPIC.—Christ's yoke.—Math. xi, 28-30; John xiv, 14, 15.

A yoke represents a burden, and we are all born under or willingly take on some kind of a yoke. We are all carrying some kind of a load or burden. The Jews to whom Christ spoke the words in Math. xi, 28-30, were under the burden or yoke of the law. But a hard yoke it was. It required much of them, but gave them no strength or assistance in their burden bearing. Christ, therefore, called upon them to give up the yoke of the law, to become His disciples and to take His yoke upon them. To all wearing yokes, whether the yoke of the law, the yoke of pride, of sensuality, of worldliness, of ambition or self indulgence, Christ comes with the same request to give up these yokes and take His yoke upon them.

Christ's yoke is obedience to His commandments. He does not try to allure us into discipleship by telling us that as Christians we shall have no burdens to bear. Indeed Christ is very careful always to guard against such a false impression. He founded His kingdom upon a cross. He said, "If any man will come after Me, let him take up his cross and follow Me." He urged those to whom He appealed to become His disciples to count the cost before they did so, because it might be necessary as His followers to suffer much in the world. Christians have burdens to bear and yokes to wear as well as those who are not Christians, but with this difference: Christ's yoke is easy, and the others are not.

Christ's yoke is easy. This is Christ's own testimony. "My yoke is easy, and My burden is light." The Christian's yoke is easy because Christ helps him to wear it. He gives him strength and grace to obey His commandments. The yoke is often a cross, and yet it is light, for Christ Himself always bears the heavier end of it, as He did on the way to Golgotha, when Simon was compelled to assist Him. Christ's yoke is easy because it is a labor of love. Love lightens burdens always. To obey those we love, to bear burdens for them is a pleasure. It is not a hardship or a difficulty, be the burden ever so heavy or the way ever so long. Christ's yoke is easy, too, in the light of what it brings to us. No cross, no crown. It is through tribulation that we win heaven. It is through the light afflictions of the present that we obtain glory hereafter. Christ's yoke is indeed "like the plumage of the bird, an easy weight, enabling it to soar heavenward."

Wearing the yoke of Christ is the test of our love to Him. "If ye love Me, keep My commandments" (John xiv, 15). Obedience is, therefore, the test of love. Let us, therefore, obey His commandments, let us take His yoke upon us that we may prove our love to Him who first loved us.

Bible Readings.—Deut. vi, 2; x, 12, 13; Eccl. xii, 13, 14; Isa. ix, 2-4; x, 27; Ps. xix, 8-10; cxix, 127, 143; Mark ix, 41; Gal. vi, 9; Eph. vi, 2, 3; Phil. iv, 3, 4; Heb. xii, 1, 2; I John v, 3, 4; II John vi; Rev. ii, 10; vii, 13-17.

Memorial For Rev. Dr. Gordon.

At the first meeting after the death of their beloved pastor, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., his Christian Endeavor society decided, upon the recommendation of their foreign missionary committee—for the society has two missionary committees, home and foreign—to attempt to raise $200 as the nucleus of a special memorial fund to Dr. Gordon. This was to be in addition to the $600 already pledged for the support of their missionaries. None but the young people was present in the room, and yet at once more than $400 was raised for this purpose. A debt of $200,000 rests heavily upon the American Baptist Missionary union. It is the splendid purpose of these Endeavorers of the Clarendon Street Baptist church of Boston to arouse the Baptist young people of the land to pay off this debt. They hope their $425, which will doubtless soon become $500, will be added to by every Baptist young people's society in the United States, in proportion as God has blessed the members. In no better way could they honor the memory of the noble Christian minister and missionary worker who has gone. It is not too much to hope that with the earnest and prompt co-operation of all Baptist young people even so large a sum as $200,000 can speedily be raised. Were all the societies to do only a tenth as well as Dr. Gordon's Endeavorers, the task would be accomplished.

New York City Churches.

According to latest returns, there are in the city of New York 522 churches, of all denominations. These afford a seating capacity of 400,000. The most numerous churches are Episcopalian with 103 church edifices. Then come the Roman Catholics with 84; the Presbyterians follow with 70; the Methodists have 65 and the Baptists 50; the Jews have 46, and the Congregationalists only 7. The Roman Catholics have increased the most rapidly during the last 20 years, having more than doubled in that time. But only a small part of the inhabitants of the city attend church at all.—Journal and Messenger.

Tripping Into Town.

A little lass with golden hair,
A little lass with brown,
A little lass with raven locks,
Went tripping into town.
"I like the golden hair the best,"
"And I prefer the brown,"
"And I the black," three sparrows said,
Three sparrows of the town.

"Tu-whit, tu-whoo!" an old owl cried
From the belfry in the town.
"Gal hearted lassies need not mind
If locks be gold, black, brown.
Tu-whit, tu-whoo, so fast, so fast,
The sands of life run down!

"And soon—so soon—three white haired dames
Will totter through the town.
Gone then for aye the raven locks,
The golden hair, the brown,
And she will fairest be whose face
Has never worn a frown."

ABSOLUTELY PURE

—In New York Sunday, Rev. Thomas Dixon announced to his congregation that he had engaged the Academy of Music, and that beginning the first Sunday in April his new church, "the church of the people," would be formally started. A marked innovation will be a board of deacons, composed half of women. This news was loudly applauded by the women present.

—It seems to be the impression of those who are in the best position to know, that the long period of business depression is practically over. That the downward tendency in prices is at an end for the present, at least, and that a general feeling of confidence and hopefulness is more prevalent. The best evidence of this is the fact that money is in more active demand at better rates of interest.

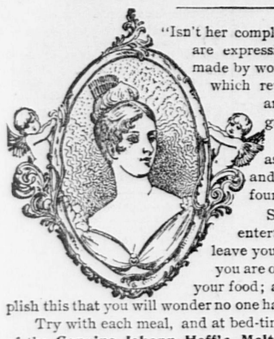
VOL. 7. NO. 76. QUINCY, MASS., SATURDAY, MARCH 30, 1895. PRICE 2 CENTS.

"What a Lovely Complexion!"



"Isn't her complexion charming!" These are expressions we hear every day, made by women in reference to others, which reveal a pardonable envy, and one which can be gratified.

The secret of good health, as indicated by a rich color, and well-rounded figure, is found in a good digestion.

Shopping tours, dances and entertainments indulged in, will leave you utterly fagged out, unless you are obtaining all the value from your food; and it is so easy to accomplish this that you will wonder no one has spoken to you of it before.

Try with each meal, and at bed-time, a wineglassful or more of the Genuine Johann Hoff's Malt Extract, which you will find to be most acceptable to the palate as a beverage, and will lift you right on to the plane of the vivacious and trim-figured sister you admire so much, and who seems capable of enduring endless fatigue.

Then, again, we must remember the nursing mother, where two lives are dependent upon the proper nourishing of the one. Surely nothing can be more valuable to the mother, nor give more comfort to the baby, by producing a generous flow of milk, than the

GENUINE JOHANN HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT.

Defective nutrition is the foundation of all ailments.

A healthy, well-nourished body can withstand almost any disease. There is resistance power in such a body.

I have been taking the Genuine Johann Hoff's Malt Extract myself for a year or so, and find it an excellent tonic and appetizer. Without doubt it is the best Malt Extract in the market. W. A. WHITTEM, Druggist, Chestnut Hill.

IN A JEALOUS FRENZY

James McBride, a Rejected Suitor, Takes Widow Rockford's Life.

Children of the Victim Witnessed the Crime.

SPRINGFIELD, March 30.—One of the most brutal crimes that has been committed in this vicinity for years occurred yesterday afternoon, when James McBride, a stonecutter, shot and instantly killed Mrs. Julia Rockford, aged 31, a widow, living with her six small children in a one-story wooden hut at Sixteen Acres, a settlement about four miles north of this city.

The murderer sent two shots into his victim's brain, then coolly walked over to his boarding house, half a mile distant, and informed Mrs. Cormey of his deed, saying: "You may have my trunk and what little money I have. I've got three cartridges in my hand, and I'm going out to kill myself."

He left the house, and the next seen of him he was lying unconscious in the rear part of Charles Robertson's house on Allen street, about a mile from Sixteen Acres. His revolver was by his side. The police were speedily notified, and he was taken to the police station and later to the hospital.

Caused by Jealousy.

The only motive for the deed is jealousy. McBride was known to have paid considerable attention to Mrs. Rockford ever since the death of her husband, about a year ago. It is said he had repeatedly asked her to become his wife, but she had rejected him. He was known to have given her money on several occasions to buy food and clothes for the children.

The tragedy was witnessed by two of the murdered woman's little children, Ruby and Davy. The little girl's story is that she heard her mother and McBride talking loudly together. Suddenly McBride, who had been sitting in the chair in the kitchen, jumped up and held the revolver

In Front of Her Mother's Face.

She could not remember what he said, but the next moment she heard a report and saw her mother fall. McBride, half crazed by the terrible deed, again turned the smoking pistol on the woman and fired a second shot, which entered her left cheek.

The murdered woman's mother, Mrs. Kane, who lives near by, was the first person to arrive after the crime, being summoned by the 4-year-old girl. She said that she was confident that jealousy was the cause of the act. He had threatened her life once before because she had refused to listen to his entreaties to become his wife.

It is thought McBride cannot recover. He is 55 years old.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, March 30.—An order was introduced in the house requesting the subway commissioners to desist from any actual work on the subway for the reason that bills are now pending before the legislature for the repeal of the subway charter. The order was laid over till next week. The substitute bill providing for a police and license commission to be appointed by the governor of Woburn was accepted. The bill to tax all church property above the assessed valuation of $20,000 was referred to the next general court. The committee on education reported against the bills allowing additional appropriations to the new normal schools at Lowell and Fitchburg. Afterward the adverse report on the Lowell bill was recalled so that another hearing could be given by the house. The committee on public health reported a bill requiring every city of 50,000 inhabitants to maintain a hospital for the treatment of indigent persons suffering from infectious or contagious diseases.

A Fugitive From Justice.

WORCESTER, March 30. — Lucius W. White, 27 years of age, mortgage clerk of the Worcester County Institution for Savings, is an embezzler and a fugitive from justice. When accused last Tuesday he confessed to taking at different times during the last year and a half about $2250. He then escaped. He leaves behind him a young wife, whom he married last October.

Stabbing Affray at Boston.

BOSTON, March 30.—Thomas R. Maddox was stabbed just below the heart yesterday afternoon by Herbert McDonald in a dispute over the ownership of a coat. Maddox is in a dangerous condition and McDonald is under arrest at station 3, charged with assault with a knife. McDonald is 27 years of age and is thought to be a crook.

Lord's Prayer the Standard.

ANSONIA, Conn., March 30.—The committee of clergymen appointed to determine what prayer shall be used in the public schools reported last night that they had agreed upon the Lord's Prayer as found in Matthew's gospel. The singing of the Doxology, which formerly followed the repetition of the prayer, will not be resumed.

For Suffering Newfoundland.

BOSTON, March 30.—The fund for the relief of the destitute in Newfoundland, which has been contributed during the past few weeks, now amounts to about $12,000. Steamer Halifax sailed today for Halifax with a large amount of provisions, supplies, etc., purchased at cost from wholesale dealers.

Not For Grand Army.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., March 30.—At a special meeting of the common council, the appropriation bill as amended by the board of aldermen, was passed, with the exception of striking out the words "for G. A. R," in connection with the Memorial Day appropriation. The bill calls for $184,025.

Barrie Won't Quit.

LAWRENCE, March 30.—The Democratic majority of the overseers of the poor wielded the ax last night, and aimed a blow at the head of Clerk W. C. Barrie. In his place they elected Frank W. McNally. Mr. Barrie, however, declines to be removed, and a legal fight is looked for.

Eminent Actor's Companions.

CAMBRIDGE, March 30.—H. B. Tree, the English actor, addressed Harvard students yesterday afternoon. His subject was: "Some Aspects of the Stage." Self-consciousness, he said, was an inborn characteristic, which it was hard to lose. The loss of self-consciousness made the American a better orator than the Englishman. As a rule the American spoke better than he talked, while the Englishman talked better than he spoke. Every child is a born actor, but it is only some of us that attain childhood until death. An actor must approach a character in the spirit of an intellectual child.

Debaters Against Football.

CAMBRIDGE, March 30.—The Wendell Phillips club of Harvard held a spirited debate on the football question last evening. The question was "Resolved, That the action of the Harvard faculty regarding football is justifiable." The question was decided in the affirmative.

Honoring "America's" Author.

BOSTON, March 30.—Arrangements have now been perfected for a demonstration in honor of Rev. S. F. Smith, D.D., author of "America," to be held on April 3 at Music hall. The exercises will be held during the afternoon and evening, and an elaborate program will be presented.

Thought to Be an Old Offender.

LYNN, March 30.—Frank Lointard, who claimed to be a collector for a Boston physician, was caught in the act of robbing a trunk in a house on Market street last night. The thief is believed to have been connected with a series of burglaries which have occurred here lately.

Letter Thief Caught.

BOSTON, March 30.—Henry Hoppe, 18 years of age, a student of the Harvard medical school, was caught stealing a decoy letter containing money yesterday. He admitted his guilt, and confessed that he had been the thief who had caused the students so much trouble.

Fall Killed Him.

PROVIDENCE, March 30. — Peter Kavil, while at work on the schooner Governor Ames, was caught by the hook of a coal bucket as it was drawn up. He released himself, falling head first into the hold, sustaining injuries from which he died.

Harvard Wouldn't Accept.

CAMBRIDGE, March 30.—Captain Bingham received word yesterday from the University of California stating that they desire Harvard to enter a dual competition with them in the east on June 1. Captain Bingham wired that he could give the university no date.

Boston Miss Poisoned.

BOSTON, March 30. — Emma Bentley, aged 13, died last night from poisoning, supposed to have been in the coloring of candy which the girl ate. The police were given samples of the candy eaten by the girl and an analysis will be made.

Mystery Deep as Ever.

PORTLAND, March 30.—All trace has been lost of James E. Austin, who disappeared from this city two weeks ago. When last seen he had plenty of money on his person. Foul play only can account for his mysterious disappearance.

Held Up by Highwaymen.

BOSTON, March 30.—George F. Hitchcock reports that he was walking along Federal street last night when three men sprang upon him. One held his hands while the others appropriated his gold watch and $8 in money.

Became Too Hot.

NEWPORT, March 30. — Frank Coyle and Joe Kirby fought for scientific points last night, but it took on the character of a bout for blood and the referee stopped it at the end of the 10th round and declared the fight a draw.

To Tackle Princeton.

NEW HAVEN, March 30.—The final debate for the Professor Thacher memorial prize was held last night. The winners were Buttrick, '95, and Clough, '96. These, with Ball, '98, will represent Yale in the Princeton debate.

Gilmore's Bad Fall.

NEW HAVEN, March 30.—Robert C. Gilmore, the Yale sophomore who was dangerously injured by being thrown off his bicycle Wednesday afternoon, is still unconscious, but there is a possibility of his recovery.

Street Railway Sued.

PAWTUCKET, March 30.—Deputy Sheriff Ham yesterday served a $1000 writ upon the Pawtucket Street Railway company in a suit brought by Patrick Morris for injuries sustained by Morris in a recent accident.

Blaze In a Maine Town.

BELFAST, Me., March 30.—Fire yesterday destroyed the building and contents of A. P. Wentworth & Co., general merchants, together with the house of Herbert Robinson at Lincolnville Centre.

Was Once Champion of Maine.

PORTLAND, March 30.—Moses E. O'Brien, a well-known oarsman and member of the famous 'longshore crew of this city, is dead. O'Brien won the championship of Maine in 1873.

JAPS CALL A HALT.

Assault Upon Li Hung Chang Has Led to a Declaration of Armistice.

Will Displease Japanese People and Soldiery.

Government's Power to Execute Its Will May Be Put to a Critical Test.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The following telegram was yesterday afternoon received by the Japanese legation from the Japanese foreign office:

THE MIKADO.

"On the opening of the negotiations the Chinese plen potentiary proposed armistice, which the Japanese government was willing to accept on certain conditions. While this negotiation was going on, an untoward event happened on the person of the Chinese plenipotentiary. His majesty, the emperor, in view of this unhappy occurrence, commended the Japanese plenipotentiaries to consent to temporary armistice without conditions. This was communicated to the Chinese plenipotentiary."

China Asked For It First.

The armistice will be effective until the peace negotiations are concluded. After a meeting of the peace ambassadors had been decided on, China requested the declaration of an armistice, but this request had not been acted upon favorably by Japan. Japan had not been inclined to stop warlike operations, except on certain conditions. These conditions are not known, but it is suggested that probably the occupation of Taku might have been one, Japan wishing this as a guarantee of the willingness and earnestness of the Chinese for an amicable settlement of the war.

China evidently could not arrive at a conclusion to agree to the stipulations demanded by Japan, and the attempt on the life of the Chinese peace ambassador solved the problem for the time being, and hostilities will be suspended. There will be no withdrawal of the Japanese troops from Chinese territory, however.

Military May Not Submit.

The power of the Japanese government to execute the armistice will now be put to a critical test. The military power of Japan, in the judgment of intelligent observers, has almost outstripped the civil power during the war. This has caused serious concern, as it has been feared that the military element, backed by the war spirit among the people, would not submit to an armistice, even if the civil authorities ordered one.

To meet this emergency a change of army commanders was recently made. There had been three army corps operating in different campaigns, and each under a general of supreme authority over his particular campaign. About three weeks ago, in anticipation of the armistice, Prince Komatsee was created commander in chief of all the armies. The purpose of this step was to concentrate all the authority in one man in close touch with the imperial household, who could thus execute an armistice by a simultaneous cessation of hostilities by the three armies.

It now remains to be seen whether Prince Komatsee can execute the imperial commission given to him. The splendid discipline shown by the army during the war gives assurance that there will be immediate acquiescence by the military, and Prince Komatsee has to content himself against a war spirit inflamed by many victories. It has been said that an armistice would be unpopular among the people and soldiery, and that it would assure the political retirement of Japan's two chief statesmen—Count Ito and Mr. Matsin—who have served as peace envoys.

The Chinese End of It.

The declaration of an armistice was most welcome news to the Chinese legation, although it was accepted with the stolid and passive dignity which is characteristic of the race. The numerous suite of the legation, comprising many secretaries, attaches and translators, were evidently glad that the tedious and discouraging struggle was at an end. They discussed its effects upon their countrymen at home.

There was some doubt as to the meaning of the term "unconditional" armistice, although this was accepted as meaning that recent events had induced the envoys to agree to an armistice before agreeing exactly on the terms of peace. It is felt that the arrangement of these terms will still be a difficult task.

The feeling in the interior of China, where the direct effects of the war have not been felt, is very strong against a cession of territory. Moreover, the payment of a cash indemnity will necessitate the imposition of heavy taxes on the people, and consequent depression.

These considerations, together with the direct losses on the ravages of war, make the commerce revival of China so problematical that the officials would not discuss it, beyond mentioning the difficulties in the way of a restoration of commerce and international prosperity.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

The schools closed Friday for a two weeks' vacation.

The Quincy sewerage bill has been passed to be engrossed.

The Congregationalists will have a church supper in April.

More snow this morning at sunrise, but it had about all disappeared at noon.

The next rehearsal of "Elijah" will be held on Monday evening at 7.30, instead of Wednesday.

A meeting was held at South Braintree last evening to reorganize the Old Colony base ball league.

The new court house scheme seems to have died out, as does also the scheme to enlarge City Hall.

Wollaston people are wrestling with the problem "The cat; the washboiler; the chloriform; the man.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Penniman and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Merritt are to occupy the Universalist parsonage.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company will be held on Wednesday next at its office in this city.

The first lady bicyclist of the season made her appearance it City Square this morning, notwithstanding the muddy condition of the streets.

Mr. Charles F. Badger of the firm of Badger Bros., at West Quincy, died on Friday in his 36th year. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon.

The young men are getting ready for the base ball season and it is understood that Quincy will have a good nine and some interesting games may be expected.

A train will leave the Union station, Boston, next Tuesday evening at 6.40 for the Epworth League rally at the New England Conference in Salem, returning leave Salem at 9.53. Fare for the round trip from Boston will be sixty-five cents.

"The Governor with a weak backbone," is the topic upon which Mr. T. D. Roberts, Supt. of the Boston Industrial Home, will speak upon tomorrow at 3 30, at the mass meeting for men in Hancock hall. Mr. Roberts who is a fine singer, will also render several solos.

Quincy capital seems to be well represented in the Sharon Water Company. These officers were elected at the annual meeting: Clerk, William B. Wickes of Sharon; directors, J. A. Gordon and F. E. Hall of Quincy, P. A. McClellan of Springfield and W. L. Faxon of Middleboro; treasurer, F. E. Hall of Quincy.

At the Wollaston Congregational church on Sunday evening, Dr. G. L. Richards will give a brief talk on "The Footprints of St. Paul. The discourse will be based upon the doctor's personal experience and investigations while at Rome. The Double quartette of the church will sing Orlando Barrie's "Good Shepherd" and Koschat's "Holy Spirit Come," and Miss A. Elizabeth Paullin will sing the soprano solo from Costa's Eli "Turn thou unto Me."

Houghs Neck Party.

Another delightful party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Milton at Houghs Neck, last evening, and the neighbors and friends presented Mr. Milton with a very nice carriage robe, Mrs. Milton with a willow rocker, and little Ribby with a silver set. The presentation speech was made by Frank C. Perry. There were some thirty persons present, and dancing was enjoyed to a late hour. Mrs. Milton then gave one of her famous lunches: coffee, ice cream, cake and pie.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton have worked hard to please and make the otherwise dull winter pass pleasantly, and they have the love of the whole community. Houghs Neck is not the worst place to live in, as many can testify, and this has been a pleasant winter, due to the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. John Milton, J. Stanley Mears and wife, and others.

Without a Pastor.

The Congregational church at a church meeting last evening accepted the resignation of their beloved pastor, Rev. Edward Norton and appointed a committee to draft a letter of regret. The resignation took effect upon its acceptance and therefore the church is now without a pastor.

THE SOCIAL REALM.

A Reunion of Miss Underwood's Pupils Suggested.

THE NEW CLUB MOVEMENT.

Personals, Engagements, Weddings, Etc., in Quincy and Vicinity.

Twice have pupils and friends of Miss Julia E. Underwood celebrated anniversaries of long service as teacher in our public schools, and it is hoped they may celebrate the golden anniversary ten years hence. How nice it would be to have a reunion of Miss Underwood's pupils. Quincy has no hall that would accommodate them all, for they number nearly 2,000, but many at a distance would make an effort to attend a reception given to her. Frequently old pupils do call to see her and these are happy occasions to pupil and teacher. Some now have in their possession "goods" and rewards of merit which she awarded years ago.

The engagement of Miss Annie Zeigler, formerly of East Milton, and sister of Mrs. Emery L. Crane of this city is announced to Mr. Jones of Boston.

Should the suggested new club become organized, it is probable that the centre of society is to become fixed at the proposed club house on President's hill. The matter has met with much favor among Quincy gentlemen and it now looks as if our city would no longer be the only one without a representative club.

Mr. George G. Saville has been on to New York this week.

The whist club at The Greenleaf on the evening of the 27th, entertained by Miss Russell and Miss Alley, scored another success. First prizes were won by Mrs. Edward Russell and Mr. J. F. Merrill; consolations by Miss Alley and Mr. Atkins. Miss Minnie Rodgers was an invited guest.

* * *

Mrs. Roger H. Wilde of Atlantic has been ill a week or more but is some better now.

Mr. Horace A. Eaton, of the Harvard Divinity School and formerly a resident here, will speak in the Unitarian chapel, under the auspices of the Guild, on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. His subject will be, Dante's Divine Comedy.

The engagement is announced of Miss Mary C. Hersey, daughter of Mr. Levi Hersey of Hingham to Mr. Ernest W. Campbell, of Campbell-Metcalf Silver company of Providence, R. I.

Miss Annie L. Prescott can now be found regularly at the PATRIOT office except on Wednesday afternoons. Her health is much improved since her long and tedious illness of last spring and she will be pleased to welcome her friends to her den.

The Hingham Footlight Dramatic club will present the old English comedy, "Married Life," Thursday evening, April 18, at the Parish House, Hingham.

Miss Annie E. Underwood, the mailing clerk at the postoffice, left today for a short visit at the Cape. She is another Miss Underwood long in service, having been connected with the Quincy postoffice at least fifteen years.

Mr. and Mrs. William Coppin of Hingham have taken up their residence in South Quincy the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Groves are to remove from Wollaston to Hingham, to reside permanently, at about the first of April, and will occupy a part of Mrs. P. C. Burr's house on Leavitt street, Hingham Centre.

Mrs. Elliott Green played the organ at the Atlantic M. E. church last Sunday, the organist, Mr. Edward Joselyn, being in New York city.

Mrs. Frank A. Page and Mr. S. M. King have been secured to sing at the King's Daughters' military drill and entertainment in the Congregational chapel, next Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Allison Tupper are spending the Easter vacation at Shelburne Falls, Mass.

Hon. James H. Flint, associate judge of the Quincy court and representative from Quincy-Weymouth the district, will be the Memorial day orator at Duxbury.

What a fetching gown Miss Grace M. Isaac had on at the concert Thursday evening. Pure white and very simple and sweet like her singing.

The Dorchester High school battalion held its annual prize drill at Associates' hall, Milton, last evening, and it was one of the society events. The dance which followed was really a military ball.

A very pretty "at home" was given by Miss Almira E. Simmons, at 14 Central avenue, Wollaston, on Friday evening. The chocolate was poured by Miss Kate Simmons and Miss Hattie Merriam. The ushers were Mr. W. E. Simmons, Jr., and Mr. Fred H. Holmes. Among the well known society people present were Mr. Elisha H. Mace, whose engagement to Miss Simmons, it will be remembered, was announced last week; Mrs. William H. Mace and daughter, Miss Maude Mace of Marlboro; Mr. Alfred Cummings of St. Paul, Minn.; Miss Mary A. Adams, Brookline; the Misses Wood, Brookline; Miss Jessie McGregor, Brookline; Miss Helen Louise Davis, Florence; Miss Edith R. Noyes, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Dewson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Cummings, Miss Caroline Raymond Lord, Miss Florence G. Olney, Miss Marion F. Taylor, Miss Gertrude Sherman, Miss Mary F. Ela, Miss Helen Foster, Miss Mabel G. Nash, Miss Winnifred F. Howard, Mr. Arthur Sibley, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Corey, Mr. Gannett, Mr. E. Hadley and Miss Hadley of Boston.

Mrs. Fred E. Drake this week entertained a few friends at whist at her residence on Washington street in honor of her birthday. Mrs. Drake was presented with a handsome dinner set, after which a dainty collation was served by the hostess. A musical entertainment followed, and there were readings by Miss Gertrude Huntoon of Newport, N. H.

There was a quiet home wedding on Thursday at the residence of Mr. John W. Bates at East Weymouth, his daughter Miss Agnes M. Bates and Mr. Fred J. Clark of Lowell, being united in marriage by Rev. J. H. Macdonald. Mr. and Mrs. Clark will reside in Lowell.

Mrs. E. Watson Arnold of Braintree entertained a few friends at a five o'clock tea Wednesday afternoon.

The Junior League of the Atlantic Methodist church held full sway at the chapel on Wednesday evening, presenting a varied and delightful programme to their many friends and acquaintances.

Only 300 seats will be reserved for "The Holy City," and 135 of these had been sold Friday.

Miss Mabel Wilson of Squantum street celebrated her tenth birthday anniversary Thursday by a gathering of her friends from four to eight o'clock. The hours were passed pleasantly with games, music, supper, etc.

Miss Grace Owen celebrated her fourth birthday at her home on Botolph street last Tuesday evening, at which ten little friends were present. A magic lantern show occupied part of the evening, the remainder being spent by marching and the playing of games. After a dainty little collation was served, each child returned home.

A party of the young people went from Quincy to Wollaston on Thursday in a private electric car, crossing the Beale street bridge, an unusual event.

It is likely that a meeting of gentlemen interested in the new club will be called at an early day. In the event of taking the Adams house as its home, the possibilities of providing for the entertainment and comfort of its members and guests are unlimited. A fine bowling-alley would probably be built and this will enable the city to be represented in the many interclub tournaments that lately find so much favor,—something that heretofore Quincy has never been able to take to its advantage. The fine house and its appointments can satisfy the most fastidious club man.

The marriage of Miss Edith Whiton Clapp of East Weymouth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Clapp, to Mr. Alfred Loring Lincoln, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lincoln of Hingham, is announced to take place at the Old Church, Hingham, on Wednesday evening, April 10, at 7.30 o'clock. Reception to follow at the Parish House.—Journal.

Miss Jennie H. Richardson of Chestnut street has been ill this week with the grip.

Mrs. Joseph L. Whiton gives an at home Thursday afternoon for Miss Edith Woodbury of Francistown, N. H., and Miss Clara Redding of Malden, the fiances of her sons. Miss Pauline Wilkins, Miss Fay Hitchcock, Miss Florence Litchfield and Miss Jennie B. Field will pour chocolate.

The Ladies' Whist club met with Mrs. Ira Litchfield Thursday afternoon.

The last of the series of select dancing parties given by Mr. Eugene H. Sprague and Mr. Chandler W. Smith took place at the Knights of Honor hall, Wollaston, on Friday evening. A brilliant and large party of well known society people made this one the swellest affairs of the season.

Miss Elsie Drinkwater, daughter of Col. Drinkwater, will return Saturday from a trip through the South and Old Point Comfort with Miss Plympton.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Having sold my West Quincy store, I intend to confine my attention wholly to my store in Quincy Centre for the future. I respectfully ask a continuance of the favor of the patronage of the public.

It will be my aim in the future, as it has been in the past, to cater to the wants of every man, woman or child who enters my store. I would like your trade, if I have it not already, and promise in return courteous treatment, correct prices and above all other things, first-class goods.

Thanking you for past favors, and soliciting a continuance of the same, I remain

Bicycle Wisdom.

Of course there are hundreds of different bicycles in the market, and to many people all bicycles seem alike.

It is practical experience and continuous years of untiring effort that place Columbias today the first bicycle in America.

Not an experiment but a scientific piece of machinery, manufactured by skilled workmen, each part fitted with the most exact nicety and thoroughly tested before leaving the largest and most reliable bicycle factory in the world. Yes, Columbias are models of beauty, grace and lightness. The best bicycle in the world—with no exception—prices $50.00 to $100.00.

Full line of Columbias at our store. Instruction in riding, and free use of the Columbia Riding School to our patrons.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The men's mass meetings at Hancock hall, Sunday, will be addressed by Mr. T. D. Roberts, superintendent of the Boston Industrial home. Mr. Roberts has been very successful in addressing and working with young men, and the meeting Sunday promises to be one of the best of the series. There will be special solo singing.

Monday evening Rev. Robert W. Peach will conclude his special Bible lectures at the Association rooms. Subject, "What did Jesus teach concerning the Law and the Prophets." These Bible lectures are the most interesting talks of the kind ever given in the Association rooms. All men are welcome.

The interest in basket ball is being wide spread throughout the country and in Europe. Not only do the Young Men's Christian Association play the game but also the colleges and athletic associations are especially introducing it. The Quincy Y. M. C. A. gymnasium boys have begun the sport for this year. The first game was played by picked teams of juniors, Wednesday, viz: Richard McConnell, Robert E. Hall, Roscoe Johnson and Alfred Jones. V. S. Instructor Johnson, Nathaniel Thayer, Edward Hewitson and John Ross. The goals were thrown by R. McConnell and three by Dr. Johnson.

A Notable Service.

At the First Presbyterian church, Water street, on Sunday morning, March 31, there will be a service of rare occurrence, in the installation of an entire new session and Board of Deacons, and parish recognization of the newly-elected Board of Trustees. The session will be constituted of the following elders: T. C. Cantlay, Alexander Howie, John B. Sutherland, Alfred Bishop, Murdock Lamont, James Joss, George Bowman and Duncan Chisholm; Board of Deacons: Daniel McLennon, Donald McKenzie, Robert Phillips and Wm. B. Donald; Board of Trustees: Alexander Clark, president; George Bowman, clerk; John McLennon, treasurer; Peter W. Dackers, Robert Phillips, Daniel McLennon and Wm. F. McCalder. The public is invited to this service.

Castle Square Theatre.

"Rob Roy," DeKoven and Smith's comic opera, was seen in Boston for the first time at the Castle Square Theatre last Monday night with the original New York cast and production as seen during that phenominal New York run for six months. The success that was achieved is best described by these statements from the Boston daily papers in their Tuesday morning criticisms: "A great hit"—Boston Globe; "Latest popular hit in the comic opera line"—Boston Advertiser; "Rob Roy" should have a long run"—Boston Journal; "Received with storms of applause and peals of laughter"—Boston Record; "Applause was frequent and cordial"—Boston Herald; "The equal of Robin Hood"—Boston Post.

Park Theatre.

"Trilby" is booked at the Park theatre up to the end of Lent, which gives it two weeks after this to remain in Boston. Business continues enormous. The orchestra was put under the stage a fortnight ago, and the place it usually occupies is nightly filled with eager auditors; the "standing room only" sign is exhibited in the lobby at every performance; a line of ticket buyers extends from the door to the box office from morning until night, and the advance sale of seats is so heavy as to ensure crowded houses to the end of the engagement. Such a success has not been made by any play produced in Boston in many years, and it is a matter for regret that Mr. Palmer's company cannot remain longer, for it is evident that Potter's admirable adaptation of Du Maurier's novel might run far into the summer.

☞ Dr. Ernest E. Doble has removed from 70 Trinity Terrace to his former location, 399 Boylston street, Boston. Office hours, 2 30 to 4 30 P. M; other hours by appointment. Telephone, Tremont, 1086. 27—6t 30—2w

"Perhaps you would not think so, but a very large proportion of diseases in New York comes from carelessness about catching cold," says Dr. Cyrus Edson. "It is such a simple thing and so common that very few people, unless it is a case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. There are a great many cases of catarrh and consumption which have their origin in this neglect of the simplest precaution of every day life. The most sensible advice is, when you have one, get rid of it as soon as possible. By all means do not neglect it." Dr. Edson does not tell you how to cure a cold but we will Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will relieve the lungs, aid expectoration, open the secretions and soon effect a permanent cure. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

THE ORDINATION.

A Quincy Young Man Becomes a Baptist Minister.

Mr. George Hay Watt, one of South Quincy's well known young men, was ordained as a Baptist clergyman on Friday.

In the afternoon a council meeting was held at Doble's hall, at which time the candidate was examined by Rev. Dr. Eaton and Rev. Mr. Swathfield.

In the evening the ordination service was held at the Presbyterian church and here there were gathered a number of visiting clergymen and many of the friends of the candidate to wish him God speed in his chosen work.

The decorations were simple and consisted of potted plants which were placed about the platform.

The exercises opened with an organ voluntary followed by a hymn to the tune of Old Hundred, and Psalm 103.

Rev. Robert Westly Peach then offered prayer which was followed by scripture reading by Rev. Mr. Parker the acting pastor of the Calvary Baptist church.

The remainder of the exercises were as follow:

Hymn,—Tune, Balerma.
Sermon,—Rev. Mr. Swathfield.
Hymn,—Tune, Mendon.
Ordination prayer,—Dr. Eaton.
Hand of fellowship,—Rev. Mr. Swathfield.
Charge to candidate,—Prof. J. M. English, D. D.
Hymn,—Tune, Naomi.
Benediction,—Rev. George Hay Watt.

Experience Party.

Miss Frances White read several selections in an interesting and pleasant manner at the experience party in the vestry of the West Quincy M. E. church Thursday evening.

Several members of the Epworth league read or recited their stories of earning money, and Miss Bertha Turner received the first prize, a book, "Pushing to the Front."

Mr. T. L. Williams sold at auction the album quilt. Mr. C. S. Jose bought it and presented it at once to the pastor's daughter. Mr. Jose received the prize of a church hymnal for getting one hundred names for the quilt.

BRAINTREE.

There is another wedding in the near future.

The Universalist ladies are making arrangements to give a May festival.

Rev. S. E. Ellis of the Methodist church will preach his last sermon next Sunday.

Miss Tessie O'Rouke of this town has accepted a position at the North Grafton school.

The Baptist Social circle will give a supper and entertainment at the Town Hall on Thursday evening.

Mr. Edward Houston has resigned his position as fireman at the Electric Light station at East Braintree.

Thayer Academy, Braintree.

The tennis court is being repaired and will be one of the best courts in town.

Mr. Chick has had the grip all the week.

Professor O. B. Oakman is spending the spring vacation at his home in Marshfield.

☞ The subscription list will be open one week longer for the concert to be given by the Quincy Musical Society, in Hancock hall, Wednesday evening, May 8, under the direction of Mr. G. W. Dudley of Boston. Tickets at one dollar which guarantee two reserved seats can be obtained of members or at room of society No. 30 Adams building, Monday or Thursday evenings of next week. Reserved seats will be sold singly after the subscribers have been supplied.

A severe rheumatic pain in the left shoulder had troubled Mr. J. H. Loper, a well known druggist of Des Moines, Iowa, for over six months. At times the pain was so severe that he could not lift anything. With all he could do he could not get rid of it until he applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm. "I only made three applications of it," he says, "and have since been free from all pain." He now recommends it to persons similarly afflicted.

A CARD OF THANKS.

Miss Underwood is grateful to her pupils of today and in the past, to Miss Dearborn and associate teachers of the Coddington, to the School Committee, superintendents and teachers of Quincy, and to the PATRIOT and DAILY LEDGER, for recent expressions of approval. Love for her work in Quincy has caused her to decline many offers which from a pecuniary standpoint would have been to her advantage, but she feels now more than ever that her friends are in Quincy, and the kind words and generous tokens will always recall happy days.

JULY FOURTH 1875.

Wollaston Then Celebrate Its Fifth Anniversary in Grand Style.

The approaceing anniversary celebration at Wollaston recalls the the fifth anniversary celebrated on the Fourth of July in 1875. The PATRIOT of that year says, the celebration of the Fourth of July was of more than ordinary interest. A large tent was erected on what is now termed the First hill, and the excercises commenced at 3 30, when nearly 1,500 people were assembled notwithstanding the very oppressive heat.

The report continues: Col. George F. Pinkham presided in his usual pleasant manner. He stated briefly the idea of the celebration and the way in which it had been brought about. Prayer was then offered by Rev. Mr. Rowe, which was followed by a song by the scholars in the public schools.

Mr. Pinkham then introduced Major J. P. Jordan of Wollaston, who read patriotically the Declaration of Independence. The Belknap Brass Band then played a National air.

An excellent poem written expressly for the occasion by Mrs. Pinkham was read by Mr. Howard Gannett, followed by singing by the children.

Our distinguished townsman, Charles F. Adams, Jr., then gave an excellent historical address, occupying one hour and twenty minutes.

Hon. Josiah Quincy and Hon. John Quincy Adams followed.

In the evening there was an open air band concert, but rain interfered with the display of fireworks.

Teachers Long in Service.

The celebration of the fortieth anniversary of Miss Underwood as a Quincy teacher reminds us that there are in the employ of the city, many public school teachers long in the service. Miss Emeline A. Newcomb of the Willard completes 38 years next month, and Miss Eliza C. Sheahan of the Adams completes 30 years with the close of next term. Miss Marden of the Washington completed 20 years last year, and this is Miss Ellen Fegan's 20th year. In June of 1896 Miss Dearborn, the popular principal of the Coddington, will round out a score of years, and Miss Herman of the Adams has taught 18 years. As Dr. Gordon says Quincy teachers find perpetual youth, so with all these teachers it can be said, they are "up to-date."

Blue Hill Predictions.

30	31	1	2	3	4	5	6

The coming week promises to average more rainy than the past three weeks. The first half of the week will probably average colder than normal, followed by warmer between the 3d and 5th, and probably warmer than normal during the following week. The coldest promise to be between the 31st and morning of the 2d, and the warmest about the 4th or 5th. The greatest probabil ty of rain is on the 30th and on the 4th to 5th, and possibly also on the 3d. The greatest probability of clear weather is on the 31st, 2d and 3d.—Norfolk County Gazette.

Personal.

We clip the following concerning a former Quincy young man, son of the late Bryant N. Adams, from the Standard Weekly Review, a journal of commerce, finance and trade published at Chicago: "Adams & Kimbark have not long been in Evanston, but like the progress of electricity they have made very remarkable headway. Being young men of fine ability and great industry, they have made for themselves a splendid reputation and business. Electrical construction is their main business; they also carry a fine line of the Columbia bicycles. Mr. Paul W. Adams was born in Boston, and came west only a few years since. Mr. Kimbark was born and raised in our own state, came to the city years ago."

TODAY'S COURT.

Joseph W. Whitcomb was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

James Connolly of Quincy was arraigned for assault on Abraham Egelistine and was fined $5.

The liquors seized from James Lynch of Weymouth were forfeited.

Ernest Borden of Braintree was fined $5 for assault on Samuel J. Wood.

Only a Backache

Backache's such a common ailment that it's seriousness is not appreciated. It isn't a disease itself but a symptom of serious derangement, and commonly indicates Kidney trouble.

Buker's Kidney Pills

are a specific in the early stages for Kidney and Urinary troubles. They remove the cause, cure the ache and tone the vital organs. Neglecting the ache is neglecting the cause of the ache. The pills cost 50 cents at the druggists. An Ache-book sent free of charge.

Two Lives.

Two babes were born in the selfsame town
On the very same bright day.
They laughed and cried in their mothers' arms
In the very selfsame way.
And both were pure and innocent
As falling flakes of snow,
But one of them lived in the terraced house
And one in the street below.

Two children played in the selfsame town,
And the children both were fair,
But one had curls brushed smooth and round;
The other had tangled hair.
The children both grew up apace,
As other children grow,
But one of them lived in the terraced house
And one in the street below.

Two maidens wrought in the selfsame town,
And one was wedded and loved;
The other saw through the curtains' part
The world where her sister moved.
And one was smiling, a happy bride;
For one of them lived in the terraced house
And one in the street below.

Two women lay dead in the selfsame town,
And one had tender care;
The other was left to die alone
On her pallet all thin and bare.
And one had many to mourn her loss.
For the other few tears would flow.
For one had lived in the terraced house
And one in the street below.

If Jesus, who died for the rich and poor,
In wondrous holy love,
Took both the sisters in his arms
And carried them above,
Then all the difference vanished quite,
For in heaven none would know
Which of them lived in the terraced house
And which in the street below.

Daily Dying.

The maple does not shed its leaves
In one tempestuous scarlet rain,
But softly, when the south wind grieves,
Slow, wandering over wood and plain,
One by one they waver through
The Indian summer's hazy blue
And drop at last on the forest mold,
Coral and ruby and burning gold.

Our death is gradual like these;
We die with every waning day.
There is no waft of sorrow's breeze
But bears some heart leaf slow away!
Up and on to the vast To Be,
Our life is going eternally!
Less of life than we had last year
Throbs in your veins and throbs in mine!
But the way to heaven is growing clear,
And the gates of the city fairer shine,
And the day that our latest treasures flee
Wide they will open for you and me.

Uncle Bill—I'd give $100 to be out of this, George.

George—It strikes me we shall both be out of it for nothing presently.

Miss Delaney Irresponsible.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The hearing in the case of Mary Delaney, accused of setting fire to two Catholic churches, was concluded yesterday, and Judge Miller decided that the defendant was irresponsible. A physician testified that the woman was the victim of a fixed delusion that priests were conspiring against her.

A Timely Suggestion.

LONDON, March 30.—The Daily News urges the signatory powers of the Berlin treaty to do now what must be done sooner or later, and insist upon Armenian self-government with a Christian government.

—The following towns have established municipal lighting plants under the Massachusetts act of 1890: Danvers, Peabody, Braintree, Middleboro, Wakefield, North Attleboro, Marblehead, Reading and Millis.

THE BOOM INCREASES.

Third Successive Week of Improvement In the Business World.

The Lifting This Year Has Begun at the Bottom.

Various Signs Point to Further Prosperity In All Lines of Business.

NEW YORK, March 30.—Bradstreet's says today: General trade for the third week in succession continues to show evidence of improvement. In no other direction is this so plainly indicated as in the tendency of prices.

A week ago encouragement had been obtained from a generally unexpected advance in cotton and wheat. Following their slight reaction, the week has witnessed a firm cotton market, further improvement in wheat, with a sympathetic influence on corn and oats, the effect of which is greatly emphasized this week by advances in quotations, not only for coke, but prospectively for steel billets and actually for manufactured iron at western markets.

Higher quotations for cut meats out west are the outcome of restricted supplies of cattle, and this is behind increased demand for shoes for fall delivery, as quotations for leather continue upward on the comparative scarcity of hides.

Dun's Review.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Hoisting of prices from the bottom seems measurably successful in leather and shoes. The combination of leather producers has been strong enough to resist prolonged delay in buying by shoe jobbers, and most of them have made contracts at part of the advance in prices demanded by shoe manufacturers, though their orders are as yet smaller than usual, while some heavy orders have been taken at old prices.

Cotton speculation reached a halt with the enormous realizing of last week, and sales have been a third smaller, with no advance. The season is really late, and there are solid reasons for reducing acreage, factors and traders being able to exert a powerful influence if they chose.

In the woolen business cancellations in some lines have been startling in magnitude, many mills finding themselves in great need of customers. This seems to be mainly in low grade goods, inferior quality being the common complaint, but delays through strikes also play a part, while offers of cheap foreign goods are not to be overlooked. Sales of wool for the week have been quite large—5,829,800 pounds, against 4,078,200 last year.

Guesses about the condition of wheat have varied widely this week, and prices advanced 1¼ cents.

Corn is 1 cent lower, while pork is 75 cents a barrel and lard and hogs 15 cents per 100 pounds higher.

The failures this week have been 234 in the United States, against 238 last year.

Over the Border.

Bradstreet's makes the following comment: At Toronto business is unchanged, being characterized by only a fair demand for sorting up goods. Manufacturers and jobbers at Montreal report business quiet, and do not expect activity until navigation opens. Business is quiet at Halifax also, and throughout Nova Scotia, where collections are slow. The output of lumber is heavy in New Brunswick, and it is of interest to note there is some revival in trade in Newfoundland, the sealing industry having been successful.

Bank clearings at Winnipeg, Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax aggregate $15,261,000 this week, a falling off of about 16 per cent from last week.

There were 581 business failures reported from the Dominion of Canada during the past three months, contrasted with 583 in the first quarter of last year.

Headquarters at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, March 30.—All the plate glass factories in the country, with a very few exceptions, will close down tonight and will not resume until May 1. In the meantime arrangements will be made to operate the factories under the management of the recently formed combination, which is to be known as the Pittsburg Plate Glass company. All the plate glass business of the country will then be transacted in this city.

No Bail Allowed.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 30.—Seymour Jackson, cashier of Godbes' bank at Ensenada, has been arrested on suspicion of having robbed the bank of $12,500 on March 20, the same night of the bullion robbery at Riverolt's shipping office there. Jackson is in jail, as no bail is accepted in Mexico when the crime charged is of so grave a nature.

Precedent Established.

TRENTON, March 30.—Judge Green has denied the application of the American Graphophone company for an injunction against and accounting from the United States Phonograph company. This is the first decision in the various suits pending between the Graphophone company and the Phonograph company.

WON'T READILY SUBMIT.

Manitoba Has Plainly Declared Herself on the Separate School Question.

OTTAWA, March 30.—Although full particulars of the action taken by the Dominion government regarding the Manitoba school question have been before the public for some days, it is only now that this action is beginning to be fully understood.

The Dominion government has done two things. It has ordered the provincial authorities to re-establish the separate schools abolished in 1890, and, failing compliance by the province, the Dominion has stated in so many words that a federal act will be passed for the purpose of attaining this object.

And it is at this point that the danger of the situation appears. The provinces have always been jealous of their rights of self-government, and an attempt to encroach on these rights by the passage of a federal law to accomplish a provincial object will evoke a vigorous protest from every member of the confederation outside of Quebec.

But what will Manitoba say to this attempt by the Dominion to recreate something the province has sought to destroy, and to do this with the moneys belonging to the provincial government? She will undoubtedly rebel. That is the course which Premier Greenway's organ, the Winnipeg Tribune, practically says has already been decided upon.

Even "Bullets" Patterson, the new governor, will be unable to restrain the Manitobans, and the people of Ontario—whose sons and brothers make up the major part of Manitoba's population — will take mighty good care that the militia is not used to coerce the people of the west into submission.

Unless the present Dominion government is defeated before facing remedial legislation, and another party is placed in power that will respect provincial rights, there will be an upheaval that will strain the bonds of confederation.

"KNAVES AND LIARS."

Prohibitionist Remick Rakes Granite State Senators Over the Coals.

CONCORD, N. H., March 30.—The session of the New Hampshire legislature came to an end yesterday afternoon amid considerable excitement, caused chiefly by the veto of several appropriation measures by Governor Busiel. In the senate, Mr. Remick, the Prohibition leader, being granted the privilege of speaking, poured forth a tirade against the upper branch, characterizing the members as "knaves and liars." The defeat of several minor temperance measures in the senate prompted Mr. Remick's vehemence. The senators listened in silence until he stopped, and there was no demonstration.

Among the measures vetoed by Governor Busiel were the tuberculosis bill, carrying $100,000 for prosecuting the work of exterminating the disease and reimbursing owners of diseased cattle; that appropriating $25,000 for new buildings at the state agricultural college, and the Dartmouth college bill giving $10,000 to that institution. The governor also refused to sign bills providing for aid for the state insane asylum; for freeing toll bridges; for repairs at the state normal school; for the observance of Memorial Day and to raise the age of consent.

Thousands Killed and Burned.

LONDON, March 30.—The Times this morning publishes a second instalment of the report on the Armenian atrocities. The report confirms the story of an alleged massacre of from 4000 to 5000 Armenians who had taken refuge in a hollow of an extinct volcano in the Andoke mountains. After the people had been killed, the correspondent says, their bodies were heaped together, with wood between them. Kerosene was then poured over the whole mass, set on fire and burned.

Folger's Charges Not Sustained.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Captain Folger of the U. S. S. Yorktown, now at Che-Foo, has failed to substantiate the charges of drunkenness made by him against Past Assistant Paymaster F. B. Webster, attached to his ship. The board of inquiry, however, prevented an investigation of the charges made against the captain by the statement that no further proceedings were advisable. Admiral Carpenter authorized the inquiry.

His Whereabouts a Mystery.

SYRACUSE, March 30.—President Boynton of the Second National bank of Cortland left his home Feb. 2 and mailed his resignation to the board of directors from Detroit. He wrote a letter to his family at the same time, which caused serious doubts as to his sanity, and it is feared that he is wandering about the country in an irresponsible condition. He is widely known in the Masonic fraternity and other secret societies.

"Twisted" Weather.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., March 30.—The thermometer registered 85 yesterday. This breaks the record for March.

CINCINNATI, March 30.—The thermometer reached 84 yesterday afternoon and remained there for some time. At 9 o'clock last night it was 73.

An Unhappy Couple.

HALIFAX, March 30.—Counsel representing Rev. Edward Owers and Mrs. Owers in their divorce suit met yesterday and decided to have Mrs. Owers examined by medical experts, and if they find Mrs. Owers is all right mentally, her youngest child will be handed over to her and $15 a month paid for the maintenance of her and the child.

Six Thousand Will Be Idle.

OTTUMWA, Ia., March 30.—At a conference of miners and operators yesterday, it was practically decided to call out 6000 miners now working in the mines of 40 operators who refused to pay the 1893 scale of prices, 80 cents and $1 for mining coal. The operators who took part in the conference, 26 in number, will pay this scale.

What Constitutes a Deposit?

CINCINNATI, March 30.—Benjamin Dale deposited over $14,000 on Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the Commercial bank. It was not entered in his bank book, but put in an envelope. Yesterday he sued to recover the same, claiming it was not deposited. Dale's suit will be made a test suit for others.

Dalziel's Resolution Successful.

LONDON, March 30.—In the house of commons, Mr. Dalziel moved the adoption of a resolution to give home rule to England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. The resolution was adopted by a majority of 24, the vote standing 126 in favor to 102 against.

LATE WAR NEWS.

Triumphs of Japanese Navy In Many Sanguinary Skirmishes.

SHANGHAI, March 30.—Nine Japanese cruisers and two gunboats, the squadron being under the command of Admiral Ito, bombarded the east forts on Penghui island on March 23. One thousand troops were landed from five transports, and an attack was made on the fort which dominated the others. The Chinese evacuated the position during the night, and the Japanese entered on the morning of March 24. The magazine of one of the eastern forts exploded before the position was evacuated. Only 1000 prisoners were taken, the others being allowed to escape to the banks off the shore. The Japanese loss was 1 killed and 27 wounded. The Japanese have now secured a southern base for their operations, and the fleet is about to leave, in view of peace having been established on the island.

HONG KONG, March 30.—The general commanding the Chinese forces on the Pescadore islands telegraphed on March 23 that he had sunk two Japanese vessels. Later he telegraphed that the Japanese had captured two forts.

PEKIN, March 30.—Further excitement has been caused here by the reports of Japanese advances on Shanhai-Kwan and the island of Formosa and the attempt to assassinate Li Hung Chang at Shimonoseki.

HONG KONG, March 30.—The Japanese are now bombarding Tai-Wan, the capital town of Formosa.

Suit For a Million.

CHICAGO, March 30.—Charles T. Yerkes is the principal defendant in a suit filed by the West and South Town Railway company, with damages at $1,000,000. It is alleged that the West Chicago Street Railway company entered into a conspiracy "with the willful, unlawful and malicious purpose and intent, wrongfully and wickedly to injure the business and property of the new company and to prevent the construction and operation of its railway, and to prevent and stifle competition in the business and trade of carrying passengers."

Manitoba Legislature Adjourns.

WINNIPEG, March 30.—No amendments were offered by the Opposition yesterday afternoon in the legislature on the school question, and after Lieutenant Governor Schultz had given royal assent to a number of bills passed, the house adjourned till May 9, when Premier Greenway will announce the government's reply to the remedial order from Ottawa. Members of the Opposition have all agreed with the premier that an adjournment was the wisest course to take at this critical period.

The Agreement With Tupper.

OTTAWA, March 30.—The conditions on which Sir Charles Tupper withdrew his resignation are that no government bill will be introduced in the next session on the question of Manitoba's schools; that the matter be left an open question, and that only the budget estimates will be submitted to parliament. This is with a view to shortening the session as much as possible, so that an early appeal to the country may be had.

Against an Insurance Company.

ALBANY, March 30.—Superintendent of Insurance Pierce has notified Attorney General Hancock that the capital stock of the Equitable Mutual Fire Insurance corporation of New York city has not been paid in as required by law, and "that gross deception was practiced at the time of this company's incorporation." He advises that the corporation be proceeded against at once and application for a receiver be made.

McKinley In Savannah.

SAVANNAH, March 30.—Governor McKinley arrived here at 10 o'clock last night. He was met by a committee of prominent white Republicans. The city council called upon him in a body this morning to pay thier respects. Prominent business men were also introduced to him at that time. Governor McKinley will leave for Washington tonight.

Charged With Stealing State Money.

CARSON, Nev., March 30.—Reinhold Sadlier, lieutenant governor of this state, was arrested on a charge of embezzlement. The charge was preferred by a man in Sadlier's employ, who charges that he held back money that he had drawn from the government. Sadlier is under bonds.

Succeeded In Killing Himself.

PHILADELPHIA, March 30.—John A. Brown, aged 30 years, shot his wife, aged 24 years, yesterday, and then committed suicide. A year ago last New Year's night the couple separated on account of the husband's drinking habits. Mrs. Brown's wound is not serious.

A $75,000 Fire In Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, March 30.—Fire started at midnight in the airshaft of the five-story building at the corner of Roeblin and North Clinton streets, occupied by John Cavanaugh, a shoe dealer. The loss will reach $75,000.

LABOR GIVES WARNING

Against Alleged Encroachment Upon Privileges by Legislators.

Wage Earners Should Beware of False Issues.

Appeal to Fight Biennial Elections and Certain Other Propositions.

BOSTON, April 1.—The Central Labor union of this city yesterday issued a circular to the people of this state condemning the proposition to abolish the common council, to establish biennial elections and to place the police department on a military footing.

The address, after a lengthy preamble, goes on to state:

The Central Labor union of Boston and vicinity utters its warning and reminds the citizens that there is no danger when justice and equity prevail, and no safety when poverty and oppression are the common lot of those who labor with their hands.

We address you in the name of enduring peace, in the name of those free institutions that were founded upon the basic principle of the inalienable right of man, not only to his life and liberty, but to that pursuit of happiness that is the instinct and inspiration of humane activities and social advancement.

We warn you that the efforts now being made to extend the terms of office, to abolish the city council, and to rob you of one-half of the power of your franchise by the adoption of the biennial system of elections are of the commonwealth. Freedom of speech, freedom of the press, free schools and freedom to worship God according to the dictates of conscience are all endangered when terms of office are extended and municipal legislative bodies eliminated and frequent elections abolished.

Do not be deceived by false issues. In the name of municipal reform we are being deprived of the opportunity to reform the abuses that are the natural result of partisanship and creed. In the name of economy the wildest extravagance is perpetrated.

We appeal to you not to be divided on race or creed issues, not to be diverted from the central thought of that spirit of true Americanism that seeks the advancement of the many rather than the aggrandizement of the privileged few, and which will ultimately make of all the people of the earth

One Common Brotherhood.

Come together, stand together, against every invidious attack, every encroachment on your rights. Private greed under the cloak of public convenience invades our rights in the expression of our will at the ballot box.

We appeal to you to use your influence against every attempt to increase the term of office of city and state officials. To demand that all questions of public moment be referred to the people for their endorsement or rejection. To prevent the abolition of the city council. To defeat at the polls the biennial election scheme, and all who favor it. To frown upon the increase of appropriation for military purposes, and to favor all appropriations that enlarge the opportunities of the people in matters of labor and education — to the end that the liberty and prosperity of the people may be conserved and advanced; that the exercise of the franchise may not be limited; that the commonwealth may be one in fact as well as one in name.

A PAWTUCKET TRAGEDY.

PAWTUCKET, April 1.—Joseph Furness cut his wife's throat with a razor last evening and then drew the blade across his own throat. He will die, and his wife has small chances of recovery.

Furness and his wife, with their three children, lived at Woodlawn, a suburb of this city, and no trouble was known to exist between them. A short time ago Furness became despondent and a victim of mental aberration, thought to have resulted from a recent attack of grip.

Shortly beforn 9 o'clock last night they retired for the night, when, without any warning, Mrs. Furness felt a slash across her face and neck. She screamed and jumped from the bed just in time to escape a second slash from the razor in the hands of her husband. Furness then jabbed the blade into his own throat, inflicting a fatal gash.

The man and woman were both taken to the Rhode Island hospital, where the physicians stated that Furness could not recover, and that his wife had only a fighting chance for life.

Nobody Hurt.

WINSTED, Conn., April 1.—A freight wreck occurred here early yesterday morning. A westbound train was switching cars in the West Winsted yards, when 27 cars broke away from the train and ran down the grade to Winsted, where they collided with the rear end of an extra east-bound freight which was just leaving a siding. The cars were piled up and seven were demolished. The caboose caught fire, but was soon extinguished. Nobody was hurt

Two Victims Italian's Bullets.

BOSTON, April 1. Giuseppe Christofero, John Cerrullo, [illegible] as Mortimer and one or two other Italians quarreled at 2 Thatcher court yesterday. After a war of words Christofero drew a revolver and fired it left and right. Cerrullo was hit behind the right ear with a bullet and stunned, and Mortimer's wrist was pierced by another bullet. Before Christofero could do further damage he was seized and handed over to the police.

The Situation at Olneyville.

PROVIDENCE, April 1.—A number of textile unions of Olneyville yesterday discussed the advisability of making a demand for a return to the schedule of 1893. It is possible that a demand may be presented to the owners of the Saxon, Providence, Nashville and Valley mills, but it is well known it will be refused. It is not known whether the operatives in these mills will decide to strike or not.

Schoolhouse and Farmhouse Burned.

NEW BEDFORD, April 1.—Fire was discovered in the woods between Russell's Mills and Potomska in Dartmouth, and before it could be checked it had burned over a tract of land some two miles long and one mile wide, consuming a small farmhouse, a barn and a schoolhouse near Potomska. The fire was started by farmers who were burning bushes, the flames getting beyond their control.

Wind Spread Flames.

LINCOLN, R. I., April 1.—A section of several acres in Lime Rock was destroyed by fire last evening. The burned district comprises several houses, with barns, sheds, poultry yards and woods, some of the buildings being a quarter of a mile apart. A strong wind prevailed, and the places being far from the protected district of the town, the fire literally burned itself out.

Salem Has No Hotel.

SALEM, April 1.—After breakfast this morning the Essex House closed its doors to the public and the historic old hotel ceased to exist. The city, for the first time in a century, will be without a regular hotel, the only accommodations being semi-boarding houses, which have limited accommodations for transients. The lease of the Essex House has expired.

Suicide by Hanging.

Found Floating In the Charles.

BOSTON, April 1.—The body of John Van Hall, a cigarmaker, who has been missing since last December, was found in the Charles river yesterday. There were several marks on the body. Van Hall's friends know of no reason why he should have committed suicide, and the theory of foul play is not entertained by the police.

Aid For the Destitute.

BOSTON, April 1.—A big crowd witnessed the departure of the steamer Halifax with a cargo of 200 barrels of flour, 100 barrels of ham, 100 barrels of boneless beef and 500 gallons of molasses contributed for Newfoundland sufferers. Gloucester sent in a load of supplies, and there were 300 packages of clothing.

Accident to Paper Train.

Found In Portland Harbor.

PORTLAND, April 1.—Last November James Mulligan mysteriously disappeared from home. His mutilated and decomposed body was yesterday found floating in the harbor. How he came to his death is not known. A watch and $26 in money were found on his person.

Workmen's Error.

FALL RIVER, April 1.—Philip Derrig, aged 30 years, a fireman on the steamer Pilgrim, was killed at Sagamore mill, No. 1, yesterday, by being struck on the head with a plank thrown from an upper story where men were making repairs.

The Strike a Failure.

HYDE PARK, Mass., April 1.—The strike at the rubber works is going against the strikers. Of the 200 girls that went out last week many have already returned and new hands have been taken in every day.

Mill Fire Suspects Discharged.

BURLINGTON, April 1.—Thomas Donlin, Thomas Gorham and Walter Brackett, who were arrested on suspicion of setting fire to J. R. Booth's mill March 19, have been discharged for want of evidence.

Received a Fractured Skull.

WATERBURY, April 1.—Early yesterday morning Charles Ladati assaulted Tony Giancirilli on Bank street. Giancirilli's skull was fractured and he will likely die. Ladati was captured.

To Fight the Sanford Will.

NEWPORT, April 1.—Kate Field, the journalist, is in the city in connection with the will of her aunt, Mrs. Cordelia Sanford, of which she, with George Riddle, are contestants.

Saenger Park Destroyed.

WEBSTER, Mass., April 1.—The German Saenger park in Dudley was totally destroyed by an incendiary fire yesterday. Loss on building and contents, $4000; fully insured.

To Join or Not to Join?

PROVIDENCE, April 1.—The town of Johnston will vote Wednesday on the question of annexing the town to the city of Providence. The vote will be a test one.

No Profit Without Rum.

DERRY, N. H., April 1.—All the hotels of this town closed their doors today, as the proprietors claim they cannot make their business pay without selling liquor.

For a Public Library.

SOUTH WEYMOUTH, Mass., April 1.—The $50,000 left for a public library in this village by the late John S. Fogg has just come into the hands of trustees.

New England Briefs.

Rev. A. B. Earle, the Union evangelist, is dead.

Street cars are to have a part in the mail service of Boston.

An attempt to launch the German 20-rater at Herreshoff works proved unsuccessful.

The Rockland (Mass.) company has decided to build a new shoe factory on the site of the George B. Clapp factory recently destroyed by fire.

ITS LIKE NEVER SEEN.

Great Enthusiasm Throughout the Empire.

BERLIN, April 1.—Telegrams are pouring in from all parts of the empire announcing that the Bismarckian fetes have been commenced with great spirit.

There was a specially interesting gathering at the national monument of Germania in the Niederwald, whither thousands of persons traveled from all parts of the Rhineland. Among those present were representatives of 35 cities in the Rhenish district. Professor Aucken of Giessen university delivered an oration at the foot of the monument.

In Munich, the Bavarian capital, a musicale in honor of the occasion was given in the Odeon. Throughout Germany last night joy fires were burning on the highest mountain peaks and hills from the Baltic and the North seas on the north to the Swiss and Austrian frontiers on the south, from the Russian frontier on the east to the frontiers of France, Belgium and the Netherlands on the west.

Never before in the history of the empire has there been such a heartfelt and spontaneous exhibition of love by the German people.

All the schools and most of the civic and state offices are closed today in honor of him to whom the empire owes its existence.

Hamburg Rejoices.

A dispatch from Hamburg says that one of the features of the Bismarck celebration was the holding Saturday night of a "commers," organized by the reichstag electoral union.

Sixteen hundred admirers of the prince were present and hundreds had to be turned away from the doors for lack of room. Several senators, the president of the house of burgesses, officers and officials and the elite of Hamburg society were present.

All the public and a majority of the private buildings in the city are decorated with flags and bunting in honor of the occasion. Last night there was a general illumination on a scale that had not been attempted before in a quarter of a century. In the window of every shop there were displayed either a wreathed portrait or bust of Bismarck.

All the shipping in the harbor and the small boats on the many canals of Hamburg were also illuminated. There was a grand display of fireworks. The main streets of the city were, until a late hour, almost impassable. Many of the visitors to Hamburg were early astir and started for Friedsrichsruhe today.

At Friedrichsruhe.

Every train arriving at Friedrichsruhe is loaded with presents for the aged statesman, and every post brings hundreds of congratulatory letters, not only from people in Germany, but from Germans and others throughout the civilized world.

Thousands upon thousands of the special Bismarck post cards have been sold, and a great number have been mailed to the United States. Those in Germany who have received them have put them carefully away to be preserved as mementoes of the iron chancellor and the great outpouring of the public heart in his honor.

Today, the actual anniversary of the prince's birth, is witnessing such a popular demonstration as has not been witnessed since the return to Berlin of the conquering armies from France. Every preparation has been made at Friedrichsruhe to accommodate vast crowds. The decoration of the station is magnificent, and the roadway from the station to the schloss has been transformed by willing hands into a veritable triumphal arcade.

The prince yesterday received his first congratulatory telegram from a crowned head outside of Germany. It was from King Oscar of Sweden, and contained a graceful expression of his majesty's interest in the occasion and hearty well wishes for the prince's welfare and longevity.

Error Cost a Life.

NEW YORK, April 1.—A fluid supposed to have been antitoxine was injected into the left arm of Bertha M. Valentine, 17 years old, to cure a slight attack of diphtheria. The girl died in awful agony in less than 10 minutes. Dr. J. L. Kortright, who injected the fluid, said: "When the antitoxine was prepared in Germany some powerful poison must have become mixed with it by mistake."

Aged Eggs For Carl Browne.

MASSILLON, O., April 1.—Carl Browne, of Coxey's army fame, has caused the arrest of Messrs. Borlon, Segner and McLain on the charge of throwing eggs and inciting to riot. They pleaded not guilty and furnished bail. The suit is the outcome of the hot municipal campaign. At a Populist meeting Browne made a speech and was treated to a shower of bad eggs.

Fatal Forest Fire.

LOUISVILLE, April 1.—The most destructive forest fire ever seen here is now raging a few miles back of Clover Port. One person is known to have perished, and the property loss will run into the hundreds of thousands. The fire is still raging and traveling rapidly.

Public's Rights Respected.

MADRID, April 1.—Prime Minister del Castillo has summoned the leading stock brokers of the city, and assured them that no considerations of a bourse panic will prevent him from faithfully acquainting the public with the state of the Cuban rebellion.

April Fools' day.

City Council tonight.

Many new advertisements today.

April 19 is to be the opening day at Houghs Neck.

Many items of interest to the granite industry will appear tomorrow.

It can be truly said that March came in like a lamb and went out like a lion.

Many of the public school teachers have gone out of town to spend their vacation.

A telephone exchange will probably be established at South Braintree within a few weeks.

The postoffice at Station A West Quincy was moved to S. B. Little's store on Copeland street this morning.

This is the season for Wollaston's annual crop of brush fires. There was a lively one on Safford street Sunday evening.

Another combination sale will be held at Tisdale's stable at Quincy Point. The preliminary notice appears today.

The Atlantic Social club is arranging for a public "America" testimonial for Wednesday evening. Everybody invited.

There is a great demand for the tickets of the King's Daughters' military drill and entertainment, to be given Thursday evening.

Mrs. James E. Bagley of Wollaston sails on Saturday for England on the Cunard S. S. Pavonia. Mrs. Bagley will be absent about six weeks.

Today is the 100th anniversary of the establishing of a post office in Quincy and during all these years there have been but thirteen postmasters.

Do not miss the three interesting lectures under the auspices of the King's Daughters of first Presbyterian church, South Quincy. The views are said to be fine.

Among the new parties to be connected by telephone in Quincy are Luther S. Anderson, West Quincy depot, Milne & Chalmers, and the Quarry Railroad company.

This evening at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, Rev. Robert Westly Peach will give his fourth and last Bible lecture. Subject, "What did Jesus Teach Concerning the Law and the Prophets."

The county commissioners' hearing on the widening of the Hancock street railroad bridge at Atlantic will be held this week Thursday. This bridge should be the full width of the turnpike.

The LEDGER reported Mr. Edwin W. Marsh as saying that only two of the School board of 1855 as living. Rev. Mr. Dean and Samuel Thomas, now non-residents were also on the committee then.

The Meadow Brook Ice Company is the name of the firm which has succeeded Charles H. Spear, and it is out with handsome wagons painted green, with the name in large letters painted on the sides.

Rev. Edward A. Robinson in speaking of the Outing club in this week's church "Notes" says with a good deal of wisdom, "Little red tape and many good times" might serve as a motto. Well said!

The people must be getting good, for it is something unusual for a Monday morning to pass without a case of some kind in the district court. Not even a simple drunk being brought up before it this morning.

D. Desmond of the City Shoeing forge is out this morning with a handsome new Concord wagon built especially for him. On the back of the high seat are the letters, "City Shoeing Forge, 12 Quincy avenue, D. Desmond, proprietor. A handsome new silver mounted harness also adds to the attractiveness of the turnout.

The announcement is made this morning that the firm of Pratt & Curtis, which has carried on the grocery and provision business at South Quincy for several years, has been dissolved, and that Mr. John Curtis, 2d, will carry on the business. Mr. Pratt, it is said, will open a wholesale provision house in Quincy.

STEAMBOAT WHARF.

President Graham of Company Asks the Co-operation

OF THE QUINCY YACHT CLUB.

Would Give Them a Float in Deep Water—Committee Appointed.

A joint meeting of the regatta, house and membership committee of the Quincy Yacht club was held Saturday evening. The object was to consider what action should be taken by the club in relation to the wharf which the Steamboat Co. propose to build off Great Hill at Houghs Neck.

The position of the company is this. The proposed wharf is to be substantially built, 300 feet long, of moderate width, except at the water extremity which will have a fifty feet front for a steamboat landing. A channel of about 300 feet will then be dredged to deep water, of sufficient depth for their steamer.

The cost of these improvements will be between four and five thousand dollars. The company hesitate about going to so great an expense but are willing to pay the cost above $2000. They are looking to land owners, to the electric railroad, to residents at Houghs Neck and to the Yacht Club member for a subscription of the $2,000.

At the yacht club committee meeting, Mr. J. R. Graham explained the plans of the Steamboat Company. The location of the wharf proposed, is five or six hundred feet north of the yacht club house, and a float maintained by the club near the end of the wharf would be in good water at all tides.

A committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions for a sum to be given towards the building of the wharf and channel, provided the Steamboat Company will give the club a perpetual and exclusive privilledge to maintain floats, public or private, at the wharf, that shall not interfere with the landing by the steamboat.

The subscription committee are J. W. Sanborn, J. T. Cavanagh, F. F. Crane, F. B. Rice and Gordon Keating.

The company hope the club will raise among its members four or five hundred dollars which they feel is a small amount for each member and will greatly benefit the yacht club by being able to have a float which will always be in the water.

President Graham and Supt. Weeks of the Quincy and Boston; Secretary Whiting of the Quincy Yacht Club; Mr. Macy of the Manet Land Company, and Mr. John A. Duggan went down to Houghs Neck on Sunday afternoon in a special car to inspect the site of the proposed new steamboat pier. They were met at the Neck by Hon. John F. Merrill, Mr. John W. Sanborn, Mr. A. J. Shaw, Mr. William H. Mears and Mr. J. Stanley Mears.

The pier will be 300 feet long with a landing 50 feet square at the end. The promenade will be 14 feet wide and will be lighted by electricity.

The channel from the end of the pier to deep water in the West gut will be 300 feet long by 60 feet wide, with a depth of 6 feet at low water.

It is estimated that the pier will cost $4,500. Of this amount the steamboat company wishes to raise $2,000 by subscription. It is understood that the Mears estate has been asked to contribute $200 and some land, and the Quincy and Boston $200.

Close of First Year.

The granite cutters evening school connected with the Y. M. C. A., held its closing session on Friday evening. The first year's work has been eminently successful, and much credit is due Mr. H. W. Beattie, who has conducted all the classes since January 1. A very fine exhibit of the work can be seen in the Association parlor. It is proposed to show a number of the studies at the International Convention, which will be held in Springfield in May. The certificates for the first year's work will be given at the quarterly meeting, which will be held Tuesday, April 9.

Hon. E. C. Bumpus has been appointed one of the supreme court commissioners to arbitrate the claims made against the city of Cambridge for lands taken for the Hobb's brook reservoir.

Today is the day that the small boy gets in his fun, and he is doing it if one can judge by the suspicious looking bundles seen on the sidewalks in various places.

THE NEW YACHTS.

Boats for Arthur Keith, H. M. Faxon, C F. Colby and Others.

It has been a busy winter for the boat builders in Quincy says the Globe, and there are lots of little yachts under way, which from all appearances are going to be heard from in the races the present summer.

Maybury has a little beauty at his shop at Quincy Point. His son George will race her, and she is from his design. She measures 25 feet over all, 15 feet waterline, 8 feet beam and 13 inches draft. She has long, graceful overhangs and easy lines, with a good sheer.

Ambrose Lelois is building a third-class boat for Arthur Keith of Washington, D. C., who spends his vacations here. She is designed for a light weather boat, with a small displacement, and has flaring sides, with scarcely any sheer. Her waterline is about 16 feet, and over all 20 feet. She is not a novelty, but she looks it when compared with the new type.

Henry M. Faxon has a second-class boat just beside Keith's. She is the Primrose type lengthened out, and her amidship section is just the same as Faxon's little one. She measures 25 feet over all, and 18 feet on the waterline. Her overhangs are low, and the three-inch rise will count heavily.

No boat has been more admired than the new one of Charles F. Colby, which he has been building at the Red Rock boathouse on Town river. She is after the style of the Cleopatra, and in deference to this he has named her Gismonda, Fanny Davenport's other famous play.

The Gismonda is a little more heavily built than the Cleopatra, and a trifle higher sided, but she can stand this as she is more powerful. She measures 30 feet over all, 19 feet, 6 inches waterline and 9 feet beam, and will carry a large spread of canvas. She will have hollow spars, her boom being 32 feet, gaff 20 feet and 20 feet hoist. She is planked with 7 8 inch cedar, and decked with 3-4 inch cedar.

For racing she will be an open boat, but there is a movable cabin to be put on when cruising. She will have a weighted centerboard, weighing 800 pounds, and will steer with a balance rudder.

The big catboat being built by James F. Maloney at Quincy Point for Mr. Coupal of the South Boston yacht club is ready to put outside. She will come into the first class under the new measurement and will sail at about 27 feet. Her long overhangs and high sides give her the best cabin accommodations of any boat of her size in the harbor, and with racing there will be comfort as well for the owner. Her board weighs 700 pounds and is all brass. She will be put into the water early in the month.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. In many instances the attacks may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

☞ Gasoline stoves will be more popular this season than ever before. Yankee wit is again to the front and the '95 patterns are wonders. A fire piping hot while you're winking once $3.50 to $10.00. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

POISONOUS GERMS

like these shown here are found in the expectoration of consumptives. They are minute, living organisms, which have just begun to grow and feed upon the lungs. They multiply with amazing rapidity in the tissues and air passages where they find warmth and moisture. These parasites are the direct cause of Consumption. To cure the disease, these germs must be destroyed.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER

DEBS FOR PRESIDENT.

He Appears to Be the Choice of the Independent People's Party.

LA PORTE, Ind., April 1.—Unless present plans fail of materialization, Eugene V. Debs will be the choice of Indiana as the candidate of the People's party for president in 1896. Debs clubs, having for their object the capture of the Indiana delegation to the national convention, are being organized throughout northern Indiana.

EUGENE V. DEBS.

The promoters of the movement to bring about an amalgamation of the industrial organizations in the interest of the labor leaders are prominent members of the Knights of Labor.

Government Troops Losing.

KEY WEST, April 1.—Private advices from Cuba state that several minor fights on the 26th and 28th insts. took place between the Spanish troops and the insurgents in the province of Santa Clara. The insurgents defeated the Spanish troops both days. The Spaniards left their dead on the field and retreated in good order. The dead, it is stated, numbered 49 in both days' fighting. According to the advices, soldiers recently sent from Spain, called volunteers, most of whom are mere boys, are conscripts. Their hearts are not in the fight, and there have been many desertions, and the soldiers have gone over to the insurgents.

Arrests Are a Matter of Form.

CINCINNATI, April 1.—Rev. Dr. Felton and others, representing the Reform league, appeared at the ball park yesterday and insisted on the Indianapolis and Cincinnati players being arrested as soon as they appeared in uniform on the grounds, but the police refused to make the arrests until after a game of nine innings was played. Then they were all arrested. This will be the way at all Sunday games here during the season. There were 6929 paid admissions.

A 'Frisco Street Murder.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—Dr. John E. Plouff was shot and mortally wounded on the street by D. J. McGaugey, a young man formerly employed by him as a clerk. Plouff has sworn out a warrant for McGaugey's arrest, charging that McGaugey had determined to blackmail him. The two men met on the street, a quarrel was aroused and Plouff struck the young man with his cane. McGaugey then shot his assailant. Plouff cannot live. McGaugey was arrested.

Newspaper Building Ablaze.

CHICAGO, April 1.—The northern portion of the old Times building, a five-story structure, was damaged $70,000 by fire yesterday afternoon. The publishing rooms of the American Memorial association were entirely burned out. Max Stern, printers' stationers, and a half dozen printing firms were also badly damaged. The quarters of The Freie Presse, a German daily paper, were thoroughly soaked, but they have managed to put the premises into shape.

In New Company's Hands.

ROCHESTER, April 1.—The receivership of the Western New York and Pennsylvania railroad expired at midnight, and today the new company, formed by the reorganization committee, assumed control. The corporate title of the company remains the same as before with the single exception of the word "railway" being substituted for that of "railroad." No official changes have been announced.

A San Francisco Failure.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—Edgar Cohen, son of the late A. A. Cohen, who was chief counsel of the Southern Pacific company, has failed, with liabilities of $331,000. Cohen was a member of the commission firm of Walter A. Beck & Co., which recently assigned for about $400,000. The assets are very small.

Strikers Wounded In a Riot.

BRUSSELS, April 1.—The striking weavers at Renaix, East Flanders, and a number of their sympathizers, yesterday renewed their attacks on the gens d'armes. Several arrests were made. During the rioting the gens d'armes fired on the strikers, wounding two of them seriously.

Great Destruction.

ENGLISH, Ind., April 1.—Farmers cleaning up and burning field trash gave the high winds an opportunity to carry fire-brands into the forests. The timber has been destroyed, haystacks, fences and barns have been burned and fruit orchards have been ruined.

Addicks Denies Charges.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 1.—Marshal Lannan has served papers on J. Edward Addicks, in the case of Thomas H. McDonald against the Bay State Gas company of Boston. Addicks says that there is no truth in any of the complainant's allegations.

Maine Schooner Lost.

NEW YORK, April 1. — The steamer Silvia, from Trinidad and Grenada, picked up at sea and brought to this port Captain Sawyer and four seamen of the schooner Anita of Machias, Me., which was abandoned on March 28 in a sinking condition.

Spanish Gunboats Kept Busy.

MADRID, April 1.—Cruiser Reina Mercede has sailed for the Bahamas. She will go thence in pursuit of General Maceo, the insurgent leader, who is reported to have left Costa Rica for Cuba in command of a filibustering expedition.

Alleged Stock Swindler.

DETROIT, April 1.—Charles P. Cline of Chicago is detained here on suspicion of working a swindling stock scheme. Cline had a valise filled with blank stock certificates in what he has claimed is a $10,000,000 concern.

Dean of Canterbury Dead.

LONDON, April 1.—The Very Reverend Robert Paine Smith, dean of Canterbury, is dead. He was born in 1818. Dr. Smith was the author of many works.

Columbia Sterling Bicycles.

In buying a bicycle, as in buying a piano or anything else requiring supreme skill to produce highest and most enduring results, remember that the influence of the mass of makers and agents is exerted against the leading article of its kind, and that inducements other than the intrinsic merit of goods, are freely used to force the sale of a vastly inferior article.

Columbias are the finest example of light and high grade bicycle construction ever put out for the general use of the great riding public. The celebrated nickel steel which has developed such remarkable qualities under the auspices of the United States and other governments, for use in armor, guns and projectiles when the very extreme of violent physical tests must be sustained, is used exclusively in Columbia manufacture this year, and for combined lightness, strength and beauty, places the Columbia Bicycles beyond all reach of comparison for excellence.

The best bicycle in the world with no exception. Full line of Columbias at our store. Instruction in riding and free use of Columbia Riding School to our patrons.

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

GALA DAY AT PRESBYTERIAN.

Spiritualists Observe an Anniversary —Many Notes.

Sunday was a red-letter day for the Presbyterian worshippers in Quincy, not because it is marked red in the calendar, but because all the officials, executive, spiritual and temporal, under the pastor, were ordained today. The pastor, Rev. Robert W. Peach, preached a lucid and practical sermon appropriate to the occasion.

There was a large attendance at the vesper services given at the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday afternoon.

Quite a party of West Quincy Epworth leaguers are planning to attend the great Epworth league rally at Salem Tuesday evening, April 2. Bishop Merrill and others will address the meeting. Music is to be furnished by a large chorus. Those who go to Salem from West Quincy will take the 5 40 P. M. train.

The Swedish Lutherans expect to furnish their new stone church with elegant oak pews this week. They will be in before the concert of Saturday evening.

Rev. E. A. Robinson of Wollaston conducted the song service of the Park and Downs Union Society at United Workman hall Sunday afternoon. His text was from I Corinthians, 6: 19-20, "And ye are not your own. For ye are bought with a price."

Sunday evening the Rev. George H. Watt occupied the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church and discoursed from Matt. 7:13, 14.

One of the most forcible addresses ever given before the Young Men's Christian Association was that of Sunday, in Hancock hall, by Mr. T. D. Roberts, superintendent of the Boston Industrial Home. Mr. Roberts took Pilate, Governor of Judea, as an example of "The Governor with a Weak Backbone." Pilate was afraid to follow the dictates of his conscience, and release Jesus, because it would displease the people. Young men today refuse to take Christ for their personal saviour, because they lack moral courage, fearing the criticism of their associates. Mr. Roberts sang several solos very feelingly.

Mr. Charles F. Parker was in Wollaston Sunday and addressed the Baptist Sunday School. Mr. Parker was formerly its superintendent.

There was a good audience at Faxon hall last evening. Mrs. Dick's discourse was appropriate to the day, the 47th anniversary of Modern Spiritualism. The subjects given by the audience for the poem, "Our Anniversary Day"—"Progression, Liberty and Flowers," were well improvised. Mr. William King of Wollaston gave some of his experience, and tests he had received. The platform was decorated with pictures of the dawning light and with potted plants.

Mrs. Dick will speak April 14. Subject, "The Future of our Country and our Flag." Mrs. Buck will speak next Sunday.

Dr. George L. Richards read an instructive paper at the Wollaston Congregational church on Sunday evening before a large audience, his subject being "In the Footsteps of St. Paul."

At Christ's church, Sunday, Holy Communion was observed at 9 30, followed at 10.30 by morning prayer and sermon. In the afternoon Rev. Walter Russell Breed had Holy Baptism and sermon at St. Chrysostom's church, Wollaston. In the evening at 7 o'clock there was prayer and sermon.

The pastor of the West Quincy Methodist church, Rev. E. W. Virgin, though laboring under the disadvantage of a severe throat cold, preached an interesting discourse Sunday forenoon on the subject, "The former things are passed away."

At the Wollaston Baptist church, Sunday morning, Rev. Mr. Gurney took his text from Joshua 9:27, and preached a very strong and effective sermon on Servitude. Too much praise cannot be given Mr. Albee for his great care of the musical selections. This church has as good music as any in the city.

A large delegation from Quincy attended the forty-seventh anniversary of modern Spiritualism in Boston, Sunday.

Rev. Albert Bryant occupied the pulpit at the Congregational church Sunday and there was a fair attendance at all of the services. The attendance at the Sunday School has been something remarkable for there has been 300 present for four, consecutive Sundays. The Sunday School is rehearsing for an Easter concert Sunday evening April 14.

A Junior Endeavor Society has been started in the Wollaston Baptist Society with nearly fifty members. They hold their meetings Sunday afternoons.

The general topic taken up at the West Quincy Methodist church Sunday evening meeting was the subject of next Sundays Sunday School lesson; the pastor gave a short talk and then the meeting was given up to testimonies.

The East Norfolk Christian Endeavorers are to be entertained at the Wollaston Baptist church this evening by the Wollaston societies. As this is the yearly meeting it is hoped a large number will be present.

Rev. Ellery Channing Butler occupied the pulpit of First church at the morning service. At the meeting of the Guild of the Great Teacher in the evening, Mr. Horace A. Eaton of the Harvard Divinity school, formerly of Quincy, interested a large audience, "Dante's Divine Comedy" being his subject.

At the Calvary Baptist church Sunday Rev. G. H. Watt, preached from Rev. 3:20, "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him and he with me." A stranger at the door, a Kingly caller, a confidential friend, Jesus our Saviour. He stands knocking at the door of every heart. He has come a long journey over a rough rugged road, and finally ended life on Calvary's cross. We praise God today because death and the grave had not power over "His Son, Our Saviour." Sinner do not reject Christ because there are those in the church today who profess to know Him but in their lives show they never knew the power of divine grace. They are called hypocrites. Come and try the religion that Jesus gives. Open the door of your heart to Him and you will find all that life requires. He gives love, joy, peace, such as this world cannot give nor take away. Our Jesus is a companion that helps us over all the hard places in life, such a confidential friend, one we can carry all our sorrows to and know they are not misplaced, as it many time happens with earthly friends. He never leaves nor forsakes us when we most need Him. Are we poor, sinful, lost souls, then? He came to seek and to save that which was lost. When the sinner seeks the Saviour there will soon be a meeting for He is waiting to make Himself known to such. The crisis, "If" any man hear my voice and open the door. Will you let Him in sinner? What will you do with this Jesus?

Sunday night in the East Milton Congregational church, the Rev. Harry C. Vrooman discoursed on the "French Revolution." After brushing aside the mass of prejudice which for years has obscured this subject he sketched rapidly the motive power impelling this movement and touched incidentally the Cromwellian revolution in England and the civil revolution in this country. He pointed out the danger when the privileged classes, seeking to retain their exclusive advantages, obstruct the progress of the evolution of God and man. Mr. Vrooman is in thorough sympathy with the working class movement and in a populous center he would be a power for good in attracting many of our thoughtful, though sceptic non-churchgoers, and guiding them into their Father's house.

Men Trim Bonnets.

At the regular meeting of the Merry Mount lodge, I. O. G. T., held in Doble's hall, on Thursday, March 28, a hat trimming contest took place during the hour devoted to social affairs. The competition was restricted to gentlemen, and a plentiful supply of ribbons, flowers, etc., was given to each contestant in order to display his decorative skill.

Somewhat to the surprise of the ladies present, who deemed that their sex had a monopoly of the millinery art, the efforts of the male amateurs were highly commendable.

Perhaps some of the products did not have the correct Easter finish, but what they lacked in fashionable style, was made up in variety of color.

The judges, Mrs. Chubbuck and Mrs. Gragg, finally decided to award the first prize to Mr. James C. Gillespie, the genial barber of Wollaston, and the booby, to Mr. Charles Hobart of Pearl street.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19.

CHICAGO, April 1.—President Tracey and Secretary Humphrey of the Republican National league yesterday presented a call for the next annual convention of the league. It says:

In compliance with a provision of the constitution of the Republican National league, establishing an annual convention, and in accordance with the instructions of the last national convention at Denver, the eighth annual convention of the Republican National league is hereby called to meet in the city of Cleveland, Wednesday, June 19, 1895, at 10 o'clock a. m., and continue its session until its business is completed. It is proposed to take three days for this convention, so that there may be ample time for a full discussion of the questions of special interest to the party at this time.

The ratio of representation will be six delegates-at-large from each state and territory and four from each congressional district, and one from each college Republican League club in the United States.

The following are ex-officio delegates: The president, secretary and treasurer of the national league, one vice president and one executive member of the national organization from each state and territory, and the president and secretary of each state and territorial league, making four ex-officio delegates from each. This gives each state practically the 10 delegates at large, in addition to the four from each congressional district. The total representation will exceed 2000 delegates, with an equal number of alternates.

The Republican party can stand on its record. It has kept faith with the people of the United States and protected all their interests, both foreign and domestic. It has demonstrated its ability to manage the affairs of the government successfully, both in war and peace. We believe the people of the United States now recognize its ability to grapple with and settle satisfactorily all the great public questions of the day to meet any emergency that has arisen.

All voters in the United States in sympathy with the above are cordially invited to join the Republican National league, and through the clubs and state leagues participate in the election of delegates to the national league convention at Cleveland. We appeal to the young men of the country, particularly the first voters, to take advantage of the league plan of organization and form young men's clubs, with special reference to the campaign of 1896.

Father Suspected of Murder.

CLINTON, Ia., April 1.—Two children of Augustus Swanson, a widower, living on the edge of the city, went to the neighbors and said they could not awaken their father. A special policeman went to the house, burst open the door to an upper room, and found Albert, a boy, aged 7, lying on the bed with a plank partly under him, and his head severed completely from his body. The hatchet with which the deed was done lay beside the head. The murderer had raised the window, jumped out and escaped. He had evidently waited until the child slept. Swanson, who is believed to have committed the deed, was a few years ago insane, and the death of his wife and loss of work had probably again crazed him.

His Whereabouts Unknown.

MT. VERNON, N. Y., April 1.—The attendants at the service at the Roman Catholic church of St. Jacob yesterday were surprised that Rev. August Dieters did not officiate as usual. Subsequent inquiry elicited the fact that Father Dieters had not been seen since last Tuesday morning, when he left the rectory without saying where he was going. Although inquiries have been made in New York and Brooklyn among his friends, no trace of him has been found.

Murder and Arson.

STEELVILLE, Mo., April 1.—In Knob View Township, David Hinderbrand, a farmer, living alone, separated from his wife, was murdered, and the charred remains of his body were found in his burned dwelling. The father-in-law and brothers-in-law of the deceased are charged with the crime.

Enjoying Good Health.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Governor McKinley and party arrived in this city at 11:10 last night from Savannah. He occupied a private car and spent the night in it instead of going to a hotel. The governor is looking well, though a little tired, and says he is feeling in very good health.

No More Fights In Buffalo.

BUFFALO, April 1.—Followers of the boxing game are surprised to learn that there are to be no more professional contests in this city. After considerable deliberation the police authorities have decided not to allow any more ring events.

S. OF V. NOTES.

Visitation to Weymouth, and a Social at Home.

On Friday evening Camp 27, S. of V., visited on invitation, Camp 36 of Weymouth, and passed a very pleasant evening listening to remarks by Colonel Bolton, Past Colonel Golding, Quartermaster Sergt. Coulton, member of Woman's Relief corps and of G. A. R., and visitors. A fine collation was served by the members of Camp 36.

On Saturday evening Camp 27 held a social in G. A. R. hall. After opening, the meeting was turned over to the Good of the Order Committee, Past Capt. M. C. Holmes, chairman. The programme opening with singing of America, the accompaniment by Mrs. Lawton of Braintree. Then followed harmonica and banjo solo by Professor Barron of West Quincy; solo by Mrs. Lawton of Braintree; reading by Miss Pierce of West Quincy, entitled "The Curfew shall not Ring Tonight," and upon encore "The Weathercock and Lover"; selections on ottoharp, by Mr. Marshall of Atlantic; song by Miss Cassie Gardner; readings by Past Capt. C. E. Bowker, "Phil. Kearney at Seven Pines and Fredericksburg"; harmonica solo by Professor Barron; piano solo, Mr. Marshall. The entertainment closed by singing the last verse of America. After which ice cream and cake were served by the committee.

The gathering then listened to the remarks of Commander Webb of Post 88 which were well received and showed that he was interested in the S. of V. He told a thrilling story of naval warfare. Mrs. Souther, President of W. R. C., was called upon but not being prepared with a speech she asked Past Commander H. O. Souther to speak for her. He as usual kept the audience in laughter. The following also responded: Mrs. Marnock, Mrs. Somes, Miss Bertha Foss, H. R. Holmes, Geo. Foss and Allie White, closing with remarks by Past Capt. M. C. Holmes, after which the time was spent till 12 o'clock in singing, stories, etc,

A Good Wind for Tucker.

The high wind on Saturday interfered with the Wollaston Trap Club's shoot. Tucker came off with flying colors, not only being high man, but defeating Prescott as well. Tucker's highest score was 14. The score:

DIED

MOORE—In Randolph, Mar. 30, Mr. Nicholas Moore, aged 82 years.

Dangerous Use of Strong Purgatives.

Most pills and purgatives which act quickly upon the bowels, irritate and often destroy the mucous coats of the stomach and bowels. Indeed, their cathartic action is directly caused by the irritation of the bowels, which they produce. Their action should be soothing and stimulating instead of irritating. A continued use of such remedies produces chronic inflammation of the stomach and bowels. This often ends in dangerous disease. The use of the genuine imported Carlsbad Sprudel Salt is highly recommended as an aperient, laxative and diuretic, because its action is due solely to its solvent and stimulating properties. It soothes and allays inflammation, and is therefore much preferable to all strong purgatives.

Beware of imitations. Dr. Toboldt's lecture on Carlsbad Sprudel Salt and pamphlets mailed free. Eisner & Mendelson Co., sole agents, 152 Franklin street, New York.

PRETTY

AND ATTRACTIVE WOMEN.

Their Good Looks Not a Secret.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

No matter to what country she belongs, or whether she be black or white, as a woman she desires to look well.

Women know the influence of beauty on men; men rarely admire a beautiful invalid, but they do admire a woman in whom is blended good features and perfect health.

There is no secret about a woman's beauty; it all lies in the care she devotes to herself, to removing from her system all poisonous impurities, and keeping at bay those fearful female diseases.

The flashing eye, elastic step, and brilliant complexion are never companions of a womb trouble; only the distressed expression and aches, pains, blues, faintness, dizziness, bearing-down feeling, etc., keep it company.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removes female troubles promptly, and cleanses, invigorates, and consequently beautifies, the form of woman. Women, the world over, pay homage to it, and praise its discoverer. Your druggist sells more of it than all other female medicines.

A Woman of Forty Summers.

Full of outline and fair of face
Swinging her fan with languid grace,
White arms gleaming through folds of lace,
A woman of forty summers.

No line of age in the forehead fair,
A life unmarred by touch of care,
In spite of her forty summers.

A husband lover and children sweet,
Pleasures to charm and friends to greet,
Roses scattered before her feet,
Through each of her forty summers.

Summers all, for winters bold
Have snatched her sunshine and made her cold,
Have killed her roses and left her old;
Nothing she knows but summers.

Nothing she knows of laden cloud,
Of freezing air and tempests loud
Of snows that weave for Hope a shroud;
Her life has been only summers.

So calm she sits in the balmy air,
No sorrows to fret, no cross to bear,
A summer idyl, a vision fair,
This woman of forty summers.

Yet cold and blast but make us strong—
After the snow the robin's song.
To the fullest life by right belong
The winters as well as summers.

And they whom fame shall carve in stone,
The women whom men would fain enthrone,
The women whom God has stamped his own,
Live winters as well as summers.

—Sarah J. Underwood.

TIED UP IN A BUNDLE.

Body of a Murdered Woman Found In a New York Street.

Awful Crime Was Deliberately Carried Out.

Police Have but Slight Clews to Work Upon In Securing Justice.

NEW YORK, April 1.—At 6 o'clock yesterday morning a Mr. Phillips, in passing down Sixth avenue, saw a suspicious looking bundle inside the railing in front of No. 75. He bent over and saw a human foot protruding from the covering. He notified Patrolman Kismare, who was a short distance away, and the two men immediately proceeded to investigate.

The bundle, in which the remains were found, was bound at either end with pieces of clothesline, leaving the middle portion somewhat loose. Patrolman Kismare put his hand inside and drew out the lower part of a human leg. Then he knew that murder had been committed. The remains were taken to the station house on a stretcher.

The body proved to be that of an unknown colored woman between 21 and 25 years old. Around her neck was tied in a double knot a long piece of cheese cloth. This had been tied so tightly that it had caused strangulation and had forced the tongue to protrude from the mouth, and the hands had been tied across her breast with a strong piece of cord by means of a slipknot. He legs had been cut off just above the knees and one of them lay on the top of the body with its foot toward her head, while the other was found underneath the body. Both members had been hacked off with a sharp ax or a butcher's cleaver, and pieces of ragged skin and flesh were hanging from the dismembered legs.

Nothing to Identify Her.

The only clothing the woman had on were a chemise and chemisette of white material. When these were removed, a gaping wound, nine inches long, and which penetrated to the bone, was disclosed just above the right thigh.

The stuff in which the body was wrapped was composed of an old brown table cover, a piece of carpet and an old rug. In the bundle there was found a piece of note paper. On this paper was a clot of blood and written in pencil these words, so far as they could be made out:

"March 23, Rawway, N. J., James (or Jane) E. Surindell, Rawway, N. J." Beneath was the word "Solomon" and also the word "brother," while the word "ditto" was written between them.

Deputy Coroner Donlin decided that the cheese cloth with which the woman had been choked was the direct cause of death. The other mutilations, he said, had been made after death had come. There was nowhere to be found any evidence of a struggle on the part of the woman.

It is the opinion of the police that the woman is a member of that class of colored women who live on streets running out of Sixth avenue and gain their livelihood as women of the town. They do not attempt to explain the motive of the crime.

Victory For Japanese Fleet.

TOKIO, April 1.—Colonel Ito reports that on March 24 the Ma Kung fort was taken easily by the Japanese. On the 25th the Japanese attacked and captured Yent-Tung, taking nine heavy guns and a number of smaller ones, as well as many rifles and a large quantity of ammunition. The Japanese fleet captured the forts on the Fisher islands, and all the islands forming the Pescadores group are now in the possession of the Japanese.

Ingalls on Free Silver.

LITTLE ROCK, April 1.—John J. Ingalls, on his arrival here, was invited by the senate and house of representatives to address them. Mr. Ingalls advocated bimetallism, and said the west and south would stand together for free silver in the next campaign. A majority of the people everywhere, he said, were for free silver.

Terms of the Armistice.

TOKIO, April 1.—The armistice established by order of the mikado extends to April 20, but it will terminate if peace is broken in the meantime. The movement of troops and the transportation of contraband of war by sea are forbidden. The new distribution of troops not intended to augment the armies in the field is allowed.

Treasury Situations Vacated.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Sixty-four treasury clerks, on what is known as the bullion roll, were discharged Saturday. They were appointed under the Sherman silver purchasing act, and when that act was repealed, it is held these clerks could no longer be legally employed.

Wife Murder and Suicide.

FORT RECOVERY, O., April 1.—His mind upset by continued unsuccessful financial ventures, Henry Thorne, owner of a stock farm, shot and killed his wife and then took his own life by hanging himself in his barn. Their 14-year-old son witnessed the assault on his mother.

New Town to Be Laid Out.

RAWLINS, Wy., April 1.—A deal has been closed by a party of Rhode Island capitalists for 1500 acres of the Dry Gulch placer district on Snake river. The purchase price, including the ditch, is a little less than $120,000. A new town will be laid out at Dry Gulch.

One of Cape Colony's Leaders.

LONDON, April 1.—Sir Charles Mills died in this city of influenza. Sir Charles served in the Ninety-eighth British Foot regiment and on the staff of the army in India, China, Turkey and the Cape. He held several positions under the Cape Colony government.

Life Savers to the Rescue.

BODIES ISLAND, N. C., April 1.—The schooner Laura Nelson of Norfolk, on a fishing cruise with a crew of 13 men, stranded between this point and Nags Head. The crew were saved by the life-saving men. The vessel is a total loss.

Rubber Trust Raises Prices.

NEW YORK, April 1.—The United States Rubber company, known as the Rubber trust, announces to the trade an advance of 5 per cent, which is to prevail for the coming year.

Li's Assailant Sentenced.

SHIMONOSEKI, April 1.—The young Japanese who attempted to assassinate Li Hung Chang has been sentenced to penal servitude for life.

THE LISTENER.

Bismarck says that he can count all the minutes of real happiness in his life within a span of 24 hours.

Count de Castellane had 2,500 cigars made in New York which cost $1.50 each. It took two months to fill the order.

The Rev. Dr. Rainsford, a well known Episcopal clergyman, has been chosen president of the New York Cricket association.

W. E. Foster, the editor of the Buffalo Commercial, has just celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his connection with the paper.

Justice Harlan of the United States supreme court is such an inveterate tobacco chewer that he is obliged to keep a cuspidor in his pew at church.

M. Felix Faure is to visit Algeria after parliament adjourns. He will be the only French ruler save Napoleon III who has ever set foot in the province.

M. Kite, the new Japanese minister to England, has been presented at court. He wears English clothes and his tailor has carte blanche as to style, materials and fit.

Henry M. Howe, son of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, has been awarded the Bessemer gold medal of the British institute for his writings on the subject of steel making.

Sir Hercules Robinson, the governor of the Cape of Good Hope, has been in office as colonial commissioner and governor in various parts of the world ever since he became president of Monserrat, in 1854.

President Cleveland was 58 years old on March 18. The president spent the morning receiving congressmen and other callers. One of them made the president laugh when he said St. Patrick had beaten Mr. Cleveland by one day.

Worth, the man dressmaker, was a stout, genial, pleasant looking gentleman, with a peculiarly low toned voice, and very quiet manners. He was never known to lose his patience with even the most exacting and unreasonable of customers.

One of the characters in the Fifty-fourth congress will be Miles Crowley of Texas, locally known as Sir Miles. He came from Boston and was successively a stevedore, Galveston alderman and member of the legislature. He is 40 years old and a Democrat.

Frank M. Nye, the prosecuting attorney who achieved distinction by the conviction of Harry Hayward at the Minneapolis murder trial, is a brother of Bill Nye, and was born in Maine 42 years ago. He nominated John C. Spooner in the caucus for United States senator.

Professor Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, is verging toward 60, but is robust, almost, as a lad. His early ambition was to be a great composer and musician. His favorite laboratory hours are between 11 o'clock at night and 4 in the morning, and he thinks his best work is done near dawn.

George W. McBride, the new Republican senator from Oregon, before attaining his present honorable position, was for eight years Oregon's secretary of state. His brother was one of the first Republican congressmen sent by that state to Washington, and his father was minister to the Sandwich Islands under Lincoln.

THE STAMP OF STYLE.

The general width of skirts for utility uses will be from 4½ to 4¾ yards.

Yellow and green in countless tones and tints are colors that appear to be growing more and more in favor, especially in the domain of millinery.

The summer tailor made girl in her morning attire will, as a rule, appear in a kilted or box plaited dress of linen or pique, with either a plaited Norfolk waist or a chic jacket bodice over a drooping belted blouse, a banded sailor hat and a four-in-hand tie.

Lace bertha, fichus, collarettes and immense flat Stuart and Vandyke collars of very beautiful lace that cover the shoulders entirely, the edges of the rich pattern falling over the sleeve tops, will appear on the majority of the toilets that will blossom out after Easter.

Velvet ribbon is generously used on both simple and elaborate gowns, but not always in rows or points, though these are both effective. They are made to simulate stripes on bodices, skirts and sleeve puffs, and these trimmings usually end in loops or flat rosettes.—New York Post.

JEWEL AND GEM.

Scarf snap catches of silver, with the signs of the zodiac done in enamel, are the latest in this line.

Simple in construction is a heart outlined in slender wire holding a diamond a sapphire and a ruby at its points.

The beryl is seen to the best advantage when surrounded with brilliants and has become a popular central setting in scarf-pins.

Locket and fob charms of platina and gold or a combination of the two metals handsomely chased, with a solitaire diamond emerging from its center, are having a wide sale.

Numbered among novel lacepins recently displayed is a single pansy inlaid with enamel encircled by a wreath of miniature facsimiles of the same flower, each having a small diamond center.—Jewelers' Review.

STUB ENDS OF THOUGHT.

It isn't what we think we are that other people think we are.

It is easier to be polite to our creditors than it is to our debtors.

There is not a wide margin between saying a mean thing and doing a mean thing.

A man will follow a word with a blow, while a woman will follow a blow with a great many words.

It isn't always the man who has money who has a smiling countenance. It's the man who wants to borrow it.

A woman sets her mind to do a thing without thinking whether other people's minds are set that way or not.

Something more than finite power is needed to prepare mankind for an infinite condition.—Detroit Free Press.

BLYTHE WILL CASE.

AFTER TWELVE YEARS' LITIGATION THE CASE IS TO BE DROPPED.

Alice Dickason-Blythe Is In Ill Health and Seeks Rest—A Monthly Allowance Made to Her Has Ceased, and She Will Live With Friends.

"After 12 years of litigation I have withdrawn from the contest over the estate of Thomas H. Blythe, although I still maintain that I am his widow," said Mrs. Alice Edith Dickason-Blythe the other day to a San Francisco reporter.

"So far as I am concerned, I have nothing to do with the Blythe estate now. I have signed all the necessary papers, and I believe it is now settled, so far as I am concerned. The papers were signed in the home of Miss Cherry in the western addition, and I have not been there since. I do not know the nature of all the papers, but they were quitclaims and releases and revocations of contracts.

"Eight months ago I was offered a cash settlement of my claim—that I might have $175 per month for the remainder of my life. My lawyer advised me not to accept this, as he said we could do better. I was willing to accept, and I am sorry now that I did not do so. As I did not receive my allowance last December I decided to act for myself, and I have done so.

"The consideration I have received is very small—practically nothing. It is about $1,000, and I shall no longer draw a monthly allowance.

"I expect to go into the country, and I do not care if I never see San Francisco again. It contains the pleasantest and most miserable memories of my life. Before my husband took that trip to Mexico everything was bright and happy, and no young woman's future ever looked brighter, but since his death life has not been worth living. The experiences of the last 12 years have undermined my health, and I just long for some of my former strength." The withdrawal of Mrs. Alice Edith from the contest, however, will render further proceedings unnecessary.

A STEVENSON STORY.

He Bequeathed His Birthday to a Small Girl Friend.

A charming story of Robert Louis Stevenson has just started on its rounds. The novelist was visiting a friend, afterward consul to Samoa, in northern Vermont. The gentleman had a little daughter about 11 years old, who very speedily became a devoted friend of the guest. In pouring forth her joys and sorrows in existence she confided to Mr. Stevenson the woeful fact that she was born on the 29th day of February and therefore had enjoyed only two birthdays in all her 11 years. The poet sympathized not only in comforting words, but also in action. He meditated a few moments, then went to the writing desk and drew up the following document:

"I, Robert Louis Stevenson, in a sound state of mind and body, having arrived at that age when I no longer have any use for birthdays, do give and bequeath my birthday, on the 13th of November, to Miss Adelaide Ide, to be hers from this year as long as she wishes it.

"ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON."

The little girl's delight at this rare and most welcome gift has shown its appreciation once a year through several years of birthdays, and now the anniversary will be doubly treasured.

Neither Footman Nor Chambermaid.

One of the regular Washington correspondents tells a delightful anecdote of the reportorial days of one of the well known editors of metropolitan journalism.

Before the female society reporter had usurped the social domain as completely as at present he was assigned one night to report a great social function at one of the swell houses in New York. He stationed himself at the head of a stairway to take the names of the ladies as they passed him to go to the dressing room to take off their wraps and prepare for their appearance on the lower floor. He had been standing there for some time, taking notes, when a gay young damsel, heavily wrapped in furs, lightly tripped up the stairway and suddenly addressed him.

"Ah, beg pardon, sir. Are you the footman?"

"No, madam," quickly retorted the reporter. "Are you the chambermaid?"—Washington Post.

A French Idea of American Women.

"The Women of the United States" is the title of a book translated from the French. Its author is C. de Varigny, and he makes many remarkable statements concerning the manners and customs of the American woman. This is only one of many instances: "There are in New York a number of women who receive an allowance for their support not from one husband alone, but from two and three, from all of whom they have been successively divorced, and this is the case when they are living with their third or even fourth husband." But this is no funnier than certain opinions and statements of facts concerning the French expressed lately by Mark Twain.—Boston Journal.

A New Magazine.

The American Jewess is the title of a new magazine, the initial number of which has just appeared in Chicago. It is published by the Rosa Sonneschein company. Mrs. Sonneschein was formerly a resident of St. Louis and was favorably known in both social and literary circles of that city. Her magazine will enter an entirely new field, being devoted exclusively to the interests of the American Jewess.

Columbia Sterling Bicycles.

In buying a bicycle, as in buying a piano or anything else requiring supreme skill to produce highest and most enduring results, remember that the influence of the mass of makers and agents is exerted against the leading article of its kind, and that inducements other than the intrinsic merit of goods, are freely used to force the sale of a vastly inferior article.

Columbias are the finest example of light and high grade bicycle construction ever put out for the general use of the great riding public. The celebrated nickel steel which has developed such remarkable qualities under the auspices of the United States and other governments, for use in armor, guns and projectiles when the very extreme of violent physical tests must be sustained, is used exclusively in Columbia manufacture this year, and for combined lightness, strength and beauty, places the Columbia Bicycles beyond all reach of comparison for excellence.

The best bicycle in the world with no exception. Full line of Columbias at our store. Instruction in riding and free use of Columbia Riding School to our patrons.

DEATH IN ITS WAKE.

Five Men Killed and Seven Badly Injured.

WOBURN, April 2.—A most horrible explosion occurred yesterday at Woburn Highlands, which killed five men, wounded seven, and cast the whole city in gloom.

The force of the explosion wrecked the large establishment, and several dwelling houses in the neighborhood were damaged. The property loss is unknown, but is large.

The cause of the disaster is not definitely known and never will be, as the men who had to do with the boilers are dead.

The dead are: Austin Clements, 35, head currier, leaves a widow and two children; Patrick McGonigle, 40, oiler, leaves a widow and three children; Frank McMahon, 55, currier, leaves a widow and two children; Patrick Mullaly, 35, fireman, leaves a widow; Patrick Riley, 30, currier, unmarried.

Fatally injured: Octavius Sanders, 35, colored, night fireman, married.

The others injured are: John Kenney, currier, bad scalp wound; Patrick Keefe, currier, scalp wound and severe burns; William Randish, currier, hip fractured; James Ryan, currier, burns and contusions; John Tracey, currier, burned about the face.

Victims All Residents of Woburn.

All the killed and wounded belonged in Woburn. The catastrophe occurred at 6:44 a. m., just as work was about to begin. Not all the victims were in the building at the time. Some were approaching the shops to go to work.

McGonigle, the oiler, was about the boiler, and it is generally believed that he made the fatal error of deluging the heated boiler with cold water, and that that caused the disaster. This idea is substantiated by the fact that only Sunday an inspector from the Hartford Insurance company, with whom the boilers were insured, pronounced the boiler all right, and gave a certificate permitting it to carry a pressure of even more than its nominal capacity.

Parts of the boilers and engine were lifted high in the air, and in their descent practically destroyed all of the plant that had not been wrecked by the explosion itself. The loss sustained, or the insurance on the whole, has not been stated. The boilers and engines were insured for $12,000. The factory was an old wooden structure about 100 feet square. The boiler room was of brick.

Medical Examiner March of Winchester viewed the bodies of the dead, and an inquest will be held in a few days. Chief Wade of the state police states that the disaster is the worst of its kind that ever happened in Massachusetts.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 2.—Interest in the legislature centered largely in the order introduced by Mr. McCarthy to compel the subway commission to suspend all work on the subway pending certain legislation. The order was opposed as unprecedented, unwarrantable and furthermore as a direct reflection on Governor Greenhalge. Action was postponed till tomorrow. The bill to compel railroad corporations setting liquors in cars to obtain a license was rejected in the house. The bill to authorize any aged beneficiary of fraternal and assessment associations, with the consent of his relatives and the insurance company, to transfer his policy to any home that guarantees to support him for the remainder of his life was engrossed in the lower body. The senate engrossed the new Australian ballot act, which applies only to Boston, Worcester and Springfield.

Stamford Woman Fatally Wounded.

STAMFORD, Conn., April 2. — John O'Mara, a laborer, called at the house of the widow of his brother Thomas yesterday afternoon, and when she came to the door fired four shots from a revolver at her, each of which took effect. Holding the smoking revolver in his hand he leaped into a passing truck, but was captured a minute later. The woman was fatally wounded. The act was the result of Mrs. O'Mara's refusal to divide the $6200 insurance paid her upon the death of her husband among John O'Mara and other relatives. O'Mara expresses no regret for his murderous attack.

Victim of Temporary Insanity.

WESTON, Mass., April 2.—Mrs. Ellen G. Jewett, aged 45 years, wife of Henry L. Jewett of the International Trust company, was drowned yesterday in the Charles river. Mrs. Jewett was at the time in a state of mental excitement bordering on insanity. She left her home in Aburndale, eluding the vigilance of the members of her family, who have maintained a close watch upon her for the last few weeks. Her body was discovered just below the Concord street bridge, between Newton Lower Falls and Weston.

Hartford's City Election.

HARTFORD, April 2.—The city elections here yesterday were very quiet, only 6234 votes being cast out of a total vote of 13,900. The Republicans elected three aldermen and the Democrats five. The holdover aldermen are six Republicans and two Democrats, which gives the Republicans control of the board by two majority. The new common council will stand 17 Republicans to 15 Democrats.

Killed by Falling Chimney.

BOSTON, April 2.—Henry I. Chadwick, a 16-year-old boy, was instantly killed last night by a chimney falling on him at his home, 44 Zeigler street. Chadwick was beating a carpet on the roof and had attached a clothesline to the top of the chimney. The latter fell from the force of his blows on the carpet. He was almost buried by a mass of brick and mortar.

Looks Like Self-Destruction.

MEDFORD, April 2.—The autopsy over the body of W. Morton Small, the Tufts college student who was found dead in bed yesterday, has been completed, but no definite conclusion was reached as to the precise cause of death, although evidence strongly indicated suicide. A bottle containing cyanide of potassium was found beside the bed. The contents of Small's stomach will now be analyzed to discover whether or not death was due to poisoning. No cause for the deed can be ascertained.

Paper Maker Drowned.

HARTFORD, April 2.—Charles Cragen of Burnside, 34 years old, a paper maker by trade, was found drowned in the Connecticut river on the East Hartford side yesterday morning. His body lay in 18 inches of water face downward, as though while sitting on the bank asleep he had fallen forward into the water. An empty flask lay on the bank.

Death of a School Superintendent.

CAMBRIDGE, April 2. — Harry Ellis, superintendent of the Cambridge Manual Training school, died at his home of rheumatic fever. He had been sick about two weeks, but his death was unexpected. He was best known as superintendent of the manual training school, one of the largest and best equipped in the world.

Old Rates of Wages Restored.

LAWRENCE, April 2.—The wages of employes in the mills owned and operated by ex-Congressman Stevens & Sons have been restored to the schedule prevailing previous to the reduction made in March, 1894. The cutdown at that time ranged between 10 and 15 per cent.

Strikers Return to Work.

PROVIDENCE, April 2.—The strikers at the Caroline mills went back to work yesterday, under an agreement on the part of the manufacturers to run the machines at greater speed, in order to allow the operatives to make higher wages on the same schedule as before.

Thirteen More Added to the Death Role.

GLOUCESTER, April 2.—Schooner Mary S. Hontvet, which sailed from this port Jan. 30 on a hand line codfishing trip to Georges, has been given up by her owners. It is thought she foundered in the great gale of Feb. 8. She carried a crew of 13 men.

Jumped From a Wharf.

PLYMOUTH, April 2.—Frances Chritcherson, daughter of Corban Barnes of Plymouth, and wife of Daniel P. Chritcherson of Boston, about 48 years old, committed suicide yesterday by jumping from the end of a wharf at Atwood's lumber yard.

Dead Whale Captured.

PROVINCETOWN, April 2.—The whale which has been seen so often this winter in different parts of Massachusetts bay was picked up dead and towed in here. The carcass is about 50 feet long, and it is estimated that it would make 60 barrels of oil.

Employes Disgruntled.

BOSTON, April 2. — The reduction in wages made by the Adams Express company all over the country is particularly felt by the employes of the company in Boston. The amount of the reduction varies and there is no fixed percentage.

Starving Woman Tries Suicide.

NEW HAVEN, April 2.—Mrs. Adolph Walpin of this city attempted suicide by taking carbolic acid yesterday. The woman was actually starving. Her husband has been out of employment for over four months.

Twenty-Five Charter Members.

PROVIDENCE, April 2.—A very notable bicycle club of 25 members has been organized here. Howard Sturgis was made president, and Mrs. William Goddard, wife of the millionaire, vice president.

Honored by Insurance Company.

WESTFIELD, Mass., April 2.—Ex-Governor Brackett has been elected president of the Bay State Beneficiary association of this town, one of the largest life insurance concerns in this section of the state.

Accidentally Knocked Overboard.

ROCKLAND, Me., April 2. — Schooner Alna, at Port Clyde, reports the loss of a sailor named Melvin J. Holmes of Machiasport, who was accidentally knocked overboard Sunday night.

Death of an Old Conductor.

HAVERHILL, April 2.—Moses Swanson, who at the time of his retirement, was the oldest conductor on the Boston and Maine railroad, died yesterday in this city, aged 85 years.

Revision Plan Knocked Out.

ANSONIA, Conn., April 2.—The plan for the revision of the city charter was defeated at a special meeting of the city government yesterday.

New England Briefs.

New England Methodists will convene at Providence tomorrow.

There were 74 arrests in Fitchburg in March, 47 of which were for drunkenness.

John Sheehan has brought suit against the city of Everett for $21,000, for the construction of sewers.

Hon. Isaiah Chick, an ex-commissioner of Franklin county, Me., died at his home in Madrid from a paralytic shock.

About 25,000 feet of sawed lumber in the mill yard of F. S. Whitehouse at Lincoln, N. H., was burned. Loss from $2000 to $2500.

Joseph H. O'Neil assumed his duties as assistant treasurer of the United States treasury in charge of the sub-treasury in Boston.

Rev. E. G. Stone, Congregationalist, and Rev. J. Milner Morris, Baptist, both stationed at Niantic, Conn., have tendered resignations of their pastorates.

A. B. Calef has been retired as judge of the Middletown (Conn.) city court on account of age limitation, after 12 years of service. W. U. Pearne, for 16 years clerk of the city, succeeds him.

MOTHER'S AWFUL DEED

An Ohio Woman Cuts the Throats of Two of Her Children.

Her Oldest Daughter the Witness to the Crime.

COLUMBUS, O., April 2.—Mrs. W. H. H. Williams of Grove City, accompanied by her three children, registered at the Park hotel on Saturday.

Yesterday two of her children were found dead in her room, with their throats cut. One was a boy, aged 7, and the other a girl, aged 12. There were two beds in the room.

Annie, aged 13, and her mother occupied one bed and her two younger children the other. It is supposed that Mrs. Williams murdered the children some time during the night. She has disappeared.

Annie says that her mother left the room about 8:30 yesterday morning, but before going told her not to go near the bed in which her brother and sister were sleeping. She obeyed, and so it was not until the chambermaid came in that the tragedy was discovered. There was found at the foot of the bed a bloody razor.

Husband Maintains Silence.

W. H. H. Williams, husband of the woman, does business here as an insurance agent and oil salesman. He was brought to the hotel soon after the discovery of the bodies, but refused to talk about the matter, and would not permit his daughter Annie to tell what she knew. Acquaintances say they never knew of any trouble in the family, and Mrs. Williams seemed to be of sound mind.

It is supposed that Mrs. Williams also intended to kill Annie. Williams and his daughter Annie were locked up last evening pending an investigation.

The police believe that the woman is insane, and do not suspect that Williams had anything to do with the tragedy, but his unwillingness to talk was deemed sufficient to warrant his detention. Williams said that his wife left home Saturday last during his absence. She had been "cranky" for some time, but he did not regard her as insane. He supposed that she had gone to visit friends in this city or Cleveland.

News From the Wheat Belt.

CHICAGO, April 2.—The April crop report of The Orange Judd Farmer make the condition of wheat 85.3, two points lower than was reported last year immediately after the severe March freezing. The plant is but little further advanced than it was in December. A considerable portion of the acreage sown will probably be listed in corn. The condition on the Pacific coast is very high, and if maintained will make a record for the year in matter of yield. The rain of the last two days may in some measure restore the plant vigor which it seems to lack.

The Prairie Farmer's report for April makes the present condition of winter wheat 85.8, against 88.9 last month, and 86.5 as estimated officially last April. Conditions of winter rye is 87.1, against 94.4 last April. Condition of swine 91.7, against 97.1 last year. Number of brood cows, as compared with a year ago, reduced 6 per cent.

American Sailors Honored.

WASHINGTON, April 2. — Word has reached here of a remarkable demonstration at Caracas, expressive of the common sentiment of the United States and Venezuela in upholding the Monroe doctrine. It occurred on the visit of the United States squadron, under Admiral Meade. The officers were met by government officials and escorted with much pomp to the Capitol. The press of the city united in a movement urging the government to erect a statue to ex-President Monroe, of the United States, as a memorial to the American sentiment for the Monroe doctrine. The chief significance of the event is its coming at a time when the United States is taking active part in the convention between Great Britain and Venezuela over the boundary question.

New Party Looking Ahead.

PITTSBURG, April 2.—The committee of 100 of the new National party have decided that the national executive committee shall be formed by a representation of two men and two women from each state. The state convention is to be held on June 4. A call was made for $20,000 for national and $12,000 for local work. Resolutions were passed setting forth the aims of the party and asking each state to name delegates for the national convention in March, 1896. The place of holding it has not been named.

Interest Not Earned.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company defaulted in the payment of $7000 interest on the bonds of the Chester Valley railroad and $1000 interest on the bonds of the Camden County road. The interest, which is due semi-annually, is respectively upon issuances of $880,000 and $30,000. The reason for non-payment by the lessee was that the interest had not been earned.

Rain Proved a Godsend.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., April 2.—The rain yesterday quenched the forest fires which have been raging in southern Indiana. In the vicinity of Borden the fire has destroyed many thousand dollars' worth of property. A large amount of stock was burned to death, and fencing and buildings have been reduced to ashes. The country surrounding English loses to the extent of $30,000.

Another Reprieve For Tyson.

DENVER, April 2.—The supreme court has granted a supersedas which will stay the execution of Henry Tyson, sentenced to be hanged next week for a murder committed in 1888. Tyson's original sentence was suspended on account of his becoming crazy, but after recently being declared sane by a jury, he was resentenced.

—The Committee on Public Service have voted to give Insurance Commissioner Merrill the $1,500 increase of salary he asked for—making his pay now $5,000 a year.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

The school column will appear tomorrow.

Of what shall the new school houses be built?

Street sprinkling is beginning to attract attention.

Mrs. W. H. Yeoman of Wilmot, N. H., is visiting with her son, Rev. J. H. Yeoman.

The street railway has a gang of men at work on the Neponset line repairing the tracks.

William Parsons has opened a tailor and repairing shop in the rear of McConnell's fruit store.

Merry Mount lodge, I. O. G. T., celebrates its anniversary Thursday evening at Doble's hall.

The Electric Light Co. are running the wires for the six series lights for the Squantum causeway.

Miss Georgia Chesley of Newmarket, N. H., is the guest of Mrs. Edward Crocker at Hotel Elmer, Atlantic.

The floor over the Quincy cafe on Chestnut street has been let, and the Quincy club is looking for new quarters.

Thomas H. Fenno has been elected a director of the Quincy Electric Light and Power Co., in place of Col. W. B. White, resigned.

Mr. C. C. Hearn, the druggist, will shortly become a resident of Ward One, as he is to occupy part of the house with Dr. Hallowell.

Mrs. E. B. Collins in the Faxon block announces her millinery opening for Friday and Saturday of this week. She has the latest styles.

The Adams Academy base ball nine is arranging for a series of games with well known amateur nines, and some good games may be expected.

During the months of January, February and March the Quincy & Boston street railway carried 243,865 passengers, an increase of 112,865 over a corresponding period last year.

Mr. A. Keating has a very fine gray mare "Maudmont," just received from Maine. One he purchased when down on a business trip. She is from the best Maine stock, Olymup sire, Almont dam.

A boiler in the tannery at Woburn, in which Mr. Theophilus King of this city was formerly connected, exploded Monday morning, killing five men and injuring thirteen. See telegraphic news on first page.

The first of a series of cooking lessons will begin at the First church, Wednesday, and as a number of ladies have signified their intention of attending, the poor husbands may expect to have to try samples of new dishes.

Secretary Whiting of the Yacht club writes that the statement that the proposed steamboat pier will be located but 500 or 600 feet from the Quincy Yacht club house is erroneous. From bearings taken and afterwards figured out on the coast survey chart it is found that it will not be within a quarter of a mile of the club's property.

Mr. S. M. King and Mrs. F. A. Page, who were expected to sing at the King's Daughters' military drill and entertainment Thursday evening are unable to keep their engagement. In their stead Miss Hattie Woodbury Clark and Miss Nellie Louise Woodbury, of Boston, will sing. They will be remembered by many Wollaston people, having sung several times for Mr. Corthell, when they have always given splendid satisfaction. Arrangements have been made with the Quincy & Boston Street R. R. to have a car at the Beale street bridge, Wollaston, at 7.10 Thursday evening, returning at the close of the entertainment.

BRICK, WOOD, STONE.

Material for the Two New Schoolhouses Not Determined —

BY THE QUINCY CITY COUNCIL.

The Water Board Ask for Appropriation of $45,000.

Will stone break the deadlock in the City Council over the erection of the new schoolhouses. On brick and wood it has been almost a tie, but granite was suggested at the meeting Monday evening, and met with favor. The proceedings are fully reported below, and include other important matters.

Jurors Drawn.

The Mayor and City Clerk, with the assistance of Councilman Bigelow, drew the following traverse jurors who will attend court at Dedham next Monday: Maurice R. Newcomb, Edward J. Erwin and Owen W. Jones.

Notice of Hearing.

Mayor Hodges forwarded a notice of the Harbor and Land Commissioners of a hearing April 2, on the petition of A. J. Miller, trustee, to construct a bulkhead at Wollaston Park. Referred to Legislative Committee.

Water Appropriation.

The Mayor also forwarded a communication of the Water Commissioners requesting an appropriation of $45,000, the sum of $20,000 to be for a standpipe on Third hill, Wollaston. Referred.

Appointment.

The Mayor's appointment of Dr. James M. Cutting as Inspector of Meat and Animals was confirmed.

Auditor in Doubt.

Auditor Hall forwarded a communication relative to a bill of $150 for a horse for fire department. While claimed to have been purchased for Hose 2 with the special appropriation it had always been stationed at the central fire station and has died. To Committee on Finance.

Petitions.

Application was received from F. Warshaw for a common victualler's license.

Calvin S. Fifield made application for State aid.

To Councilman Adams belongs the honor of presenting the petition of the evening. It was from residents of Squantum who want the causeway rebuilt, also police, electric lights, and a chemical engine. Referred to Committee on Fire Department and Police.

Reports.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the Telephone Company a new location on Hancock and other streets. Read once.

Also an order for rebuilding the westerly end of Beale street. Read once.

The same committee reported no legislation necessary on an order for survey and plans of Hancock street between School and Washington, as plans were now on file. Accepted.

The same committee reported leave to withdraw on the petition for the acceptance of Packard's lane. Accepted.

The Committee on Sewers and Drains reported reference to the executive department of the petition for catch basins on Old Colony street, it to report a plan. Voted.

The Committee on Lights reported in favor of locating many lights, as asked in petitions, specifying locations. Read and referred to Finance Committee.

Walker Street.

The east section of Ward Six was largely represented at the meeting, as another hearing was advertised for 8 o'clock on the extension of Walker street.

Ex-Councilman Badger said they did not propose to say much, but were present to show their interest in the movement. He hoped extension would be made.

After a motion to close the hearing their tongues become loosened and it was interesting for awhile.

James H. Churchill was in favor of the extension as a public necessity, although as an abutter he considered himself damaged.

J. E. Drew spoke in favor. He said it was eight years ago that he began the agitation.

Seth Burrell favored. When he bought his lot five years ago, he was told it would be opened the next fall.

Mr. Cherrington said the city needed a commission to lay out streets as in Boston. He favored extension in a straight line, and the assessments of betterments.

H. H. Faxon learned from Mr. Churchill that the extension would open up 136 feet of his lot, and then claimed the lot would be worth more after the slice was taken.

Mr. Churchill could not see it, as now he had a rear lot large enough for a house, and would not have after the widening.

Mr. Cherrington thought Ward Six should not beg for everything it received, where Ward One got all it wanted.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER

GRESHAM DISTURBED.

WASHINGTON, April 2. — Secretary of State Gresham is very much concerned these days by the Venezuelan problem.

The British ultimatum, delivered to Nicaragua, is not a source of present apprehension, for it is not now believed that the British will take any action in the way of attempting to acquire any territory in that direction, or even to jeopardize the property of Americans in Nicaragua by a bombardment in the effort to force a collection of the indemnity demanded from Nicaragua.

These are the two moves that might cause the United States to interfere, but in the case of the Venezuelan boundary dispute there is much grave cause for apprehension. It appears that our ambassador, Mr. Bayard, has not succeeded in inducing the British government to give heed to the request submitted by him at the direction of congress that the boundary dispute be submitted to arbitration.

The British are profuse in their declaration of a willingness to arbitrate the title to the lands west of the Schomberg line, but in the view of the state department this is pure evasion of the real issue, for there never has been any reason for the assertion of British right to this territory, and it is the territory lying east of this line that forms the substance of the contention.

The present situation is believed to be alarming, as armed bodies of British and Venezuelans are pressing each other closely in the disputed territory, and there may be a hostile clash at any moment. The administration has been considering carefully the course to be pursued in such case, and it is entirely probable that if the British persist in bringing about this collision through failure to heed the repeated warnings and requests of the United States to submit the matter to a fair arbitration, then the United States will feel called to follow the moral aid it has given to Venezuela in this matter by more substantial assistance.

Minister Andrews, the Venezuelan minister at Washington, has received a cable from Caracas announcing the formation of a new cabinet, as follows: Minister of the interior, Dr. Juan Francisco Castillo; foreign relations, Dr. Lucio Pulido; treasurer, W. A. Matos; war and navy, General Ramon Guerra; formeto general, Jacinto Lava; public instruction, Dr. Alejandro Urbaneja; public works, Jose Maria Manrique; secretary to president, Dr. Nunez.

Oscar Shows His Hand.

STOCKHOLM, April 2.—The political situation in Norway has become more grave. King Oscar has ignored the ultimatum of the ministers that he ask the party of the Left to form a cabinet, declaring that he could not consent to the proposal since Mr. Steen, the leader of the Left and president of the storthing omitted to call to order Deputy Rinde, who, on Friday last, declared in the chamber that "the supreme defense of Norway was in the hands of a foreign man from a foreign land."

Detectives on the Track.

NEW YORK, April 2.—The police are hard at work trying to clear up the mystery surrounding the death of the colored woman found strangled and mutilated Sunday morning on Sixth avenue. Madora Robinson, colored, a stewardess in the depot at Hoboken of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, visited the morgue here and identified the murdered woman as a passenger who came to the Hoboken depot Tuesday on a train from Newark.

Asks For Annulment.

CHICAGO, April 2.—General McNulta, the receiver of the Whisky trust, has filed a lengthy petition in the United States circuit court, asking that the Nelsion Morris contract be annulled by the court. In his application, General McNulta avers that President Greenhut of the trust, is a partner with Morris in the contract, though the contract purports to have been made solely with Morris.

Addicks Looking After His Interests.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 2.—J. Edward Addicks and his counsel appeared before the United States circuit court yesterday and had released from restraint the bonds of the Boston United Gas company, of the face value of $100,000. This step was made necessary by the order issued to prevent Mr. Addicks from disposing of any of the assets of the Bay State Gas company.

Will Try For a Settlement.

LONDON, April 2.—The government has offered, through the board of trade, to ascertain the subjects in dispute between the boot and shoe manufacturers and their employes, with a view to arbitrating the trouble. The Times, in an editorial, says that this is the first recorded really business-like suggestion of the kind.

Release of Political Prisoners.

LONDON, April 2. — Herbert Asquith, home secretary, announced in the house of commons that the Irish political prisoners O'Callaghan and McCann had been released. Each had served 12 years of his term. O'Callaghan's eyesight is going fast, Mr. Asquith said, and McCann has passed his 70th year.

The First Lexow Witness Dead.

NEW YORK, April 2.—Carl Priem, who was the first witness to furnish the Lexow committee with testimony regarding the police corruption, was found dead in his room yesterday, having committed suicide by taking poison. No cause for the act is known.

To Honor Germany's Ex Chancellor.

LIEPSIC, April 2.—The new statue of Prince Bismarck in the Augustus Platz was unveiled. The square and the city in the vicinity were illuminated with electric lights. A procession comprising several thousand persons paraded the streets.

Timber Lands Change Hands.

ESCANABA, Mich., April 2.—One hundred thousand acres of farm and timber land in Delta, Alger and Schoolcraft counties were sold yesterday by the North New England Debenture company to an Indiana corporation for $130,000.

Rebel Band Put to Flight.

HAVANA, April 2.—A dispatch from Victoria de las Tunas, in Santiago province, says that a rebel band of 60 men under Capote has been put to flight by troops, a few miles from the city. The troops are still in pursuit.

Destructive Fire In Northwest Territory.

REGINA, N. W. T., April 2.—The courthouse building, containing all the records of the Northwest Territory were totally destroyed by fire here. The valuable government libraries are a complete wreck. Loss on building, $30,000.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Having sold my West Quincy store, I intend to confine my attention wholly to my store in Quincy Centre for the future. I respectfully ask a continuance of the favor of the patronage of the public.

It will be my aim in the future, as it has been in the past, to cater to the wants of every man, woman or child who enters my store. I would like your trade, if I have it not already, and promise in return courteous treatment, correct prices and above all other things, first-class goods.

Thanking you for past favors, and soliciting a continuance of the same, I remain

Co. K Inspected.

The annual state inspection of Co. K was held Monday evening. Col. Parker of the Governor's staff was the inspecting officer, accompanied by Col. Bancroft and Maj. Oakes. The company was inspected in guard duty, which was very well performed. The attendance was also very satisfactory, 52 enlisted men and three officers being present.

Col. Bancroft complimented the men upon their appearance and said, "that the militia of today were more intelligent and more athletic looking than when he enlisted twenty years ago."

East Norfolk Union.

The East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union held its annual meeting in the vestry of the Wollaston Baptist church on Monday evening. President Polkinghorn of Holbrook occupied the chair. The South Braintree Y. P. S. C. E. was admitted to the East Norfolk Union. These officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Frederick K. Belcher, of Wollaston; Secretary, N. Maude Thompson, of Wollaston; Treasurer, Mattie Mayhew, of Braintree.

SHEDS AND QUARRIES.

Outsiders Don't Like Quincy Bill of Prices—New Machinery.

McDonald & Cook of Water street are preparing to introduce the new pneumatic tools into their works. They propose to operate them by electric power. Most of the large firms are now supplied with these labor-saving devices.

It is said that a machine is shortly to be introduced into the granite industry that is capable of cutting mouldings. Various contrivances have from time to time been adopted to cut plain granite surfaces, but up to the present, broken or curved lines have resisted the inventor's art. If the proposed departure be a practical success it will do more to revolutionize the monumental trade than anything yet launched from the machine shops.

The appointment of Mr. Nicol as superintendent of Mount Wollaston Cemetery, removes from the granite business of Quincy, one of its oldest and most active workers. Mr. Nicols long connection with the firm of McKenzie & Paterson, and his practical knowledge of the different branches of the trade made him an important authority on matters pertaining to the development of Quincy's staple industry.

The ordination of George H. Watt of South Quincy, on Friday evening last, to the Baptist ministry, transfers another active member of the craft to a new field of labor. In laying aside the hammer, to assist in unraveling the knotty skein of theology, the new divine has the good wishes of his old fellow craftsmen with him. Few men have shown such commendable zeal in the pursuit of an object as Mr. Watt has.

Local retail dealers are anxiously awaiting the exit of frost from the ground, in order to commence the erection of monuments in the adjoining cemeteries. In a great many of the yards that make a specialty of this class of work, the accumulation of finished jobs ready for shipment, indicates a busy season ahead for setters and teamsters. The two months immediately preceeding Memorial day are regarded as the busiest of the year.

Kavanagh Bros. of Boston are preparing to place a yard in South Quincy, and are about to put up sheds near the railroad track, in close proximity to Swingle & Falconer.

The new bill of prices for Quincy, is not regarded with entire satisfaction by a great number of the granite cutting centres throughout the country. This reception was to be expected, for to men totally unacquainted with the peculiar local conditions here the settlement seems somewhat unfavorable. It is a peculiar but significant fact, that no basis of agreement between Quincy manufacturers and workers, has ever been received with cordial acceptance by other districts that are supposed to be disinterested authorities. So long, however, as the parties that are most directly concerned are reasonably satisfied, the adverse criticism of those who are not personally affected, can be cheerfully ignored.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co, Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

SQUANTUM SERENE.

False Reports Concerning Depredations at "Quincy's Garden."

An article in a Boston daily recently occupied considerable space to tell of the gangs of roughs that were constantly visiting Squantum and committing depredations. The article said that some of the houses had been broken into and made the rendezvous for crowds from Quincy and Boston to carry on dog and cock fights. It was also said that shutters and inside doors had been used for fires.

It is not known who the author of the article was, but it is very evident he must have drawn largely upon his imagination for the substance of his story.

Chief of Police Hayden says he has had no complaint of any kind from there. That he kept officers there until the summer residents had gone away and since that time everything had been as peaceable and quiet as one would wish.

Sunday a representative of the Boston Post visited Squantum and according to his report no such things have occurred and he comes to the conclusion that it must be some other Squantum.

He says: "A house-to-house examination revealed the premises of those vacant without a sign of having been disturbed since left in the fall. Not a shutter in Squantum was missing, not a fence rail missing or broken, not a shed door gone. At one house a cat-rigged boat had been pulled up and left without unbending the sail. The canvas lay loose in the boat, but from the weather stains it could be seen no sacrilegious hand had disturbed the folds for weeks, if at all, since the craft left the water.

McDonnell vs. Bay State.

A dispatch from Wilmington, Del., says that the developments in the suit against the Bay State Gas Company in Wilmington Saturday have caused a sensation, and the prediction is made that Addicks' rule, so far as the Gas Companies are concerned, is almost at an end.

United States Marshal Lannan served upon J. Edward Addicks papers in the case of Thomas H. McDonnell of Quincy, Mass., vs. the Bay State Gas Company. McDonnell is a stockholder in the company and asks that an accounting be made by the Receiver to Edward C. Bradford and William C. Spruance of this city, attorneys for the complainant. Mr. Addicks says that not a single allegation in the bill is true.

WHY ADVERTISE? BECAUSE IT PAYS!

BRICK, WOOD, STONE.

The hearing closed and the order was recommitted to the Committee on Streets.

Calendar.

The ordinance relative to removal of snow came up for passage, but was laid on on the table.

The order for a sidewalk on Washington street, and for the division of Ward Three into precincts both passed.

The Schoolhouse Plans.

The order appropriating $800 for plans for two wooden schoolhouses came up for passage.

Councilman Nickerson opposed the order and was against the erection of wooden buildings. He considered it a step back for the city. Quincy was backward enough now without doing this.

Councilman Geary made an eloquent plea for a brick building at "The Rail." The district had waited patiently for a schoolhouse and a wooden one would not satisfy them. Of all buildings which should not be of inflammable material the schoolhouse was the one, where the safety of so many children was concerned.

Councilman Sprague was an advocate of brick, but had voted for wood in the committee that the matter might come up before the Council. That schoolhouses might be built of something for they were needed.

Councilman Shackley realized the need of accommodation. He had an order in his pocket to convert a hall at the Willard into a school room to accommodate 60 pupils.

Councilman Shackley believed the debt of the city would now be $100,000 smaller had the new schoolhouses been of wood instead of brick. The gentleman who had got us into the idea of brick, had found it so expensive that he had removed from town taking considerable taxable property with him.

Councilman Bryant said the man probably moved out because he foresaw that the city was going to build of wood and would go backward. Corporations regarded brick as more economical, and railroads were erecting depots of brick and stone.

Councilman Lamb suggested that granite be used. It would give work to many of our idle citizens. He had seen some very pretty buildings built of Quincy seam face granite. He had a reliable estimate that granite would cost but $2500 more than wood.

Councilman Shackley thought no one could give a reliable estimate on stone, as they had no specifications.

Councilman Lamb replied the man could give a closer estimate than Councilman Shackley. He had figures it could be built for $31,000.

Councilman Nickerson rapped Ward Two on its slow growth. No other ward could use the same schoolhouse 40 years. In West Quincy and Wollaston they raised children. Give West Quincy stone and the Downs brick.

Councilman Sprague believed stone worthy of consideration.

Councilman Nickerson thought there was no great haste.

Councilman Adams thought we could wait to get the right thing. We should investigate stone.

Councilman Rinn would not vote for wood if no schoolhouses were built this year. Our wooden schoolhouses were poorly heated and ventilated, and he should introduce an order this evening for a change.

Councilman Bryant moved to insert "stone" instead of "wooden" in the order.

Councilman Sprague moved to recommit and the motion took precedent.

Councilman Shackley opposed recommitting without a vote on material.

Councilman Adams was not prepared to vote for stone until he knew the cost.

Councilman Russell said 300 granite workers were out of employment and stone was worthy of consideration.

Councilman Nickerson believed the estimate given by Councilman Lamb to be reliable. It was from ex-Councilman Moxon who could be depended upon.

Councilman Barker regarded brick as more economical. It would cost but $5,000 more and would attract people to become residents, particularly at the Downs.

Councilman Parker opposed wood, and had letters from many cities in Metropolitan district to back him up.

The order was recommitted.

Other Business.

Councilman Rinn offered an order appropriating $2,500 for a new system of heating and ventilation at the Quincy school. Referred.

Councilman Geary offered an order for a stone crossing on Willard street, at junction of Crescent street and Bates avenue. Referred.

Councilman Geary offered an order for an arc light on Willard street between Crescent and Rogers streets. Referred.

The order granting the Electric Light Co. a location on Adams and Pine streets was given a second reading.

The ordinance establishing the duties of the City Solicitor passed another reading.

Adjourned for one week.

WAS AN ILLINOIS MAN.

Identity of the American Gambler Shot In Paris at Last Revealed.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 2. — Read Waddell, who was shot by Thomas O'Brien in Paris last Wednesday, was a native of this city and lived here for 25 years. His father, who has been dead a dozen years, was, prior to his death, one of the best known race horsemen.

After graduating from the high school here, Read Waddell began following races as a bookmaker, and it is said that he made money. He is known among sporting men all over the country, particularly among the horse people in New York. He left this country for Paris last December. He is 34 years old and well remembered by the citizens of Springfield. His mother lives here and has always been kept in comfortable circumstances by him.

Chicago Believes In Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The committee of Chicago business men, headed by William T. Baker, president of the Chicago board of trade, had an interview with President Cleveland yesterday. They laid before him an invitation signed by over 100 representative business men of Chicago, asking him and Mrs. Cleveland to accept a public non-partisan reception, to be held in Chicago, to express "our deep sense of appreciation of your statesmanlike and courageous action in maintaining the financial credit of our government and your uncompromising attitude in favor of the preservation of a sound national currency."

Bissell's Restrictions.

WASHINGTON, April 2. — Postmaster General Bissell has issued an order directing that hereafter postmasters will see that the publications offered for mailing have a legitimate list of subscribers, made up not of persons whose names are furnished by advertisers or by others interested in the circulation of the publication, but of those who voluntarily seek it and pay for it with their own money. This rule is not intended to interfere with any genuine case where the person subscribes for a limited number of copies for another.

Armistice Working Satisfactorily.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Now that the limited armistice has been proclaimed in the China-Japan war, and Li Hung Chang's wound is improving, it is anticipated that the resumption of peace negotiations will follow speedily and will be pushed with the view to securing a treaty of peace as early as possible. The indemnity and the form in which it should be paid is one part of the terms of peace, which is being watched with interest. The money indemnity Japan will ask will be very considerable.

Iron Works In Full Blast.

CLEVELAND, April 2.—David Armstrong, who has been in Youngstown for a number of days as a member of the conference committee of the Amalgamated association of Iron and Steel Workers, said the agreement reached regarding the scale of wages for iron workers was entirely satisfactory to both sides. All the mills are again running in Youngstown after a long period of idleness.

Fighting Moonshiners.

LITTLE ROCK, April 2.—Deputy United States Marshal Johnson and a posse of six men fought a gang of moonshiners in the mountains of Hempstead county. After the smoke had cleared away the posse found the bodies of two of the outlaws, captured a third alive and took possession of an illicit plant capable of making 20 gallons of whiskey a day.

Must Await Dunraven's Arrival.

NEW YORK, April 2. — H. Maitland Kersey, the representative here of Lord Dunraven, received a letter yesterday from the owner of Valkyrie III, in which the English yachtsman says that he has decided to postpone the settlement of the question of crew and live ballast in the races for America's cup until his arrival in this country.

Fight Awarded to Ziegler.

CHICAGO, April 2.—Owen Ziegler, the Philadelphia lightweight, last evening defeated Jerome Quigley, also of Philadelphia. The fight was awarded Ziegler on a foul in the fifth round, but he had his man whipped, and could have put him out inside of the limit of eight rounds.

In Favor of Disestablishment.

LONDON, April 2.—The bill for the disestablishment of the Church in Wales passed its second reading in the house of commons last evening. The government had a majority of 44, the vote standing 304 in favor of the measure to 260 against it.

Iowa Miners Quit Work.

OTTUMWA, Ia., April 2.—As was expected, 2500 coal miners in the Appanoose district quit work yesterday, and 1500 more in other portions of the state. No trouble is expected.

My Philosophy.

I allus argy that a man
Who does about the best he can
Is plenty good enough to suit
This lower mundane institute,
No matter of his daily walk
Is subject for his neighbor's talk,
And critic minds of ev'ry whim
Jest all get up and go for him.

It's nachural enough, I guess,
When some gets more and some gets less,
Fer them that's on the slimmest side
To claim it ain't a fair divide,
And I've knowed some to lay in wait
And get up soon and set up late
To ketch some fellow they would hate
Fer goin at a faster gait.

The signs is bad when folks commence
A-findin fault with Providence
And balkin 'cause the world don't shake
At ev'ry prancin step they take.
No man is great till he can see
How less than little he would be
Ef stripped to self, and stark and bare
He hung his sign out everywhere.

My doctrin' is to lay aside
Contentions and be satisfied;
Jest do your best, and praise or blame
That follers that count jest the same.
I've allus noticed great success
Is mixed with trouble, more or less,
And it's the man who does the best
That gits more kicks than all the rest.

HONORS TO BISMARCK

Birthday Anniversary Festivities Brought to a Happy Ending.

Warm Words of Praise For German-Americans.

He Still Shows an Active Interest In the Affairs of the Fatherland.

FRIEDRICHSRUHE, April 2.—After a bitterly cold night everything was white with hoar frost yesterday morning, but the bright sunshine soon caused this to disappear. Detachments of students poured into Amuehle, and crowded special trains arrived from all parts, 36 coming from Hamburg alone. Up to 9 o'clock Prince Bismarck was still asleep, and no music or other loud sounds were permitted within hearing of the castle.

As soon as darkness had set completely in, lights began to burn here, there and everewhere about the grounds, and the lake in the rear of the schloss gave back from its dark waters the reflection of hundreds of brightly flaring flames. From every window of the schloss there gleamed a light, until from the distance the residence looked to be one glowing mass of fire.

Round about the castle every resident had entered into the plan to make the day and night memorable, and the illumination was general. In the gardens there were 6000 lights. In one place the lights had been so arranged that the words "Hoch, Bismarck," appeared in a gigantic blaze of fire. Thousands of torches and a display of fireworks added to the brilliancy of the spectacle. The railway station was also brilliantly illuminated.

The feature of last night's celebration was a torchlight procession, in which several thousand persons took part. After marching through the grounds the procession arrived in front of the castle. When the crowd had taken up its position, the many torches made everything around about almost as light as day. Quietness, save for the low hum of many voices, prevailed until Prince Bismarck stepped from the castle and appeared on the terrace. Then a thundering volley of cheers ascended from thousands of throats, repeated again and again until it appeared as though vocal chords would be snapped in twain.

Bowing and smiling, Prince Bismarck stood until quiet was restored. Then Herr Semler stepped in front of the prince, and in the name of the city of Hamburg delivered an oration, in which he lauded the prince and his services to Germany, and expressed the hope that he would live for many years to come, secure in the love and esteem of his countrymen. The speech was greeted with prolonged applause, which was renewed with even greater vigor when the prince arose, he having seated himself during the delivery of the speech, and stepped forward to express his thanks.

Having at last obtained a degree of silence, he referred to the great importance of Hamburg and other Hanse towns for the maintenance and consolidation of Germany's relations with countries beyond the seas. He dilated upon the importance of the various steamship lines for the conveyance of immigrants and others across the ocean, declaring that the departure of Germans from Hamburg and Bremen for America did more to maintain the good relations between Germany and America than any official representation. If, he declared, all the Hamburg and Bremen people now living in South America should return home it would be more harmful to the Germans than if all the German representatives to those countries were done away with.

Looking After Germany's Welfare.

Continuing, Prince Bismarck said he had also wished to establish a commercial administration for Africa. He still hoped to see in vogue this system, which has made the British East Indies so great. The prince then referred to his sickness at Kissingen, in the autumn of 1893, which, he said, had dealt a severe blow to his constitution. His general weakness had been aggravated by the loss of his wife and the consequent solitude of his home, but in spite of this he looked cheerfully to the future.

After calling for cheers for the Hanse towns, which were given heartily, the prince descended the steps of the terrace and witnessed the torchlight procession march past. As they went by, the torchbearers cheered loudly. Finally Prince Bismarck withdrew, wishing his admirers a hearty good night, and again expressing his thanks for the honor they had done him. He added: "I am tired out and I am too cold to remain up any longer." With a final round of cheers and cries of "Hoch, Bismarck," the procession passed from the grounds and the celebration at Friedrichsruhe came to an end.

Observance of the Day In Other Places.

VIENNA, April 2.—Meetings in honor of Prince Bismarck were held by students and the residents of most of the Austrian towns. Congratulations were telegraphed to the prince and toasts in his honor were drunk with enthusiasm. In a few instances, the police prohibited proposed gatherings, fearing that counter demonstrations would be made.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—The 80th anniversary of the birth of Prince Bismarck was celebrated at the Academy of Music last night by the citizens of Philadelphia of German descent. The academy was decorated with flags of the United States and the German empire. M. Richards Muckle presided and made the opening address.

HAMBURG, April 2.—The Bismarck fetes were repeated last evening with redoubled zest. All the societies which did not go to Friedrichsruhe had Bismarck dinners. The students who visited Friedrichsruhe gave Bismarck a carved beer barrel inlaid with gold and silver, and bearing in relief portraits of the prince in his 18th and 80th years.

LONDON, April 2.—The Daily News Berlin correspondent says that among the presents sent to Prince Bismarck is a lock of George Washington's hair, enclosed in a little gold box. This is the gift of an American lady.

ST. PAUL, April 2.—The legislature yesterday passed a resolution congratulating Prince Bismarck on his 80th birthday.

Cotton farmers should not make the mistake of thinking that because there has been a rise in the price of cotton recently the price next fall will be higher than it was last fall.—Savannah News.

KING SOLOMON'S MINES.

A Well Known Californian Engineer Has Gone In Search of Them.

William P. St. Auburn, the well known California mining engineer and manager and one of the owners of the Niagara mine, has gone to South Africa to hunt for the lost mine of King Solomon.

"I am going for Sir Cecil Rhodes, the premier of South Africa, and his associates," he said. "John Hays Hammond wrote me a year ago, wanting me to go, but I couldn't get away then. Since he has renewed the proposition, urging me to come on, and I have decided to do it. I am going up into Mashonaland. That is where the very old mines of Africa are, among which are supposed to be the Ophir and others, which were worked in the time of Solomon.

"I am taking my Bible along," he added smilingly, "and will post myself as well as I can regarding them, and I am also going to review Rider Haggard's book, 'King Solomon's Mines,' which I understand is quite reliable. From this, however, the impression should not be gained that I am going to prospect, as miners do in a new region. The mines are known to exist. I shall merely examine them as an engineer and give my opinion as to which are best to work. Mashonaland has many of these mines. The old workings can be seen in many places.

"I read a letter from Charles J. Clarke, dated at Buluwayo, in Matabeleland, the adjoining province to Mashonaland, in which he says that it is very lively all through that country. He went to Buluwayo about a year ago, when it had but two houses. Now there are 2,000 white men there."

A TEXAS STEER.

Judge Culberson of Texas Is a True Son of His Native State.

If a new international monetary conference be called, one of the delegates thereto chosen by the late congress will create somewhat of a sensation in Paris, Berlin, Brussels or wherever the conference may be held. Congressman Culberson of Texas is a character. He has a method of speech and a manner of dress all his own. He buys his clothing ready made and always contrives to select garments which could not by any possibility be made to fit him. He wears a turned down collar and an old fashioned black cravat. He loves to sit with his chin nestling in his shirt bosom, and the latter, owing to an overenergetic tobacco chewing habit, is not always immaculate. In conversation Judge Culberson is a true southwesterner. He has no scruples about saying "I done" and "I seen it." "A heap" is one of his favorite expressions, and he invariably says "catched" instead of caught. He loves to speak of "Injuns," and his discourse is full of quaint and homely similes and bywords. Notwithstanding these peculiarities he is a man of great ability, though not of great energy. He is as lazy as he is careless, but when roused he is both learned and witty enough to enable him to take care of himself in any company. If any of the foreign delegates or attaches attempt to have fun with this homely but brainy southwestern statesman, they will be sure to uncover a Tartar.—Chicago Times-Herald.

His Instinct Betrayed Him.

A curious story is told by a Vienna correspondent: A young man, the representative of a large firm, who carried a large sum of money with him, recently spent the night at a hotel at Presburg. As usual, he remained some time smoking in bed. Suddenly the burning cigar fell to the floor. He bent over to extinguish it, when he saw a hand projected from under the bed to put the cigar out. It made him very uncomfortable. He lay awhile and then, saying aloud: "How very cold! I shall get my fur coat," he jumped out of bed, flew to the door and cried for help. The would be robber was caught. He confessed he knew the occupant of the room had money, which he hoped to get while he slept. He had been a fireman formerly and could not resist the impulse to extinguish the burning cigar.—Washington Star.

Pinero's New Play.

The Pall Mall Gazette thus sums up Mr. Pinero's new play, "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith:" "Three magnificent acts, splendidly written, splendidly set and splendidly played; three acts of steady development, of subtle interplay, of absorbing interest; three acts which promised to place this play a head and shoulders above any other play in London—and, then a smash."—Boston Journal.

Zola's Plans For the Future.

Zola was recently being interviewed concerning his future plans and remarked that in 1935 he would take a rest. "And in 1936?" asked the interviewer. "In that year I shall be 96 and shall die," said the great novelist. "That has been arranged with my publishers, Charpentier & Fasquelle!" So M. Zola's rest doesn't begin just yet.

Love and Taxes.

It would be interesting to know if there is any connection between the unusually large number of matrimonial engagements that are being announced these days and the movement to tax bachelors. Let's hope not for true love's sake.—Boston Herald.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Having sold my West Quincy store, I intend to confine my attention wholly to my store in Quincy Centre for the future. I respectfully ask a continuance of the favor of the patronage of the public.

It will be my aim in the future, as it has been in the past, to cater to the wants of every man, woman or child who enters my store. I would like your trade, if I have it not already, and promise in return courteous treatment, correct prices and above all other things, first-class goods.

Thanking you for past favors, and soliciting a continuance of the same, I remain

Your humble servant,

PROVED A BOMBSHELL.

A Bad Bond Turns Up In the Newton, N. H., Forgeries.

Work of Investigation Still Going On.

NEWTON, N. H., April 3.—Another chapter in the Newton forgeries was enacted here yesterday. The redemption of the bonds of the town occurred from 2 to 5 o'clock at the town hall. Out of $10,000 worth of bonds but $5000 worth were presented for payment.

The sensation of the day was the presentation of a forged $500 bond by Nathaniel K. Johnson, a retired shoe manufacturer of Haverhill, Mass. Town Treasurer Axtell refused payment as soon as he saw the signatures. Ex-Town Treasurer Wilder declared his signature on the bond to be bogus, and two of the selectmen's signatures were also pronounced not genuine. Mr. Johnson was obliged to leave the hall without the money.

The alleged $800 bond held by the Powow River National bank of Amesbury, Mass., and the $500 bond held by the Granite State bank of Exeter, N. H., were not presented. It is reported that they have been promised the cash for them by the alleged forger before Thursday. This cannot be verified, however, as the bank officials are very reticient.

Bogus Bond Creates a Sensation.

The bogus $500 bond presented was a No. 8, the same as that at present held at Exeter, and the fact that there are three No. 8's in existence has caused a tremendous sensation in Newton. The work of investigating the forgeries is still being conducted by the town officials, and they think that they know where to place the blame.

The amount of the forged bonds now presented, according to Town Treasurer Axtell, is $2300. Among the genuine ones presented were six $500, six $200 and 17 $100 bonds. The signatures on the forged paper are pronounced a good imitation. The bogus signatures are written in a heavier hand than the original.

Town Treasurer Axtell will again redeem the additional bonds at the town hall tomorrow, when other and more startling developments are looked for.

HAVERHILL, Mass., April 2.—Nathaniel K. Johnson of this city, who presented a $500 town of Newton (N. H.) bond and was refused payment, was seen last night by a reporter. He refused to answer a question as to how he came into possession of the bond. Mr. Johnson thought he would have something to say later on on the bond question.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 3.—The legislature has started to investigate both the Bay State and Brookline Gas companies' affairs. The gas commissioners reported to the house that there were 17 savings banks holding Bay State Gas bonds as collateral. The senate ordered the gas commissioners to furnish a statement showing what amounts have been expended by the Brookline Gas company, appearing in the account known as "Boston contract." The house concurred with the senate in engrossing the bill preventing any insurance company from issuing a policy on the life of any person over 70 years of age. The bill appropriating $25,000 additional to each of the normal schools at North Adams, Lowell, Fitchburg and Hyannis was engrossed. The committee on education reported a resolve appropriating $20,000 for repairs at the Worcester state normal school. The committee on mercantile affairs reported a bill authorizing the Merrimac Manufacturing company of Lowell to increase its capital stock to $850,000, and to carry on the business of manufacturing cotton goods and other textile fabrics in any part of the United States.

New Hampshire Sons of the Revolution.

CONCORD, N. H., April 3.—The annual meeting of the New Hampshire society, Sons of the American Revolution, will be held here Wednesday, April 17, and invitations have been extended to Rev. S. F. Smith, author of the national hymn, Governor Charles A. Busiel, General Charles H. Bartlett of Manchester, orator of the day; Hon. Edwin S. Bartlett, president of the Massachusetts society; Senators W. E. Chandler and Jacob H. Gallinger, President C. S. Murkland of the Agricultural college at Durham; Hon. John H. O'Reilly, officers of New Hampshire society, Daughters of the Revolution, and others to be guests of the society on that occasion.

The Electrical Juggernaut.

HYDE PARK, Mass., April 3. — Max Wirth, a 5-year-old deaf mute, while playing in the streets here yesterday, was run over and killed by an electric car. The motorman gave warning of the approach of the car by clanging the bell sharply, and seeing that the boy paid no attention to it reversed the current and applied the brake. The brake chain snapped, and in spite of prompt action of a lineman to pull the little fellow out the car passed over him, crushing him fearfully. Before the body could be removed the car had to be raised from the tracks.

Sentenced For Assaulting Newsman.

LOWELL, April 3.—After a long trial before Judge Hadley in the municipal court, Michael O'Keefe and Michael McKiernan were found guilty yesterday afternoon of assaulting John T. O'Neil, the A. P. A. newsman while he was selling The Herald on St. Patrick's day. Two months in jail, with a fine for drunkenness, was the sentence imposed. An appeal was taken. The assault case where pepper was thrown in O'Neil's eyes will not be tried until Thursday.

Semi-Annual Meeting of Mule Spinners.

BOSTON, April 3.—The semi-annual session of the National Mule Spinners' association opened yesterday. There were present delegates from the following places: Fall River, New Bedford, Lowell, Paterson, N. J., Lawrence, Pawtucket, Blackstone, North Adams, Lewiston, Biddeford, Dover, Manchester, Providence, Olneyville, Suncook, Exeter, Nashua and Taunton. The report of the treasurer showed the association to be in excellent financial condition.

Does Silence Give Consent.

CAMBRIDGE, April 3.—The Harvard faculty did not touch on the football question at their regular meeting yesterday, much to the disappointment of those interested, who hoped to see the question settled one way or the other. The more sanguine among the footballists consider this as indicative that the faculty may take no further action on the matter, thereby silently assenting to the athletic committee's position.

Olneyville Mill Operators' Demand.

PROVIDENCE, April 3.—A demand has been made by the mill operatives of Olneyville for a return to the schedule of 1893. Every employe of the Valley and Saxon worsted mills made the demand, but in the Riverside mill only the spinners requested a return to the old wages. The demand was positively refused by all the mills, except the Atlantic, which requested time to consider the proposition.

Death of a Wealthy Milk Dealer.

BOSTON, April 3.—Richard Moore, a milkman, who has supplied Back Bay people for over 20 years, died yesterday from erysipelas. He leaves property estimated at between $175,000 and $200,000. His death resulted from the kick of a cow. The wound, which was on his knee, developed into erysipelas, and blood poisoning followed. He died in a public ward of the city hospital.

Cunningham Rocket Torpedo to Be Tested.

NEWPORT, April 3.—The spring work at the torpedo station began yesterday, when two Whitehead torpedos were fired. The water has reached a temperature of 42, and diving will be shortly commenced. The small arms board will convene April 8, and a test of the Cunningham rocket torpedo will be held as soon as the torpedo boat Stiletto is put in commission.

An Old Whaler Lost.

NEW BEDFORD, April 3.—Antone L. Sylvia states that bark Raposa do Mar, which has plied as a packet between this port and the Cape de Verde islands, has been lost at sea. The letter simply states that the vessel went down last month, and gives no particulars. The Raposa do Mar was formerly the whaling bark Sea Fox, hailing from this port.

Order in a Prosperous Condition.

PAWTUCKET, April 3. — The supreme council of the Order of Alfredians was in session in this city yesterday. All the 15 brigades were represented by delegates. The morning session of yesterday was devoted to the presentation of reports of the secretary, treasurer and trustees, all of which showed the order to be in a prosperous condition.

Serious Charges Against a Pastor.

PROVIDENCE, April 3. — The annual meeting of the Epworth league was held in this city last night. An address was made by Bishop John W. Weldon of Cincinnati. The trial of Rev. George E. Dunbar of Stoughton, Mass., on charges affecting his character, was a feature of the conference today.

Police Committee to Investigate.

LYNN, April 3.—George W. Leonard, a special police officer, attempted to arrest two men who had been drinking, but instead he himself was locked up on the charge of drunkenness, and the men he was desirous of arresting escaped. The committee on police will investigate.

Workman Killed on a Railroad.

DANBURY, Conn., April 3.—William H. Connolly, aged 19, of Boston, employed by the Boston Bridge company, was killed by a train on the Consolidated road near Beaver Brook. He was engaged with other workmen in repairing a bridge when the train struck him.

Decided Against Dr. Mary.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 3. — Dr. Mary Walker was in court yesterday to contest her aunt's will. She appeared before the court dressed in a neat black suit, and pleaded her own case. The judge decided against her and allowed the will.

Massachusetts Fully Represented.

SALEM, April 3.—The anniversary of the New England Conference Epworth league was held at Cadet hall last evening, and there were fully 2000 persons present, representing all parts of the state. Rev. George S. Chadbourne presided.

Will Not Affect Boston.

BOSTON, April 3.—The officials of the American Sugar Refinery company here state that the order issued to close refineries in other parts of the country would not have any effect here. They state that the works will run as usual.

A Park For Ayer.

AYER, Mass., April 3.—Levi W. Phelps, a lumber dealer, has offered to give the town six acres of land near the high school for a park. No conditions are attached to the gift, and it will be accepted at a special meeting to be held soon.

Lowell Licenses Granted.

LOWELL, April 3.—The license commissioners have granted licenses to 75 out of 77 applicants. Decision was reserved in the other case, pending a hearing on a protest from the Y. M. C. A. The list includes 12 new names.

Died From His Injuries.

NORRIDGEWOCK Me., April 3.—While intoxicated, Joseph Lassir, aged 40 years, fell from the bridge across the Kennebec river here, a distance of 40 feet, striking on the ice. He died in about 30 minutes.

Wants to Thank the Mikado.

LONDON, April 3.—A dispatch to The Standard says that the Emperor of China has instructed Li Hung Chang to ask an audience of the mikado and to thank him for granting the armistice.

Died of Heart Disease.

CLEVELAND, April 3.—Dr. I. N. Hymes, a prominent physician and dean of the medical department of the Western Reserve university, died of heart disease, aged 61.

SIGNIFICANT ADDRESS.

New York Politicians of All Classes Greatly Stirred Up.

Signers of the Document Men of Prominence.

NEW YORK, April 3.—An address by prominent Republicans to Republican voters in New York state was issued yesterday, which is causing much stir and interest among politicians of all classes. The address is signed by Cornelius N. Bliss, Elihu Root, Joseph H. Choate, Horace Porter, LeGrand B. Cannon, Samuel Thomas, William Brookfield, Horace Russell, Edward Mitchell, S. V. R. Cruger, Joel B. Erhardt, C. H. T. Collis, George W. Lyon, John R. Van Wormer, Henry E. Howland, Henry W. Cannon, M. C. D. Borden and John Claflin.

The ground taken is that the vote for governor in New York city at the recent election was an index of the number of new voters that had come into the Republican party at that time on the state and local issues. The address says: "They saw that the Republican party in this city had fully committed itself to the cause they had at heart, and they believed the party in the state would support and sustain its pledge."

Some Conclusions Arrived At.

The deduction made by the signers is that if the Republican party of the state lives up to the spirit as well as the letter of the promises made by the party in this city, the people will continue to act on it in state issues as well as in city issues. It is argued that the Republican party in the legislature is to make good the promises made by the party in this city, and must pass the so-called reform measures which have been pending in the legislature for some time past.

These measures provide for: Reorganizing the public schools; abolishing the present Tammany appointed police justices by creating new police magistrates to be appointed by the mayor; reorganizing the police department.

Blank petitions are enclosed with the address, intended for senators, asking them to vote for these measures, which are now in the senate. An argument is offered to show the importance of retaining these New York city voters in the Republican party as the balance of power in the state is involved.

Jamaica Bars the Door.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The department of state has received a report from Consul Eckford at Kingston, Jam., announcing the defeat of the customs tariff laws amendment introduced in the legislative council of Jamaica February last. One leading feature of the measure was an increase of the duties upon those articles almost exclusively imported from the United States.

Down With Yellow Fever.

TAMPA, Fla., April 3.—A passenger arriving on the steamer from Havana yesterday says 150 soldiers out of a battalion which recently arrived there are now in the hospital, and 16 of them are down with yellow fever, and great mortality is expected. All the telegraph wires in Santiago are badly interrupted, and this is regarded in Havana as significant. News is very scarce.

Chicago Goes Republican.

CHICAGO, April 3. — Perfect weather coaxed the voters out in large numbers here yesterday. The greatest interest was manifested in the mayoralty contest. The leading candidates were Frank Wenter (Dem.) and George B. Swift (Rep.). Three hundred and twenty precincts give Swift (Rep.), for mayor, 49,995; Wenter (Dem.), 30,556; Holmes (Pop.), 2877.

No Revolutionists on Board.

NEW YORK, April 3.—The steamship Adirondack arrived here last night. The ship did not touch at any Cuban port, and there was nobody who arrived from Cuba. The captain declared that he knew nothing of any such reported revolutionary leader as Henry Brooks being on board the ship.

An Up-To-Date Railroad.

PORTLAND, Or., April 3.—The Great Northern railroad proposes putting into effect about May 1 a new time card, by which the time between Portland and St. Paul will be shortened 12 hours.

Compact of 1873 Confirmed.

LONDON, April 3.—The Standard says that the settlement of the Pamirs question virtually confirms the Granville-Gortchakoff compact of 1873.

Columbia Sterling Bicycles.

In buying a bicycle, as in buying a piano or anything else requiring supreme skill to produce highest and most enduring results, remember that the influence of the mass of makers and agents is exerted against the leading article of its kind, and that inducements other than the intrinsic merit of goods, are freely used to force the sale of a vastly inferior article.

Columbias are the finest example of light and high grade bicycle construction ever put out for the general use of the great riding public. The celebrated nickel steel which has developed such remarkable qualities under the auspices of the United States and other governments, for use in armor, guns and projectiles when the very extreme of violent physical tests must be sustained, is used exclusively in Columbia manufacture this year, and for combined lightness, strength and beauty, places the Columbia Bicycles beyond all reach of comparison for excellence.

The best bicycle in the world with no exception. Full line of Columbias at our store. Instruction in riding and free use of Columbia Riding School to our patrons.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE SECTIONAL feeling that we occasionally hear between different wards of the city is rather amusing. Seldom is there any foundation in fact, and those who make the charges don't know what they are talking about. At the Walker street hearing by the City Council this week one gentleman said Ward Six got nothing, or only what it begged for. That Ward One got everything it wanted, etc., etc.

The facts are that Ward One has received scarcely a special appropriation since Quincy became a city. All the wards of the city have received playgrounds, while Ward One has no park or playground. Most of the water extensions have been in the outlying wards at considerable expense. Hancock street mostly in Wards Five and Six has been rebuilt, giving Atlantic a good thoroughfare to the Centre, and the Neponset bridge has been rebuilt to give them a save exit. Atlantic has received from the city a new engine house, a fire alarm bell and a combination engine. Hydrants, street lights and street crossings have been put in, and the streets generally are as well looked after as at the Centre. Last year $5,000 was spent on the Squantum causeway, and there is a cry for more. When the High school was rebuilt it was moved a mile toward Atlantic, so that it is in the extreme northern section of the Ward One, and considerable out of the business centre. By the way, Ward One with one-ninth of the school children of the city pays one-third of the large annual appropriation for schools.

One would naturally expect more money to be spent in the business centre of the city, but it don't seem to follow that this is the case in Quincy. The Centre has long put up with an old wooden schoolhouse heated by stoves. It asked for the widening of Coddington street, but no. It should have brick sidewalks, but don't even get sidewalks. But why go on, enough has been said to show that the charge is not substantiated. Let improvements stand on their merits.

BROOKLINE AND other towns are asking to be excluded from the Metropolitan water district. Does Quincy wish to remain in and suffer a heavy assessment? Cannot it enlarge its source of supply if necessary at a much smaller cost? The amendment proposed by the town of Brookline provides that the water board shall not take the systems of Cambridge, Lynn, Newton, Waltham, Woburn, Brookline, Lexington, Nahant, Saugus, Swampscott or Winchester without the consent of such cities and towns, and further provides that Brookline shall not be liable to make any contribution to the interest and sinking fund requirements of the act, nor any contribution to the cost of the works until the town has signified its intention to avail itself of the privileges of the act.

The cost of the work is estimated at twenty millions and may be much more. This sum is to be met by eleven cities and twelve towns, as the bill now stands, and if Quincy escapes for less than one million dollars it will be fortunate. This is twice as much as the present Quincy works have cost the city.

IF A schoolhouse of eight rooms can be well built in this city for $31,000, it should be erected forthwith for many reasons. First, it would be an economical structure, as it would need few repairs; second, it would be an excellent advertisement for Quincy stone, and possibly lead to the erection of school buildings of the same material in other cities, thus improving our granite business; third, it would give immediate work to several granite workers now idle. The suggestion of granite at the Council meeting Monday evening seemed to touch a responsive chord, and the doom of wooden buildings was sealed. The advocates of brick will all accept granite as a compromise, and advocates of wood have changed to it also, probably in sufficient numbers to make the appropriation. Quincy will then be at the head of the procession instead of on the retreat.

AN ORDER was offered in the board of aldermen of Malden Tuesday evening appropriating $32,000 for a three-story brick school building. Brick seems to be generally used, but these city have not such a wealth of granite as Quincy.

EVERETT, a smaller city than Quincy, believes in brick schoolhouses, and this week appropriated $25,000 for an eight-room building.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Mrs. Seth Arnold of Howard avenue arrived home from Richmond Tuesday.

Mayor Hodges has signed the order dividing Ward Three into two voting precincts.

J. W. McAnarney, Esq., is among those on the sick list. He was threatened with pneumonia.

The letter box on the corner of Copeland and Cross streets has been removed to the office at Station A.

Thomas Smith who will have charge of the city stables has moved from Quincy Neck to the Centre.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Co. will begin to reconstruct its lines on Hancock street just as soon as the order passes the Council.

Mr. Israel A. Sherman, who is well known at Wollaston, having passed the winter with his brother, Mr. Charles R. Sherman, died at Fall River on Monday.

It is said that the witnesses in the East Milton gambling case held a reunion at Youngs' hotel, Boston, the day after the trial, and spent their witness fee in a supper.

Some one has suggested that the new military company, composed of young ladies, ought to be called the "Faxon Guards." We suggest in addition, that it be known as Company H.

Fire destroyed the Sagamore house at Nantasket beach at 1 o'clock this morning. This house was situated near the landing of the Quincy & Nantasket Steamboat Co., and several Quincy gentlemen were interested in the house.

Those who saw the military drill the first time it was given know that it will be a success, and those who have heard Miss Hogan read and the Misses Clark and Woodbury sing know that their parts will be equally as good.

At the meeting of F. L. Souther Camp, 27, S. of V., on Tuesday evening, there was one recruit for the degree of friendship, and one for the degree of loyalty. The work of the new ritual is smoother, due to the untiring work of our genial captain, C. E. Bayard, and the lieutenants, who meet every week for improvement in their work. Preparations for Memorial day are progressing.

The regular meeting of the Wollaston Park and Norfolk Downs Improvement Association was held at the residence of Mr. William Given, Norfolk Downs, Tuesday evening. The reports of committees showed that they were doing good work. The special business of the evening was to see what improvements could be made at the beach for bathing purposes, and a committee was appointed that will take charge of the matter.

Duck's Nest.

The prizes awarded by Steward Williams of the Duck's Nest, for the best March scores are as follows: Highest single string, regulation alleys, score 229, regulation ball prize to Harry M. Fairbanks; handle pins, score 105, to Hon. H. O. Fairbanks; the gold championship rifle badge has been won twice by Mr. Stephen D. Welsh, score 40.

The Codman club will be entertained by a team of the Wollaston bowling club on Friday night. This is an invitation party.

A Tribe of Red Men.

Tomorrow evening the new tribe of Red Men will be instituted in Wollaston, at Odd Fellows' hall. It is expected to start in with a membership of from 50 to 100. In Massachusetts there are 15,000 and the order at large numbers about 135,000. The last report showed an average membership of 85 in each tribe. Funds on hand and invested, $1,100 for each tribe. Average dues per great sun (year) $6, and the total amount paid brothers, widows and orphans for the past great sun averaged $3.50 for each member, which proves how well its charitable and benevolent principles are exemplified. The committee on institution of new lodge are Hon. H. O. Fairbanks, William A. Jordon and P. R. Glass.

THE SCHOOL COLUMN

An Interview With Miss Underwood of the Coddington.

AT FRONT OF NEW EDUCATION.

Dr. Sheahan to Retire From the School Board.

The Woodward Institute closed today. The spring term will begin April 15. This week the Woodward has received visits from a great many of the public school teachers.

A reading room with periodicals and magazines is one of the latest attractions at the Quincy High school. A good idea, too.

The North High School at Weymouth, will have a prize speaking contest on the evening of April 12, in Odd Fellows' opera house at East Weymouth.

Malden will employ no more married women as teachers in its public schools. Mr. Presby, who offered the order passed, gives among other reasons why the position should be filled by unmarried ladies that the married ones had bread-winners in the family and the single ones were generally ladies who would probably not receive offers of marriage.

AN INTERVIEW WITH ONE WHO HAS TAUGHT FORTY YEARS.

In its "Breakfast Hour" column on Monday the Boston Advertiser had an interview with Miss Julia E. Underwood who has taught school in Quincy forty years. The introductory said:

Miss Underwood has long been noted as one of the model teachers of a model school town and the fact that she has kept in the front of what is called the new education is all the more wonderful when it is remembered that when she began, reading, writing and the rule of three were the only things in a school curriculum thought really worth the teaching.

"The Quincy of my day," she said smilingly, "was a very different place from the Quincy of today. I, you know, have lived the greater part of my life right around here, and I was educated myself in the school which stood in the front yard of this. The school at that time covered a great deal of territory that is now reached by other schools."

"When I was a child my teachers told me, I ought to be a teacher, but I never thought seriously of it till the time came. Then I was a girl of 18, and I began teaching in a room in the Lyceum, the same building that we now use for a city hall. I staid there, I think, one term, and then I came over to this school, which had just been completed, and for 20 years I taught in a basement room, or a room part way underground in this building.

"In all I suppose over 2000 children passed through my room. I have had classes of 80 year after year, and I think my first one contained over 40. Perhaps the most interesting part of it all is the fact that I have taught the children of the children who made up my first class and in time I suppose I will be teaching their grandchildren.

"I have been tempted, I must confess," she continued in answer to a query, "to leave this school, but I have not done so yet and I do not suppose I ever will. I have had offers from nearly every State in the Union, including California. The most flattering offer that I think was ever made to me was by a representative of the famous school for the blind in London. The offer was made direct to go to London and teach, but family circumstances made it impossible for me to accept much as I should love to see the other side."

BIBLE READING IN A NEW LIGHT.

It is not surprising that the Record says "Well! Well!" to the following dispatch of Tuesday from Scranton, Pa.: By a decision, yesterday, of Judge Gunster in the Waverly borough school case, the reading of the Bible in the public schools of Pennsylvania was practically declared illegal. Judge Gunster said religious instruction in sectarian doctrines have no place in our system of common school education. They are expressly prohibited by our constitution, the fundamental law of the commonwealth."

NOT A CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION.

With this year Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan completes his tenth year as a member of the school board and as he has been a valuable member it will be learned with regret that he will probably not be a candidate for reelection. Chairman Crane's and Mr. Harlow's terms also expire this year and it has been suggested that Mr. Crane who is a resident now of Ward One should be a candidate at large and that some liberal minded educated man be selected from Ward Three, the ward in which Mr. Crane resided when elected a member of the board. Mr. Harlow having given perfect satisfaction will probably be reelected from Ward Two.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER

STOLE FOR YEARS.

Why Foxcroft's Treasurer Committed Suicide. Defalcation Will Be Heavy.

FOXCROFT, Me., April 3.—Hon. Elias J. Hale, judge of probate for Piscataquis county, who shot himself on Thursday last, is now thought to have been a defaulter to an amount exceeding $100,000. He had been town trustee for 30 years, and served without a bond until last year. Since his death, holders of notes in sums all the way from $1000 to $10,000 have been coming in, and it appears that he had hired these sums at different times in the town's name. The town books contain no record of these transactions.

Judge Hale was buried yesterday, and the town officers demanded the books of the administrator and are now engaged in investigating. The last town report showed an outstanding loan of $8401.25, but notes already found make the amount from $60,000 to $70,000, and they are still coming in.

It is not known what Hale did with the money. He had been living well and supporting the appearance of wealth, with little visible property. His home in Foxcroft was in his wife's name, but he owned some real estate in this and adjoining towns. During his life, Judge Hale was universally respected and esteemed and bore a spotless reputation. The reported defalcation has caused a great sensation in town, and many conflicting reports have been circulated. It is believed that he saw discovery was inevitable, and shot himself rather than face investigation. He leaves a wife and niece, Dr. Mary Lowell of Mt. Holyoke college.

Death of a Veteran Journalist.

NEW YORK, April 3.—David M. Stone, who for 42 years was editor of The Journal of Commerce, died last night at his home in Brooklyn from a complication of heart troubles, having been sick a month. David Marvin Stone was born in Oxford, Conn., on Dec. 23, 1817. He left home at the age of 14 and taught school when he was 16. He was a merchant in Philadelphia from 1842 to 1849, when he came to New York to take charge of The Dry Goods Reporter. In December of that year, he became commercial editor of the New York Journal of Commerce, and in 1861, with William C. Prime, he purchased the interest of that paper, succeeding Mr. Prime in 1866 as editor-in-chief, which position he held until a year or two ago, when he retired.

Heavy Land Transaction.

FARIBAULT, Minn., April 3.—Donald Grant, a wealthy contractor of this city; W. H. Fisher, late manager of the Duluth and Winnipeg railroad, and J. A. Bowman, a Grand Rapids (Minn.) banker, have just returned from Venezuela, where they obtained a concession of land at the mouth of the Orinoco, running 225 miles south and from 15 to 50 miles east and west. It is rich in minerals, mahogany, rosewood and dyewoods. They also have the right to mine asphalt on a small island near Trinidad. The syndicate will invest a good deal of capital in working the concession, and Mr. Fisher is to be the manager.

No Truth In Rumored Resignation.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—It is positively denied that Secretary Gresham intends to resign, the authority being a cabinet officer whose relations with the secretary are of such a nature as to make him perfectly competent to make the denial. Secretary Gresham has just made arrangements for another lease of the rooms now occupied by him, which may certainly be taken as an evidence of his intention to remain in Washington.

No Agreement Reached.

NEW YORK, April 3.—It is reported that the committee appointed by the president of the anthracite coal roads to make allotments of percentages to the different roads held a meeting here yesterday, but that no agreement was reached. In fact, it is said that a hitch has occurred and that the prospects for a settlement are not very good. The Lehigh controversy is said to be the chief obstacle to a settlement.

Republican Mayor For Denver.

DENVER, April 3.—A municipal election passed off yesterday with a few minor disturbances. It is conceded that the Republican ticket, headed by Thomas S. McMurray for mayor, is elected by 5000 majority. Returns from the smaller towns of the state nearly all show Republican victories.

St. Louis Strongly Republican.

ST. LOUIS, April 3.—Yesterday's municipal election turned all the city offices but two over to the Republicans. Of the 28 members of the house of delegates chosen, two Democrats are elected, the remainder being Republicans.

Thurston Non-Complaining.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—Lorin Thurston, the Hawaiian minister, arrived here yesterday. He will take passage for Hawaii. Mr. Thurston refused to talk about his relations with the officials at Washington.

An Insane Asylum Burned.

COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—The Licking county building for the insane was destroyed by fire yesterday. Jennie Jacoby, an insane patient, gave the alarm, thus saving 30 of the inmates from death.

Tammany Financiering.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Mayor Strong sent to the board of aldermen yesterday a message on the financial condition of the city, in which he took occasion to severely criticise a former administration.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

The postoffice at South Omaha was robbed of $3000.

The reading of the Bible in Pennsylvania public schools has been declared illegal.

Fire at St. Charles, Ills., did damage to the extent of $75,000, burning a number of business houses.

The new cruiser Olympia has sailed from the Mare island navy yard on a practice cruise to the south.

Secretary Gresham has made arrangements to go to Lakewood, N. J., for a week or 10 days to recuperate.

A Society Engagement.

The engagement is announced of Miss Lillian Trask Harlow, daughter of the late Dr. James F. Harlow to Mr. Alfred F. Schenkelberger. Both are well known society people of this city, and the announcement comes as very pleasant news to their many friends.

Miss Harlow is well known in the literary world and has also won fame as an artist. Her early writing under the pseudonyme of Dorothy Thurston brought her immediately into popular favor, and her regular newspaper work for some of the large dailies of Boston and New York won for her additional laurels in this line. Her articles were usually accompanied with some very clever sketches of the subjects treated, and her "matinee girl" which was illustrated in the Beacon, and her many original sketches for the Boston Globe have been highly commented upon.

Her latest work was the illustrating of "Father Gander's Melodies," a book for juveniles, written by Miss Ada Samuels, formerly of this city, which although only recently published has attained a wide circulation.

Mr. Schenkelberger has been a resident of Quincy for a few years and is one of the most popular young men of the city. He is a member of the shoe finding firm of Baxter, Stoner and Sckenkelberger.

The engagement came out last night at a reception given to the young folks by Mr. Schenkelberger and Mr. F. B. Rice at their bachelor quarters on Adams street.

Next Sunday's Speaker.

M. R. Deming, of Boston, has been secured to address the men's mass meeting at Hancock hall next Sunday afternoon. Mr. Deming was for many years general secretary of the Boston Y. M. C. A., the present building having been erected during his administration. More recently he was in charge of the work of the Bowdoin Square Tabernacle. At present he is organizing the new Union Rescue Mission work in Boston, which promises to be the most far reaching in its scope of any work of the kind ever undertaken in Massachusetts. It is similar to the work of the Florence Crittenton Homes, but with many new features, and has been planned by Mr. Crittenton.

County Estimates Hearing.

The hearing before the Committee on County Estimates of the Legislature advertised for Tuesday did not materialize. At the advertised time a number of gentlemen were present but only one of the committee put in an appearance. After waiting an hour or more it was announced that the hearing would be held at a later date.

CURRENT COMMENT.

It is becoming more apparent every day that the successful bank robber is the one who draws a salary from the institution. —Chicago Post.

The polling of the legislature on presidential candidates has begun. It tickles the vanity of the legislators, but it doesn't settle the question.—Boston Herald.

If aldermanic votes are really marketable, isn't it about time to inaugurate a system of advertising for bids, so that all can have a fair chance?—Chicago Post.

A bank clerk has been appointed court examiner of stage plays in London. The next thing will be to make a stage villain president of the Bank of England.—New York Recorder.

New York may furnish the ship, but with a Maine and Massachusetts crew New England will have a pretty large share after all in this year's cup defending.—Boston Journal.

It is said that the supreme court's decision on the income tax may be expected by summer time. It will thus be promptly announced after everybody has paid the tax.—Boston Globe.

The movement to establish cooking schools for the poor in New York must be founded on a misapprehension. Experience around here has shown that only the rich can afford to use cooking school recipes.—Boston Globe.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

WHY ADVERTISE?

BECAUSE IT PAYS!

SOMEBODY BLUNDERED.

BANGOR, April 3.—Maine Central train No. 93, which left Bangor at 6:45 o'clock yesterday morning, carrying local passengers to Oldtown, and Bangor and Aroostook railroad through passengers for Houlton and Caribou, crashed into the night express from St. John, N. B., which was 90 minutes late. The collision occurred on a down grade, three miles above this city.

At it happened, both trains were running slowly at the time of the collision. The three engineers and the three firemen jumped, and all escaped with bruises, except James Ward of Bangor, fireman of the express, who was caught beneath the debris of a postal car which shot out past his engine, and was instantly killed. Baggage Master Eben Shaw jumped and was severely hurt.

Caleb F. Palmer and Fred S. Woodbury of Bangor, postal clerks, were buried in the wreckage, and the bunters between which they were caught were scarcely more than a foot apart. They were badly bruised, and were rescued with difficulty, but no bones were broken.

Henry A. Appleton of Bangor jumped from the train when the crash came, and suffered a compound fracture of the leg above the ankle, the bone protruding several inches through the flesh. No other passengers were much hurt. The three engines were telescoped and crushed, a postal car and a baggage car were smashed into splinters, and several other cars were damaged. The accident was caused by a misunderstanding of instructions.

Damaging Evidence Against Adam.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., April 3.—Damaging testimony against Adam Arnold, on trial for murdering his son, was related by Effie Mead, the fiancee of the murdered man. She testified that she heard the struggle and saw Arnold with his hand gripping his son's throat. She swore that Arnold had threatened to shoot her if she told what had taken place. On hearing the testimony Arnold became terribly enraged and was restrained with difficulty. The witness was so unnerved that the court took an adjournment.

Another Clew Exploded.

BALTIMORE, April 3.—Roberta Curtis, who was mentioned as possibly the person who was murdered in New York on Sunday last, lives at 2012 North Culvert street, in this city. She is unable to account for the report that the body of the murdered woman had been identified as hers. She has never been in New York, but she says that a half-brother named Webster Harckhum lives there. It is possible that he may have assumed the name of Curtis and that his wife was the victim of the assassin.

Steamer Ethelred's Adventure.

KINGSTON, Jam., April 3.—The British steamer Ethelred, while on her way from Boston to Port Antonio, Jam., and when off Cape Maysi, Cuba, was fired upon by a Spanish gunboat. The Ethelred stopped, and was boarded and examined by officers of the gunboat, after which she proceeded on her voyage. The Ethelred takes the same course through the Windward passage as that taken by the Allianca, and was stopped near the spot where the American steamer was fired upon.

New Yorkers Reported Drowned.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 3.—Reports from Palm Beach, to the effect that the cruising sloop Robinson Crusoe has been wrecked in Biscagne bay, and all hands drowned, were received yesterday. Among the drowned are William Ziegler and John G. Wells of New York, both prominent, the former being interested in the manufacture of baking powder. The sloop left Palm Beach 11 days ago, under charter to Ziegler and Wells for a cruise among the keys.

Absconder's Extradition Ordered.

BUENOS AYRES, April 3. — A federal judge has ordered the government to deliver up Japez Spencer Balfour, whose extradition Great Britain has long been trying to obtain. He will be taken to London to answer the charges made against him in connection with the collapse of the Liberator Building society, the failure of which ruined thousands of persons. At the time of his flight from England Balfour was a member of parliament.

Powderly Sues For Services.

PHILADELPHIA, Aprtl 3. — General Master Workman Sovereign, T. V. Powderly and a number of other prominent members of the Knights of Labor arrived in town yesterday and held a conference. The meeting was to discuss a series of suits to be begun in the common pleas court of this city. Of these the most important is Powderly's suit against the organization to recover $4500 alleged to be due him for services.

Thought to Be a Murder Case.

ELKHART, Ind., April 3.—Some unexpected developments have come about relative to the finding of the burned body of Wilson Koch, a prominent farmer, in a field near this city. He was supposed to have committed suicide. The coroner's investigation showed that there were no bullet wounds on Koch's person. Koch's wife and a man named Mosher are missing, and it is supposed they have left for parts unknown.

Shot by a Careless Boy.

ATLANTIC CITY, April 3. — John E. Faunce, ex-speaker of the Pennsylvania house of representatives, was shot accidentally yesterday by a boy who was shooting at birds, while riding from Camden to Atlantic City. The shooting occurred at West Collingswood. Mr. Faunce was sitting by a window and the charge entered his neck below the base of the brain. While the wound is painful it is not dangerous.

Todd Will Contest Election.

DETROIT, April 3.—The later returns from the Third congressional district show that Alfred Milnes (Rep.) has a plurality over A. M. Todd of about 1300. Mr. Todd says he will contest the election on the ground that the anti-fusion law is a violation of the constitution of the United States.

An Illinois Voting Decision.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 3.—The supreme court of Illinois has handed down an opinion in the case of Sanner vs. Patton, in which the court holds that a voter has a legal right to write the name of candidates upon a ballot and such ballot must be counted.

GRESHAM'S BLUE PENCIL.

He Uses It to Good Effect on a Long Diplomatic Dispatch.

Secretary Gresham has never had any experience in journalism, but the officials of the state department say he would make a good editor. At any rate, he is an adept in the use of a big blue pencil. One of the secretary's assistants prides himself on his great ability as a writer of dispatches. He has been turning out these missives for various secretaries of state for 15 or 20 years and has developed remarkable facility in the use of those high sounding phrases and rolling adjectives of which the experts in diplomacy are so fond. It being necessary a few days ago to prepare a letter to one of our foreign ministers, technically called a dispatch in the state department, although it is sent out by mail, this official was assigned to the task. He labored at it three days, taking the job home with him and sitting up nights with it. He erased and interlined, copied and erased and copied again until he felt quite sure he had attained absolute perfection. He was so proud of the result that he showed it all around the department as a sample of the high art of dispatch writing. The document covered 24 of the broad blue pages which have been used from time immemorial for the correspondence of the state department. It was with a proud, confident air that the assistant carried his 24 pages to Secretary Gresham.

"I think you will be pleased with this," said the assistant modestly. "I have no doubt of it," replied the secretary. "I will take it up in an hour or two and look it over." The secretary did so, and when the great dispatch was sent back to its author 22½ of its pages were all covered with the marks of Secretary Gresham's big blue pencil. But the artist in dispatch writing had been too long in the field of diplomacy to be squelched or cast down by a single incident of this nature. "That's the way I always write dispatches," he explained, "so that whole paragraphs can be taken out of them without impairing their utility."—Chicago Times-Herald.

A PECULIAR CASE.

A Los Angeles Man Loses His Sight Under Strange Circumstances.

S. G. Miller, the secretary of the Los Angeles board of fire underwriters, felt a sudden pain back of his eyes the other day.

He pushed with both hands on his eyeballs to ease the frightful pain, and blood began to ooze from his eyelids, and then the eyeballs were suddenly protruded to the farthest limits of the muscles and nerves holding them, presenting an awful appearance.

When found, he was perfectly rigid, the eyes sticking out of their sockets an inch or more, and he was uttering the most heartrending cries.

The case has puzzled the doctors greatly, a number of theories being advanced, but none so far has been accepted as proved.

A fracture of some blood vessel back of the eyes is probably the cause, but how this was brought about or why it should have occurred simultaneously in each eye cavity is unexplained.

The eyes themselves evidently lost all life at once, for not only was the sight completely lost, but the eyeballs rapidly showed signs of degeneration, and it became necessary to remove them.—Washington Star.

Ancient Music.

Some fine, rich, old and crusty music will be given at Athens shortly. It has been discovered on marbles of antiquity and inclined, on touching, to disappear into crumbs, but such has been the carefully gentle handling of M. Homille, the director of the French school at Athens, that he has been able to entirely restore the tablet and likewise to rewrite the prayer to Apollo, which was engraved on it. The sculptor did a further service to our present days by engraving on another stone the music entitled the "Pæan," the famous warsong of the Greeks. The music is being studied by an able Greek orchestra, under the supervision and instruction of half a dozen savants, and will be shortly produced in Athens.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Superstition Dying Out Slowly.

At the famous town of Clonmel, in Ireland, a woman has been burned to death by her husband, who thought she was a witch. It appears to have been only a sporadic case of superstition, however, as the witch doctor narrowly escaped lynching by his neighbors. The victim was suffering from bronchitis, and the probabilities are that the murderer was insane. The days when rational people could believe in witchcraft are gone forever.—Buffalo Express.

Rev. Sam Jones on Colonel Ingersoll.

"His power to attract lies in his ability to shock. He is the devil's dynamo," is the startling characterization which the Rev. Sam Jones gives of Ingersoll. Mr. Jones was always up to date in his similes and believes that these, like almost every power nowadays, should be derived from electricity. —Boston Journal.

Be What Thou Art.

To be what thou wouldst truly be,
Be bravely, truly, what thou art.
The acorn houses the huge tree
And patient, silent, bears its part
And bides the miracle of time.
For miracle, and more sublime
It is than all that has been writ
To see the great oak grow from it.
But thus the soul grows, grows the heart—
To be what thou wouldst truly be.
Be truly what thou art.

To be what thou wouldst truly be,
Be true. God's finger sets each seed,
Or when or where we may not see.
But God shall nourish to its need
Each one, if but it dares be true
To do what it is set to do.
Thy proud soul's heraldry! 'Tis writ
In every gentle action. It
Can never be contested. Time
Dates thy brave soul's ancestral book
From thy first deed sublime.
—Joaquin Miller.

THE BOUNDARY DISPUTE

Bright Prospects of Peace Between Mexico and Her Neighbor.

Terms to Be Settled Upon by Arbitration.

Much Satisfaction Felt Over the Affair by the Countries Interested.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 3.—President Diaz has formally signed the official document which prevents the threatened open rupture between the two countries.

From unofficial advices, the general terms of the agreement by which war was averted are substantially known. Mexico's demands were in the form of an ultimatum sent by Secretary Mariscal on Nov. 27, 1894, embracing the following points:

Mexico asks satisfaction for injuries received by the invasion of her territory and for the vexations which foreigners and Mexicans cutting wood in the forests of Agua Azul, Egipto, San Nicholas and San Pedro, and the Mexican residents of Ayutla, have been the object.

Mexico also demands a pecuniary indemnity for the damage sustained.

Mexico also demands indemnity for the expense of the mobilization of her forces, and of situating authorities and employes in suitable places for public security on the frontier.

Mexico asks that the labors of the boundary commission, in accordance with the treaty of 1882, be speedily concluded, said treaty not being open to discussion.

Basis of Settlement.

It is understood that $2,000,000 was the amount of the indemnity demanded by Mexico. Also that she insisted on Guatemala's dismissing her surveyor general, who had taken part in locating the boundary line.

On Jan. 12, Guatemala answered the ultimatum. It was pacific in tone, but did not concede Mexico's right to the territory designated in the ultimatum, nor the right of a fixed cash indemnity. The final negotiations are a compromise between the ultimatum and the reply. It is believed that Mexico has agreed to arbitrate the amount of cash indemnity instead of exacting the $2,000,000 first claimed.

Senor Romero, the Mexican minister, has been kept advised of the negotiations, but neither he nor Senor Arriaga, the Guatemalan minister, are yet in a position to make public the exact terms on which war was averted. President Diaz has announced that the terms would be communicated to congress later.

Examining Baltimore's Tunnel.

BALTIMORE, April 3.—A delegation of Massachusetts legislators arrived in town yesterday for the purpose of investigating the car fender system of Baltimore. The delegation spent some time in examining the Belt Line tunnel, and were especially interested in the electrical features. There is pending in the Massachusetts legislature now a bill to give Boston a subway system of rapid transit, and it was in this connection that they made their visit to the Belt tunnel.

Decision Watched With Interest.

NEW YORK, April 3.—A demurrer was argued before Judge Benedict in the United States circuit court today, in the case of the United States against James L. Hand, Jack St. Leonard, alias Charles Wellman, Charles F. Taylor and George W. Tenny, indicted for forging endorsements on pension checks. The decision of the demurrer involves the possible invalidation of many millions of dollars of checks for pensions drawn upon the United States treasury.

A Victory For Addicks.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Judge Beekman, in the supreme court yesterday, handed down a decision denying the application of George A. Smith to serve an amended complaint to the suit that he has brought to restrain the Mercantile Trust company from voting several millions of dollars' worth of stock of the Bay State Gas company, and other companies which are controlled by J. Edward Addicks of Delaware.

Sugar Magnates Anxious For Trial.

WASHINGTON, April 3. — Counsel for Havemeyer & Searles have asked Judge Cole to set an early date for the trial of their clients, indicted for refusing to testify before the sugar investigation committee. Judge Cole would not fix a date without the consent of the district attorney. The latter says that he expects to call the first case the last of April or the first of May.

French Forces Active.

LONDON, April 3.—The Hovas, the ruling tribe of Madagascar, have expelled the French merchants from Morondava. The French squadron, co-operating with the land forces, has captured Marovoay, Lispisca, Mahambo and Belsiboka. The Hova commander-in-chief was killed. There were no casualities among the French forces.

Stagnation In the Sugar Trade.

NEW YORK, April 3.—The Havemeyer & Elder sugar refinery in Brooklyn has closed down temporarily. It is given out from reliable sources that the shutdown was due to overproduction and stagnation in the trade. It was also stated that other refineries in the company would follow suit for the same reasons.

President and Family at Woodley.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Mrs. Cleveland and children started for Woodley, the president's summer home, yesterday. President Cleveland followed them today. He will remain there until the time of his departure for Gray Gables, and will transact executive business there.

Havana's Governor Reports Tranquility.

MADRID, April 3.—The governor of Havana telegraphs that tranquility prevails in five of the provinces of Cuba. The insurrection is confined to the province of Santiago, where the rebels have retired to the mountains and are affecting re-enforcements.

Will Be on Deck Shortly.

YOKOHAMA, April 3. — Advices from Shimonoseki show that Li Hung Chang's wound in the face is healing well, and it is expected that he will be in the enjoyment of complete health in a few days, when he will again attend the peace conference.

Cutlery Imports Increasing.

SHEFFIELD, April 3.—The value of the exports of cutlery from this place to the United States during the last quarter is £28,678, against £14,158 for the corresponding quarter in 1894.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

ELECTRIC RAILROAD.

New England Proposes to Run a Long One Into Canada.

New Englanders propose to get out of electricity all the good there is in it as a motive power. There are numerous waterfalls among their hills and mountains, the force of which they propose to utilize in generating power to run a railway from Haverhill, Mass., through to Quebec, a distance of nearly 300 miles. If built, this road will be the most picturesque in the world. The proposed road will traverse the whole of the White mountain region of New Hampshire, and after leaving it will strike into the wild and picturesque ruggedness of the province of Quebec. Of the entire length of the road, 180 miles will be on the United States side of the interational boundary line, the remaining 100 miles being under the jurisdiction of the Canadians.

Little freight could be expected to pass over such a road, and the bulk of the passenger traffic would be confined to the summer months. Indeed it is doubtful if such a road could be operated at all during the winter season. Possibly somebody connected with the enterprise may prove sufficiently ingenious to provide some kind of runner which could be exchanged for wheels and which could be operated by electricity, so that the cars could glide over the surface of the snow. It is said, though, that the road could be built and operated so inexpensively that a good summer travel would be sufficient to pay satisfactory returns on the outlay. The proposal to construct such a road is likely to arouse a good deal of interest.—Chicago Post.

ORIGINAL LOVEMAKING.

The story of how Harry Wack, the newspaper man, won Miss Yaw, the singer, is delightfully new. Mr. Wack tells it himself. Mr. Wack did not follow the conventional paths in his love-making. He struck out after an original method of his own. Mr. Wack met Miss Yaw. He liked her voice, her personality, her splendid mind. She asked him to write some articles on psychology and similar subjects. He wrote them. She liked them so well that she proposed that they exchange 100 essays on interesting topics. They did it. About the time the essays were finished—or before—they were engaged. I should like to read those essays seriatim. They would tell the story. I opine that the first ones dealt with the subjects in hand in a strictly scientific fashion. Later on they commenced to take on the bright tinge of love. I fancy I can see Wack writing essay No. 53 with a tender light in his eye. There was a message in every line. Wack didn't care about the prosy subject he was treating. He was thinking of the bright eyes for which the essay was intended. Essays 98, 99 and 100 must have been complete love stories in themselves.

Here's to Wack and his essays. He is one of the brightest young men in literature, and it can be said of him that he has written the most powerful essays of the age.—Atlanta Constitution.

Tom Reed a Linguist.

If by any lucky stroke of fortune Tom Reed should happen to become president of the United States, he will probably be the first accomplished linguist to occupy that office. Mr. Reed is passionately fond of the study of languages. Some years ago he took up French, and during the Fifty-first congress, while acting as czar over the house of representatives and passing through parliamentary storms of cyclonic severity, found time three days a week to go to a school of languages for his lesson in French. Later he took up Italian and is now able to converse fluently in that language. At the present time he is studying Spanish, and if the movement to annex Cuba to the United States should succeed during Mr. Reed's hoped for regime he will have in his command of this tongue a convenient accomplishment.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Record of Alexander Hamilton's Death.

In the records of the health department of New York, under date of July 11, 1804, is the original entry of the death of Alexander Hamilton, as follows: "Name, Alexander Hamilton; place of nativity, Santa Cruz, W. I.; disease, casualty; cemetery, Trinity church; sexton, Thomas Collister."

HALE'S DEFALCATIONS.

Many of His Victims Will Lose Savings of a Lifetime.

His Peculiar Method of Doing Business.

The Burden of the Losses Must Fall Upon the Town.

FOXCROFT, Me., April 4.—The defalcation of Judge Elias J. Hale, the town treasurer, who shot himself last week, is, so far as investigation up to the present time shows, $122,708 22. This sum is claimed to be owed by the town on notes given by Hale in his official capacity as town treasurer.

His method seems to have been to hire money from the people ostensibly for the town's use. For this he would give notes, and in his returns to the town give credit for just so much as was legally used for town purposes. People regarded it as a safe investment, and since these loans were exempt from taxation, many were willing to invest in this way.

Hale cautioned them again telling anyone of the loans, and then quietly used the money, paying 4 per cent interest. They recorded a large amount each year which was met by new loans. These loans vary in amount from $50 to $12,000.

Many People Impoverished.

A curious circumstance is the fact that the sworn statement in the report at the last town meeting was to the effect that the total debt of the town was only $5724.25, while some of the prominent business men of the town knew at the time that they individually held notes for much larger sums. Some of the parties who held the notes are people of means, but in a great many cases these notes represent the entire savings of a lifetime.

It is claimed by some that the town is not liable for these notes because Hale was acting illegally, without bonds. Henry Hudson, Esq., of Guildford has been retained by the town, and the matter will probably go to the courts. This burden of nearly $125,000 falls upon the town, which contains but 3000 inhabitants, and it cannot fail to cause a great depression in business.

In any case the loans are so widely scattered that it will be a serious blow to the people. When the news of the defalcations were first made public after the funeral, business was practically suspended and the greatest excitement prevailed.

The town voted last March to cancel the entire debt, and a knowledge that the books would have to be surrendered doubtless led to the suicide.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 4.—The senate engrossed the bill to permit women who now vote on school committee to vote at the next state election on the question of woman suffrage. The house considered two bills concerning Boston's subway, one to repeal the law under which the subway is now being constructed and the other to amend the act of 1894. Mr. McCarthy's amendment that the whole matter be resubmitted to the voters of Boston at next state election, and that further work on the subway be discontinued pending the result of the vote, were ruled out of order by the speaker. Both bills were put over. The senate adopted the order for the investigation by the gas commissioners into the affairs of the Brookline Gas company. A substitute bill for the prevention of the false impersonation of voters was accepted by the senate.

Our National Hymn, "America."

BOSTON, April 4.—A grateful public yesterday engaged in presenting a fitting testimonial to Rev. Samuel E. Smith, the venerable autor of the national hymn, "America." It took the form of public exercises in Music hall, which began in the afternoon and continued during the evening. The reception in the afternoon was presided over by Governor Greenhalge, and among the speakers were ex-Governor Long, Commander Thayer of the Grand Army, Dr. Lorimer and others. Dr. Smith made an address, telling how he happened to write the national hymn. A feature of the exercises was the singing of "America" by a chorus of 200 children from the Boston public schools. Delegations of school children were present from various parts of the state. Another large audience was present last night.

Rhody's State Election.

PROVIDENCE, April 4.—Charles Warren Lippitt (Rep.) was elected governor by 10,600 plurality. The remainder of the Republican state ticket—Edward R. Allen for Lieutenant governor; Charles T. Bennett, secretary of state; Edward C. Dubois, attorney general; Samuel Clark, general treasurer—are elected by pluralities of about 10,000. The Republicans carried Providence, and their assemblymen will have pluralities ranging from 2600 to 3200. The Republicans elected their entire assembly ticket in the four cities of the state—Woonsocket, Pawtucket, Central Falls and Newport—by pluralities ranging from 250 to 600. The next assembly will include 32 Republican senators, 69 Republican representatives, 3 Democratic senators and 8 Democratic representatives.

Deceit Alleged.

CONCORD, N. H., April 4.—In the supreme court here yesterday there was begun the case of Vannever vs. Tallant. The plaintiff is Rev. John Vannevar, a wealthy Universalist clergyman, who recently resigned his pastorate at Canton, Mass., and removed to this city. The defendant is Hon. John G. Tallant, an ex-state senator, formerly of Concord, but now of Pembroke. Vannevar sues Tallant for $4000, alleging deceit on the part of defendant in the sale of a farm at East Concord.

Supreme Order of Pilgrim Fathers Meet.

BOSTON, April 4.—The supreme colony of the Pilgrim Fathers commenced an all-day session in this city yesterday. The reports show that 20 new colonies have been formed during the past year. The annual election resulted as follows: Supreme governor, Albion Briggs; supreme lieutenant governor, J. Scollay Taft of Keene; supreme secretary, James E. Shepard; supreme treasurer, Albert V. Bugbee of Lawrence, who was elected for his sixth term.

Will Have an Ecclesiastical Trial.

PROVIDENCE, April 4.—At the session of the southern New England Methodist conference yesterday, Presiding Elder Benton of the Rhode Island district preferred charges against Rev. J. A. Rood, pastor of the Olneyville Tabernacle. The charges stated that Mr. Rood had trouble with his wife last fall, refused to support her and was endeavoring to secure a divorce. A committee was appointed to arrange for an ecclesiastical trial of the case.

Labor Matters at Westerly.

WESTERLY, R. I., April 4.—The owners of the Bethel woolen mill have received a large order, in consequence of which the mill will start up on full time at once. The Rhode Island Granite Works, Carney & Calder and Hogg & Co., granite manufacturers, have settled with the striking pavers on a bill of prices the same as that of last year, and the strike against these firms has been declared off. The men in the other departments are still out.

Maine Central Wreck Investigation.

BANGOR, April 4.—The railroad commissioners of Maine made an official visit to the scene of the Maine Central wreck at Veazie yesterday. The testimony given by witnesses places the neglect in the train dispatcher's office at Portland, but upon just what official cannot be determined until the commissioners make their report. The board adjourned until Friday, when the hearing will be continued at Portland.

Man and Wife Arrested.

NORTH ADAMS, April 4.—Holly Andrews and his wife were arrested yesterday for the larceny of goods valued at $1000. Mrs. Andrews was easily secured, but it took a hot chase to capture the man. The officers finally took him, after having followed him for eight hours, during which time the fugitive was fired at 13 times without being injured. The couple were arraigned and pleaded not guilty, and were held to await a hearing.

Caused by Nervous Prostration.

NEW HAVEN, April 4.—Mrs. H. M. Todd, aged 50, who had been sick with nervous prostration, escaped from her house in a delirious state yesterday morning. She threw a waterproof on over her nightdress and went to the cemetery where her daughter was buried. The cemetery was closed and she wandered to the bank of the Quinnipeac river, fell in and was drowned. Her body was recovered.

Failed to Redeem the Bond.

AMESBURY, Mass., April 4.—The promised payment of the $900 Newton, N. H., bogus bond, held by the Powow River National bank here, was not made yesterday, and the bank officials are preparing to enforce their claim against the alleged forger of the bond, whom they claim is known to them, and who promised to reimburse the bank for the fraudulent paper.

Death of an Old Abolitionist.

DANIELSONVILLE, Conn., April 4.—Henry Hammond, the abolitionist, died here yesterday, aged 81 years. He was born in Pomfret in 1814. He was instrumental in forming the first anti-slavery society in the state, and in 1847 was associated with Hon. Salmon P. Smith of New York and others in forming the memorable Buffalo platform.

Several Seriously Injured.

SPRINGFIELD, April 4.—An elevator containing seven passengers fell 20 feet in a shaft in a store of the Metropolitan Insurance company yesterday. The machine was wrecked and five persons were injured, three seriously, one perhaps fatally. The cause of the accident was the bursting of the drum of the hoisting gear in the basement.

Methodist Episcopalians In Session.

STAMFORD, Conn., April 4.—Professor Bowne of Boston university delivered the principal address yesterday at the meeting of the New York east conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, in session here. Church extension, Freedmen's Aid and the Southern Educational societies occupied the time in the evening.

Suspension of a Shoe Factory.

CONCORD, N. H., April 4.—All the employes of General Howard L. Porter's shoe factory have received notice that their services will be needed no longer. Beyond the finishing of some nearly completed stock, work is practically stopped at the establishment. No reason for the suspension is given.

Famous Guardianship Case Settled.

HAVERHILL, April 4.—A settlement of the famous Hale guardianship case was effected out of court yesterday, the defense making no effort to prevent the removal of the present guardian, Mrs. Harry H. Hale. Mr. Richard Harriman of this city was appointed her successor.

Against the Butler Estate.

PITTSFIELD, April 4.—One of the heaviest suits ever instituted in this country has been entered by Warner & Wright of this city, attorneys for Mrs. Sarah McDowell of North Adams, against the estate of the late Benjamin F. Butler, the amount involved being over $100,000.

An Alleged Embezzler Arrested.

BOSTON, April 4.—Albion Johnson, aged 29 years, was arrested yesterday for the alleged embezzlement of $1500 from the Automatic Car Refrigerating company of this city. Johnson was formerly manager and treasurer of the company.

Judgment by Default.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Russell Sage got a judgment by default yesterday for $84,866.19 against the executors of the estate of Henry S. Ives. The action arose out of transactions in stock and dealings in securities. No one appeared for the estate of Ives.

Put Back to Mare Island.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The U. S. S. Monterey has put back to Mare island. It is supposed that her steering gears has developed some imperfections.

A LOSS TO SOCIETY.

Mrs. Paran Stevens Succumbs to the Dread Destroyer.

Her Sickness Was of But Short Duration.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Mrs. Paran Stevens, the well-known society leader, died at her home here yesterday. Her death was caused by pneumonia, complicated with heart disease.

It was thought that Mrs. Stevens' condition was improving until this morning, when it was seen that she was sinking. Mrs. Stevens' mind has wandered ever since she was taken sick last Saturday evening, but it was at all times possible to fix her attention. For some time before her death she lay partly unconscious.

MRS. PARAN STEVENS.

Mrs. Stevens was one of the large family of Judge Reed, a prominent jurist of Massachusetts. She was born in Lowell a little more than 61 years ago. While she was only a girl she met Paran Stevens, a wealthy hotel man of this city, to whom she was married a year later. It was in Boston, however, where Mrs. Stevens first began her social life, in which she later achieved such a success. Paran Stevens owned the Tremont House in that city, and it was in that house that Mrs. Stevens began to entertain so lavishly; it was here that she first met all of Boston's society people.

Managed Her Property Conservatively.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevens later took up their residence in this city, and it was here that Mr. Stevens died 20 years ago, leaving an estate valued at almost $1,000,000. Included in this estate was the Victoria hotel, which failed a few days ago, a share in the Fifth Avenue hotel, the residence and business house at 230 and 228 Fifth avenue, and considerable hotel property in Boston. To this property Mrs. Stevens, assisted by her manager, Mr. Rankin, gave her undivided attention.

Two children were born to the couple, Henry Stevens, who died 12 years ago, and Mary Fisk Stevens, who is the wife of Sir Arthur Henry Paget of London. The Pagets have three children. These children, with Lady Paget, will be the direct heirs of Mrs. Stevens.

For a number of years preceding her death Mrs. Stevens spent a portion of each year with her daughter in London, but usually summered at Newport, where she first met Ward McAllister, with whom she was on such friendly terms until the time of his death.

Claims It Was Accidental.

OKLAHOMA CITY, O. T., April 4.—Harry St. John, son of ex-Governor St. John, of Kansas, and a member of the last Oklahoma legislature, shot and killed his wife yesterday at his home, two miles west of this city. He had become possessed of a letter addressed to her and demanded to know the writer, threatening to kill her if she did not disclose the author. She refused, and as he claims, the gun was discharged accidentally, shooting her through the breast. She died without uttering a word.

Dishonest Cashier Foiled.

MADISON, Wis., April 4.—John B. Koesting, ex-cashier of the South Side Savings bank, Milwaukee, will have to go to prison. He was convicted of receiving deposits after the bank was insolvent, and was sentenced to five years. He took his case to the state supreme court on a writ of habeas corpus, based on a claim that the law under which he was convicted was unconstitutional. The court yesterday handed down a decision declaring the law valid.

No Truth In the Matter.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The Spanish legation does not credit the report that the Spanish admiralty office has congratulated Lieut. Ybarra upon his course in firing upon the American steamer Alliance. The report is credited to revolutionary sources. The Spanish officials here have no information as to the reported firing of a Spanish cruiser upon a British steamer.

Union Club Blamed.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Chairman Lauterbach of the Republican county central committee has issued a statement in reply to the appeal given out by Cornelius N. Bliss and 17 other members of the Union League club. Mr. Lauterbach says that the present trouble was caused by the opposition of the Union League club to the nomination of Levi P. Morton for governor of New York.

Too Much For Dunn.

CONEY ISLAND, April 4.—Joe Walcott was given a decision over Mick Dunn, the Australian, after eight rounds of hard fighting before the Seaside Athletic club. The police stopped the bout. The men were matched for 25 rounds at 152 pounds.

Carpets.

By reason of recent tariff changes, the conditions of trade are such that prices are unusually low, whether on foreign or domestic goods — that's one important point.

Another consideration of consequence is that in buying of us you are enabled to choose from the best possible assortment of colors and styles — the largest and freshest.

Columbia Sterling Bicycles.

In buying a bicycle, as in buying a piano or anything else requiring supreme skill to produce highest and most enduring results, remember that the influence of the mass of makers and agents is exerted against the leading article of its kind, and that inducements other than the intrinsic merit of goods, are freely used to force the sale of a vastly inferior article.

Columbias are the finest example of light and high grade bicycle construction ever put out for the general use of the great riding public. The celebrated nickel steel which has developed such remarkable qualities under the auspices of the United States and other governments, for use in armor, guns and projectiles when the very extreme of violent physical tests must be sustained, is used exclusively in Columbia manufacture this year, and for combined lightness, strength and beauty, places the Columbia Bicycles beyond all reach of comparison for excellence.

The best bicycle in the world with no exception. Full line of Columbias at our store. Instruction in riding and free use of Columbia Riding School to our patrons.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THAT IS a fine point which Auditor Hall has raised concerning that fire department horse which died soon after entering the service. An appropriation was made for a horse for Hose 4, supposing a permanent man was to be employed, but it was decided not to employ a permanent man. Man or no man, the chief engineer purchased a horse and located him at the central fire station. He never, probably, saw the inside of the Quincy Point hose house, and never drew the wagon to a fire. An investigation now would prove that the appropriation was unnecessary, for Hose 4 has a horse although the one bought died. It seems that there were extra ones at the central fire station and one of these is now located at Quincy Point.

THE DEBT limit law was passed to check expenditures in just such cities as Boston, but Boston is allowed to go outside for this, that and the other. It keeps the tax rate of "the hub" down but it is accumulating a large debt which "greater Boston" will be called upon later to pay. The debt limit law is responsible for the large debt of Quincy, as it limited the tax levy during the first years of the city so that it could not pay current expenses. Now, Boston is to have authority to go outside its debt limit for schoolhouses. For the next two years, $500,000 annually; for the succeeding three years thereafter, $400,000 annually. This makes $2,200,000 in all, the amount recommended by the Finance Commission, but more than Mayor Curtis asked for.

SHED AND QUARRIES.

Encouraging News of the Granite Industry of This City.

[From the Producer and Builder.]

Berry Brothers report an increase in orders and state that their quarry is now in excellent condition.

Elcock & Sons are engaged in cutting a polished granite ball five feet in diameter. Completed this is to be set upon two bases.

Badger Brothers have secured the contract for equiping the plant of the Milford Granite Company, at Milford, N. H., with boiler, engine, polishing machines and derrick cars.

The Merry Mount Granite Company are now employing twenty-six yard cutters and a force of twenty at their quarry. This concern has recently opened a new section of their quarry which is showing good results.

F. J. Fuller is president of the new Bocabec Granite company, which will operate the Bocabec, New Brunswick, quarry.

William Turner recently received an order for a column die memorial with bottom base seven feet square and die two and one-half by three feet and nine inches. The column is to be polished with carved caps, showing a design of palm leaves in relief. The plinth is also carved and polished.

Henry C. Adrian, formerly manager of the Boston office of Charles Clements, recently visited Quincy. It is said that he intends engaging in business here if a suitable location can be obtained.

Joss Brothers are engaged upon a fine shaft monument of Swedish granite. The bottom base is five feet square and the completed memorial will stand twenty feet high. This firm also have the contract for a column die monument with a bottom base five feet and three inches by one foot and four inches, and plinth and urn carved in relief. They now have on hand orders for fifteen memorials, of various designs, which they have booked during the past three weeks.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

OBSERVED AT ATLANTIC.

America Day Celebrated by a Patriotic Programme.

The children of Atlantic were given a testimonial Wednesday evening by the Social club, at Music hall, in honor of the eightieth birthday of Samuel Francis Smith, D. D., the author of "America."

The programme consisted of patriotic airs by the Atlantic band, followed by invocation and address of welcome by Stephen O. Moxon.

Then followed the singing of an ode written for the occasion by Charles R. Safford, to the tune of "America."

The balance of the programme consisted of an address by Rev. J. H. Yeoman; solo, "The Star Spangled Banner," by Miss Susie Hall; address, Rev. Oliver M. Fisher; patriotic music by the Atlantic band; selection by a quartette composed of W. F. Cummings, F. Tilton, Charles W. Reed and W. H. Owen; reading, Miss Annie P. Hall; solo, Mr. W. H. Owen.

The entertainment closed with the singing of "America" by all present.

The affair was a complete success and was not only attended by the children of Atlantic but by the citizens in general.

WHATSOEVER TEN.

Successful Entertainment and Sale in Aid of Floating Hospital.

The Whatsoever Ten, King's Daughters of Wollaston, gave a most successful entertainment and sale in the vestry of the Congregational church, Wollaston, on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The money which was cleared at the sale was given to one of Boston's most worthy charities, the Floating Hospital.

The candy table was presided over by Miss Foster and Miss Howard; the fancy table by Miss Helen Foster, Miss Taylor, and Mrs. Charles S. Adams; the ice cream table by Mrs. E. S. Taylor, Mrs. A. E. Rhodes, Mrs. V. J. Emery, Miss Noyes, Miss Ela, Miss Kolb and Miss Jones; the apron table by Miss Robbins and Miss Dunham; and the "riddle of a penny" by Mrs. Pendleton. The chocolate was poured by Miss Prescott, Mrs. Walter A. Holbrook and Miss Kingman.

There was a very good entertainment consisting of music by the Wollaston orchestra; two well read selections by Miss Martin of the Emerson school of Oratory, and vocal solos by Miss Hastings and Mr. E. Walter Arnold. Mrs. Ralph J. Saxe had charge of the programme.

The "Whatsoever Ten" consists of Mrs. Edmund S. Taylor, Mrs. Geo. R. Badger, Mrs. Pendleton, Miss Taylor, Miss Howard, Miss Foster, Miss Helen Foster, Mrs. Albert E. Rhodes, Mrs. Ralph J. Saxe, Miss Prescott, Mrs. V. J. Emery, Mrs. Walter A. Holbrook, Miss Robbins, Miss Dunham, Mrs. Rufus B. Tobey, Miss Kingman, Miss Noyes, Miss Marden, Miss Ela, Miss Kolb, Miss Jones and Mrs. Chas. COMMISSIONERS' HEARING.

A hearing was opened at the Probate court room in Quincy this morning by the County Commissioners upon the petition of Mayor Porter in 1890, for the altering and widening of the bridge and approaches over the tracks of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., near the Atlantic depot.

The city was represented by Mayor Hodges, Commissioner Eaton, City Solicitor Blackmur, Councilmen Bryant and Rinn. Superintendent Weeks and John A. Duggan of the street railway, were present, also H. T. Whitman, civil engineer.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. having forgotten the date, were not present at the opening but Mr. Maxwell of the road arrived later.

City Solicitor Blackmur in opening said two purposes presented themselves: First, Is this one of the bridges which the railroad is obliged to maintain and keep in repair. Second, Is the bridge and approaches now in such a state as to require no further widening or repairs.

Continuing Mr. Blackmur said the first is eliminated by a hearing given by the County Commissioner in 1867. At that time upon a petition of the selectmen of Quincy, there was a hearing at which it was determined the railroad was liable to maintain said bridge and approaches in a safe condition for travel. The railroad did not carry out the decree of 1867.

The second question is what this hearing is now called for, and it was for the Commissioners to determine whether the bridge is of sufficent width to accommodate travel.

The width in the middle is now 30 feet with a space for teams of 27 feet in which is a street railway track outside of which is but 20 feet for travel.

At this point a recess was had and a special electric car taken to view the bridge in question.

After viewing the bridge the hearing was begun.

Mayor Hodges, Commissioner Eaton, Councilmen Bryant and Rinn, Herbert T. Whitman and John A. Duggan were examined at length.

They all testified to the dangerous condition of the bridge and approaches, and of the necessity of its being widened to the full width of the street, also to the amount of travel over the bridge.

At 12 30, the hearing was adjourned until Tuesday, April 23, at 10 30, at Dedham.

A full report of the testimony will be given in Friday's LEDGER.

April Magazines.

The April Lippincott's opens with a story that carries us back to the days of the Revolution, when piracy was not uncommon, and outlines with a rapidly moving succession of incidents an episode in the seafaring life of "Alain of Halfdene." A most interesting paper to those who wish to solve the riddle of "Cheap Living in Paris" is Mr. Alvan F. Sanborn's story of what can be purchased at the restuarant for 60 cents per day. A striking portrait of Melba forms the frontispiece of the number, and is accompanied by a dissertation on the "Grand Opera" by the talented artist,

Another excellent number of the New England Magazine has just come from the press, full of interesting material for its April readers. It opens with Clara Erskine Clement's "Later Religious Painting in America," a companion to the "Early Religious Painting," by the same author, in the December New England.

To all those interested in studying the lives of favorite actors, an article by William E. Bryant on "Joseph Jefferson at Home" will especially appeal, as the author is a personal friend of the great actor and knows whereof he speaks.

A valuable paper on the Indian Industrial School at Carlisle, by O. B. Super, is accompanied by portraits.

—Nearly a year ago many of the most influential sugar planters of Louisiana allied themselves with the republican party. They worked for and voted with with that party in the last congressional elections, and now they are preparing to convert Louisiana to that party. They have subscribed $50,000, which is to be increased to $150,000, to start a republican paper in New Orleans. The first issue of the paper is to appear about May 1. It is to be a daily morning paper.

—The pay train of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. disbursed $3,800 on the Nattasket branch Wednesday, which gives one an idea that a large amount of work is in progress there. This is a fact and there has been quite a transformation along the railroad.

—Salem had 944 births, 255 marriages and 647 deaths during 1894.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Military drill tonight.

A beautiful morning.

Miss E. F. Kimball has added cut flowers and potted plants at her store.

Mr. S. Arthur Pratt of North Weymouth has arrived home from Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Spear entertained a few friends at whist Wednesday evening.

The Clover whist club met with Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Packard Wednesday evening.

S. F. Willard has in his possession a copy of the Boston Transcript issued 61 years ago.

At the Granite City club rooms last evening, the whist prizes were taken by Fred L. Jones and Warren H. Rideout.

The Committee on Streets of the City Council were on a tour of inspection Wednesday afternoon. They went in a barge.

It looks now as though Hall place would be widened sometime as the old house on the corner of Willard and Hall place has been moved back.

The 80th birthday of Mrs. Milla Temple of Dorchester was observed Wednesday evening when a brilliant reception was given. Quincy people were present.

Miss Edna M. Hayden of Campello and Miss Emeline H. Bent of Milton, are spending their vacation with their aunt, Mrs. John W. Hersey of Coddington street.

Mr. H. E. Crane, of the firm of F. H. Crane & Sons of this city, was a passenger on the British steamer Ethelred which was fired upon by the Spanish gunboat when off Cape Maysi, Cuba.

The cars on the West End street railway commenced running over the new extension to the end of the Quincy & Boston line Wednesday and the cars of the two lines meet at every trip.

There was no opposition at Weymouth Tuesday to granting the Quincy & Boston street railway the location from Commercial square to Hingham, but the Braintree & Weymouth road wished the right to run cars over the tracks.

About seventy-five ladies attended the cooking lecture by Mrs. Wade Wednesday afternoon in the chapel of the First church. All of the ladies who attended expressed themselves as very much pleased with the lecture.

Tickets for Esther, the Beautiful Queen, may be had at Hearn's drug store. As only the seating capacity of Faxon hall will be sold, intending purchasers will do well to secure them while they are to be had, for April 17th and 18th.

The last meeting of the Compass Whist club was held Tuesday evening with Mrs. J. E. Curtin. First prizes were awarded Mrs. Charles Dorman and Mr. Elijah G. Hall, and second prizes to Mrs. Alfred Jelenick and Mr. Charles R. Safford.

Although the post office at West Quincy is only a branch of the Quincy office a considerable amount of business is done there, as will be seen by the following figures: The amount of money order business during the month of March was $895 47 and the amount for the year ending April 1, 1895, was $5,907.83, and the stamp business averages $150 per month.

The entertainment in the chapel of the Congregational church this evening will be given entirely by young ladies, but the proceeds will be used for the benefit of the young men of the city, as the King's Daughters have decided to give the entertainment for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. The entertainment will consist of the famous military drill by the King's Daughters, who are appropriately uniformed and carry bona fide guns, readings by Miss Katharine O. Hogan, and singing by Miss Hattie Woodbury Clarke and Miss Nellie Louise Woodbury. The last three are Boston young ladies, who have been heard before in Quincy, always pleasing their audiences.

TODAY'S COURT.

The liquors seized from John J. Quinlin of Weymouth were forfeited.

FREEDOM FROM FRECKLES,

and from all such disfigurements and blemishes, follows the use of the Carlsbad Sprudel Salt. It clears and freshens the skin wonderfully—takes away that dull and mottled look that comes from stomach derangements. Even in chronic and stubborn cases of skin disorders, like eczema, it is the prescribed remedy.

The blood, the liver, the stomach, the kidneys—all are acted upon powerfully, but naturally, by the Carlsbad Sprudel Salt. You get the same benefit, the same cure, the same feeling of lightness and clearness all through your system, as if you were at Carlsbad itself.

Insist upon the genuine imported, natural Carlsbad Sprudel Salt, which is evaporated from the Sprudel Spring at Carlsbad, and bears the seal of the city and the signature of "EISNER & MENDELSON CO., Sole Agents, New York," on every bottle.

Parlor Furniture.

An attractive parlor or sitting room is essential today in every well governed home. The expense need not mean extravagance; on the contrary, the latest suggestions of luxury, harmony, comfort and refinement, may be found at our store, at prices that are wonderfully low.

Silk Brocatelles are unusually popular this spring, and we have some ideal shades in this attractive fabric. A beautiful overstuffed, silk brocatelle parlor set we are selling for $45.00. We have many sets higher in price as well as others lower. On the whole you will do well to inspect our line and merit by our wonderfully low prices, which cannot be equaled by any retail store in the state.

A COWARDLY MURDER.

Major Hamilton Shot In the Back by a Companion.

Kentucky the Scene of the Tragedy.

The Murderer Narrowly Escaped Lynching From a Mob.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 4.—The sixth assassination of a prominent man to occur in Kentucky during the past three and a half months, took place yesterday at Reedyville, Butler county, when Samuel Spencer shot and killed Major Andrew J. Hamilton, a gallant union soldier. Major Hamilton was nearly 60 years old, and had been an honored citizen of Butler county nearly all his life.

During the past few years he has become addicted to drink, and Tuesday night he met Spencer and a man named Alfred Belcher. They went to a saloon on the outskirts of the town and spent several hours there drinking and playing cards.

About 1 o'clock next morning Hamilton started home, the two men leaving the saloon with him. They engaged in a quarrel, Hamilton being considerably under the influence of liquor.

While he was talking to Belcher, Spencer walked up behind him, and with a big pistol shot him in the back of the head. The old soldier who had fought all through the war of the rebellion fell forward on his face, a corpse.

The two men ran and secreted themselves in a barn.

Mike McGinness, the saloon keeper at the place they had last stopped, while going home about an hour after the major had left, discovered his lifeless body in the mud.

Saved From an Infuriated Mob.

Suspecting that Spencer and Belcher had committed the crime, he notified Marshal Green, who arrested both men about daybreak. They were lodged in jail, and the officers had great difficulty in preventing them from being lynched; but by promising that they should be promptly tried, the mob was persuaded to allow the law to take its course.

At first both men declared they were innocent of the killing of Hamilton, but Belcher finally broke down and told how Spencer had assassinated the old man while his back was turned.

Major Hamilton belonged to the Twelfth Kentucky cavalry and was noted for deeds of daring while fighting for the Union cause. He was captured by the Confederates and confined for months in the famous Libby prison.

Being of an intrepid and unconquerable nature, he conceived the idea of tunneling out of that terrible abode of death and disease. He swore 150 picked men to secrecy, and they worked for months in excavating the famous tunnel under the canal by which 104 of them escaped. This occurred in 1864, and although his time was out for which he enlisted, he continued to serve his country until Lee surrendered at Appomattox.

From the fact that Spencer lives in Warren county and is a comparative stranger to the people of Reedyville, the indignation against him is unusually strong.

A guard was placed in the jail last night, the officers fearing the mob would change its mind and attempt to lynch him before morning.

May Prove an International Affair.

EL PASO, Tex., April 4.—F. P. Thresher of Cambridge, Mass., with his family, arrived here yesterday from Aguas Calientes, Mex., where they have served a term in jail. Mr. Thresher is indignant at his treatment and proposes to make this matter one of international investigation. His story, which is said to be verified by a conductor of the Mexican Central road, is that he stopped at the Palace House, kept by George King. When he prepared to leave, it is alleged, King charged him double the rate agreed upon. The guest refused to pay. King had Thresher, his wife and three children put in jail, where they remained until Consul Furness at Guanajuato interfered.

Narrowly Escaped Bullet.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 4.—The United States minister to Turkey, Alexander W. Terrell, narrowly escaped being shot yesterday. A man, who was being pursued by the police, drew a revolver and fired several shots at his pursuers. Mr. Terrell was passing across the square in his carriage as the man fired and was in great danger of being hit. This caused the minister's cavass to jump from the carriage and seize the man who was firing. The latter tried to stab the cavass, but was overpowered and arrested.

Mystery No Longer.

NEW YORK, April 4.—The mystery of the murdered girl, whose mutilated remains were picked up in front of the New York Bank Note company's building Sunday morning is a mystery no longer. The negro, William Caesar, who was arrested yesterday, is the murderer. He has been under the strictest surveillance for more than two days, and the police are acquainted with every move he has made for six days past.

Narrowly Escaped Lynching.

STEELVILLE, Mo., April 4.—A. M. Green and his five sons narrowly escaped a mob gathered to lynch them. Green and his sons are charged with the murder of David Hildebrand in Crawford county. After the murder of Hildebrand the body was burned. The Greens were arrested and lodged in jail. Yesterday it was decided it was unsafe to let the prisoners remain longer here and they were taken to St. Louis.

Chicago Bank Robbed.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Frederick W. Griffin, assistant cashier of the Northwestern National bank, has been taken into custody at the instance of Bank Examiner John C. McKeon. A shortage of $50,000 was discovered in his accounts during the examination of the bank books made by McKeon last week. The cause of Griffin's downfall was unfortunate speculation in stocks. Griffin has confessed to taking the money.

Decision on Soldiers' Duties.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Assistant Secretary Reynolds of the interior department has overruled the decision of the last administration as to the line of duty of soldiers, holding that a soldier engaged in private business and not in the performance of those things which the law required of him as a military duty cannot be considered in the line of duty.

THE VENEZUELAN AFFAIR.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—There is reason to believe that the British government has given our ambassador, Mr. Bayard, to understand in response to his representations in the Venezuelan boundary matter, and his suggestion that it be submitted to arbitration, that it must persist in regarding the subject as one in which only Great Britain and Venezuela are concerned.

Of course the idea was set out very diplomatically and courteously, so as to avoid giving offense as far as possible, while still making it plain that the United States could not be regarded as having any proper interest in the matter. So, as it stands, the British government still insists upon its absolute title and right to occupy all of the territory to the eastward of the Schomberg line, while professing a willingness to submit to arbitration its claims to the lands lying west of that line.

This was the offer made to Venezuela years ago, and it has not been modified in any respect since, notwithstanding Mr. Bayard's efforts. It has been intimated that the United States might acquire a right to intervene in behalf of Venezuela by declaring a protectorate over that country with the assent of its people, and behind this suggestion is at least one of the great European powers, who would be glad to have its relation to the disturbed countries of South and Central America placed on a stable basis, so that it might look to some thoroughly responsible, highly civilized government to insure the permanence of trade and prevent frequent revolutions.

But to concede the necessity for such a protectorate as a prerequisite to interfering to prevent the acquisition of American territory by a European power, would amount to a renunciation of the Monroe doctrine by the United States, and this cannot be contemplated by the administration.

The first indication of this policy was seen in the claim of San Domingo to exemption from the French demand upon her revenues on the ground that these had all been farmed out to American corporations, which would be ruined by compliance with the French demands.

SHOT BY INSURGENTS.

HAVANA, April 4.—The governor of Santiago province reports that the gunboat Yndia, while cruising along the coast, came upon a foreign fishing smack stranded on the beach at Duaba, a short distance west of Baracoa. The captain of the smack was dead. Two sailors who were captured and taken aboard the Yndia, reported that they had landed 22 insurgents.

There had been trouble, they said, between the insurgents and the captain because he had refused to land them at the point designated by them. When the captain refused to yield to their threats they killed him and threw his body overboard.

After landing, the insurgents met a small column of Spanish troops. The skirmish was almost bloodless. The insurgents were put to flight without having lost a man killed or wounded. One of them was captured in hiding an hour after the skirmish, but the rest are in the mountains. The prisoner would give little information.

He is said to have admitted, however, that Maceo and Combret, the insurgent leaders, are with the fugitive band. Several companies of troops are pursuing the 21 men, but had not got within shooting distance of them at the time of the governor's dispatch.

Apart from these events, the district around Baracoa is quiet. Colonel Salcedo, who is in charge of the military operations around Holguin, reports that he attacked and dispersed a party of insurgents at Martillo, near San Andres. The arrival of re-einforcements for the regular troops in Santiago has restored confidence throughout the province.

Belgian Statesmen Come to Blows.

BRUSSELS, April 4.—In the chamber of deputies yesterday, a quarrel occurred between M. de Fuisseux, a socialist deputy, and M. Helleputte, a Catholic member of the house. The two men finally came to blows, and several of their supporters engaged in fisticuffs.

Robbers Make a Good Haul.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 4.—The postoffice here was robbed of about $10,000 worth of stamps and silverware yesterday. The robbery was committed while Postmaster Ridgely was at dinner. Those implicated have so far covered up their tracks.

Will Investigate Nicaragua's Canal.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The president has selected a board to investigate and report upon the feasibility, permanence and expense of the Nicaragua canal on routes proposed by the construction company.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Miss Lillian Hammond and Miss Annie Briggs are spending their vacations at their homes.

J. E. Butterfield and family of Maine have taken half of the house at 32 Billings street.

Mr. Ralph J. Saxe of Wollaston is on his annual spring tour through the southwestern states.

The Memorial church choir have secured the services of Mr. William Owen for Palm Sunday and Easter.

Mrs. John A. Pratt is spending a fortnight at Newton with her sisters, Miss Mary Kent and Mrs. James Tower.

A reading room with periodicals and magazines is one of the latest attractions at the Quincy High school. A good idea, too.

Spring is coming! The plank walk at the Thomas Crane public library has been taken up, and the grass on the lawn is beginning to start.

Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps have a sale of ice cream, cake, etc., and also give an entertainment at G. A. R. hall, on Tuesday evening next.

Special cars were run to Wollaston Thursday night to accommodate those who desired to attend the military drill at the Congregational church.

Miss Belle Patterson has recovered from her recent illness, and has re-opened her millinery parlors. She announces her Spring opening next week.

The Altar Society of the Wollaston Unitarian church, will give the play "The King's Daugter," in the church vestry on next Wednesday evening.

The finance committee of the City Council met Thursday evening to consider the annual budget which they will probably report on next Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Corthell, who have been spending the winter in Europe, arrived home on Thursday afternoon. They came over on the White Star S. S. Teutonic, arriving at New York on Wdneesday, after a rough passage.

Mr. E. H. Austin, of Wollaston, a compositor in the DAILY LEDGER office, seriously burned one of his hands on Wednesday evening which will keep him from type setting, so the doctor says, for several weeks

The quarterly of the Y. M. C. A. will be held next Tuesday evening at association rooms. The meeting will partake chiefly of the closing excercises of the evening educational classes, including the presentation of certificates.

The degree team of Maple lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor, 313, of this city, go to Boston this evening to do the initiatory work for Unity lodge, at 730 Washington street, Knights of Honor hall. A large delegation will also attend.

Mr. Thomas White, father of Mrs. Charles Kimball of this city, died March 15, at Alemeda, Cal., at the venerable age of ninety-five. He was for many years a resident of Quincy, and will be remembered by many of our aged citizens.

There was an excellent attendance at the lecture on Japan by the Rev. C. F. Clarke, in the Presbyterian church Wednesday evening. The lecturer's evident accuracy of statement and pleasant manner made his descriptions enjoyable, and the views were good.

A preliminary meeting for the formation of a tribe of Red Men was held at Odd Fellows' hall, Wollaston, on Thursday evening. Mr. William A. Jordan was chosen chairman. Mr. J. Peter Gardner of Boston, Great Chief of Records, was present and explained the benefits of the order. A meeting for organization and selection of chiefs will be held on April 18.

I. O. G. T. ANNIVERSARY.

Merry Mount lodge, Independent Order of Good Templars, celebrated its first anniversary Thursday evening by a gathering of its members and friends, including delegations from neighboring lodges, at Doble's hall.

The committee having the affair in charge had arranged an interesting entertainment which was thoroughly enjoyed by the large number present.

The exercises opened with a few remarks of welcome by Chief Templar Holmes who said the order had not brought itself much before the public during the past year, but from now on it intended to be heard socially and politically. He closed by extending an invitation to all persons not members to join.

The balance of the entertainment consisted of a duet by Misses Gardner and Fletcher; solos by Miss Fletcher, Mr. Herbert Fay Nye, Mr. Arthur Allen and Miss Gardner; readings by Miss Belle Lavers; banjo solo by Miss Esther Ellis; character sketch by Mr. Frank Bassick.

Between the several numbers on the programme there were brief remarks by D. G. C. T., Joel D. Watson, Grand Juvenile Templar Seree, W. C. T. Lee of Hingham; P. C. T. James Cleverly, Capt. Clarence E. Byard, P. C. T. Alex. Craig and others. The kind words of P. C. T. Holmes for the DAILY LEDGER are appreciated by the publishers. May Good Templars and others take his advice and give it encouragement.

The remarks of the several gentlemen were of an interesting nature and were in relation to the order, and the good work which it was doing, and with the best wishes for future success and prosperity for Merry Mount lodge.

After the entertainment refreshments of sandwiches, ice cream, cake and fruit was served.

A FULL HOUSE.

At the Second Presentation of King's Daughters' Drill.

The King's Daughters entertainment at the Congregational chapel last evening attracted a large crowd, every seat being filled. The entertainment consisted of vocal duets by Miss Hattie Woodbury Clarke and Miss Nellie Louise Woodbury, readings by Miss Katherine C. Hogan, a piano solo by Mrs. Martha Dana Shepard, and the famous military drill by the King's Daughters.

The songs consisted of "Echoes" by Moir, "Maybells and flowers" by Mendelssohn, and the "Cradle song" by La Villa, all of which were rendered with great sweetness and expression.

Miss Hogan captured the audience by her sprightly manner. Her readings consisted of "The Ghost of the Adriondacks," "Marriage of the flowers," "The Cataract of Ladore" and "The Two Lovers." She was repeatedly encored and gave "Home, Sweet Home," and "Little Fritz," and the audience wanted more.

The event of the evening, however, was the military drill, which was given in two parts, the camping scene, which was a beautiful tableau, intervening. The entire drill was given in the very best form, every movement being made with the greatest precision. To say that every one was delighted would hardly express it. Captain Elliott give command after command, which would have made a West Pointer open his eyes in wonder. Great credit is due the young ladies for their patient training.

At the close of the entertainment it was announced that a barrel of flour had been found in the church marked, "One week's rations for the Faxon Guards." Not being able to make use of it, they would be very glad to dispose of it.

A Good Time.

Seldom is there seen or heard a happier or livelier crowd, than the "Female Minstrel circle," which gave a turkey supper and dance at the Braintree last evening, to which only the husbands, daughters, cousins and sweethearts were admitted.

The caterer is deserving of great credit, for never was such an elegant spread sat down to before in Braintree. The evening was one of the most enjoyable, participated in by the ladies of the circle.

Solos, duets and choruses were sang during the evening.

Music for dancing was furnished by French & Ham's orchestra.

Among those present from Quincy were, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Packard, Miss Jennie Davis and M. Lizzie Furnald. As the wee small hours were striking all took their departure, hoping to have another reunion and have all on hand for the ice cream and sherbet.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. In many instances the attacks may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

DIED

PIERCE—In Atlantic, April 4, Mrs. Celenda G., wife of Mr. James Pierce, aged 77 years and 6 months.

BRAINTREE.

Officer James D. Allen of South Braintree had quite an experience this morning with a mad dog. The animal, a Newfoundland, rushed into the house through an open door and grabbed Mrs. Allen's dress. Her cries aroused her son who came down stairs and after some trouble succeeded in cornering the animal and shot him.

When it became apparant, early yesterday morning, that the Weymouth and Braintree electric road was to run its track, at the Braintree terminus, on the south side of Elm street, and later in the day, that there would be a spur track run into the middle of the street, there was quite a feeling of opposition manifested by the men whose business demands their presence with carriages or teams of any kind in that locality.

The big steam yacht which has been building for the past three months at the new ship house of the Fore River Engine Company was launched early yesterday morning.

Rev. Mr. Ambrie Field is about again after a brief illness.

Mr. Freeman and family have moved into his new house on South Braintree Heights.

We learn that Rev. Mr. Ellis will not leave his congregation at present. He will preach next Sunday.

Next Sunday the services of the Baptist church, will commence at 2 o'clock. Sunday School at one o'clock. Evening service at 7 o'clock.

Mr. Charles L. Hunt, formerly superintendent of our schools, has been in town spending his vacation; he is staying with Mr. E. A. Belcher.

Post 87, G. A. R., will celebrate the 30th anniversary of the surrender of Gen. Lee at Appomattox, by holding a camp fire in G. A. R. hall, April 9th.

The young Blake boy of South Braintree was taken to Westboro reform school by Mr. B. F. Emery, a truant officer from Roxbury, Wednesday.

The annual meeting of the Norfolk Conference Sunday School Society was held in the Union Church at East Braintree, Tuesday. Mrs. Waterman of South Weymouth read an interesting paper with the word "Meanwhile" for the theme.

The grand ball of the Braintree Veteran Firemen's Association will be held in the Town Hall, April 15.

Mr. John Kelley, president of the Braintree and Weymouth electric railroad, is confined to the house with sickness.

Mrs. Fanny Hobart and Mrs. Isa Coye, who were so successful in giving the drama "Going to the Opera," before the Woman's Relief Corps in Braintree, are invited to repeat it at Quincy for the same order there.

The new bell for the Braintree Baptist church arrived at the station Thursday. The bell bears this inscription: "Presented to the Braintree Baptist Church by the Ladies' Baptist Social Circle." It will be immediately hung in the belfry.

The rails for the Braintree and Weymouth electric road are laid to the Braintree crossing. The last rail was put in position yesterday afternoon. The girders for the bridge near Morrison's mill were laid early in the week and since then about forty men have been pushing the work rapidly along. It is expected that cars will be run by a week from Saturday.

TODAY'S COURT.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

To Sea in a Box.

Messrs. A. G. Olney, H. T. Whitman and A. A. Lincoln returned on Wednesday evening from the Bristol Branting club's headquarters on Monomoy Island, Cape Cod. They had a good string of birds and came near losing one of their mess. Mr. Olney was in a branting box out on one of the many sand bars which jut out into the ocean, when, before he was aware of what was going on, the tide had surrounded him. The box floated off with him in it. It soon swamped and left him floundering around in the water. He was rescued with difficulty and evaporated.

Houghs Neck Party.

Another party was held at the Neck Thursday evening at the residence of Martin French and a most enjoyable time it was. There is one thing, the Houghs Neck people know how to enjoy themselves. Mr. French gave a very nice lunch. There were games and dancing till into the morning. Some thirty were present and the music was furnished by Mr. Frank C. Perry and Mr. French.

Mr. French gave an invitation to come again and another party will be held next Thursday night.

The Steamboat Pier.

It has been decided to build the new steamboat pier at Houghs Neck in close proximity to the yacht club house. Mr. E. W. Branch of H. T. Whitman's office, who has charge of the surveying, writes to Secretary Whiting that "approximate distance of the proposed pier of the Quincy & Boston Steamboat Co. from that of the Quincy Yacht house is seven hundred feet."

There was a misunderstanding as to the exact location, it being thought that it was to run out into West Gut, thus making the distance from the club house 1500 feet.

Mr. O. M. Spencer describes in an attractive form some of the peculiar characteristics of "Picturesque Papua." Prof. James Lane Allen, under the title of "English Wood-Notes," shows the universal affection which people of all ranks in England have for birds, and explains their popularity in English poetry. Mr. George Frederick Seward, who is eminently fitted to understand the intricacies of the Eastern question, emphasizes some of the political animosities between "China and Japan." Three decidedly strong stories, "Some Examples of Recent Art" and the departmental editorials conclude an interesting number.

The regular Friday evening prayer meeting of the Calvary Baptist church meets tonight in Doble's hall, Franklin street, at 7 30 sharp, followed by the annual business meeting. The church members are requested to attend this meeting, as it is one of importance. Strangers are kindly invited to the prayer meeting; and all interested in the plain teachings of Jesus Christ. Come, and we will do you good.

The Swedish Lutheran stone church on Granite street has recently been handsomely decorated inside, ceiling and walls being painted, but the Swedes do not stop there. They wish for pews instead of the old chairs. Now, the new pews should have arrived the first day of April, and a concert was to be given on Saturday evening. But the pews have not yet arrived and the concert will be postponed to Saturday, the 13th.

A gang of workmen are at work in the City Square this morning, putting in the automatic switch. This will be a great improvement in the way of saving time as it is operated by the motorman by a lever on the car platform.

At the meeting of the Water Commissioners Thursday evening but little was done except to approve the bills for the month of March.

Death of a Portland Business Man.

HANCOCK STREET BRIDGE

Reasons Given by City Witnesses for the Widening.

The first witness put on by the city at the hearing before the County Commissioners Wednesday on the widening of the bridge at Atlantic was Herbert T. Whitman, civil engineer,

Mr. Whitman submitted plans he had made of the approaches to the bridge. He often used the road near the bridge and the approaches were too narrow.

Upon cross-examination he said he had noticed marked increase in travel during the past five years. A large amount of granite was carted over this bridge. The pleasure travel had also increased. It was not because there were street cars across the bridge that he advocated the change. There was more travel there than any other part of Quincy. This bridge should be as wide as Neponset bridge.

John A. Duggan often used the bridge. He considered it necessary for the convenience of the public to widen the bridge and approaches. He had observed teams become clogged, and several accidents and collisions were due to the narrowness. Parents were alarmed and disliked to have their children pass this spot. Many express and granite teams pass over here as well as pleasure teams. Years ago a horse-railroad ran over this same bridge.

Cross-examined, the witness did not think that part now used by the railroad was used as a sidewalk during the interval when there was no street railway there. Thought it was safer with the street rail way, as the rails acted as a guard. It was impossible for two eight-horse teams to pass now as it often happens a stone team occupies the whole space. The smoke from the locomotives also adds to the danger.

C. M. Bryant said he was chairman of the Council committee on streets. He frequently used the street for driving purposes. The bridge was inadequate for the traffic and he considered it extremely dangerous. There are so many teams going in and out there is not room enough for heavy teams to pass. If you are there when an express train is passing, your horse is liable to shy and strike some other team. You cannot see whether a train is coming or not, nor can you see if there is a team on the bridge. The city had spent upwards of $100,000 on this street. The amount of travel is increasing rapidly. He felt that the railroad should do its part.

The bridge should be widened to the full width of the street and a place reserved for foot passengers on both sides.

Cross examined he said horses had got used to the electric cars now.

A large amount of the lumber used in building comes from the north. It was a dangerous place and there should be no delay in relieving people of the hardship. The depot is near the bridge and to reach it one would have to turn off just south of the bridge.

When asked if he considered that the street railway made it more dangerous Mayor Hodges said every addition to travel makes more room required. If the railway was not there it would still be inadaquate.

This closed the testimony at this hearing for the city, and as the railroad desired to be heard, the Commissioners adjourned the hearing until Tuesday, April 23, at 10 30, at Dedham.

Councilman Rinn said he often had occasion to use this bridge. He thought it should be widened. It was dangerous to pass another team on the bridge.

Commissioner Eaton considered the bridge and approaches unsafe. He considered it the most dangerous place between Boston and Brockton. It should be widened to full width of the street. The railroad had made repairs on the approaches.

Mayor Hodges said traffic was impeded. He often used that portion of the street. It was very troublesome to get over this bridge at times. It should be widened to its full width. The railroad was built under it nearly 50 years ago. It was a dangerous place. He should not dare to drive across it unless he knew his horse was safe. When out with his family he drove around Squantum street rather than cross the bridge. The bridge being narrower than the street made it more dangerous in case a horse should shy. The volume of travel was increasing rapidly.

Parlor Furniture.

An attractive parlor or sitting room is essential today in every well governed home The expense need not mean extravagance; on the contrary, the latest suggestions of luxury, harmony, comfort and refinement, may be found at our store, at prices that are wonderfully low.

Silk Brocatelles are unusually popular this spring, and we have some ideal shades in this attractive fabric. A beautiful overstuffed, silk brocatelle parlor set we are selling for $45.00. We have many sets higher in price as well as others lower. On the whole you will do well to inspect our line and merit by our wonderfully low prices, which cannot be equaled by any retail store in the state.

BOSTON'S PARKHURST.

He Makes Sweeping Charges at the Methodist Episcopal Conference.

SALEM, April 5.—The New England Methodist Episcopal conference devoted last night entirely to temperance. The auditorium of Wesley church was not large enough to accommodate the crowd, which was due to the fact that Rev. I. J. Lansing of the Park Street church, Boston, was to deliver the address.

He began by referring feelingly to his former pleasant relations with this body. "While all of us know full well the great extent of the drink traffic, yet some of the lines of battle in this great warfare have been won. The temperance victory has been won from an ecclesiastical point of view.

"The Methodists are solid against the curse, so with the Presbyterians, Congregationalists and other churches, and the Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches are leaning in that direction. No saloon keeper can become a member of those churches, unless it be the Episcopal and Catholic. The churches, as a rule, are against rum.

"We hear a good deal about hard times. We are having hard times. We put a man at the head of this country of ours who is a drunkard. This is pretty plain talk, but I am very careful not to make a statement I cannot prove. We all remember the naval parade on the Hudson river, when thousands of people were obliged to wait several hours for the president to sober off enough for him to review the parade.

"As for the Norwegian system, churches generally are against it. It is not a success in Scandinavia; if it were it does not prove that it would be here. Things are different in both places, and among other things, there, a man has a vote or votes compared to the property he holds, while here, every man is entitled to but one vote —with the exception of the ward heelers. "Let us have no license; prohibition until the fight shall have been accomplished and the rum traffic is in hell."

Will Pay United States a Visit.

LONDON, April 5.—The Chronicle this morning publishes an interview with Michael Davitt, prior to his starting on a tour of the world. His plans embrace a visit to all the Australian colonies and a return to England by way of the United States. "I want," he added, "to see the gold diggings in Australia and to write something about the place and the people." Mr. Davitt further said he did not believe there would be a general parliamentary election before his return at the beginning of 1896.

Divorce Case Dismissed.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Judge Ewing rendered a decision in the Stiles divorce case, dismissing both Everett Stiles' bill for divorce and Mrs. Stiles' cross bill for lack of proof. The case has been a noted one. The husband is very wealthy and the wife is a beautiful woman. The co-respondent, Albert Crane, the son of the millionaire president of the Crane Elevator company, has been disinherited by his father, owing to the scandal.

Maceo Safely Landed.

CUBA, April 5.—A filibustering steamer was in ashore near Duabas, a short distance east of Baracoa, and 22 rebels were landed, including Generals Maceo, Crombet and Valdes. The sailors belonging to the steamer were captured by the Spaniards. This is the first definite announcement of the manner in which the insurgent leader, Maceo, who recently sailed from Colon, effected a landing on the island.

New President For Lehigh University.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 5.—The Lehigh university college has announced officially that the presidency of the university has been offered to and accepted by Dr. Thomas M. Drown of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dr. Drown has in recent years turned his attention largely to the subject of the purity of water supply, on which he is a recognized authority.

Democrats to Declare Their Views.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 5.—The Democratic state committee met yesterday and discussed the calling of a state delegate convention to fix the currency views of the Illinois Democracy for the next campaign. The sentiment was nearly unanimous in favor of the convention. It was decided to call one to meet in Springfield, June 4.

Kanucks Alarmed.

OTTAWA, April 5.—The government has notified all quarantine officers to exercise the greatest possible vigilance in examining and quarantining all cattle from southwestern portions of the United States. This action is taken on information that pleuro-pnomonia exists in western states.

Ordered to Rhode Island.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Captain Frank Baker of the army ordinance department has been ordered from the Watertown, Mass., arsenal to the state camp ground at Quinset Point, R. I., to assist the state authorities in the construction of a sea coast battery for militia drill service.

Nebraska Bank Ceases Business.

RAVENNA, Neb., April 5.—The First National bank of Ravenna, the heaviest banking institution of this city, and always considered one of the soundest in the country, closed its doors yesterday. The bank's insolvency is the natural result of the times.

Not Satisfactory to Mrs. Lease.

TOPEKA, April 5 —The new state board of charities organized by electing Morton Albaugh president and George A. Clark secretary. Mrs. Lease was present and gave notice that she would take steps at once to have the new secretary ousted from the board.

Japs Taking Every Advantage.

LONDON, April 5.—A dispatch from Shimonoseki, dated on Sunday last, says that the military activity of the Japanese is unabated. Five transports having infantry and cavalry on board were hurried away before the armistice was officially declared.

Engineer's Shocking Fate.

LOUISVILLE, April 5.—Joseph J. Willis, head engineer of the Louisville Veneer Mills company, while oiling the machinery, was caught by a flywheel and dashed against the wall and ceiling of the room, crushing him to death instantly.

Didn't Like Their Medicine.

BRUSSELS. April 5.—Following the trial of two anarchists, who were convicted of writing pamphlets, etc., denouncing the military and upholding anarchy, they arose and in the most violent language insulted the judge and jury.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 7. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Things to be consecrated.—Ezra iii, 1-7.

The children of Israel have returned 42,000 strong from the captivity of Babylon. Their first concern was to build for themselves houses, or to rebuild dilapidated buildings to make them fit for habitation. This done, they lost no time in repairing as one man to Jerusalem to re-establish their ancient worship and to offer sacrifices to their God, to consecrate themselves and their all to Him again as in the days of old. Let us learn from the topic:

1. All things should be consecrated to God. This is certainly the teaching of Ez. iii, 1-7. The people observed all the feasts and offerings that God had consecrated or enjoined, each one typifying the consecration of something to God. They also gave of their money that the temple might be rebuilt and of their substance for the same purpose. All things should be consecrated to God. Entire consecration is the only acceptable sacrifice that can be made unto Him. Our bodies, our souls, our possessions, our time, our talents, God requires and expects them all of us.

2. The reasonableness of entire consecration. It is reasonable because we ourselves and all that we have belong to God, and in requiring them of us He asks only what is His own. Justice gives to all their own. It is the doctrine of the Bible throughout that all things belong to God. This is applied to ourselves. "Ye are not your own," says Paul to the Corinthians, "for ye are bought with a price. Therefore glorify God in your body and your spirit, which are God's." Our money and our possessions are God's. "The gold is mine, the silver is mine, saith the Lord." "The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof." Talents and abilities and positions belong to God, for He gave them to us. It is He that maketh one an apostle, another a prophet, another a pastor or an evangelist. It is He also that exalteth men to positions of honor and influence. All these things are God's. We are simply His stewards, holding them in trust. To consecrate them entirely to Him, therefore, is simply paying back to Him what belongs to Him, which all must admit to be just and reasonable.

3. Some characteristics of entire consecration. The sacrifices were voluntary. It was unrestrained, spontaneous and from the prompting of their inward piety. Thus we should consecrate all things to God willingly and voluntarily. It was also a continual and regular sacrifice. Entire consecration should be once for all. If we were perfect, it could be, but taking our imperfect natures into consideration it is necessary for us to rededicate and reconsecrate ourselves to God.

Entire consecration is the sum and substance of Christianity. It is for us to live and yet not live, but for Christ to live in us. When we can say that of ourselves, we are consecrated to God. Can we say it?

Bible Readings.—Gen. xxviii, 20-22; Lev. xxvii, 30; I Chron. xxix, 5-7; II Chron. xxxi, 5, 6; Mal. iii, 8-12; Prov. iii, 9, 10; Mic. iv, 13; Math. xxv, 14-30; Rom. xii, 1, 2; I Cor. vi, 20; II Cor. viii, 5; ix, 6-8; Gal. ii, 20; Eph. v, 15, 16; Phil. i, 21.

No Sunday Sessions.

The coming international Christian Endeavor convention will close on Monday, July 15, instead of Sunday, July 14. Instead of making Sunday, as heretofore, the great closing day, it has been decided to close Mechanics' hall and the two tents upon that day, and the convention as a convention will not be in session at all upon that Sabbath day.

The pulpits of Boston and suburbs will no doubt be occupied by visiting clergymen and laymen. The regular church services, the Sunday schools, the missions and the Endeavor prayer meetings will be the great rallying points for all visiting and resident delegates. Please note the change. Upon Monday night the closing meetings will be held with the great consecration meetings.

This we believe is a wise plan, and the various state and district Christian Endeavor conventions will very many of them adopt the plan which will be inaugurated for the first time at any international convention. The dates of the Boston convention are July 10 to 15, without sessions on Sunday, the 14th.—J. Willis Baer.

A Pleasant Half Hour.

An excellent amusement for a Christian Endeavor social, to fill up a spare half hour, is the following: Cut a square opening in a pasteboard and distribute to the members corks of different sizes. Provide with sharp knives those that are not already provided. Explain that the task before them is to cut the corks so that they will fit the square opening without measuring the opening judging entirely by the eye. The one whose cork fits the best should receive some slight prize.—Selected.

Christian Endeavor Notes.

The latest figures of enrollment of the English societies reach the glorious number 2,150.

There is now in Philadelphia an Episcopal Christian Endeavor society, the first formed in that denomination in the Quaker City.

Queensland union, Australia, has issued a booklet containing a plan for a year's systematic Bible reading.

LITTLE FALLS, MINN., May 11, 1894.

"I am suffering, and need your aid. I have terrible pains in both sides of my womb, extending down the front of my limbs and lower part of my back, attended by backache and pains in the back of the neck and ears.

The doctors have given me opiates to quiet the pain. I have a very high fever nearly all the time. I am nervous, and cannot stand. My doctor says I must keep in bed. Now I place myself under your care. I am only twenty-one years old, and too young to suffer so much." — MRS. CHAS. PARKER.

The above letter was received by Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., May 15, 1894, which received a prompt reply.

The following letter reached Mrs. Pinkham about five months later. Note the result.

LITTLE FALLS, MINN., Sept. 21, 1894.

"I deem it my duty to announce the fact to my fellow-sufferers of all female complaints, that Lydia E. Pinkham's treatment and Vegetable Compound have entirely cured me of all the pains and suffering I was enduring when I wrote you last May. I followed your advice to the letter, and the result is simply wonderful. May Heaven bless you and the good work you are doing for your sex!" — MRS. CHAS. PARKER.

All the druggists in town say there is a tremendous demand for Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound; and it is doing lots of good among the women.

If you are sick and in trouble write to Mrs. Pinkham. Relief awaits you.

Columbia Sterling Bicycles.

In buying a bicycle, as in buying a piano or anything else requiring supreme skill to produce highest and most enduring results, remember that the influence of the mass of makers and agents is exerted against the leading article of its kind, and that inducements other than the intrinsic merit of goods, are freely used to force the sale of a vastly inferior article.

Columbias are the finest example of light and high grade bicycle construction ever put out for the general use of the great riding public. The celebrated nickel steel which has developed such remarkable qualities under the auspices of the United States and other governments, for use in armor, guns and projectiles when the very extreme of violent physical tests must be sustained, is used exclusively in Columbia manufacture this year, and for combined lightness, strength and beauty, places the Columbia Bicycles beyond all reach of comparison for excellence.

The best bicycle in the world with no exception. Full line of Columbias at our store. Instruction in riding and free use of Columbia Riding School to our patrons.

FAMOUS SUIT ENDED.

Wood Heirs Now In Possession of a Vast Colorado Estate.

Defendants Agree to Settle Without Litigation.

The Valuable Emma Silver Mine Included in the Transaction.

DENVER, April 5.—The famous Wood heirs litigation has been settled, and the plaintiffe have come into possession of mining property in Aspen, valued at $10,000,000.

It was claimed that W. J. Wood, a poor Canadian, who located the Emma mine, was defrauded of his interest in that property. At the time of his death he did not know how valuable it was, and his heirs signed away their claims to it for almost nothing.

When they discovered what they had done, they consulted attorneys and suit was begun in the United States court. They obtained judgment for a one-third interest in the Emma mine and for $530,000 in cash. It was thought that the defendants would appeal from this decision, but they agreed to the matter without further litigation and all the heirs will be enriched.

All the heirs, except Captain James O. Wood of Chicago, have signed the contract and agreement. Captain Wood is entitled to about one-twenty-seventh interest in the Emma mine, and has the privilege to come and sign with the others or enforce his proportionate share of the judgment. No matter which course he takes the owners will not be embarrassed thereby.

In the flush days of silver mining in Colorado, and when Aspen was in her halcyon days, before the depreciation of silver, the mining property involved in this litigation was estimated to be worth $10,000,000 to $17,000,000. It is now said to be worth about $10,000,000.

Spain's New Minister on the Way.

MADRID, April 5.—Senor Dupoy De Lome, the newly appointed Spanish minister to the United States, left here with Marshal Martinez de Campos. He will accompany the marshal to Cuba and will proceed thence to Washington. The government has instructed the minister to act with cordiality toward, and to avoid friction with the American government. He is also instructed to do his utmost to counteract filibustering, and to remove the unfriendly impressions of the American press in regard to Spain and the Cuban question.

Looking to Fatherland's Interests.

BERLIN, April 5.—In an interview with Prince Bismarck, he said it would be advisable to leave the German colonies in Africa alone until the Hinterland frontiers shall have been fixed. On the other hand, the settlement of Germans on the coast should be promoted by the establishment of productive plantations. The Kilima Njaro and Victoria Nyanza districts, he added, are too distant from the coast for such undertakings to be carried on there.

Look Out For Records!

NEW YORK, April 5.—It now looks as though Sanger and Johnson, the cycle wheelmen, would come together this season. According to the plans agreed to so far three races will be run, the distance to be one mile in each race, and the second and third races to take place soon after June. No place has been fixed upon for the contests and a number of other points remain to be settled. Representatives of both men say that there will be no hitch.

Claus Spreckels Sued.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5.—The row in the Spreckels family has reached a somewhat sensational stage. Young Gus Spreckels has filed a complaint charging his father with slander. The charge grows out of the suits recently begun by the two younger Spreckels brothers against their father and their two older brothers to recover valuable stock in the Spreckels Hawaiian sugar business and the Oceanic Steamship company.

Doctor's Art Failed to Save.

TUNKHANNOCK, Pa., April 5.—D. M. McKee, a Scranton Christion Scientist, was arrested for practicing his alleged healing art upon the late Elmer E. Brown of this place. Brown was suffering with bright's disease, and died within a few days after McKee's treatment commenced. The latter gave bail for a hearing next Monday.

Action of Germany's Trade Congress.

LONDON, April 5.—A dispatch to The Times from Berlin says that the trade congress adopted a resolution condemning the scheme of Count von Katinitz for the establishment of a state grain monopoly. It was announced to the congress that all the chambers of commerce of the empire except four had voted for a gold standard.

Government Agent Murdered.

WINNIPEG, April 5.—Frank Skyner, Dominion government issuer of rations of the Black Foot Indian reservation, was shot and killed by an Indian named Atchawan. The Indians on the reservation say that Atchawan is crazy. It is expected that he will be captured without bloodshed.

New Telephone Company.

NEW YORK, April 5.—There is no doubt that a telephone company, to be known as the Standard Telephone company, is now being organized in this city. Several of those whose names have been mentioned in connection with the project declare that they have no interest in it whatever.

Was Short In His Accounts.

MASON CITY, Ia., April 5.—William Langdon of the Deering Harvester works of Chicago, and agent of the Fidelity and Casualty company of New York, committed suicide on a train yesterday by shooting. He was short in his accounts with the Fidelity company.

Rewarded According to Merit.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Secretary Morton has appointed Edward Bailey of Rome, Ga., professor of reading and editorial clerk in the publication division of the agricultural department. Mr. Bailey stood highest in the examination held for the position.

Death of a Third Party Man.

READING, Pa., April 5.—Isaac Altendorfer, aged 65, was struck and instantly killed by a Philadelphia and Reading passenger train yesterday. The deceased was formerly a well-known Third party politician.

SAMOA AND AMERICA.

Report of United States Commissioner Concerning Our Interests.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Mr. Chambers, one of the three commissioners appointed by the treaty powers of Great Britain, Germany and the United States under the provisions of the Berlin treaty to adjust and settle all claims by aliens to lands in Samoa, makes the following report:

The final meeting of the commission was held Dec. 5, 1894, at Apia, and its reports were turned over to the chief justice of Samoa, as required by the treaty, and are now in his custody. These reports include all the title papers to Samoan lands and are of considerable value. They give in detail the history of each of the 3942 claims investigated.

An exhibit attached to the report shows that the total number of claims filed before the commission was 3942. Of these, 1422 were German, 1757 British, 307 American, 626 French and 120 miscellaneous. The total claims aggregated 1,691,898 acres, while the islands only contain 950,000 acres. Only 8 per cent. of the claims were confirmed.

The British claims amounted to 1,250,270 acres, owing to the fact that one man, under a large number of deeds, claimed practically the whole of the Island of Savaii, which contains nearly half the acreage of the entire country. This man also held large claims in other islands, but all except about 15,000 acres of his claims were rejected.

The vast bulk of acreage claimed by Americans was also rejected, owing to the manifestly inadequate consideration given for it, and because the titles were defective under several provisions of the treaty. About 21,000 acres were confirmed to Americans, most of them belonging to a corporation composed of San Francisco stockholders.

Lucky Heir of Quaker Penn.

PHILADELPHIA, April 5.—The suit of an heir of William Penn, William Dugald Stuart, of London, to secure possession of property in the city of Easton, resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff. Stuart brought the action to recover a piece of ground 80 feet square, now used as a public square in the center of the city of Easton. The ground was dedicated by Penn to Easton for the site of a courthouse. It was used for that purpose for a time and afterward abandoned and torn down.

Cattle Raisers Will Organize.

CHICAGO, April 5.—It is learned from sources close to the fountain head that the cattle raisers of the west are bending every effort to the perfecting of an organization during the coming season to fight the dressed beef combine. The recent advance in the price of beef has incensed them. They claim that they are only getting a small advantage from the advance in the price to consumers, the combine taking most of it and leaving them an insignificant gain.

Union of Churches Scouted.

LONDON, April 5.—The Record publishes a letter from the archbishop of Canterbury, declining to give an official utterance regarding Lord Halifax's recent speech on a reunion of the Church of England with the Church of Rome. The archbishop declares that any corporate union with the Church of Rome is absolutely visionary and impossible.

An Aquatic Floating Palace.

BOSTON, April 5.—The float which is to carry the aquatic theater of the Floating Palace Amusement company was launched yesterday. A theater similar to land play houses will be erected on the float, after which the craft will be anchored at South Boston for part of the summer season. It will probably go to Bar Harbor and other summer resorts afterward.

Coke Works Close Down.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., April 5.—The Elm Grove and Mount Braddock plants of the Rainey Coke works have closed down indefinitely and a portion of the Rainey ovens in the Vanderbilt region have also been blown out. The Rainey company state that the trouble was caused by drunkenness among the men, who do not report for work regularly.

Will Not Discriminate.

OTTAWA, April 5.—The canal regulations for the year of 1895 have been embodied in an order in council which has received the assent of the government. There will be no discrimination against the citizens of the United States.

Death of an Old Official.

HALIFAX, April 5.—John F. Muncey, customs broker, died last night in the 86th year of his age. He was the first customs appraiser ever appointed for Halifax, and held that position up to 12 years ago, when he became superannuated.

Resulted in a Draw.

CHICAGO, April 5.—The six-round contest between Owen Zeigler of Philadelphia and Frank Gerrard of Chicago was declared a draw. Honors were even throughout the fight.

Quite a Record Breaker.

BRISTOL, R. I., April 5.—Harry Goodman broke the record in an egg eating contest here yesterday, when he ate four dozen raw eggs in 6¾ minutes, in a wager of $5.

Electrocution of a Murderer.

AUBURN, N. Y., April 5.—William Lake was executed by electricity here yesterday for the murder of Emma Hunt, near Albion, Oct. 18, 1894.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

VOL. 7. NO. 82. QUINCY, MASS., SATURDAY, APRIL 6, 1895. PRICE 2 CENTS.

AN APPEAL TO THE PUBLIC.

At the Business Men's Banquet, March 20, 1895, the undersigned were appointed as a Citizen's Committee to solicit funds for the local Young Men's Christian Association.

Having carefully examined into the work and management of the Association, we believe that it merits the hearty support and co-operation of all citizens. We take this method of calling the attention of the public to the work, and appeal for financial aid. Believing that it is an institution which the citizens of Quincy should carefully foster, we are very glad to ask you for your contributions.

For the extent and effectiveness of the work we point with pleasure to report of the officers made at the last annual meeting.

It is not the intention of the Directors of the Association in this or any city or town to make the institution entirely self-supporting.

The key note of its principle is to throw around young men the best social and moral influences, and to count among its members a good proportion of young men whose means will not permit them to bear the full cost of the advantages they enjoy.

It must, from the very necessities of the work be supported to some extent by the offerings of the citizens of the place.

The portion of the expense to be borne by the members of the Association in this city has been made as large as it was deemed wise to do. With the receipts from membership as they now stand, the management will need about $1500 additional subscriptions, to be paid between now and Oct. 1st. If this amount is pledged before the middle of May next, the Association will secure in addition $700 which is pledged conditional upon the amount of $1500 being subscribed. From a city of over 20,000 inhabitants, it seems as though this amount can be readily secured from those interested in the work.

Let there be a generous response to this call of the Association.

Upon the young men of today depends the welfare of our city in the future. Let us throw around our sons the best possible influences for their socially and moral improvement, and if any have no sons of their own let them do for the sons of others what will make them become what they would wish their own boys to be. Then when fathers and mothers are dead and gone their names will be cherished, their memories will be kept green and their characters reverenced by the boys as they enjoy all that the fathers and mothers did for them in the days long ago.

MR. LANSING REBUKED.

Statements of Ex-Governor and Ex-Congressman.

Lansing Says He Can Prove His Charges by High Authority.

SALEM, April 6.—The attack of Rev. Dr. Lansing on the president was the topic of conversation here yesterday. It is learned on very good authority that his utterances were not received, in toto, with favor. One well-known clergyman said: "I wish Dr. Lansing had taken some other time and place to attack the president than our Methodist conference. It is very strange we had no intimation of the charge in advance, and I sincerely hope Dr. Lansing has not been misinformed by making such a serious charge. It's too bad." Similar utterances have been heard from the clergy here in attendance.

While Dr. Lansing, in a Boston paper is quoted as expressing doubt that he used the word "drunkard" in referring to the president, many of the clergy positively testify to the accuracy of the published report, and the local press also print his remarks to the same effect. It cannot be said, in this respect, that Dr. Lansing's address was endorsed by the clergy at large.

Mr. Lansing Interviewed.

"The published reports," said Mr. Lansing to a reporter, "do not represent what I said. I talked for an hour, whereas what was published I could have said in 10 minutes. The condensation in the papers of my address reads quite differently from what the address in full would have done."

"I do not think I said that Cleveland was a drunkard, but I did say that he was drunk at the naval parade, and I can prove it. I did not see him myself, or do not know it from personal observation, but I was informed by the highest authority of his condition."

"Will you state who was your authority?" was asked.

"No. I cannot do that," continued Mr. Lansing, "but it was authority that cannot be disputed. Everyone who was there knows Cleveland was intoxicated. But I do not attack Cleveland in any sense of the word, for, as I said in my address, I have the highest respect for national and municipal dignitaries.

"I made the remarks when speaking of the hard times. I said that today people had lost the sense of moral responsibility, and had grown callous. They care not who is the ruler, provided they can get all the cash they want. I also spoke of Saul, saying that when he was made king the people objected. But I said: 'Saul was a gentleman,'" and the doctor smiled.

"Returning to Cleveland, it is well known that from the time he was a governor up to now he has been addicted to liquor, both in public and private."

Charges of Drunkenness Denied.

BOSTON, April 6.—A complete denial of the charges of Rev. I. J. Lansing against President Cleveland is made by people who know whereof they speak.

The sensational charges that Cleveland was a drunkard and that he was intoxicated on the occasion of the naval parade in New York in April of 1893, were the talk of the town yesterday.

Not a man was found who believed that the charges were true in the slightest degree, and the general opinion was that Rev. Mr. Lansing had made statements the truth of which he would find it hard to prove.

Dr. Lansing states that he did not say that the president was a drunkard, and claims that if his whole speech had been reported it would have placed the matter in a different light. He refuses to divulge his source of information in the matter.

"That statement is utterly false and a gross outrage," said ex-Governor William E. Russell in a conversation with a reporter last evening.

He referred to the statement of Dr. Isaac J. Lansing, who charged President Cleveland with being a drunkard, and named as a specific occasion the date of the naval parade on the Hudson in April, 1893.

Ex-Congressman O'Neil, who attended the naval parade, accompanied by his wife, was seen last night at his home. He said: "Rev. Mr. Lansing is seriously mistaken when he says that President Cleveland was intoxicated on the day in question, or any time in the eight years that I have known him. President Cleveland is a very careful man in his habits, and the assertion that he was in the condition in which Mr. Lansing has him is untrue, and the reverend gentleman has made a grievous mistake.

"On the day in question the weather was very unfavorable, and the secretary of the navy postponed the parade from 11 to 1 o'clock because the weather forecaster said the conditions would be favorable for the parade at 1 o'clock, when the storm would clear away.

"Any man who makes a statement like the pastor of the Park Street church about the chief executive of this nation does not know what he is talking about. President Cleveland needs no defenders against any remarks coming from the source they do."

GUILTY OF IMMORALITY

Marquis of Queensberry's Charges Made For the Good of Public.

Wilde Locked Up In a London Prison Cell.

Bitter Condemnation of Wilde by Representative English Journals.

LONDON, April 6.—The case of Oscar Wilde against the Marquis of Queensberry for libel was brought to a close yesterday in a verdict in favor of the defendant. The jury found not only that the defendant was not guilty of libel, but in a subsidiary verdict, declared that the Marquis of Queensberry's charges were true and had been made for the public good. The charges were gross immorality.

OSCAR WILDE.

The Evening News received the following letter written upon the note paper of the Holborn Viaduct hotel, signed by Wilde:

It would have been impossible for me to have proved my case without putting Lord Alfred Douglass in the witness box against his father. He was extremely anxious to go into the witness box, but I would not let him. Rather than put him in so painful a position, I determined to withdraw from the case and bear upon my own shoulders whatever ignominy and shame might result from my prosecution of the Marquis of Queensberry.

Wilde Under Arrest.

In the afternoon a solicitor applied at the Bow street police court and obtained a warrant against Wilde for immediate execution. He was subsequently found by the detectives, who arrested him and took him to Scotland Yard.

Sworn informations have been lodged against several persons mentioned in the trial, some of whose names were not made public, and the civil officers are only awaiting the authority of the treasury department to make the arrests.

Wilde was taken to a cell in the Bow street station. When the charge, indicated by his testimony in court, was read to him, he stood with his hands in his pockets, silent and apparently unconcerned.

In an interview, the Marquis of Queensberry said to a reporter: "I have sent this message to Wilde: 'If the country allows you to leave, all the better for the country; but if you take my son with you, I will follow you wherever you go and shoot you.'"

Lord Douglass says, in relation to the Wilde scandal: "Myself and every member of the family, except father, disbelieve absolutely and entirely all the charges. We think them simply part of the persecution father has carried on against us as long as I can remember, and that Mr. Wilde and his counsel are to blame for not showing, as they could have done, that that was the fact.

Newspaper Comments.

The Telegraph commenting today editorially upon the arrest of Wilde, says: If the general concern was only the man himself, his spurious brilliancy, inflated egotism, diseased vanity, cultivated affection and shamless disavowal of all morality, it would be best to dismiss him to the penalty of universal condemnation, but there is something beyond the individual to be considered. Yesterday's just verdict includes with him the tendency of his peculiar career.

The Chronicle says editorially: It suffices us to know as some return for undamning the putrid stream that our life is rid forever of the pestiferous poseur. Decadence has received its death blow, and the way is cleared for increased wholesomeness in life. We seem for some unhappy hours to have been shuddering witnesses of a bastard revival of society under the later Roman empire, or against the dark background of the Italian Renaissance.

Not to Be Mollified.

LONDON, April 6. — Inquiries at the foreign office in regard to the dispatches from Washington intimating that the United States might acquire a right to intervene in the Anglo-Venezuelan dispute by declaring a protectorate over Venezuela with the assent of the Venezuelans, brought out the declaration that no interchange of views was proceeding between Great Britain and the United States on the subject of such a protectorate.

Coach Jumped the Track.

ZANESVILLE, O., April 6.—Mrs. Nathan Young and daughter, and Henry Brown of Beallsville, and Engineer Eli Lucas were instantly killed, and Fireman Johns fatally injured in a wreck on the Bellaire, Zanesville and Cincinnati railroad at a trestle about five miles east of Summerfield, yesterday, by a coach jumping the track as the train was approaching the trestle, which is situated on a curve.

High Officials May Be Implicated.

ALBANY, April 6.—The banking department, in its examination of the affairs of the Chenango Valley bank of Binghamton, has come into possession of a letter which, when made known on the trial of Cashier Morgan, may lead to the impeachment of high officials in Binghampton, and the trial for conspiracy of others.

In China, the United States is called "Mei-kwo," beautiful country.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE TIME has come when the metropolitan district should be interested in the expenditures of Boston, as all the special improvements are made by creating a debt which "greater Boston" may have to pay in burdensome taxes. It is therefore pleasing to note that Representatives Hammond and Flint voted to admit the bill to repeal the subway act. It is hoped that they will also vote to repeal the act. It is openly reported that the subway will not relieve the congested district of Boston and it is too expensive an experiment to try. Better widen the streets all around the Common 100 feet or more, run cars on Beacon street, and more on Harrison avenue. The money required for the subway would make many important street extensions and widenings.

EX-MAYORS HART and Prince were among those who appeared before the Greater Boston commission yesterday against the annexation scheme, and ex-Mayor O'Brien wrote a letter opposing the scheme. Boston don't want us and the suburban cities are satisfied as they are. Enough said.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Mr. Lester M. Pratt will succeed the firm of Pratt & Curtis instead of Mr. Curtis.

The travel on the Neponset line has increased considerable since close connection has been made with Boston.

What will the sidewalk committee have to take up their attention now that the putting in of the automatic switch is completed?

The base ball season will open in Quincy next Wednesday by a game between the Adams Academy and a picked nine from Harvard.

The alarm from Box 441 at 4.08 Friday afternoon was rung in for a slight fire in the blacksmith shop of C. H. Hardwick & Co., which was extinguished without any loss.

A flock of geese flew over the city this morning and although they must have been over a mile away some of our local sportsmen wasted a little powder firing at them.

An important meeting of the St. John's C. L. and A. A. will be held next Tuesday evening. Several pertinent matters will come up for consideration and it is hoped that every member will attend.

The Atlantic band gave most excellent music at the "America" celebration Music hall. The rendering of patriotic airs was done in a manner worthy of much praise which seems to have been given by all who were fortunate enough to hear them.

Fifteen Atlantic ladies were entertained most delightfully Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Sieweris, at her home in Crescent avenue. It was the Botolph club doubled, and whist was the order. Ladies were divided by red pinks and white, and partners sought in a novel manner, by the red pinks holding the name of a theatre, while white pinks have the name of the artist now present. It was as lively a sixteen as could be well brought together. Prizes were given,—First, Mrs. Bruce; second, Mrs. Hayden; booby, Mrs. Stocker. After which ices were served and the hours had fled all too quickly.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Fiske of Hyde Park are to spend several weeks at Jamaica. They sail next week from Boston.

A society event of Dorchester Wednesday evening was a reception tendered to Mrs. Milla Temple, mother of Mr. Thomas F. Temple, Boston's register of deeds. It was her eightieth birthday, and from three to nine o'clock hundreds from Boston, Quincy, Braintree, Canton and other towns, including many from a distance showed congratulations. Mr. Isaac Fenno of Boston read a poem and crowned Mrs. Temple. The birthday cake was a perfect wonder, and their were flowers in profusion. Among those from Quincy were Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Howland, Miss Howland, Mr. E. P. Howland, Miss Mary Emery, Miss Isabel Emefy, Miss Mary Hinkley, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Perkins and Mrs. Hills.

Miss O'Brien closed her dancing school with a reception last evening at Faxon hall. The pupils danced from six to nine, and admiring parents and friends were present in large numbers, and saw marked progress. The novelty was the new Varson Vienna waltz, and the Berlin and heel and toe were among the accomplishments. At nine o'clock the pupils marched to refreshments, and yielded the floor to the older ones. Hanson's orchestra of three pieces furnished music.

There was a very pleasant time last Monday evening at Braintree, at the home of the popular station agent, Mr. J. R. Hathaway. It was the 6th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hathway's marriage. Between forty and fifty friends gathered at their pleasant home to congratulate them on the happy occasion. The first event of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful hall stand by Mr. E. F. Preston for the donors, very gracefully and with well chosen and appropriate words. Mr. Hathaway returning grateful thanks for the present. Mr. S. A. Bates was called upon and made appropriate remarks for the occasion. One of the friends then read an original poem written for the anniversary. Mr. L. Gomez made some remarks, and then with two of his pupils, (Miss Adams and Miss Kibble) gave some excellent music on the guitar. Miss Adams rendered a pretty solo on the guitar. Next came a bountiful supply of refreshments, followed by a song, with Mrs. Geo. French at the organ. Mrs. R. Stoddard gave a reading and was encored. A number of the friends lingered till a late hour, and as an afterpiece Mr. Preston and Mr. Hathaway gave readings.

—It was the request of the late Nathaniel Cobb of Marion, an eccentric personage, that those who should follow him to his grave "should not sing 'Hark from the tomb,' but something lively, such as 'John Brown's body lies mouldering in the grave,' and 'Hold the Fort.'"

—Mr. L. P. Bond of Brookline, District Secretary for Norfolk County, is arranging for a grand Christian Endeavor rally to be held in Quincy, April 19th. For some years other counties throughout the State have observed the spring holiday in this way, and it is most appropriate that Norfolk County should fall into line.

THE WATER REPORT.

The Work of 1894 and that Proposed This Year.

THE SUPPLY IS GETTING LOW.

Few Extensions Therefore are Recommended for 1895.

Probably the city department in which most interest centres is the Water department. The taxpayers feel that it should be managed economically, that the income may not only meet the interest and maintenance, but go quite a ways in payment of maturing installments of the water debt. So long as $25,000 or more must be paid annually by direct taxation it increases the tax rate about $1.50 per $1000. The Water Commissioners should keep the maintenance account down, charging all to construction that properly belongs there, and help out the taxpayers rather than the extension account.

The principal work of the year has been on extension of street mains. In accordance with the expressed desire of the City Council no pipe laying has been done by contract. If the cost of doing the work has been somewhat increased, the Board are satisfied that it has been carefully and well done. Of the appropriation available for the extension of mains, $92,856.33, we have an unexpended balance of $1,322.06. A portion of this will be required for the payment of pipe ordered but not delivered. In many cases, the pipes laid this year connect with and intersect the smaller pipes of the original works, thus doing away with numerous 'dead ends' and serving as feeders to reinforce the smaller pipes. As a rule the Board have not used pipe of less than 6 in. diameter on new extensions. During the year 12 miles of pipe have been laid, and 92 hydrants added. Fire protection often demands the concentration of large quantities of water at one point in addition to the maximum domestic consumption. Therefore in planning extensions care has been taken to have the main arteries suitably located and large enough for the purpose.

The Board advise the extension of the 16 inch main on Common street to a proposed stand pipe to be erected on Forbes hill in Ward 5. The land has already been acquired by the City. It is important that this work be completed at once, in order to have a safe margin of water at hand for fire supply in case of unusual accidents either to the pumping machinery or the street main leading to the present stand-pipe. The building of this stand-pipe will obviate the necessity of continuous pumping, especially during the night time, and will be of great value to the distribution service, the consumption of water having increased to such an extent that at times during the summer months it is impossible to maintain a high level of the water in the present stand-pipe, in case of a large demand for fire purposes.

The Board are of the opinion that the appropriation, if any is made for extensions the ensuing year, should be small and for minor extensons only. With the increase of population the question of supply becomes of first importance. We have absolutely reached a point where it is necessary to provide additional storage capacity.

Considerable repairs have been made on the well and the roof of the Pumping Station and the same are now in good order. A drive way and other improvements have been made to the pipe yard in the rear of the works. The cost of the above as well as the painting of the stand-pipe and about $1,350, expended for excavating mud from the Reservoir, has been charged to the sum appropriated for maintenance. The conveniences for storing coal are insufficient for the purpose and we recommend an appropriation for new coal sheds.

The reduction made in the schedule of water rates went into effect on July 1, 1894. The total amount received for the sale of water for the year ending Dec. 31, 1894 is $40,943.95. We estimate the probable gross receipts from the source for the year 1895 to be $41,000, and the amount required for maintenance account at $14,000.

The Joint Committee, consisting of the Mayor and Water Board, have devoted considerable attention to the subject of the future supply of water and collected much information bearing upon the same, which together with general plans showing the water shed or the present reservoir, a proposed new storage basin and a scheme for using the water of Blue Hill River, has been submitted to the State Board of Health for its consideration. It is of great importance that the investigations be continued and a scheme perfected in season to provide an additional amount of water for use during the summer of 1896.

Total number of service connections, 2,243.

Total number of hydrants, 278.

Balance Jan. 1, 1894, as per Auditor's Books, $44,900.99.

Balance purchase money transferred, $14,375.00.

Appropriation, $30,000.00.

Received Account 1892-1893, $3,579.74.

Total, $92,856.33.

The items of the constuction account were:

Pipe and special castings, $36,924.80.

Laying pipe, $37,651.90.

Hydrants, valves, boxes and supplies, $8,271.03.

Service pipe and fittings, $8,505.14.

Investigations relating to additional water supply, $181.40.

Balance unexpended, $1,322.06.

Total, $92,856.33.

The expenditures on maintenance account were:

Office expenses, including superintendence, clerical assistance, rent, stationery, printing, postage and miscellaneous expenses, $3,364 67.

Pumping station expenses, including pay-roll, fuel, repairs and sundry items, $5,039.14.

Building driveway, $198.56.

Painting stand pipe and fence, $421.45.

Labor and items at resesvoir, $1,349.36.

Balance unexpended, $574.38.

Total, $14,000.

GREAT BOWLING.

The Wollaston Team Does Well but the Codman Club Does Better.

The Wollaston Bowling Club and the Codman Club of Dorchester put up a great game on the Duck's Nest alleys, Friday evening. The excitement was intense, from the time the first single string was dropped until the total was footed up.

Edmund S. Taylor carried off all of the honors. He put up 186 for the highest single string, and 500 for the total.

The home club was defeated 2,315 to 2,161.

After the game was finished the members of the two teams and a few invited guests were given an excellent spread by Steward Williams.

Wollaston Cycle Club Notes.

No club in this vicinity has more comfortable quarters than the Wollaston Cycle Club. The rooms are fitted up attractively, the floors being carpeted and a piano and billiard table provided. Upon its reading table are constantly found all the daily papers and bicycle magazines, as well as the Quincy DAILY LEDGER.

The club held its regular meeting Friday evening and voted in one new member, swelling the membership to 73.

The age limit was reduced from 21 to 18 years, which will bring in many more new members.

Several of the members are riding "The Quincy" this year considering that superior to other makes.

Messrs. Stephenson and Thomas have entered for the Dedham races.

An entertainment and supper will be held for club members next Thursday evening.

It is contemplated building an addition to the club rooms at an early date.

The following runs have been called for April:

April 7, Nantasket, 1.30 P. M.
April 14, Chestnut hill, 1.30 P. M.
April 19, Dedham races, 12.30 P. M.
April 21, North Abington, 10.30 A. M.
April 28, South Natick, 10 A. M.

First Church Vespers.

At 4 o'clock vespers at the Unitarian church on Sunday the choir will sing:

BRAINTREE.

The Maverick Oil Company have put in a large new gasoline tank at their place and there is another on the way.

The Ladies of the Baptist Society are making arrangements to hold their semi-annual sale in the early portion of May.

Next Tuesday evening the Universalists will hold a dime party at the home of A. J. Brigham, Pond street. A barge will carry those who wish.

Mr. Charles Sumner has leased the Chatham house of Chatham, New York, for a term of years. Mr. Sumner will still run the hotel at Brant Rock.

Mr. W. H. Harrison of Hollis avenue, the mechanical engineering expert, visited Woburn this week to survey the scene and wreckage of the boiler explosion there.

Next Tuesday afternoon there will be a public hearing before the selectmen, in their room, about the franchise to the electric road for a track to Randolph; the meeting is public.

The Ladies' Social Circle of the Braintree Baptist church will hold their regular sociable on Thursday afternoon and evening. The ladies are invited to meet at 2.30 as there is work to be done. Supper will be served from 6.30 to 7.30. Entertainment in the evening.

The Late C. F. Badger.

In the death of our townsman, which occurred Friday, March 29th, Quincy loses one of her most respected citizens and a representative business man.

Mr. Badger was born in Quincy in 1859, and has always resided in this place. He has been identified with the stone industry from his youth and thoroughly understood the several branches, and was a member of the firm of Badger Bros. He took no active part in public matters.

He was much esteemed by his many friends for his good qualities and sterling integrity and uprightness. He married in 1883 Nettie A. Raudlett one of Quincy's successful teachers.

A disease of the stomach which had weakened his system three years was vainly though stoutly resisted.

His death at thirty-five years of age saddens many who had hoped from his strong constitution that a long life of usefulness and happiness was before him. He leaves a widow and no children.

The services Monday, April 1st, were attended by many friends and relatives and the floral offerings were numerous and beautiful. Mr. Virgin, pastor of M. E. church, West Quincy, officiated, and the Weber Male Quartette of Boston sang several selections. The interment was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Hospital Aid Work.

The Hospital Aid Association realized from the lecture on Scotland about seventy-five dollars, over and above expenses. An illustrated lecture on Sweden is talked of for early in the Autumn.

While the Association was not formed to help meet the current expenses of the hospital, yet all that can be spared after attending to its legitimate object, which is "to assist in furnishing and replenishing" will be given toward running expenses.

During the past five years about ten thousand dollars have passed through the hands of the Association, which now numbers about eleven hundred members, though some of these are in arrears as regards the yearly fee of one dollar. The sum is so small it has doubtless been crowded out of mind by other and larger demands. In future an annual gathering of all members of the Association will be held early in October to emphasize certain facts in connection with this large and prosperous Charity club.

Blue Hill Predictions.

Sa	Su	Mo	Tu	W.	Th	Fri	Sa
6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13

The coming week promises to average warmer than normal. The warmest days will probably be the 8th to 10th, and the coolest the 6th and 12th. Rain is most probable about the 6th, 9th and 12th to 13th, and clear weather is most probable about the 7th, and 10th to 11th. The rainfall will probably be mostly in showers, and there promises to be more sunshine than during the past week.—Norfolk County Gazette.

At the Quincy High.

J. W. writes to the Standard Junior: "Last Friday we gathered in the assembly hall, at the Quincy High, to render due honor to the author of our national anthem. The hymn was prefaced by one of our principal's short speeches, but filled to the brim with genuine "attic salt." We were invited to give special heed to the line "let all that breathe partake," and accordingly we "partook." And then came the beginning of the spring vacation.

THE AUTOMATIC SWITCH.

An Invention which Promises to be Handy and Useful.

Much interest has been manifested during the past few days in the automatic switch which is being put in at the junction of the Quincy Point line of the street railway with the main line near the First church.

The past method of operating switches on a street railway is by means of a switch stick, which is not only unhandy but often consumes much valuable time as it is necessary sometimes to make several trials before the switch is made. With the new switch that has been put in for trial, all this is done away with, as it is operated from the car platform by the motorman.

Its mode of operation is simple and there seems no reason why it will not work.

The switch tongue is connected beneath the rail with a lever which runs to a box some few feet north of the switch.

On top of this box, which is on a level with the rail are two depression bars, one to throw the switch to the right and the other to throw it to the left.

Beneath the car platform are two bars with a wheel on each. These bars are operated by pins which come up in the platform, and are moved by the pressure of the foot of the motorman.

When a car approaches the switch all that it is necessary to do is for the motorman to place his foot on one of these pins, which presses down the bar and wheel which strikes one of the depression bars and operates the switch.

Several of the largest street railways in the country are watching the success of this switch, particularly so the West End which now pays thousands of dollars every year for switch tending. If it is found to work to perfection it will without doubt be generally adopted.

Car number 17 which had been fitted with the operating device was run out Friday night and the switch tried a number of times and everything was found to work to perfection.

AN ICE DEAL.

Eaton Bros. and J. F. Sheppard & Sons Consolidate Business.

What is a luxury to one generation frequently becomes a necessity to the next, particularly in this country, where "progress" is the watchword and where nothing is deemed "too good" for anybody who can possibly manage to possess it.

Perhaps this transformation of a luxury into a necessity is nowhere better illustrated than in the case of ice so rarely used half a century ago, yet in recent years in such request as to cause its harvesting and sale to rise to the dignity of an important industry, employing thousands of men and an extensive capital.

These observations and apropos of a piece of information which reached the LEDGER yesterday, to the effect that a consolidation has just been effected between Hon. William N. Eaton (who for some years has carried on the ice business in this city,) and the well-known firm of J. F. Sheppard & Sons of Braintree and Quincy as well.

Mr. Eaton, it appears, has for some years been unable to supply his large and increasing trade from the ice cut near his residence, and has every season been compelled to buy in quite large quantities in order to meet the demands of his patrons.

Messrs. Sheppard & Sons, however, found their own situation just about the reverse of Mr. Eaton's. They possess, in Little pond, South Braintree, a cutting area very much in excess of the demand, as well as land upon the shore of ample capacity to allow of the erection of storage houses of almost unlimited capacity.

It is not surprising, therefore, that the gentlemen named should have "got together" for mutual business advantage, as already stated.

Little pond is the source of Braintree's water supply (well-known for its purity) and the quality of the ice which will this season reach Quincy from that source will therefore be of the highest. Quincy people will also be the gainers through the increased number of teams to be employed resulting in a corresponding improvement in delivery service.

Several minor details remain to be adjusted between Messrs. Eaton and Sheppard, but we understand that a stock company will be formed, a sort of "close corporation," made up of the members of the two former separate concerns, already named.

It is understood that there will be no immediate change in the prices hitherto ruling in the city; certainly no increase.

TODAY'S COURT.

Morrison M. Alden of Randolph was arraigned for cruelty to animals. Case continued until April 13.

The case of Catherine Childs of Wollaston for assault on Mary Harris came up again this morning, when she was placed on probation for a month.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds. SIMS BROS., Leeds, Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds, croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

Columbia Sterling Bicycles.

In buying a bicycle, as in buying a piano or anything else requiring supreme skill to produce highest and most enduring results, remember that the influence of the mass of makers and agents is exerted against the leading article of its kind, and that inducements other than the intrinsic merit of goods, are freely used to force the sale of a vastly inferior article.

Columbias are the finest example of light and high grade bicycle construction ever put out for the general use of the great riding public. The celebrated nickel steel which has developed such remarkable qualities under the auspices of the United States and other governments, for use in armor, guns and projectiles when the very extreme of violent physical tests must be sustained, is used exclusively in Columbia manufacture this year, and for combined lightness, strength and beauty, places the Columbia Bicycles beyond all reach of comparison for excellence.

The best bicycle in the world with no exception. Full line of Columbias at our store. Instruction in riding and free use of Columbia Riding School to our patrons.

CLIMATE ALONE

will not cure Consumption. It will help; but the disease must have systematic treatment. The germs which produce it must be destroyed. The havoc wrought in the lungs must be repaired; their injured surfaces healed. Change of climate will not do this. It will simply increase the supply of oxygen, and leave nature to struggle on for years with the disease.

Ozomulsion

does better than this. It cures quickly and permanently. It is made of Ozone, Cod Liver Oil and Guaiacol. The Ozone supplies the needed oxygen, and with the Guaiacol destroys the poisonous germs which cause the disease. The Cod Liver Oil is for the purpose of nutrition only. It doesn't kill germs. It doesn't make appetite—in fact, it unmakes it. It is simply a flesh-maker, a tissue-builder. That's the truth—my physician will tell you so.

OZOMULSION is for

ATTACKED HIS HOME.

Three Men Shot at by Farmer Andrews to Protect Himself.

Martin Costigan Received a Fatal Wound.

PITTSFIELD, April 8.—Martin Costigan of Cheshire was shot shortly after midnight by H. S. Andrew's, at the latter's farmhouse on the Cheshire road, about half-way between Cheshire and Dalton. Costigan died an hour and a half later at the House of Mercy in this city.

Costigan, John Kelley and John Shea had been to Cheshire, and on the way to Dalton, through the "Gulf" road, so Kelley and Shea say, they broke a wheel of their wagon and went to Andrews' house to loan them a wagon or a wheel so they could proceed.

Andrews, they say, refused to let them in or to have anything to do with them. Costigan became angry, refused to go away and, when standing in the doorrard, Andrews came out with his shotgun and fired at close range, pouring a large charge of shot into the left side of Costigan's abdomen.

Costigan fell, and his companions say they took him up and proceeded to Dr. Tobin's office in Pittsfield, where it was found by the physician that the abdomen was terribly lacerated, and

The Man Could Not Live.

Costigan died at 2 o'clock this morning, after suffering great agony. He was 34 years old, single, and had lived in Pittsfield formerly. He was a laster in the Dalton shoe shop, and had worked in the Cheshire shoe shop. His mother and sister lived in Cheshire.

H. S. Andrews, who shot Costigan, is about 65 years old and is a farmer. His story is that the three men, who were strangers to him, came to his house in the middle of the night and pretended they had broken a wheel from their wagon.

They began to kick in the front door. He told them to go away or he would shoot them. Instead of going, they continued to kick the door, till they had broken in a panel and had broken a lock.

As the Door Flew Open

and he saw the men coming in he received them with his double-barrelled shotgun and fired. Costigan was in advance and received the charge.

The men, Andrews says, were looking for trouble, and he did not know but they would rob and murder him and his family.

He says that he did not intend to kill any of them, but felt justified in protecting himself and family, and he knew of nothing else he could do against three men but to shoot.

When the old man learned that his victim was dead, he was considerably excited. He was taken to the Pittsfield police station.

They Want Old Wages.

PROVIDENCE, April 8.—Several labor meetings were held in this city yesterday, most of them behind closed doors and with stopped-up keyholes. The operatives of the Atlantic mills, however, took a bold stand, and at a late hour last night reached a final vote on the question of a strike, deciding by a vote of 153 to 17, to give notice of a strike to be begun Wednesday morning. Last Friday the Atlantic operatives demanded a return to the old schedule of wages. The demand was peremptorially refused. Last night's action was the result.

Innocent Onlooker Shot.

BOSTON, April 8.—A few minutes before midnight, Vincenzo Venetia, an Italian, was shot in the neck by one of his countrymen. Giovanni Megna and John L. Barbora, Italians, became involved in a quarrel near Prince street. Megna drew a revolver and fired twice, but missed Barbera. Aroused by the firing, Venetia thrust his head out of the window to see what was going on, and received a bullet. His wound is not serious.

Parents Objected.

LAWRENCE, April 8.—There was a lively scene on Railroad street last night, caused by a girl's father capturing her and taking her home from the ranks of the Salvation Army. Katie Howard, the girl, is 16 years of age. She left home Friday to join the Army, and has been with the latter since. Her parents took counsel with the police and last night she was recovered while proceeding from the barracks to the Salvationists' boarding house.

Conscience Pricked Him.

BOSTON, April 8.—Charles L. Farnum, the 17-year-old adopted son of Mrs. Sarah Farnum, shot himself Saturday and died yesterday morning. Several days ago young Farnum was accused of the theft of his mother's watch and she called in two policemen. The boy was not arrested, but the incident weighed heavily on his mind. Before shooting himself he left a note confessing the theft and asking his mother's forgiveness.

Instantly Killed.

STERLING, Mass., April 8.—Addie L. Lynch, 16 years of age, had been to church in West Boylston with her father, and when near Oakdale, the father, who was driving, attempted to pass a heavily loaded barge going the same way. He drove too far out of the road and the buggy toppled over, throwing the girl under the wheels of the barge, which ran over her, causing instant death.

Winter In the Lap of Spring.

MONTPELIER, April 8.—During the past two weeks the snow has nearly disappeared in the warmer localities, while on the mountains it is still three to six feet deep. The ice has almost entirely gone from the rivers, it having rotted out. There is good sleighing in some high lands, while in the valleys and all low land the roads are getting settled.

Old Block Quickly Consumed.

NORTHAMPTON, April 8.—A fire broke out last evening in the old wooden Kirkland block, in a room occupied by John Rackum on the second floor. There is a strong probability that Rackum was burned to death. The building was 50 years old and was a regular tinder box. The fire was subdued in about two hours. Loss about $5,000.

Street Railroad Tied Up.

BROCKTON, April 8.—A tie-up of the Braintree Street railroad caused much inconvenience to travelers yesterday. At midnight Saturday John Graham of the Quincy and Boston Street railroad placed an attachment on the road, owing to the non-payment of a note of $2100. Superintendent Rogers of the Brockton Street railroad received a letter from Treasurer Beatty of the Braintree road, requesting him to send cars from here and to furnish power from the station here to run the Braintree company's lines. Mr. Rogers did not grant the request, as he could not spare the power.

Dreamed Wife Was Dead.

NEWBURYPORT, April 8 — Austin, the missing Portland man, arrived at the residence of Mrs. Fred Dow, in Salisbury, Saturday evening. He has been to Portsmouth, O. He can give no reason for leaving home. He came east because he dreamed that his wife was dead. Mrs. Dow is his sister.

Fatal Shooting Scrape.

PITTSFIELD, April 8. — Frank Ross, an Italian, while engaged in a drunken carousal with others of his nationality yesterday, was shot. Dominico Calijure, to protect himself from Ross, who rushed at him with a knife. Ross' wounds will not prove fatal. Calijure fled.

Faithfulness Cost a Life.

NEW HAVEN, April 8.—John Coffey, residing a 5 Oak street, jumped from the second-story of his house yesterday, and died shortly after. For a week he has night and day nursed his mother-in-law who had just died. Physicians at the hospital claim that loss of sleep made him insane.

Martin Is Willing.

PROVIDENCE, April 8.—Hugh Martin has accepted a challenge to fight Jim Dolan's "unknown," 10 rounds or to a finish at 155 pounds. The time and place will be determined later. Martin is also willing to fight Dolan himself at catch weights for a purse of $500 to $1000.

Veterans Object to Present Rules.

NASHUA, April 8.—The pensioned soldiers at the State Soldiers' Home, whose pensions are kept by the management except $2 a month, have rebelled. They state that they will not turn their pensions over to the home. The directors refuse to change the rules.

Connecticut Merchant Disappears.

ROCKVILLE, Conn., April 8.—Tolland residents are much excited over the disappearance of A. H. Patten, an ex-postmaster and merchant, who left town last Monday. It is believed that he left many creditors, and that one or more forged notes are in circulation.

Badly Beaten by Robbers.

RUTLAND, April 8.—David Goldman, a spectacle peddler, was waylaid, possibly fatally assaulted and robbed of $32 and his stock just outside this city Saturday night. He was knocked down with a heavy club and kicked in the stomach. His condition is critical.

Old-Time Sea Captain Dead.

PROVINCETOWN, April 8.—Captain Samuel Rice, the oldest vessel master of this place, died yesterday, aged 88 years. He was famous throughout these parts as the captain who brought the first fare of mackerel ever taken from the bay of St. Lawrence, 58 years ago.

Married Life Was Unhappy.

PROVIDENCE, April 8.—Henry M. Smith, an agent of the American Wringer company, Woonsocket, was found dead yesterday in a room at a boarding house. Domestic troubles led him to commit suicide, a step he has threatened to take several times before.

Product Reduced a Half.

BELLOWS' FALLS, Vt., April 8. — A trip through the maple sugar making districts of Vermont and New Hampshire shows that little sugar has been made. The prospects are that not over half the average quantity will be manufactured this year.

Fenn's Condition Is Serious

NEW YORK, April 8.—Rudyard Kipling arrived in this city yesterday and is registered at the Everett House. Mr. Kipling refused to be seen by reporters.

ALWAYS A GENTLEMAN

Men of National Repute Come to President Cleveland's Defense.

Dr. Lansing's Statements Declared to Be Untrue.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The World says today: Indignation of the intensest kind has been excited among Democrats in New York and other cities over the attack made upon President Cleveland at the New England Methodist conference, by Rev. I. J. Lansing of Boston, charging the president with drunkenness at a public dinner in New York.

Many of the leading Democrats and Republicans who attended the three dinners at which Mr. Cleveland was present, between the time of the election in November, 1892, and the inaugurations in March, 1893, yesterday denounced the story as a lie, and in set terms expressed their opinion of the American citizen who, without the shadow of proof, on a simple hearsay statement, would malign the character of the President of the United States.

The three dinners referred to were those of the Chamber of Commerce, given at Delmonico's on Nov. 17, 1892; a dinner at the home of Henry Villard two days later, and that given by the Reform club on Dec. 10, 1892.

Chauncey M. Depew said last night: "There is only one reply that can be made to such a story—it is absolutely contemptible and absurd. At the Chamber of Commerce dinner I sat near Mr. Cleveland. I saw him from the time he came in until he went away. I can say that he was absolutely sober and in full command of his faculties. He conducted himself in the way that the

from the President of the United States."

E. Ellery Anderson said: "I was one of the guests at the dinner given by Mr. Villard in honor of Pesident Cleveland. Incidentally, too, I presided at the Reform club dinner. On both these occasions, as on every other on which I have met President Cleveland, during an acquaintance of many years, he has conducted himself in a way, if possible, to increase the admiration and respect of his fellow-men. We all felt proud of our president. He was, as always, a gentleman."

Frederick R. Coudert, who was one of the leading men men at the Reform club dinner of 1892, had this to say on the subject: "The suggestion or the assertion that President Cleveland was drunk is too contemptible for notice. I was present at the Reform club dinner of that year. I sat next, or almost next, to the president, and I say that he, from first to last, conducted himself as a gentleman and in a manner befitting his office. To say that he was the worse for drink is to utter a falsehood. It seems almost incredible to meet any man, Republican or Democrat, claiming to be an American, with the credit of his country at heart, who would so readily cast an unjust aspersion on the character of the president. A possible explanation of the story is that Dr. Lansing's informant was himself drunk and saw all things as though through a glass darkly."

Rev. Dr. W. H. Vibbert of Trinity chapel, said: "The story is ridiculous, and worse, untrue. Dr. Lansing has been misinformed. I was present at the Chamber of Commerce dinner, sat next to President Cleveland, talked with him, heard his admirable address, and can say that he was in the fullest command of himself from first to last. How on earth such a story could be told puzzles me. It is almost too absurd for denial."

President Cleveland's Indignation.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—When the report of a speech made in a Methodist conference by Rev. Dr. Lansing, and his subsequent published interview, accusing the president of intemperance, was shown o Mr. Cleveland last evening, he said with considerable warmth:

"This is simply an outrage, though it is not the first time a thing of this kind has been attempted. I cannot avoid a feeling of indignation that any man who makes claim to decency, and especially one who assumes the role of a Christian minister, should permit himself to become a disseminator of wholesale lies and calumnies not less stupid than they are cruel and wicked.

"I easily recall other occasions when those more or less entitled to be called ministers of the gospel have been instrumental in putting into circulation the most scandalous falsehoods concerning my conduct and character. The elements or factors of the most approved outfit for placing a false and barefaced accusation before the public appeared to be first, some one with baseness and motive sufficient to invent it; second, a minister with more gullibility and love of notoriety than piety, greedily willing to listen to it and gobble it; and third, a newspaper anxiously willing to publish it.

"For the sake of the Christian religion, I am thankful that these scandal-mongering ministers are few, and on every account I am glad that the American people love fair play and justice, and that in spite of all effort to mislead them, they are apt to form a correct estimate of the character and labors of their public servants."

Killed Three Negroes.

HOUSTON, Tex., April 8.—Four white youths were driving into the city from a day's hunt. Some negroes made jeering remarks, and, upon one of the boys making answer, a negro threw a stone and another drew a revolver. The boys opened fire, killing two negro men and one woman. The white men are in jail awaiting the coroner's investigation.

Part of Crew Missing.

LONDON, April 8—Ship Dundrennan (Br.), Palmer, from Chittagong, Feb. 2, for London, was wrecked of Struis Point, on the southern coast of Africa. The ship and cargo will be a total loss. Three of the crew were saved, but the rest are missing.

Ranges.

In building a business we know of no better way to win the endorsement of the people at large than to handle standard merchandise. Of course the margin is smaller, but the increased sales and universal satisfaction and endorsement of the users, more than offsets the former. We need only add that we carry in stock a full line of the SPLENDID GLENWOOD and MAGEE RANGES, prices $20 to $35.

Baby Carriages.

Our new Spring Patterns are models of beauty,—Attractive, Easy Running, and, best of all, wonderfully low-priced, $3.95 to $20.00. Cut prices on Wakefield and Heywood Carriages.

Refrigerators.

We have looked the market over carefully, and we are convinced that no Refrigerator manufactured today is made with more care or will give such universal satisfaction as THE EDDY. Twenty per cent. discount from the manufacturer's list, they net in price from $5.20 to $25.00. We carry the full line, also special designs in Oak and Hardwood Refrigerators.

Gasoline Stoves.

We have selected THE RELIABLE, and we can frankly say that after witnessing many tests we are convinced that this is by all odds vastly superior to any other make on the market. It is as near an approach to perfection as Yankee wit will permit. Absolutely safe, and so economical, too, they will be more popular this summer than ever before. Prices, $3.50 to $10.00.

White Iron Beds.

The newest and most attractive patterns, $5 to $15. Children's White Iron Cribs, $7.50 to $9.50. Disease germs find no lurking places in these modern beds. They are growing more and more in favor every day.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE FAILURE of the Finance Committee to report the appropriation order to the City Council at the last meeting, shows that the members are giving the estimates of the Mayor some earnest thought. The committee evidently noted many increases along the line, and realized that the total for current expenses was considerable larger than last year.

In 1894 the tax rate of Quincy was the largest in its history of over one hundred years, and we should not break the record again. This year the maturing debt is considerable smaller and there should be a substantial net income in the water department. These should reduce the tax rate, but will not if the current expenses jump up as recommended by Mayor Hodges.

The committee will report to the City Council tonight and several reductions in items may be expected, and still others may be proposed before the order passes. Now is the time to financier, not after the appropriations have been made. It is unfortunate that the appropriation order and items of estimated receipts are not printed annually in the City Book, that they may be handy for comparison. A taxpayer finds it difficult now to calculate the receipts, or to ascertain whether they were sufficient to make up the difference between the amount of the tax levy and the appropriations of 1894. Perhaps they were considerably in excess, and a larger sum than necessary was raised. The city tax of 1894 was $175,000, against $160,000 in 1893, and accounted for $1 of the increase in tax rate. Now is the time for the City Council to show its hand and prevent a further increase in the appropriations and the tax rate. The tax rate must be reduced.

AT MOUNT WOLLASTON.

A Novel Monument Erected to Memory of Bryant N. Adams.

There has recently been erected in Mt. Wollaston cemetery a very handsome monument to the memory of Bryant N. Adams. The monument was manufactured by McGrath Bros., and it is one of the finest pieces of work ever erected in this most beautiful spot.

The monument is a l u h block of Quincy granite, weighing in the vicinity of two tons, and represents as well as possible the life of Mr. Adams.

In appearance it looks as though a rough block of granite had been dropped on the lot, this roughness being intended to represent the rough up-hill work during Mr. Adams early life.

On the front is the name "Adams" in rustic letters from which runs a vine of ivy leading, to the top or smooth part of his life.

The top is fine cut finish and in the centre is a closed ledger the leaves of which clearly show.

The cover of this ledger is highly polished and on the top is cut a quill beneath which is the word "Finis" in fac-simile of Mr. Adams handwriting.

In the corners of the boulder, which it really is, a small piece has been polished, and on these corners are the inscriptions.

It is certainly a fine piece of work and reflects great credit upon McGrath Bros.

Mr. Nicol the new superintendent is on duty at the cemetery every day and expects to have things in this beautiful city of the dead looking nice and green by Memorial day.

It is understood that Mr. Nicol has in view an improvement which will certainly add greatly to the appearance of the cemetery, and that is to do away with the little paths between the lots so as to make one continuous green lawn, after the style of Cedar Grove and other cemeteries.

PALM SUNDAY.

How the Holy Day Was Observed in Quincy and Vicinity.

"PALM BRANCHES" THE SONG.

Notes of the Pulpit, the Choirs and the Sunday Schools.

This is the last week of Lent. Palm Sunday, yesterday, ushered in the Holy week, and the Catholic and Episcopal churches will hold services every day this week, culminating with Easter. The observance of Easter and Lent is becoming more general, and Palm Sunday is the occasion for special texts and music.

The order of services at Christ's church for Holy Week include a visit this evening from Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, D. D., Bishop of Massachusetts. Sermon by the Bishop and Administration of Confirmation. Tuesday, 7.45 P. M., service and address by Rev. Alden L. Bennett of Waltham. Wednesday, 4 30 P. M., service and address. Maunday Thursday, 7.45 P. M., Holy Communion and address. Good Friday, 10 30 A. M., service and sermon, 7.45 P. M. Even song and address. Saturday, (Easter-Even) 4 30 P. M., baptism of children. All the Holy Week services will be in the church. On Good Friday an offering for Missions will be taken at both services. The Easter Day services will be announced later in the week.

Rev. Mr. Bryant, who continues to conduct the services at the Centre Congregational church, preached Sunday morning from Mark 11:9. "Palm Branches," that favorite song, was effectively rendered by Miss Isaac, to organ and violin accompaniment.

Sunday morning the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was celebrated in the Presbyterian church, the Rev. Robert Westly Peach taking as his text, Matt. 10:32, "Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven." Mr. Peach is always in earnest, and in this discourse illustrated the vital distinction between the formal half-hearted confessing of Christ by those who rely on a correct work-record, and those who yield their unreserved whole-souled all on the altar of service with their confession of Him. In the evening Mr. Peach based his discourse on Matt. 20:24, Mark 9:38, and Luke 10:40, and gave a practical illustration of "Christian Manliness and Womanliness."

"A word in season to the weary" was the subject of Rev. Preston Gurney's discourse, at the Wollaston Baptist church on Sunday morning. It was a very earnest sermon and impressive. In the evening a union service was held and Mr. Deming of Boston spoke.

The Wollaston Baptist Sunday School gladly welcomed its superintendent Mr. W. G. Corthell back after a years absence in Europe. An opportunity was given to the scholars to shake hands with him and the whole school marched up the platform, the orchestra playing a march.

A sacred cantata, "The Holy City," will be given at the Congregational chapel Thursday evening by a large chorus.

The Chapel Builders of the Centre Congregation church will meet Wednesday at 2 P. M.

At the Ladies Benevolent society's meeting this week, which will be held with Mrs. E. A. Robinson, Wollaston, on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, the first half hour will be spent in sewing, after which Mrs. Louise A. Kellogg, secretary of the Women's Home Missionary, will speak.

In the East Milton Congregational church, Sunday, Rev. Harry C. Vrooman preached from Heb. 11:40, "God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect." Mr. Vrooman gave a historical and philosophical discourse on the relation of the church to practical life. He showed that in Christ, the slave and the king, all men have access to God. The expression of this idea may be modified by environment, but the spirit of our common brotherhood is surely permeating mankind throughout the world. He indicated the important part the church can act in accelerating the realization of the visible kingdom of heaven on earth if it should rise to its privilege, and urged every one to practice self-abnegation to quicken this glorious consummation.

All churches of the city are requested to send their Easter programmes to the PATRIOT and DAILY LEDGER as early in the week as possible. The texts of sermons and musical programmes are particularly desired.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Holy week.

Easter next Sunday.

The City Council will meet tonight.

Another week of vacation.

Miss Jennie Ellis who has been quite sick is reported as some better.

Rev. J. P. Cuffe has recovered from his illness and celebrated mass Sunday.

Two of the large old trees in the Hancock cemetery, near the railroad track, are being cut down.

Massachusetts Bay Colony of Pilgrim Fathers will initiate two candidates at its meeting tonight.

Mr. Walter C. Badger, formerly of Wollaston, who has been for some time in Brazil, was in town last week.

Dr. Wellington Record of Wollaston has bought the old Taylor place on Newport avenue and after remodelling it will occupy half of it.

An anonymous correspondent asks, "What has become of the High school alumni?" That is what the officers of the association would like to know.

Mr. Frank E Kennard of Wollaston, who has been in Gautemala and other Central American republics, looking over coffee plantations, arrived home last week.

The yachts "Nellie M" and "Cathlene" have changed owners. The former passes into the hands of George Newcomb and the latter into the hands of Edwin Newcomb.

There is no truth in the report that Caterer Wales has been trying to get the whale now on exhibition in Boston, to advertise his business, as he has plenty of them on hand.

Albert Keating was out with his new trotter Saturday afternoon and gave several of the good ones a brush in City Square. It only remains to be said, they took his dust.

At the Bijou pool rooms at Atlantic this evening, there will be a contest in pool, 75 points continuous, between John F. McKenna, winner of Atlantic-Wollaston tournament, and William Horne, winner of South Boston tournament. Fred Ingraham will also give an exhibition.

One of the handsomest show windows seen for a long time is the Faster window at the Granite Shoe store in the Greenleaf block. The window is tastefully draped with white and green in the form of arches, and in the window besides a variety of footwear, are some very handsome Easter lillies.

ATLANTIC MAN SUICIDES.

Daniel M. Sullivan, Sick and Tired of Life, Shoots Himself.

Daniel M. Sullivan of Old Colony street, Atlantic, committed suicide about 1.30 o'clock Sunday morning by shooting himself with a revolver. The unfortunate man had been a sufferer for a long time with consumption and was rapidly failing in health. Realizing the hopelessness of his case he became despondent and determined to end his own life, which he did with a revolver, the bullet entering his body in the region of the heart, causing almost immediate death.

He was about 34 years of age, unmarried, and previous to his sickness was employed as a foundry man.

The affair was kept quiet and while the police had heard rumors that some one had committed suicide they had received no official information of the facts.

Home Industry.

Since the firm of Johann Hoff, of Berlin, formed a syndicate with their agents, the Eisner-Mendelson Co., of New York, to erect a plant in the United States for the manufacture of the celebrated Johann Hoff's Malt Extract, in 1892, the sale of the article here has increased enormously, and it has become a standard commodity on the American market.

The plant erected is one of the best equipped of its kind, and has a capacity to turn out nearly 10,000,000 bottles annually. The article manufactured here is in every way superior to the one formerly imported, as the machinery and equipment of the plant is of the newest and best, and the material used, of the choicest.

This only proves that anything undertaken in the United States is always on a larger and more elaborate scale than in the old country, even with an article which was originated abroad nearly fifty years ago.

☞ A Columbia Bicycle seldom finds its way to the repair shop—other wheels spend most of their time there.

—The old-time slates, slate pencil and sponge will be banished from the public schools in Cambridge after Sept. 1st. Paper and ink, pens and lead pencils will be substituted in their place. Evidently Cambridge isn't in the swim on school matters, else a cut down in school appropriations would have made even this change impossible. But maybe they require the scholars to provide their own writing materials.—Franklin Sentinel.

—The ten shares of Norfolk Suburban Railway stock, advertised last week, brought $1200, an advance of 20 per cent. within a year.—Dedham Transcript.

Estimates of County Commissioners Closely Scrutinized.

CHAIRMAN LATHROP ON STAND.

Braintree, Quincy, Franklin and Brookline Remonstrate.

The Committee on County Estimates and many representatives of Norfolk County towns were on hand this morning at the adjourned hearing on the Norfo'k County estimates for 1895, which aggregate $160,000 this year, being $10,000 in excess in 1894.

Hon. Asa French was there to represent Braintree; City Solicitor Blackmur appeared for Quincy; Selectman Codman for Brookline, and George W. Wiggin of Franklin, J. Q. A. Field of Quincy, G. F. Williams of Dedham, and other interested persons were present.

Hon. M. P. Morrell, the chairman of the County Commissioners was the first and only witness, and his cross-examination was not completed at 12.30 when the hearing adjourned until Wednesday at 10 A. M. Mr. Morrell took up each item in the estimates, stating the amounts were necessary in the judgment of the board.

At the request of Judge French, he compared the items with 1895. Then begun a close examination item by item, but Mr. Morrell failed to show but one good reason for a single increase and that was the item for civil court expenses, the supreme court holding a longer session than usual at Dedham.

Solicitor Blackmur pointed out that there were but three items showing a reduction in the estimates over the expenditures of 1894 and in each case there was a good reason.

The chairman of the committee did not see the necessity for an appropriation for miscellaneous expenses.

Selectmen Codman asked concerning the excesses and balances of items in the list, how the former were met and what became of the latter. He was informed that the total levy only was determined by the Legislature in the past, and all was well so long as expenses did not exceed this. It was the purpose of the committee to itemize estimates.

Various pertinent questions were asked by Messrs. French, Blackmur, Wiggin and members of the committee, but it would be impossible to report all today. The LEDGER will present some interesting figures tomorrow.

Whiting—Glover.

Mr. James B. Whiting, well known to many of our citizens, having been a member of the Congregational church choir for thirty years, was married on Wednesday evening to Mrs. Emma E. Glover, the Rev. Robert Westly Peach officiating. The new couple will reside with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George S. T. Whiting, on Quincy avenue.

Several marine animals propagate by voluntary self-division. A piece breaks off and floats away. For a time it shows no sign of life, but when it has recovered from the shock of separation it develops into a perfect animal.

The intensity of confined sound is illustrated at Carisbrook castle, isle of Wight, where there is a well 200 feet deep and 12 feet in diameter. When a pin is dropped into it, the sound of it striking the surface of the water 182 feet below, can be distinctly heard.

WHOLESALE ARREST.

The police made quite a capture Saturday night when they lodged behind the bars in the police station nine juveniles charged with breaking and entering and larceny.

The first arrest was made during the afternoon when John Crowley and Frederick Mason were locked up in cell number two, for breaking and entering the house of Camile P. Gardiner at "the willows," Atlantic, and the larceny of books, etc., to the value of $30.

This break was made Thursday afternoon but the matter was kept quiet as it was thought another visit would be made. Saturday afternoon, sure enough, another visit was made. The party who discovered them notified Officer Holloran who lost no time in placing them under arrest.

When they saw the officer approaching they ran onto the beach hoping to escape but Officer Holloran sat on the shore quietly and waited for the tide to drive them in when he arrested them.

At the police station the fellows gave their names as above and their residence as Neponset. They acknowledged they were the parties who made the break Thursday.

These boys had broken into the unoccupied house of Mrs. Lucy A. Pratt at Squantum but had not stolen a great deal.

These fellows had not been locked up a great while before Officer Dawson appeared in an improvised "hurry-up" wagon having with him seven juveniles whom he had arrested at Squantum.

They were placed in cell number three and gave their names as Alex. Hume, 14 years; Henry Bailey, 10 years; George Burke, 13 years; Thomas Hume, 12 years; William Turner, 12 years; John Heyer, 12 years; and Chauncey Page 13 years.

They gave their residence as South Boston and as they were too young to realize their position they did not seem to take the matter very seriously.

The Boston police were notified and they in turn notified the boys' parents.

At the Wollaston Traps.

There was a large attendance at the Wollaston traps on Saturday afternoon and some good shooting. Federhen put in good work, breaking 23 on each string, and 18 straight on the first one. D. B. Lincoln came in second with 20. Tucker is doing well with his new gun, his best score being 17. The score out of a possible 25:

THE REVIEW OF TRADE

American Manufacturers Encouraged Over Future.

Advances Noted In Prices of Iron, Boots and Shoes and Textiles.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Bradstreet's Review says today: General trade at Halifax continues dull. This is true at Toronto also, where prices remain steady, notwithstanding unfavorable weather. Montreal merchants are reported meeting their paper falling due a week ago fairly well. General trade is stimulated by the near approach of the opening of navigation.

Bank clearing at Winnipeg, Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax aggregate $16,875,000 this week, compared with $15,261,000 last week, and $20,612,000 in the week last year.

There were 53 business failures in Canada, against 49 last week.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: There is gratifying evidence that most retail trades show marked improvement over 1894, though on the whole trade is smaller than in 1893.

The occurrence of Easter in March last year, but in April this year, is found to account for much difference in the volume of retail trade, especially in dry goods and millinery, and the severe weather and backwardness of the season also retard recovery.

While the volume of trade, in quantities of goods sold, is nevertheless larger than last year, but on the whole smaller than in 1893, the main difference in comparison with '93 is found in the general decline of prices which makes trade in value smaller even where it is clearly as large or larger in quantity.

The best news from the industries is that labor troubles have been settled or avoided, Mahoning iron and eastern woolen mills being again active. Next in importance is the better demand for many products, which gives greater reason to hope that recent advances from the bottom may prove successful.

Signs of Encouragement.

Following the rise in coke, there have been this week sales of 2,000,000 tons lake ore at about 15 per cent advance and finished products are no longer inactive. Bessemer iron rising to $10.65, gray forge to $9.25, common bar to 95 cents, structural angles to $1.05 and plates $1 per ton.

Chicago shares in the rise and the Illinois Steel company has achieved a notable success in taking the contract for steel plates for shipyards at Newport News. Eastern works gain more slowly, notwithstanding the low price of anthracite coal.

The production of Connellsville coke for the week, 168,101 tons, was the largest on record, but there is some fear that higher coke and ore may close some works.

Copper is firmer, as sales of the stock taken from the French syndicate removed a load over the market for the past six years, and tin has been stronger with tin plates because of purchases for Pacific canners.

The success of shoe manufacturers in raising prices grows more complete, and some who first asked 2½ cents advance now ask 7½ cents, with more orders coming than appeared when jobbers resisted. It is conceded that orders are on the whole smaller than usual, especially from the west, though the south is taking more than usual because of the severe winter. Leather is as stiff as ever, and there is no yielding in hides, which are higher in the west than here, though the possibility of importations from Germany is said to hinder further advance in some qualities.

The cotton manufacture goes on gaining, though cotton has halted. Better demand appears for many qualities, and in some slight advance in price.

Sales of wool reflect the renewed confidence of manufacturers, as strikes are out of the way, for 6,675,100 pounds were sold last week, against 4,648,200 last year. No rise in prices is seen or expected in view of heavy sales and receipts of foreign wool.

Sheehan Will Escape.

NEW YORK, April 6.—The special grand jury has dismissed the charges against ex-Police Commissioner Sheehan of having endeavored to induce Captain Schmittberger to permit a gambler to maintain a gambling house, and of having induced a ballot clerk to violate the election law at the last election by omitting to deliver constitutional amendment ballots to voters unless the voters asked for the same.

Found In the River.

NEW YORK, April 6.—The body of Philip Hone, the senior member of the firm of the Philip Hone Importing company, wine importers, was found in the North river yesterday. It was in such a state of decomposition that it could not have been identified except for the clothing, jewelry and papers which were found. He has been missing for two months.

Every State to Be Represented.

MILWAUKEE, April 6.—The annual convention of the American Protective association of the United States and Canada will meet in Milwaukee May 8 to 14. The committee on arrangements has assurances that there will be between 400 and 500 delegates present, and that every state in the Union will be represented.

British Troops Victorious.

SIMLA, April 6.—Late advices from the front are to the effect that the First brigade found the enemy in force beyond the Malakand pass on Thursday. Stubborn fighting ensued. The Ghazas tried to rush the British lines, but they were finally defeated with great loss.

Quarrel Resulted Fatally.

TAHLEQUAH, I. T., April 6.—In attempting to quell a row among graders on a railroad being constructed through the Cherokee nation, a sheriff shot and killed two of the rioters and was himself seriously wounded.

Is William Sincere?

BERLIN, April 6.—The Reichsanzeiger expresses Emperor William's pleasure over the large number of telegrams of devotion and loyalty received by him on the occasion of the celebration of Prince Bismarck's birthday.

Stiles Divorce Cases Ended.

CHICAGO, April 6.—The Stiles divorce case was finally disposed of yesterday by Judge Stiles refusing Everett Stiles' petition for a divorce from Mrs. Stiles, and denying the motion of the plaintiff for leave to file an amended bill.

BACK TO ENGLAND.

BUENOS AYRES, April 8.—Jabez S. Balfour, whose extradition to England was granted a few days ago, sailed hence yesterday on the steamer Tartar Prince. Despite the fact that it was generally believed that he made enormous sums of money out of the building society in which he was interested, he is said to have left Buenos Ayres in a penniless condition.

Ever since it was learned that Balfour had fled to Argentina after the collapse of the Liberator Building society and allied concerns, the British government made efforts to secure his extradition. The charge on which his extradition was sought was that he had fraudulently obtained £20,000 from the House and Land Investment trust. He recently denied that he had any connection with the Liberator society, claiming that he had resigned from the directorate about 10 years ago.

Prior to his flight from England, Balfour was a member of the house of commons in the Liberal interest and was a prominent church member. The failure of the building societies referred to, caused widespread suffering, hundreds of persons having invested every penny they had in the world in them.

When the crash came they were ruined and public subscriptions were taken for their relief. Several of those charged with being responsible for the collapse are now on trial in London.

Thunderer Defends John Bull.

LONDON, April 8.—The Times, in an article on Canada and Newfoundland, says that every commercial argument used in Canada in favor of federation with Newfoundlands forms, from the latter's point of view, an argument against federation. Both Newfoundland and Great Britain have something to lose by the federation of Newfoundland and Canada. It is well, however, in the interests of every one concerned, that the opponents of federation should entertain no delusion. To endeavor to shift the responsibility for Newfoundland's misfortunes to the shoulders of the imperial governments and to continue to ask reproachfully for help, in a form which circumstances absolutely forbid, is simply childishness.

For Boston-Gloucester Service.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8. — The new steamship Cape Ann, built for the Boston and Gloucester Steamboat company, was launched in the Delaware river with the regulation ceremonies. The Cape Ann will ply between Boston and Gloucester, and was ordered with the unusual provision that the building company should furnish a ship complete in every particular, down to the smallest details of the galley outfit and the glassware, china and table linen.

An Oklahoma Storm.

EL RENO, O. T., April 8. — This section has been visited for the last three days with a most terrible wind and sand storm. Business has been practically stopped and traveling impeded. A cloud of sand came up from the southwest and totally obscured the sun, and the darkness of evening settled over the country. During the failing of sand one could hardly breathe.

Returned Part of Stealings.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 8. — Thomas Grady, cashier of the First National bank of Marietta, is charged with embezzlement. It was learned from inside sources that the amount taken was $25,000, but that Grady had made restitution in the sum of $15,000 by turning over securities to the bank. The embezzlement was discovered by Grady stealing $19,000 outright.

Poor Oscar.

THE BLUES.

Why do Women have the Blues more than Men?

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Are not women naturally as light-hearted, brave, and hopeful as men?

Yes; but woman's organism is different from man's.

Women in perfect or good health are rarely victims of this symptom.

When the female organs fail to perform their functions properly, when the dreaded female complaints appear, there is shownervousness, sleeplessness, faintness, backache, headache, bearing-down pains, etc., causing the dreaded "let-me-alone" and "all-gone" feelings.

When the woman does not understand what the matter is, and her doctor can not or will not tell her, she grows morose and melancholy; that's the blues.

Mrs. Newton Cobb, of Manchester, O., says: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all this trouble. I cannot praise it enough. I am pleased to tell every one that it cured me; and if it will cure me, why not others? I am sure my case was severe enough." It will.

Turks to Make an "Inquiry."

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 8.—The report that the pope had prepared a scheme of Armenian reform was premature, but the government has decided to appoint a high commission of inquiry, with a Turkish president, to discuss reforms for Armenia.

Killed Himself In the Bank.

TORONTO, April 8.—C. S. Millinchamp, 28 years old, shot himself in the Bank of Toronto, of which institution he was paying teller. Death was instantaneous. Millinchamp had been on a prolonged spree and was suffering from the effects.

Indiana Mines Closing.

CARBON, Ind., April 8.—The Crawford mines have shut down for an indefinite period, and it is reported that other mines will close this week. About 500 miners are thrown out of employment.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co, Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

PLEADING FOR PEACE.

Law-Abiding Cubans See Nothing to Be Gained by Revolution.

Rebel Leaders' Plans Carefully Followed.

Over Five Thousand Men Have Rifles and Cartridges Within Reach.

HAVANA, April 8. — The autonomist party has issued an important manifesto, which declares that the party profoundly recognizes the confidence reposed in it by the government.

After pointing out the benefits that have recently been conferred on Cuba, the manifesto declares that all the political parties condemn the rebellion, which interrupts the pacific progress the island was making, and says it is a desperate venture that will cause a retrogression of civilization.

It advocates that peace be maintained by all Cubans who have the interests of the island at heart, and calls upon them to use their efforts to restore tranquility. It is added that the manifesto is issued by the signers, not as chiefs of a party, not as Liberals or autonomists, but as patriots and brothers, who aspire to happiness, dignity and the maintainance of their rights.

Waiting For Campos.

General Martinez Campos, with $2,000,000 in cash, a lot of troops and a large personal prestige, is now on the ocean and bending sail hither. Great will be the day and occasion when Campos again sets foot on Cuban soil to put down another rebellion. The people here are expecting him and anticipate with anxious interest his coming.

To an onlooker, however, the interest among unofficial people seems to arise more from anticipation of the pageant and the clatter of bright metal, than from any consciousness that Campos is needed here. Havana, always accustomed to military, has not been vividly impressed by the landing of the troops from Spain.

The repression of the Havana papers results in ignorance of details, if not of facts, from the eastern districts; and so, while the people look on and are interested in the show before them, they feel they have no personal part in the matter, and are indeed quite content to leave all fatigue of activity to those who must act.

Keeping an Eye on Rebels.

Utmost vigilance is exercised by the government to prevent the landing in Cuba of the rebel leaders who are in other parts. The government especially and definitely desires to intercept Maceo, whom the officials profess to believe has not effected a landing on Cuban soil. There is private information in this city, however, that Maceo is now on the island, and that the other leaders will come later.

This Cuban negro, Maceo, a veteran of the last rebellion, is said to be an able man, a shrewd tactician in the chapparal, and indubitably brave. He is to the official house here the bogy man of the insurrection.

Movements of the rebels prove that the plan laid out by their leaders is being consistently followed. Their's is a waiting campaign. They appear and disappear. They make a sortie against soms village, and, if troops appear, they hustle away out of sight.

They have alarmed the inhabitants and they have harassed the troops, whose officer telegraphs the governor general that his men bravely made after "a group" (that is the governmental designation of rebel forces), and routed the enemy, who "ran away"—another technical designation of disappearance of rebels.

Plenty of Arms and Ammunition.

It is a fact that there are on this island today between 5000 and 6000 rebels, who have rifles and cartridges within reach. The government may scout this statement, but it is true. And the plan of campaign is to wait. The leaders know better than to openly oppose this 5000 or 6000 men against superior forces, when climate and sickness are relied on as allies later on.

"Why don't the rebels pitch in and do something before all the Spanish troops reach here?" is a question asked by opponents of the rebellion here.

The answer is that while engaging the forces now here the rebels would suffer losses not to be rapidly mended, and upon their weakened force would be constantly coming more fresh troops from Spain.

"Let Spain get here all she intends to send, and then we will play hide and seek with them, until, aided by climatic conditions, we can combine all our forces, and strike a decisive blow at the sickening and climate-worn forces of Spain." That is about the reply that the insurrectionists would make to criticism of their lack of aggressive activity.

Already the government troops are scouring through Manzanillio, and Colonel Santocildes has just telegraphed the governor here as to what action shall be taken in the event of the rebels in big or little groups desiring to surrender. Clearly, Santocildes expects success. Troops are being sent to guard the plantations.

Killed by Robbers.

ALTOONA, Pa., April 8.—Henry Bonneka, an aged bachelor, who lived alone in the western part of the city, was found dead on the floor of his room yesterday, having been murdered. Bonneka had not been seen since last Thursday, and it is supposed that he was murdered that night.

The Customary Denial.

FIGHTING IN INDIA.

A Desperate Battle In Which British Troops Came Out Victorious.

SIMLA, April 8.—The First brigade of the British force, moving to the aid of Mr. Robinson, the British agent at Chitral, has had an engagement with 5000 Swatis, who were trying to block the Malakand pass. The enemy were put to flight after losing 30 killed. A considerable number of fanatics from Upper Swatis have joined Umra Khan of Jandol, who is leading the forces against the British.

The enemy stoutly resisted the British attempts to throw pontoons across the Swat river at Alladand yesterday morning. The Swats occupied the heights commanding the river, and kept up an ineffectual fire on the engineers and other employed in placing the pontoons in position. Umra Khan's brother was present with a large number of cavalry and infantry.

Brigadier General Waterfield's brigade, with the Fifteenth Sikh regiment, advanced and forced a passage of the river assisted by a mountain battery and a maxim gun. Then the Eleventh Bengal Lancers made a brilliant dash and crossed the river. They at once attacked the enemy, who retreated. The lancers pursued them to Uck, killing 100 of them.

The Fourth and Fifteenth Sikh regiments, when across the river, occupied Chakrana. The Scottish Borderers forded the river at a point a mile distant from where the pontoon bridge was placed, and captured Thama with little trouble.

The British loss was one sapper and a few other men killed. A number of horses were also killed. One thousand camels with the transport train have succeeded in crossing the Malakand pass and have arrived at Khar.

Fought Before Giving Up.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 8.—Alexander Simms, a negro, shot and killed a young colored boy named Napoleon Stucks Saturday. The officers got on his trail yesterday and chased him to a barn in the eastern part of the city. Simms opened fire with a pistol at the officers. Policeman Miner was shot in the breast and killed almost instantly. Lieutenant Miner, his brother, and two negroes who had joined in the chase after Simms, were shot, one it is thought fatally. Simms fired 17 shots and then surrendered.

BUILDINGS WRECKED.

A New Orleans Powder Explosion May Cause the Loss of Several Lives.

NEW ORLEANS, April 6.—At an early hour yesterday an explosion of powder took place in a ship chandlery establishment run by Charles Salathe. The store was located in a three-story building, which was destroyed. Salathe, together with his wife, one child, three servants and a clerk, were caught by the falling walls and killed.

A saloon run by Emile Boulet, situated next door, was crushed by the tumbling ruins, with five or six fishermen who were sleeping upstairs over the saloon. The ruins caught fire, but the fire department soon succeeded in extinguishing the flames, and the search for the bodies was begun.

The following people are known to have been in the two buildings at the time: Charles J. Salathe, wife and baby and two children, Ellie, aged 10, and Lily aged 5; Felix Rigaud, barkeeper.

Missing: Emile Boulet, proprietor of and who slept over the saloon, and who escaped; Joseph Grimaldi, who is supposed to have been in the saloon at the time; Constantine Itro, fruit stand keeper, French market.

The injured so far as known are: James Murphy, Charles Reis, Dave Labue, Charles Aballier, Lily and Eldie Salathe, Constantine Itro, J. Vallenti, Frank Aballier.

Of these bodies, Mr. and Mrs. Salathe, clasped in each other's arms, have been recovered; also that of their infant. Emile Boulet and Constantine Itro were blown out into the street, but were not much injured.

The bodies of Felix Rigaud and Joseph Grimaldi and Mike Biri are believed to be in the ruins. Eddie Salathe, aged 10, and Lily, aged 5, slept in a rear room over the grocery store. They were saved, somewhat bruised, but not seriously hurt. It is believed that many more people besides those mentioned above are buried in the ruins. The money loss is about $40,000.

LANSING APOLOGIZES

For Having Made the Statement Concerning the President.

Made Allusions as a Matter of Common Report.

He Refuses to Reveal Names of Witnesses Who Had "Ocular Proof."

BOSTON, April 9.—Rev. Isaac J. Lansing, pastor of the Park street church in this city, who, in an address before the New England Methodist conference at Salem last week, called President Cleveland a drunkard, last night declared himself as follows on the subject:

"My allusion made in a temperance address at Salem on Thursday, April 4, to the drinking habits of the President of the United States, was based partly on common report and partly on the testimony of eye-witnesses. From various and independent sources, which I believed to be wholly reliable, I had been informed that the president had been seen on different occasions and in the presence of many persons, in an intoxicated condition.

"From the circumstantial and detailed character of these statements, I supposed there was no doubt as to the facts alleged. I, therefore, made this allusion as a matter of common report, basing my confidence on the testimony of personal, and, as I supposed, credible witnesses.

"The names of these witnesses, obviously, I cannot, with propriety, reveal, since sharing their knowledge in common with many others.

They Might Justly Shrink

from being singled out and called to verify that of which, not only they, but others equally with themselves, had ocular proof.

"I must therefore say that if my statement reproducing such testimony is not in harmony with facts, I regret having made it. I could have neither desire nor motive for saying anything unkind or uncharitable of the president or of any party whatsoever.

"The case being one of conflict of testimony between witnesses of equal credibility, I cannot decide, and since I have no personal knowledge, apart from the testimony, I withdraw the statement and tender apologetic and sincere regrets to the President of the United States and to the public."

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 9.—The senate refused to admit the petition for an investigation of the Brookline Gas company. Leave to withdraw was reported on the bill relative to the debt limit and the sinking funds of Boston. The committee on insurance reported a bill to prevent the issuing of life insurance policies without previous medical examination. The finance committee reports leave to withdraw on the petition that the city of Worcester may be reimbursed from the state treasury for a portion of the expense incurred in connection with its sewerage system. The house refused to reconsider its vote on the hotel barroom bill. The house concurred with the senate in engrossing the bill to revise the charter of the city of Lawrence.

Will Controversy Settled.

BOSTON, April 9.—The Hall will case is settled, and Mrs. Kate Dewey is made richer by $500,000. Elven Dean Hall died Jan. 4, 1893, leaving an estate valued at over $500,000. Mrs. Dewey fought the will, which left the bulk of the estate to two nephews, with an allowance to Mrs. Dewey, if she were legally freed from her husband. The probate court set aside the will in her favor, and an appeal was then taken to the supreme court. This has now been withdrawn, and a settlement made practically in accord with the verdict of the probate court.

Immigration Should Be Checked.

BOSTON, April 9.—Judge J. R. Dunbar was the special guest of the Universalist club last night. He delivered an address on "The Restriction of Immigration," giving figures to show that the percentage of illiterates and undesirable persons was on the increase among the immigrants, and calling attention to the debauchery of the large cities and their lack of sympathy with our public institutions. He said: "We ought to have such laws as will retard and interrupt the stream flowing toward our shores.

Sank In Three Minutes.

VINEYARD HAVEN, April 9.—The three-masted schooner Josiah R. Smith of Bath, from Baltimore for Boston, with a cargo of coal and the barge Lone Star from Boston for Norfolk, the latter in tow of the steamer Orion, collied when about four miles from Gay Head. The Lone Star struck the Smith between the fore and main rigging on the port side, cutting her through to the main hatch and causing her to sink in three minutes. The crew narrowly escaped going down with the wreck.

Easy on Sanford.

CONCORD, Mass., April 9.—At the annual town meeting yesterday, a motion was made that the town proceed against ex-Collector Sanford for embezzlement, and endeavor to secure a conviction. The motion was lost by a good majority. The meeting voted to have the bonds of the tax collector changed from private persons to a surety company, as a step towards preventing a repetition of such events as the Sanford episode.

Previous Decision Stands.

SALEM, April 9.—A rescript was received yesterday at the office of the clerk of courts in the case of the commonwealth vs. Fred M. Smith, ex-alderman of Haverhill. This was a test case of those against the alleged boodle aldermen, charging conspiracy. In the decision, the exceptions of the defense are overruled, and nothing now remains to be done but to sentence the convicted men.

From Poverty to Wealth.

NORTHAMPTON, April 9.—About two weeks ago fire destroyed the house and furniture of a poor German, Oswald Franz, living in Norwich. There was no insurance, and Franz was so poor that the neighbors helped him to set up housekeeping. He has now received word of the death of a relative in Germany leaving him $50,000, and he starts this week to get it.

Fired Three Shots.

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 9.—Frank L. Fairbanks, a plumber, 35 years old, unmarried, made a murderous attempt on the life of his sister, Mrs. Matthew McDonald, last night, firing three shots at her with a revolver, one taking effect in the back of her head. Mrs. McDonald will recover. Fairbanks had not been on good terms with his sister for a long time.

Courtship Saved His Life.

BRIDGEPORT, April 9.—John M. Brunsen, employed by McElroy Bros. of this city, who was reported drowned on the Elbe while returning from a visit home, turned up yesterday with a wife. He bought a ticket for the Elbe, but changed his mind when he saw his way clear to a successful courtship, and remained until after the marriage ceremony.

For Breaking, Entering and Larceny.

BANGOR, April 9.—The police have arrested James Barber on a charge of breaking and entering and larceny. They also arrested F. W. Doherty for receiving stolen goods. The thefts covered a period of two years, and the whole amounts in value to about $5500. Barber is supposed to have sold the goods to Doherty, who is a saloon keeper.

Guilty of Wrongful Borrowing.

PROVIDENCE, April 9.—The Southern New England Methodist Episcopal conference found Rev. C. D. Dunbar of Stoughton, Mass., guilty of borrowing money without having the means to pay it back, and he was expelled from both the ministry and the church. He appealed.

Schooner Marguerite's Safe Arrival.

GLOUCESTER, April 9.—A letter from the schooner Marguerite of this port, dated Dyrefjord, Iceland, March 14, announces the vessel's arrival after a passage of 16 days. She is the first arrival there this season. The weather has been the finest for 25 years.

Too Big For a Town.

NORTH ADAMS, April 9.—At the annual town meeting yesterday the Republicans elected the entire ticket. A city charter was accepted by 568 majority and the town voted for license by 334 majority. The citizens were jubilant over the idea of becoming a city.

Tedious Job Completed.

BOSTON, April 9.—Five experts, who have been counting the money at the subtreasury here, completed their task yesterday. They find that the money in the vaults corresponds exactly with the month's figures in the books. The amount was $12,109,143.24.

A Shake-Up at Salem.

SALEM, April 9.—By an explosion of benzine at the Bay State dychouse, Joseph Dearborn and Lizzie Dow were badly burned. Surrounding property was considerably shaken by the concussion, but the damage was slight.

Aged Woman's Fatal Fall.

BOSTON, April 9.—Mary F. Morris, 68 years old, fell from a second story window of her home, 38 Cove street, last night, and was instantly killed. She was leaning out of the window and lost her balance.

TWENTY-ONE KILLED.

Miners In the Northwest Become Victims of an Explosion.

But Two Men Managed to Escape Alive.

Rescuing Party Unable to Render Aid on Account of Dense Gas.

TACOMA, April 9.—An explosion in Blue Canon coal mine on Lake Whatcom yesterday afternoon killed 21 men. W. A. Telford came from the mine last night. He was at the bunkers when the explosion occurred. He went to the incline and found James Kearns at the mouth of the shaft nearly dead with exhaustion.

Kearns said all in the mine were dead. He had carried Ben Morgan as far as he was able and then left him. Morgan, he thought, was dead. Kearns and Gallum were the only ones who had escaped out of 23 men who were at work. Tom Valentine and John Anderson were in the incline, and they escaped.

At the switch of the gangway, 800 feet from the mouth of the tunnel, Ecklund and Telford found the body of George Roberts, and beyond were 30 loaded cars which had been blown off the track. They next found the body of Ben Morgan, who was dropped by Kearns, Ecklund and others.

They were unable to go beyond room 21, 500 feet from the angle of the tunnel and gangway. Their safety lamps went out, and the gas drove them back into room 21, where they found the bodies of Thomas Conlin and James Kirby. It is supposed that in addition to the four found, 19 perished. The gas was so thick, that the rescuing party was only able to stay a few minutes.

Safety lamps were used everywhere in the gangway. The tunnel is 800 feet long and the gangway 1000 feet long, and has 26 rooms opening from it. The fans were kept running all the time, and the cause of the explosion is unknown.

The Commons' New Speaker.

LONDON, April 9.—Arthur Wellesly Peel delivered his farewell address to the house of commons yesterday, and retired from the speakership after 11 years of service. William Court Gully, whom the cabinet has selected to succeed Mr. Peel, was born in London 60 years ago. He was called to the bar at the Inner Temple in 1860. In 1877 he became queen's counsel, bencher of his inn in 1879, and was appointed recorder of Wigan in 1886. He has sat in the house of commons for Carlisle since 1886. Mr. Gully is a Liberal, supporting Mr. Gladstone's Irish policy.

Boom In Western Business.

CHICAGO, April 9.—The business situation in the west has materially improved within a week, owing to the liberal rates. Merchants and railway officials were beginning to complain about the drouth, and the merchants refused to buy goods until prospects for crops brightened. Now they are in the market as far buyers, as crop prospects are better. The movement of grain, however, is small, and the deliveries here have decreased 459,000 bushels for the week.

Had Enough of the Wells.

HALIFAX, April 9.—Eleven of the crew of the Gloucester fishing schooner Bessie M. Wells, which struck on a rock off Newfoundland, March 28, arrived here last night by steamer St. Pierre. The schooner's keel is gone and she is badly strained. The crew, with the exception of three, refused to proceed any further in her, and were sent here by the United States consul. They will be forwarded to Gloucester.

Suspicions of Desertion.

HONG KONG, April 9.—The Chinese of the island of Formosa are disaffected, thinking that their exclusion from the armistice indicates that they have been deserted by the Pekin authorities, and the foreigners on that island believe that the Japanese would be welcomed after a slight resistance. There is great fear at Canton at the prospect of an attack upon the part of the Japanese.

Military Leader Wanted.

HONOLULU, March 30.—President Dole is expected to issue a proclamation summoning the legislature for May 1. The line officers of the military and the cabinet agreed on the desirability of obtaining an American as colonel, the recent revolt showing a lack of military skill on the part of the officers and the necessity for a trained leader.

Another Anti-Catholic Society.

SPRINGFIELD, O., April 9.—A powerful organization has been effected in Ohio which is closely allied to the American Protective association, with the object to go into the political field and to secure the election to office of none but anti-Catholics. The order is called the Knights of the American Flag.

Maddened by Defeat.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., April 9.—Archibald Snyder and Levi Warner had a wrestling match. Warner, who was worsted, fired a shotgun at Snyder. Thirty buckshot were removed from Snyder's neck by physicians, who say that his recovery is doubtful.

Monopoly Raises Prices.

PITTSBURG, April 9.—The oil market opened yesterday about 8 or 9 cents over Saturday's closing prices and advanced to $1.30. At the agencies of the Standard company the purchase price has been advanced 10 cents.

Boat Upset.

WESTCHESTER, N. Y., April 9.—Two men came up here from New York city yesterday and hired a boat and went out fishing. Their boat was upset and both men were drowned. Their names are not known.

Cholera Thinning Ranks.

KOBE, April 9.—Cholera has broken out among the Japanese troops at the Pescadore islands. About 400 cases have occurred, and of this number 100 persons have died from the disease.

Students of nature have never been able to explain the chameleon's change of color.

This Spring

is the time of all others in which to buy

Carpets.

By reason of recent tariff changes, the conditions of trade are such that prices are unusually low, whether on foreign or domestic goods—that's one important point.

Another consideration of consequence is that in buying of us you are enabled to choose from the best possible assortment of colors and styles—the largest and freshest.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

TAXPAYERS UPON reading the report of the Water Commissioners are naturally disappointed to learn that the estimated income of the department for 1895 is but $56.95 more than the actual receipts last year. Have the commissioners purposely estimated the amount low, that the department might have more funds? It is worth investigating, as $5,000 or $10,000 would decrease the tax levy quite materially. One of the Water Commissioners informed the LEDGER last year, after the rates were reduced that the services would pay over $20 apiece on the average, and as the recent report places the number of service connections at 2,243, the revenue from this source alone should be $45,000. Then add what the city pays for water for hydrants, etc. There are said also to be many delinquent water takers. As the city has taken steps to collect promptly, the receipts should be further increased this year. Perhaps they will be $50,000. If the maintenance account of $14,000 was reduced by some items that properly belong to the construction account, a further gain would be made toward meeting the maturing debt the whole of which was met in 1894 by direct taxation.

BISHOP LAWRENCE

Administers Confirmation at Christ's Church, Quincy.

Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, D. D., of the Massachusetts Diocese made his second visit to Christ's church, Monday, and notwithstanding the threatening weather the large number of extra seats provided were hardly sufficient for the congregation gathered to witness the ceremony.

The order of services was as follows:

Processional.

Prayer by the rector Rev. Walter Russell Breed.

Sermon by James B. Thomas of St. Chrysostoms, candidate for priests orders.

Offertory, "The Palms," by choir, the solo or which was especially fine.

Sermon by Rt. Rev. Bishop Lawrence. Isaiah 3: 3, "I have trodden the wine press alone."

The sermon was an eloquent one and was listened to with marked attention.

The Bishop then administered the rite of confirmation to twenty-five persons, from Quincy, Wollaston and Dedham, afterward saying a cheering word to each.

The Bishop expressed himself as very much pleased with the marked increase in attendance and general prosperity of the church.

Owing to illness in the family of the Bishop he was obliged to leave by an early train and did not have an opportunity to greet personally the parishioners.

The sermon this evening will be by Rev. Alden Bennett of Waltham.

LAST EVENING'S FIRE.

A Lively Blaze Which Was Well Fought by Department.

It was but a few minutes past 8 o'clock Monday evening when people at the centre saw a bright light in the southern sky and almost instantly with this light came an alarm from Box 37 which called the department to a stubborn blaze in the stable of Frederick Hardwick on Franklin street.

It was just 50 seconds from the time of the first blow on the alarm when the apparatus at the central station turned the corner into School street.

Upon arrival at the scene the entire building seemed to be enveloped in flames.

The department went to work with a will and soon had several well directed streams on the burning mass.

The combined efforts of these streams soon extinguished the fire which at first looked as though it would destroy the building and those adjoining.

Just how the fire started is a mystery, although Mr. Hardwick is inclined to think it was incendiary.

It was discovered by George Hobart who saw a light in the building and notified Mr. Hardwick.

While Mr. Hobart was turning in the alarm, Mr. Hardwick with the aid of others who had arrived, succeeded in getting out the cows in safety.

The building was valued at about $600, and the damage will amount to $300, the amount of the insurance.

In the building were a lot of old mattresses, hay, etc., all of which is practically ruined and the loss on the contents will amount to upwards of $50.

SLIGHT REDUCTION.

Finance Committee Concur in Most of the Estimates.

WOOD, BRICK AND STONE PLANS

Now Suggested for the New Schoolhouses—Majority for Wood.

The proposed schoolhouse plans were again the subject of discussion at the adjourned meeting of the City Council Monday evening. The advocates of wooden building continue to constitute a small majority but the order has not yet passed, and as it now reads it calls for plans of wood, brick and stone. The appropriation order was reported with some amendments to the estimates but effected in the aggregate a reduction of only $1,400, and of this $500 is outside the tax levy being in the water department. The proceedings are fully reported below. Councilman Sidelinger was the only absentee.

High School Grading.

A communication of the Mayor forwarded with his recommendation an enclosure from the Commissioner of Public Works, relative to grading of the High school grounds. Referred.

Petitions.

There was one application for a pool license, and one as a common victualler.

Thomas L. Sturtevant and others petitioned for the removal of the three arc street lights on Adams street, between Whitwell street and the residence of W. N. Eaton, and the substitution of as many incandescent lights as could be maintained at the same cost. To Committee on Lights.

Thomas L. Sturtevant and others petitioned for the regrading of Adams street from Whitwell street to Furnace brook. To Committee on Streets.

Reports.

The Committee reported favorably on the order for crossing on Beale street at Belmont street and it was passed by a vote of 16 to 5, viz:

YEAS,—Barker, Bryant, Geary, Grindell, Hayden, Lamb, Nickerson, O'Brien, Parker, Phillips, Pinkham, Rinn, Russell, Shackley, Spear and Sprague—16.

NAYS—Adams, Bigelow, Dixon, Johnson and Rice—5.

ABSENT—Sidelinger.

The ordinance concerning the duties of City Solicitor was passed on roll call.

More Light.

The order for several additional lights was under suspension of rules passed to be ordained, Councilman Geary being alone in negative.

School House Plans.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported in favor of plans for brick schoolhouses.

Councilman Johnson desired to learn if it was an unanimous report.

Councilman Shackley said he had not changed his mind but was still for wood.

Councilman Nickerson said stone had received considerable thought from committee this week. Were advised that stone would cost 7 to 20 per cent. over brick. Brick answered all the purposes of stone. It was also a question of looks. Could not erect handsome stone building at small cost.

Councilman Bigelow said we had no estimate for brick for less than $30,000, and he would guarantee it could be built of wood for $25,000. He had some doubt if two schoolhouses were actually needed this year. Thought it possible to utilize the old High. Would transport children if necessary. Those contemplating taking up their residence in a town inquired about the schools not the buildings. The brick building had as much wood on interior to get on fire as did wooden buildings.

Councilman Lamb opposed report, and argued for at least one stone building.

Councilman Johnson further argued for wood and economy, and wanted to hear what changed Councilman Sprague.

Councilman Nickerson was surprised to see Councilman Bigelow for economy and in favor of stone.

Councilman Phillips made the speech of the evening. He thought it would be nowhere near a calamity to pass an order for wooden schoolhouses. He recognized the stern necessity for economy. Ward Two was not sinister or selfish, and it should not be taunted with not raising children. Last year Braintree erected an eight-room wooden building which was a thing of beauty. Our needs were many and a bonded debt was not healthful prosperity. There was more danger from debt than from fire.

Councilman Adams believed it would be a good idea to have plans for both brick and wood.

Perhaps You Don't Know It,

But there is a law against falsehood in advertisements. It isn't on the statute books, but it is written in the hearts of the people, and when they convict a merchant of this offence they fine him "LIKE SIXTY."

Ranges.

In building a business we know of no better way to win the endorsement of the people at large than to handle standard merchandise. Of course the margin is smaller, but the increased sales and universal satisfaction and endorsement of the users, more than offsets the former. We need only add that we carry in stock a full line of the SPLENDID GLENWOOD and MAGEE RANGES, prices $20 to $35.

Baby Carriages.

Our new Spring Patterns are models of beauty,—Attractive, Easy Running, and, best of all, wonderfully low-priced, $3.95 to $20.00. Cut prices on Wakefield and Heywood Carriages.

Refrigerators.

We have looked the market over carefully, and we are convinced that no Refrigerator manufactured today is made with more care or will give such universal satisfaction as THE EDDY. Twenty per cent. discount from the manufacturer's list, they net in price from $5.20 to $25.00. We carry the full line, also special designs in Oak and Hardwood Refrigerators.

Gasoline Stoves.

We have selected THE RELIABLE, and we can frankly say that after witnessing many tests we are convinced that this is by all odds vastly superior to any other make on the market. It is as near an approach to perfection as Yankee wit will permit. Absolutely safe, and so economical, too, they will be more popular this summer than ever before. Prices, $3.50 to $10.00.

White Iron Beds.

The newest and most attractive patterns, $5 to $15. Children's White Iron Cribs, $7.50 to $9.50. Disease germs find no lurking places in these modern beds. They are growing more and more in favor every day.

Parlor Furniture.

We have the greatest bargains on earth in Parlor Sets. Plush, Rugs, Hair Cloth, Tapestry or Silk Brocatelles, prices $25.00 to $90.00. Odd Chairs and Fancy Rockers.

Chamber Furniture.

Oak and Ash, handsome designs. We offer GREATER VALUE than can be found in any retail store in the State. $15.00 to $50.00.

Carpets,

Mattings, Rugs, etc. Reliable Goods, Attractive Patterns. Mattings, 9 cents to 35 cents. Carpets, 22 cents to 85 cents. CARPETS TAKEN UP, CLEANSED and RE LAID.

Bissell Carpet Sweepers

No matter what you need in Furniture, you will do well to merit by our wonderfully low prices on Reliable Goods.

COUNTY EXPENSES.

The Estimates Largely in Excess of Expenditures of 1894.

AN INTERESTING COMPARISON.

A comparison of the county estimates of 1895, with the actual expenditures of 1894 will prove of value at this time when the estimates are before the Legislature. It also shows that an increase in the county tax is unnecessary and further that there is a grand chance for a reduction. The figures are given herewith.

The total excess of estimates over expenditures as given is $67,459. Deduct if you will the $5,000 for maturing debt, $500 for dedication of court house, $10,000 for addition to court house, and the amount is still $51,959. The income of 1894 was $1,667 in excess of the estimate for 1895, and would increase the margin to $53,626. Would it not be wise in a year like this to reduce the county tax $10,000, $20,000, $30,000, or even $40,000?

From 1882 to 1892 the county tax averaged but $70,000. The expenditures for actual current expenses in recent years have been as follows:

1890,	$104,036
1891,	98,005
1892,	89,934
1893,	92,934
1894,	100,408

Another hearing will be given tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, at the State House before the Committee on County Estimates.

Quincy Men Were There.

Among the various veteran military organizations, the Minute Men of 1861 seem to have become the most popular among our people. As the name implies, its members are those who responded at a minute's notice to the first call of President Lincoln and Governor Andrew, April 15, 1861; many of them merchants, mechanics, business men and students, went direct from their places of business to Faneuil Hall, thence to Washington.

The 34th annual reception in the Methodist church, 42 Bromfield street, at 10 o'clock A. M., and banquet in Faneuil Hall, Boston, at 1 o'clock, Monday, April 15, promises to be a grand affair. Governor Greenhalge, Mayor Curtis and other prominent persons will be present to address the meeting.

The President for 1895 is Gen. A. P. Martin; First Vice-President, Capt. James H. Griggs; Adjutant and Secretary, Comrade Frank A. Brown of 31 Cornhill, and Col. George W. Nason, 21 School street, Boston, is the Quartermaster.

Their invitation is general for all veterans and their friends to attend their banquet. Secure tickets early.

Advertised Letters.

At Wollaston postoffice Monday, April 8, C. F. Wilde, postmaster:

Mr. C. S. Berry, Mrs. Lizzie Callum, Sanford R. Cook, F. J. Cooper, Mary Leary, Mr. Michael McCann, Mr. R. J. Robinson, Mrs. Mary A. Tyler, Mr. James York.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

SLIGHT REDUCTION.

Councilman Lamb also wanted plans for stone.

Councilman Rice had been informed that stone would cost 15 per cent. over brick. That wood with brick petitions would cost $26,500 as against $30,000 for brick. He favored plans of wood and brick.

Councilman Geary favored brick. He knew of some narrow escapes of children from wooden, which were sheer good luck.

Councilman Pinkham had at first favored wood, but in conversation with contractors and others he had been converted to brick, and now regarded it as the most economical for city.

Councilman Shackley regarded it as preposterous to say brick was more economical as to expense. The difference in cost at interest would pay all repairs for fifty years.

Councilman Grindell did not see why the Lincoln schoolhouse plans could not be remodelled for nine rooms and used.

Councilman Nickerson had thought so at first, but it was hardly possible.

The report in favor of brick was rejected by a vote of 10 to 11 on a rising vote.

The order for wood then came up.

Councilman Bryant said plans for wooden buildings would only be placed in the safe, for it would be impossible to get an appropriation order for wood through this Council. If plans for wood and brick were desired they would be submitted free in response to an advertisement, to be paid for if used.

After further discussion an order for $1000 for plans of wood, brick and stone was advanced a stage.

Orders.

Councilman Adams offered an order authorizing the borrowing of $250,000 in anticipation of taxes. Read once.

Councilman Bryant offered an order that the City Treasurer report the delinquent water taxpayers of July 1, 1894, which was passed.

Councilman Lamb offered an order granting Di Boni Bros. permission to run wire guy across Kent street. Read once.

A petition was received from P. R. Blackmur and others that Elm street be sprinkled this summer. To Committee on Streets.

The order granting the Telephone Company a location on Hancock and other streets took its second reading.

The ordinance relative to the removal of snow by street railways was taken from the table. It was opposed by Councilman Johnson, and favored by Councilman Lamb and Bryant, and passed 16 to 4 as follows:

YEAS—Adams, Barker, Bryant, Dixon, Geary, Grindell, Hayden, Lamb, Nickerson, O'Brien, Parker, Pinkham, Rice, Russell, Spear and Sprague—16.

NAYS—Bigelow, Johnson, Phillips and Rinn—4.

Adjourned at 9.33 to meet April 15.

POOL AT ATLANTIC.

McKenna Defeats the South Boston Champion.

Considerable interest was manifested Monday evening in the pool tournament for a purse of $25 at the Bijou Pool rooms, Atlantic, between John F. McKenna, winner of the Atlantic-Wollaston tournament, and William Horne, winner of the South Boston tournament The tournament was for 75 points continuous pool.

The contest was witnessed by a large number of admirers of both contestants who watched the play with interest and vigorously applauded the Atlantic boy when it was certain he was a winner.

McKenna's score was 75 points his best run being 12 points. Horne's score was 69 and his best run was 10 points.

After the contest there was an interesting exhibition of pool playing by the expert player of Quincy, Fred Ingraham, and George Berry of Melrose, champion of New England, which was won by Ingraham, by a score of 100 to 64.

Ingraham's best runs were 15 and 14, and Berry's best run was 10.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER

HAS FOUND A BRIDE.

Prince of Naples Will Wed Princess Alexandra of Saxe-Coburg.

ROME, April 9.—The Giornale announces the betrothal of the Prince of Naples to Princess Alexandra of Saxe-Coburg.

THE PRINCE OF NAPLES

Victor Emmanuel Ferdinand Maria Gennaro, Prince of Naples, son of King Humbert, was born in Naples Nov. 11, 1869. No prince of Europe has had so much difficulty in finding a bride as he. He has traveled from one court to another in the vain search for a young woman willing to share with him his future throne.

The prince is below the medium height and of delicate build, and altogether of an appearance not calculated to inspire the love of a woman. He did not inherit the facial beauty of his mother, Queen Margaret. Neither did he fall heir to the rugged, attractive features of his kind, bluff father.

For a time it was said that the future queen would be a daughter of the house of Orleans, but this supposition proved to be unfounded. Greek and Russian princesses were mentioned, in turn, and then came the visit to the court of Berlin, and the rumor was that the sharer of his future throne was to be a relative of the German empress now takes definite shape.

The young man is fairly well educated, but is not considered very clever. He has really no hobby, caring little for military life or for study. The prince is a major general a la suite of a German regiment.

GOVERNOR MARVIL DEAD.

William T. Watson Will Thus Become Chief Magistrate of Delaware.

LAUREL, Del., April 9.—Governor Joshua H. Marvil died at 9:15 last night at his home here. Death was caused by a complication of bright's disease, erysipelas and heart failure. At 8 o'clock last evening he became insensible, lingering in that condition until death came. The members of the immediate family and the physicians were at the bedside at the end.

William Thorp Watson, who, by the death of Governor Marvil, becomes governor of Delaware, was born in Milford, Kent county, Del., on June 22, 1849, and is the son of Bethune and Ruth Watson, and grandson of Governor William Watson, who was chief executive from January, 1847 to January 1851.

Considered a Farce.

LONDON, April 9.—In an editorial on the local veto bill, introduced in the house of commons yesterday by Sir William Vernon Harcourt, The Times says: Sir William is probably under no illusion as to the fate of the ridiculous matter. While the farce is being played he thinks he may as well go to all lengths, yet the cool cynicism shown in the exemption of England is only a foretaste of what will become the practice of unscrupulous politicians if every home rule bill places the Irish party in a position to meddle with English legislation.

Worked a Big Bluff.

PARIS, April 9.—An American, giving the name of Wing, claiming to possess 7,000,000 francs in shares of the so-called Rock Island, Peoria and St. Louis Railway company, has succeeded in borrowing the sum of 4000 francs on these shares. The lender of the money found that no such company named above existed. Wing was then arrested, and when searched only a few sous were found in his possession.

Mahone's Debts.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—A suit was filed here yesterday involving the property which William Mahone has been trying to sell the government for a printing office site. It sets forth that D. A. Windsor was a partner of Mahone, and that Mahone became indebted to him for $13,500, for which amount judgment has been obtained.

Charges Crookedness.

CHICAGO, April 9.—William Zeigler of New York, a heavy stockholder, and until recently one of the directors of the Lake Street Elevated railroad of this city, has made application in the federal court for the appointment of a receiver for the road. He charges the present board of directors with attempting to wreck the road.

Headed For Hayti.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Admiral Meade's squadron sailed yesterday from Kingston for Port-Au-Prince. This movement is a radical departure from the itinerary arranged for the squadron, but it is said at the navy department that no significance is attached to the change.

Ready to Come Home.

RALEIGH, April 9.—The New England cotton mill men, who have been making a tour of the southern mills, were here yesterday. They also went to Weldon and examined the water power. This closed their tour.

Big Lumber Concern Embarrassed.

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 9.—The Southern States Land and Timber company, an English corporation, with headquarters in this city, has been placed in the hands of receivers. The capital stock is $282,000.

But One Point at Issue.

YOKOHAMA, April 9. — Native papers state that the peace negotiations are likely to be concluded this week. Seven of the eight conditions imposed on China by Japan have already been settled.

Evidence of a Wreck.

HALIFAX, April 9.—A large quantity of wreckage has lately been washed ashore near St. Mary's island, and the supposition is that a steamer has been lost off that point of the coast.

All Hands Saved.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 9.—The steamer B. S. Rhea sank at Brooks' landing in the Cumberland river. No lives were lost.

PARTIALLY WRECKED.

Portions of Income Tax Statute Are Incompatible With Constitution.

Supreme Court Is Divided on the Question.

Rents and State and Municipal Bonds Exempt From Taxation.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The announcement of the decision of the supreme court of the United States in the income tax cases was made in the presence of a crowded courtroom, the spectators' lobby being thronged to its utmost capacity. The members of the court, except Justice Jackson, entered the chamber promptly at noon. A few cases of minor importance were disposed of, after which the great case of the day was read by Chief Justice Fuller. The conclusions of the court were stated to be as follows:

1. That by the constitution federal taxation is divided into two great classes; direct taxes and duties, imposts and excises.

2. That the imposition of direct taxes is governed by the rule of apportionment among the several states, according to numbers, and the imposition of duties, impost and excises by rule of uniformity throughout the United States.

3. That the principle that the taxation and representation go together was intended to be and was preserved in the constitution by the establishment of the rule of apportionment among the several states, so that such apportionment should be according to numbers in each state.

4. That the states surrendered their power to levy imposts and to regulate commerce to the general government and gave it the concurrent power to levy direct taxes in reliance on the protection afforded by the rules prescribed, and that the compromises of the constitution cannot be disturbed by legislative action.

5. That these conclusions result from the text of the constitution and are supported by the historical evidence furnished by the circumstances surrounding the framing and adoption of that instrument, and the views of those who framed and adopted it.

6. That the understanding and expectation at the time of the adoption of the constitution was that direct taxes would not be levied by a general government except under the pressure of extraordinary exigency, and such has been the practice down to Aug. 15, 1894. If the power to do so is to be exercised as an ordinary and usual means of supply, that fact furnishes an additional reason for circumspection in disposing of the present case.

7. That taxes on all real estate belong to the class of direct taxes, and that the taxes on the rent or income of real estate, which is the incident of its ownership, belong to the same class.

8. That by no previous decision of the court has this question been adjudicated to the contrary of the conclusions now announced.

9. That so much of the act of August 15, 1894, as attempts to impose a tax upon the rent or income of real estate without apportionment is invalid.

The court is further of the opinion that the act of Aug. 15, 1894, is invalid so far as it attempts to levy a tax upon the income derived from municipal bonds. As a municipal corporation is the representative of the state and one of the instrumentalities of the state government, the property and revenues of municipal corporations are not the subjects of federal taxation, nor is the income derived from state, county and municipal securities, since taxation on the interest therefrom operates on the power to borrow before it is exercised and has a sensible influence on the contract, and therefore, such a tax is a tax on the power of the states and their instrumentalities to borrow money and consequently repugnant to the constitution.

Upon each of the other questions argued at the bar, to wit:

1. Whether the void provisions as to rents and income from real estate invalidates the whole act?

2. Whether as to the income from personal property as such, the act is unconstitutional as laying direct taxes?

3. Whether any part of the tax, if not considered as a direct tax, is invalid for want of uniformity on either of the grounds suggested? The justices who heard the argument are equally divided, and, therefore, no opinion is expressed.

Reading of the Opinion.

There was only one member of the bench absent—Justice Jackson, who has not been able to be in attendance upon the court since last fall, and who has not participated in the consideration of the case in any way.

The judges filed in promptly at high noon, and there was very little preliminary work before the chief justice began the delivery of the opinion, which consumed an hour's time.

Mr. Fuller began with a brief reference to the question of jurisdiction in the case. This point had, he said, been frequently referred to, but he dismissed it by saying that as the question had not been raised in the court below and had been waived in the argument of the case in the supreme court, there appeared no objection to considering the case purely on its merits.

Proceeding to this end, he gave his attention to the objections to the law as made by the appellant, quoting the principal ones as follows:

1. That the act imposes a direct tax in respect to real estate, rents, issues and profits as well as of the income and profits of personal property and, not being apportioned, is in violation of section 2 of article 1 of the constitution.

2. That the law, if not imposing a direct tax, is nevertheless unconstitutional in that its provisions are not uniform throughout the United States, and do not operate with the same force and effect upon the subject of the tax wherever found, and in that it provides exemptions in favor of individuals and copartnerships while denying all exemptions to corporations having similar income derived from like property and values, and provides for other exemptions and inequalities in violations of section 8 of article 1 of the constitution.

3. That the act provides no exemption of the tax upon incomes derived from the stock and bonds of states of the United States and counties and municipalities therein, which stocks and bonds are not proper subjects for the taxing power of congress. The income from these securities in the United States amounts to over $65,000,000 per annum, on which the total annual income tax would be $1,300,000.

Points at Issue.

The body of the opinion was devoted to the consideration of the question from a constitutional point of view. The chief justice said that under the constitution federal taxes were divided into direct taxes, and duties, imposts and excises, and laid down the rule that direct taxes should, under that instrument, be governed by the rule of apportionment among the several states, according to population.

Referring to the question of direct taxation, he said that the framers of the constitution had before them more prominently than any other thought, the idea that taxation and representation should go hand in hand. In support of that idea, the just revolutionary struggle had been made, and it had surely not been the intention of the convention that a state of affairs should arise which would make it possible for any one of the states to combine for the purpose of extorting taxes from other states.

Furthermore, the chief justice continued, the constitution was the result of a compromise between the states and the federal government, whereby the states surrendered the right of levying imposts, duties and excises, but it was evident they did not mean to transfer to the general government the right to levy direct taxes except in cases of great emergency. This compact, the chief justice said, had been observed up to the time of the passage of the act of August, 1894.

Equivalent to Land Tax.

The chief justice devoted a considerable part of the opinion to the especial consideration of taxation of increases derived from rents, and held that in taxing the income derived from land, it virtually and to all intents and purposes taxed the land itself, for, he asked, what was the land to anyone but for the profit derived from it? He failed to see any distinction between a tax on the land itself and on the profit derived from it, and no one had gone so far as to contend that a tax on land would not be a direct tax.

The name of the tax was unimportant, but the effect was of vast consequence, and as there could be neither distinction or material difference between taxing the land and the profit derived from it, the court had reached the opinion that this portion of the law was invalid and could not be sustained.

The same conclusion was reached in regard to the provision for taxing state, county and municipal bonds. He said in effect that it was clearly never intended by the states to delegate authority to the national congress to weaken their credit by providing a tax upon their instrumentalities and revenue agencies. Power to tax these agencies must of a necessity imply the exercise of an influence upon a contract before it was made. Such an exercise of power was repugnant to the constitution, and therefore the portion of the law putting it into exaction must also be declared invalid.

On the other points involved, the opinion did not venture, because of the even division of the court.

The result is that the decree of the circuit court is reversed and the cause remanded, with directions to enter a decree in favor of complainant in respect only of the voluntary payment of the tax on the rents and income of its real estate, and which it holds in trust, and on the income from the municipal bonds owned or so held by it.

Billiardist Slosson Will Back Himself—A Defi to Ives or Schaefer.

George Slosson, the billiard expert, has sprung a surprise on the billiard world by throwing down the gauntlet to any expert in the country to play him two matches next month. Slosson has repeatedly said that he was going to retire from the billiard arena permanently, but he is apparently nettled by some criticisms attributed to his rivals concerning his present standing as a cue star.

"I will play any comer two matches," he says, "one at cushion caroms, 400 points up, and the second match at 14 inch balk line, 800 points up, both matches to be played in this city within a fortnight after fixing the date of the first game. I will put up $1,000 of my own money on each game. Here is a chance for Ives or Schaefer to play billiards if either wants a game. Especially is it an opportunity for Ives. I name New York as the playing ground because every professional knows that such events draw better here than anywhere else in the world. Now we will see whether Ives or Schaefer really wants a game."

George Wheelock, the well known horse lover, told Slosson that he wanted to take his (Slosson's) part of the game as against either Ives or Schaefer. Ives is with Schaefer and Catton in California, but they are not doing any billiard playing.

HISTORIC DEED IN DISPUTE.

The State of Delaware Claims a Document After One Hundred and Twenty Years.

An old historical document, the deed given by the Duke of York to William Penn for a tract of land on the Delaware at New Castle, is the bone of contention between the state of Delaware and J. Henry Rogers of New Castle, Pa.

The state of Delaware has been advised that the document rightfully belongs to it, while Mr. Rogers claims it as his property because his ancestors rescued it from British soldiers nearly a century and a quarter ago and have treasured it ever since. It has been handed down from generation to generation, and their right has never been challenged until recently. The coveted parchment is now in the hands of S. V. Henkels of this city, and it is stated that he will hold fast to it until some settlement is made of the matter. There is talk of big damage claims running up to $1,000,000 if the state of Delaware insists upon taking the deed by force of law.

The deed is for a tract of land on the Delaware, confined in a circle 12 miles in diameter, with the center at the town of New Castle. Attorney General John R. Nicholson of Delaware has already taken legal steps to secure this historical document.—Philadelphia Press.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

Some Funny Happenings In the Utah Constitutional Convention.

Some funny things happen in the Utah constitutional convention. A proposition introduced the other day was that the constitution should prohibit the use of cigarettes, but it was objected to on the ground that cigarettes break down the constitution. Another delegate, by force of habit, of course, addressed the convention as "Gentlemen of the jury!" and roused the delegates to laughter that was only suppressed by the chairman's gavel.—New York Tribune.

Showed Lack of Sense.

In a biographical sketch of the late Dr. McCosh that appears in the Princeton Bulletin it is stated that on one occasion a visiting clergyman, while conducting evening chapel service, made an elaborate prayer, including in his petitions all the officers of the college, arranged in order, from president to trustees, professors and tutors. There was great applause at the last item. At the faculty meeting immediately after the service Dr. McCosh, in commenting upon the disorder, aptly remarked, "He should have had more sense than to pray for the tutors."

ARGUMENT BY M'KINLEY

In Behalf of the Party With Which He Is Affiliated.

Sees Nothing to Praise In the Wilson Bill.

Depleted Treasury Due to Lack of Confidence In Democrats' Financial Policy.

HARTFORD, April 10.—the banquet tendered Governor McKinley of Ohio, by the McKinley club of this city last evening, was a brilliant affair. Many of the state's most prominent men were present. The governor spent half an hour in shaking hands with the guests, and at 7 o'clock 500 persons sat down to the tables. John Addison Porter presided and introduced the speakers, who were Senators Hawley and Platt, Lieutenant Governor Cooke, Congressman Henry, ex-Congressman Buck, Speaker Fessenden, Mayor Brainard. Governor Coffin introduced Governor McKinley, who spoke for nearly two hours on political and governmental questions. He was frequently interrupted by applause, and was given an enthusiastic ovation at the close.

Governor McKinley began with a tribute to the New England town meeting principle of self-government and its results in the country's history, and from a few words on the constitution of the United States, passed to a discussion of politics. The Republican party, he said, invites the fullest discussion of its principles and shirks no responsibility.

"Our foreign policy," he said, "for the most part, during the past two years, has fallen short of the lofty standard of a century ago, and of more recent times as well. While in our domestic situation there is no cause for congratulation, this is not the time to indulge in terms of distrust or aggravation."

"Wise Policy Reversed."

Passing to the tariff, he declared the Wilson bill had reversed the wise revenue policy of the government since its foundation, so that today more money is collected from internal taxes than customs duties, the figures of Secretary Carlisle a few weeks ago showing that in 1894 the government received $155,000,000 from internal taxes and $131,000,000 from customs duties, laying the burden more directly on the people than at any time for 30 years.

"The present administration has transferred the burden of tax from imported goods of foreign countries to the incomes, the investments and the property of our own people. In less than two years, the government has been compelled to borrow $163,000,000. The lack of confidence in the financial policy of the government, is nowhere made more manifest than in the drains which have been made upon the treasury for the redemption of the greenbacks. President Harrison paid off $295,000,000 of the public debt, and turned over to Mr. Cleveland's administration $124,000,000 surplus. The people's distrust was produced by the falling off in the revenues."

Governor McKinley severely criticised the government bond contract made in secret with the financiers of Europe, which he termed the culmination of the hard-bargain business that began in November, 1892.

Regarding Tariff Agitation

the speaker said: "There are those who say there must be no further agitation of the tariff and no attempt to change the tariff, but that we must rest our mighty enterprises and vast business enterprises upon the tariff legislation of the last congress and adjust them to it; however difficult that may be. That is what we are trying to do, and will do, as best we can, because we cannot for the next two years do otherwise. But it is no permanent settlement of the issue, only an enforced and impatient pause.

"No Democrat is satisfied with the law," he said, "and the party is now seeking other issues to regain lost ground. They now promise to do for silver what they failed to do in 1892. The Republican party must restore the happy homes of 1892, and by the principle of protection, which would restore confidence at home and credit abroad."

After calling attention to the strange spectacle of the greatest government of the world without sufficient money from its own receipts to meet its ordinary daily expenses, Governor McKinley said that the way to stop loans was to stop deficiencies both of which seem inseparable from the Democratic party. He closed with these words:

"I fear the hazard Washington deprecated a century ago is still great; and that even now, in the blaze of our marvelous educational progress, there are those of our countrymen, who, failing to appreciate our own institutions, are 'too strongly prepossessed in favor of other present systems, and have not escaped the danger of contracting principles unfavorable to republican government.' Is not the present the auspicious moment for reviving a true national sgirit? Not only in education, but in our entire governmental policy?"

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 10.—The senate passed a compromise tuberculosis bill. It provides that the tuberculin test may be applied to all cattle coming into Massachusetts from other states, but the tuberculin must not be used on Massachusetts cattle unless with the owner's consent and after a physical test has disclosed the presence of tuberculosis in a herd. Full compensation is allowed for all slaughtered cattle. The house spent almost the entire day discussing the bill to regulate the observance of the Lord's Day, and then engrossed it in concurrence with the senate. One of its provisions is that no entertainment shall be given on Sunday, to which an admission fee is charged. Any person attending a performance in violation of the law is liable to a fine of $5. Whoever, on the Lord's Day keeps open his shop, warehouse or workhouse, or does any manual labor, business or work, except works of necessity and charity, or takes part in any sport, game or play, except a sacred concert, shall be punished by a fine of $50 for each offense, and the owner of any hall in which said law is violated is liable to a fine of $500. The bill only lacks the governor's signature.

At Corporation's Mercy.

WESTERLY, R. I., April 10—All the weavers and spinners, 100 in number, employed at the Westerly Woolen company's mill struck yesterday. Three hundred other employes were also thrown out of work, the management deciding to close down the mill. The strikers think that business has sufficiently improved to warrant a promised restoration of wages, but the company refused to do it. As the Westerly company owns all the tenements and the only store where the employes can get credit, the strikers have a hard battle before them.

Oineyville Strike Authorized.

PROVIDENCE, April 10.—The executive council of the Textile union met at Olneyville last night and authorized the proposed strike at the Atlantic mill. This provides for a strike in all the departments of the mill. A letter from the company informed the operatives that the corporation had not cleared expenses in 1894, and that the work now on hand had been accepted at such small profit that it was impossible that the present schedule of prices could be increased.

Streets Impassable.

BARRE, Vt., April 10.—The heavy rain has caused the river to reach a height not known in several years. Cellars are flooded and the main street of the city is impassable for pedestrians. The trestle on the Central Vermont railroad, about half way between here and Montpelier, has been sprung by the ice which has jammed against it, and all the trains to and from Montpelier are going over the Wells river road.

Rivers Over Their Banks.

SPRINGFIELD, April 10.—Reports of very high water come from nearly every town in western Massachusetts. A mill dam at Bernardston has been swept away. Mills at Northampton are shut down on account of back water. The Westfield river has flooded meadows and highways. The Hoosac river at North Adams is a torrent. A large stone dam at Greenfield has been swept away, besides a few bridges and culverts.

In the Nick of Time.

PORTLAND, April 10.—Schooner Mary Amanda was towed into port yesterday afternoon in a disabled condition. While off Seguin she sprang a leak, and the vessel was only saved from foundering by constant exertion. The captain had given up all hopes of saving his vessel when he sighted a Portland towboat, which came to the rescue. The crew was completely exhausted.

Towed to Vineyard Haven.

VINEYARD HAVEN, April 09.—Schooner Cumberland, Porto Rico for Boston with a cargo of molasses, was towed into this port yesterday after a rough trip, in which she lost both fore and stay sails. She anchored in Vineyard Sound in a thick fog, and yesterday morning discovered that she was close to breakers. She set colors for a tug and assistance was promptly rendered.

Encountered Heavy Gale.

BOSTON, April 10.—Schooner Abbie G. Cole, from St. Jago, Cuba, reports when off Cape Hatteras she encountered a terrific gale, during which the vessel was hove to for 36 hours. Heavy seas continually swept over the schooner, sweeping all the deck movables into the sea and flooding the cabin and forecastle. Sails were also lost.

Doctor Shot by Angry Husband.

MALDEN, April 10.—Dr. William Farnsworth of Boston was shot and seriously, but not fatally, wounded, by Charles S. Whitham on a street here last night. Farnsworth is alleged to have been paying considerable attention to Mrs. Whitham, on account of which he and the husband have had words on several occasions.

Sarah Was Miserly.

PEABODY, Mass., April 10.—Miss Sarah A. Perkins died last night, aged 74. She was supposed to be very poor, and neighbors for a long time have sent food and clothing to her. After her death a search of her premises resulted in the finding of over $100 in cash and of bank books showing deposits amounting to over $1600.

Both Foolish and Dangerous.

PORTLAND, April 10.—This city was very much excited Monday night by three false alarms of fire, within two hours. It is learned that these alarms were caused by a gambling scheme, in which the money in the pool is paid to the guesser of the boxes from which the alarm of fire is sounded.

Menace to Navigation.

GLOUCESTER, April 10.—Schooner Pilgrim arrived from Georges yesterday, and Captain Joseph reports the stern and other parts of the bark Morning Star of New York floated past her. Another portion of the wreck had the rigging standing. It is a dangerous menace to navigation.

Collided With an Electric.

PROVIDENCE, April 10.—Daniel O'Donahoue, a car driver, was fatally injured yesterday. His horse became frightened and collided with an electric car. O'Donahoue was caught between the car and the cart, the pole of the latter penetrating his body to the depth of six inches.

The Lochiel Delayed.

BOSTON, April 10.—Steamer Lochiel, while proceeding down the harbor on her way to New York, got a line fouled in her wheel and was obliged to anchor. Her forward compartment will be pumped full of water to tip her head down, and the line will then be cut out.

Engine Jumped a Switch.

BOSTON, April 10.—A train of empty freight cars collided with a passenger train on the Boston and Albany railroad here last night. Passengers were badly shaken up, but no one was injured. The accident was caused by the freight engine jumping a switch.

In old age the height of man really diminishes.

THE INCOME TAX LAW

Olney Thinks That Injunctions Are Unlikely.

No Effort Has Been Made Looking Toward Repealing the Law.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Internal Revenue Commissioner Miller has sent telegrams to all internal revenue collectors directing them to hold all income tax lists due April 10 until further orders, and to retain possession of all returns received. This is done with a view to the modifications of returns to correspond with the decision of the supreme court.

The commissioner and Mr. Johnson, the chief of the income tax division, had a conference last night on the steps to be taken to make the returns conform to the supreme court decision, and it is hoped that a definite conclusion may be arrived at by tomorrow. Although no statement has been made to that effect, it seems probable that the final decision will be that the supreme court's opinion in effect exempts incomes received from bonds and rents, the latter to be strictly defined as the amount the landlord receives from his tenants.

In computing incomes it is believed that it will be held that insurance, ordinary repairs and taxes on exempt property may properly be deducted. In that case it is probable that the courts will be called upon to explain just what the supreme court's decision intended to exempt from the tax.

Olney's Opinion.

So far as the lower courts are "concerned," said Attorney General Olney, in an interview, "the decision of the supreme court upon the income tax is as binding as if the whole court had been unanimous in its favor. I cannot believe that any judge would grant an injunction to prevent a collector from collecting the tax on incomes derived from other sources than rents or state and municipal bonds in the face of the supreme court's action. The only way I can see by which persons who object to paying the tax can secure judicial action is by their paying the tax under protest and entering suit for its recovery."

The attorney general said that some papers had made the mistake that in his argument in the cases before the courts, he had mentioned rents as well as public bonds as likely to be unconstitutional features of he law.

"It is a mistake to state that I included the incomes derived from rents," said Mr. Olney. "I did not believe the law would hold regarding the taxing of state and municipal bonds, and am glad the decision was against it in that regard, but I did not say anything of the sort about rents."

Private Secretary Thurber's attention being called to the statement in the Washington papers that the president was being flooded with telegrams from all parts of the country, appealing to him to call an extra session of congress to repeal the income tax law, said that not one single telegram, letter or verbal communication had been received on the subject.

Kurz' Speeders Won Both.

NICE, April 10.—The grand international handicap, first prize 5000 francs, distance 2000 metres, was trotted yesterday. F. Kurz' Ryswood was first in 3:06. The consolation race was also decided. The first prize was 550 francs. Blue Belle, also the property of Kurz, won in 4:22 1-5. The distance was 2800 metres.

New Jersey Elections.

JERSEY CITY, April 10.—Returns from the elections in New Jersey indicate that the Republicans have carried Jersey City, Newark, New Brunswick, Trenton, Elizabeth and Rahway. The elections, as a rule, passed of quietly. The Democrats of Bayonne carried their respective cities and Paterson.

Seeks Heavy Damages.

BALTIMORE, April 10.—Thomas B. Chappell has entered suit for $75,000 against his wife's lawyer, David Stewart, claiming that the latter made an unlawful agreement with others to destroy the plaintiff's reputation and extort money.

Tolland's New Postmaster.

ROCKVILLE, Conn., April 10.—Harry Doyle has been appointed to take charge of the Tolland postoffice in place of Arthur R. Patten. The latter is charged with fraud and forgery, and has left the city, owing many creditors.

Foreclosure Asked For.

TOLEDO, April 10.—Suit was filed in the United States court here today to foreclose the first mortgage on the property of the Findlay, Fort Wayne and Western company, and for the appointment of a receiver for the road.

Disaster Impending.

VIENNA, April 10.—Serious floods are prevailing in Hungary. Szegeden is threatened with inundation. The water now almost covers the dykes protecting the towns. Hundreds of villages are threatened.

Buried Beneath the Ruins.

ROCKVILLE, Conn., April 10.—Herman Gross was engaged in tearing down a barn, when the second story collapsed, burying him beneath the ruins. He is still alive, but sustained severe injuries.

A Magnificent Structure.

MELROSE, Mass., April 10.—The new building of the Melrose Y. M. C. A. was dedicated last night. The building is one of the finest in the state, and is splendidly furnished throughout.

Schooner Ashore.

BOSTON, April 10.—The three-masted schooner William L. Burroughs, from Perth Amboy, with a cargo of coal, is ashore in the narrows. She lies on a rocky bottom.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co, Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

—The News, an excellent weekly published at Mansfield, Mass., commenced its 23d volume last week. It is ably edited and managed by Mr. William White, and in return is well patronized and highly prized by the citizens of Mansfield.

The work of preparation at the Cotton States and International Exposition grounds, is going on rapidly. Over a thousands hands and nearly two hundred teams are at work getting things in shape. The buildings are rapidly going up, and the timbers of the Fine Arts and Electrical buildings are already in position, and will be under roof in a short time. Most of the buildings will be under roof by May 15th, and completed by June 1st. The grading and landscape gardening is being pushed, and the park will soon begin to resemble its completed form. THE SCHOOL COLUMN

THE TEXT BOOKS OF BOSTON.

An Education Society to Interest Parents in School Work.

This week closes the spring vacation in Quincy, and the public schools will reopen Monday, with an increased army. Over 200 are expected to enter the lower grades. The term will be but eleven weeks long with two or three holidays out.

Superintendent Lull is still confined to his home with the grip.

The Adams Academy ball nine will open its season this afternoon at Merry Mount park by a game with a Harvard picked nine.

A VISIT TO WOBURN.
MISS JAMESON'S SUCCESS.

Miss Jameson of Quincy, supervisor of music in the Woburn schools, very hospitably entertained a party of seven teachers from the Lincoln school, at Woburn, on Tuesday, April 2. They spent the whole day with her, and came away with a distinctly higher ideal of what may be accomplished in "smooth round tones" from the children.

The High school chorus could not fail to arouse enthusiasm in those who were fortunate enough to hear it. There is a volunteer corps of twenty young men, and another of eight young women, and these pupils come to practice before Miss Jameson after school hours. The High school male quartette is making an enviable reputation for itself. They are receiving numerous calls to sing at entertainments and receive $10 for their services.

Miss Jameson's enthusiasm in her art is unbounded, and she imparts this to her pupils, and to her visitors as well.

SCHOOL BOOKS
BY THE THOUSAND.

The Boston grammar school boys and girls ought to do fairly well in spelling, for in the last ten years they have used 29,083 copies of Webster's spelling books.

This fact comes out in the report of the school board. In all, they have used in the last ten years 264,039 books.

Other books and their totals are: Franklin 3d reader, 6,091; 4th reader, 8,922; intermediate reader, 6,706; 5th reader, 10,918; 6th reader, 3,416; written arithmetic, 16,846; elementary arithmetic, 15,319; small geography, 16,346; large geography, 17,659; Higginson's history, 6,354; Meservey's bookkeeping, 3,137.

Of the Normal first music reader, 2,555 copies were used; of the second music reader, 7,662; and third, 2,792; Intermediate music reader, 9,376; fourth music reader, 7,704; National second music reader, 3,857; Stone's history of England, 2,464; Stowell's A Healthy Body, 6,325; Worcester's dictionary, 16,320.

The total number of text-books owned by the city and now in the schools, if replaced at publishers' prices, would cost $203,548.

The books now charged to the various schools average about 6 for each pupil; and if new, would cost about $2.75 per pupil.

The total number reported lost, last year was 1,922; in 10 years, 11,440.

Since the free text-book law went into effect the schools have been supplied with 712,561 text-books. Of this number, 435,921 are still in use in the schools, and the balance, 276,640, have been returned as worn out or lost.—Boston Advertiser.

EDUCATION SOCIETIES
SHOULD INTEREST PARENTS.

A Boston contemporary notes that "the formation of an education society for the purpose of increasing the sympathetic support of teachers in their work by the parents of the puplis has not before been definitely attempted, and if the effort now making in Brookline shall be successful it will lead the way in a movement which is likely to be repeated in a great many communities, and which will be attended with the happiest results in bringing the public schools and their patrons into closer relations.

It would be a fine thing for the schools, the scholars, the parents of scholars, and educational interests generally, if people would pay more intelligent attention and give more thought to the educational work in which their children are being drilled. We doubt if fifty per cent. of the parents in this city today could tell off hand what branches of study their chidren are working upon, and it is a question whether as great a number as fifty per cent. have any well grounded ideas on the mass of the subjects that at school interest their offspring. That is one reason why there is so much baseless criticism of school questions and school methods.—Brockton Enterprise.

No Probate Court.

There was no session of the Probate Court in Quincy this morning. Judge White was detained by illness and Judge Harriman was called to the Superior Court. Judge Harmon of Essex county was to hold session but failed to put in an appearance, and the clerk, after waiting until nearly 11 o'clock, adjourned the court until next Wednesday at Dedham.

LAID LOW BY DISEASE.

Frontiersman With a Record Succumbs to Quick Consumption.

DODGE CITY, Kan., April 10.—"Bat" Masterson is dead. The man whom angry and drunken cowboys could not kill, succumed at Guthrie, O. T., of quick consumption. He had been United States marshal, and was city marshal of Dodge City in its wildest days. To him was accorded the honor of being the most fearless official on the frontier and as a leader of chases after Indians, cowboys and cattle herders in the west. He never flinched nor weakened.

Masterson was born in Middleton, Ills., in 1864. His father was a well-to-do farmer, but the son did not take kindly to agriculture, and had no delight in educational advantages. He was wild, unruly and utterly uncontrollable by his peace-loving parents. With the westward drift of population came Masterson to Kansas. He was able to take care of himself in every position in which he was placed.

Dodge City was then in the height of its cattle trade glory. The cowboys ruled the town during the height of the season from July to November. He was elected town marshal, and afterwards drifted to Colorado. Of the 28 killings with which he is credited, nearly all are said to have resulted from his attempts to suppress lawlessness.

At Paris, June 30.

NEW YORK, April 10.—General R. Brinkerhoff of Mansfield, who succeeded ex-President Hayes as president of the Prison Reform congress of the United States, is in receipt of a letter from Albert Riviere, general secretary of the Prison association, Paris, France, in which he states that at a meeting of the officers of the ministers of the interior recently held, it was decided that the international prison congress, which is to take place this year in Paris, will open its session on the 30th of June next at the College of France.

Kingston In a Sorry Plight.

KINGSTON, N. Y., April 10.—The great freshet in the Esopus creek has inundated a large part of this city, and for miles there is nothing to be seen looking northward except a vast expanse of water. The railroads are practically tied up by the surging waters, and many wash-outs have occurred. The city water main is broken and this cannot be restored owing to the freshet.

Lieutenant Jameson's Reward.

WASHINGTON, April 10. — Lieutenant Jameson of the Fifteenth infantry, stationed at Fort Sheridan, has been transferred to the ordnance department of the army as first lieutenant. During the strike last year at Chicago, this officer took his place on the pilot of a locomotive and forced his way through the blockade with his men.

Still at Buenos Ayres.

BUENOS AYRES, April 10.—The captain of the steamer Tartar Prince refused to take Jabez Balfour back to England for trial, but the authorities, at the instance of the British minister interfered, and a detachment of soldiers prevented Balfour from landing. The steamer is, however, still detained here by high water.

The Yorke Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, April 10.—Coroner Ashbridge, on Good Friday, will hold an inquest in the case of Madge Yorke, the actress, who was murdered in the early part of February. James Gentry, her slayer, will be well enough to appear before the coroner on that day.

Work of Scoundrels.

NEW YORK, April 10.—An attempt was made by a gang of roughs last night to burn the Salvation Army headquarters. The blaze was started in a rear room, while a meeting was in progress, but was discovered in time to prevent serious damage.

Andrews Captured and Sentenced.

NORTH ADAMS, April 10.—Holly Andrews, who was captured by the officers after dodging 13 revolver shots successfully, was arraigned in court yesterday, charged with larceny on two counts, and was sentenced to jail for one year.

Bismarck's Strength Overtaxed.

FRIEDRICHSRUHE, April 10.—Owing to the recent tax on his strength, the health of Prince Bismarck is not as good as could be desired. It is doubtful whether he will be able to receive deputations that he has promised to meet.

Employers Won't Yield.

HOLYOKE, April 10.—About 80 employes in the factories of the Deane Steam Pump company have struck for a restoration of the 10 per cent cut in their wages. The company has offered no concessions.

Dividend of 40 Per Cent.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

W. Jenning Demorest, publisher, prohibitionist and founder of the Demorest medal, is dead.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Fire alarms are numerous.

Quite a thunder shower last night.

This is the 100th day of the year, and a pretty good day too.

The four new cars of the street railway are expected any day now.

Rev. T. K. Amazeen of Danbury, Conn., is a guest of Rev. J. H. Yeoman.

There will be an entertainment at the West Quincy Methodist church next week

John Adams Council, R. A., of Wollaston, will give a ladies' night early in May.

West Quincy people are pleased to hear that Rev. E. W. Virgin has been returned to them for another year.

On Monday, the Wollaston Cycle Club added a bran new $225.00 pool table, to there already very attractive club rooms.

The travel on the Neponset line has almost doubled since close connection was made with the cars of the West End for Boston at Neponset.

The first race of the Merry Mount Yacht Club will be held on Butler's pond on the afternoon of April 19. Entries can be made with T. B. Davenport.

Mrs. A. B. Packard's yard about her greenhouse is beginning to look like spring, the grass being quite green and a few crocuses have ventured out.

Master Harry Trask celebrates his tenth birthday anniversary this afternoon by entertaining a few of his young friends at his home on Willard street.

Rev. W. Sherman Thompson, formerly of the Washington Street Congregational church, will deliver the Memorial address before Paul Revere Post, G. A. R., Sunday morning, May 26.

Wollaston will not have free delivery. Norfolk Downs will probably have a substation. The Wollaston post-office will probably be retained for an indefinite period. So much for Postmaster Wilde giving Wollaston good service.

Rev. J. A. Evans, of New Bedford, the general Missionary agent of the New England Annual Conference African Methodist Episcopal Zion church, is in the city soliciting aid as heretofore for the conference. This is his tenth year.

George Dunham has, after many years of patient labor, invented an electric head light for the street cars, one of which has been atttached to number 16 car. The light is on top of the car at the base of the trolley pole and at a distance it looks like a locomotive approaching.

Tuesday evening, April 9, Woodbine lodge, K. & L. of H., of Wollaston, celebrated the 15th anniversary; as the lodge was instituted April 10th, 1880. The entertainment committee consisting of Brothers Bates and Belcher and Sisters Bennett and Lord, had charge of the arrangements and furnished an excellent entertainment. About forty members present.

Mr. H. E Crane, who was on the steamer Ethelred which was fired upon by the Spanish gunboat when off Cape Maysi, arrived home safe and sound Tuesday morning none the worse for being under fire. He says the passengers as a general thing were not frightened, and although the captain stopped the Ethelred and lowered the ladder for the boarders, that as soon as he displayed the British flag the gunboat steamed away.

TODAY'S COURT.

Patrick J. Whalan of Randolph came out of Dedham jail Tuesday after serving three months for drunkenness. He felt so elated over his release that he filled up again and was arrested by officer Knight for drunkenness. Case continued until April 27.

Michael J. O'Connell of Randolph was arraigned for assault on Elizabeth T. O'Connell and was fined $15.

William F. Small of Weymouth was fined $125 for keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell.

—The Park Commissioners recommend that the land at the junction of Colburn and Hyde Park streets, Dedham, containing about two acres, be accepted when the same is deeded to the town free of expense, and named Quincy Square.

—The board of selectmen of Weymouth are to take stringent measures to rid the town of tramps.

COUNTY HEARING

Grand Prospects of a Reduction of The Tax.

CONGRESSMAN MORSE PRESENT

Norfolk County Commissioners Represented by Fred. H. Williams.

The Norfolk County commissioners made such a weak showing at the hearing on Monday that they were represented today bv Fred H. Williams as counsel.

Congressman Morse and others were there to bolster them up, but very little was introduced to show that $160,000 was needed for county purposes this year. The prospect is that it will be cut considerable by the committee.

The testimony will be more fully reported in tomorrow's LEDGER.

Perhaps

You Don't Know It,

But there is a law against falsehood in advertisements. It isn't on the statute books, but it is written in the hearts of the people, and when they convict a merchant of this offence they fine him "LIKE SIXTY."

Ranges.

In building a business we know of no better way to win the endorsement of the people at large than to handle standard merchandise. Of course the margin is smaller, but the increased sales and universal satisfaction and endorsement of the users, more than offsets the former. We need only add that we carry in stock a full line of the SPLENDID GLENWOOD and MAGEE RANGES, prices $20 to $35.

Baby Carriages.

Our new Spring Patterns are models of beauty,—Attractive, Easy Running, and, best of all, wonderfully low-priced, $3.95 to $20.00. Cut prices on Wakefield and Heywood Carriages.

Refrigerators.

We have looked the market over carefully, and we are convinced that no Refrigerator manufactured today is made with more care or will give such universal satisfaction as THE EDDY. Twenty per cent. discount from the manufacturer's list, they net in price from $5.20 to $25.00. We carry the full line, also special designs in Oak and Hardwood Refrigerators.

Gasoline Stoves.

We have selected THE RELIABLE, and we can frankly say that after witnessing many tests we are convinced that this is by all odds vastly superior to any other make on the market. It is as near an approach to perfection as Yankee wit will permit. Absolutely safe, and so economical, too, they will be more popular this summer than ever before. Prices, $3.50 to $10.00.

White Iron Beds.

The newest and most attractive patterns, $5 to $15. Children's White Iron Cribs, $7.50 to $9.50. Disease germs find no lurking places in these modern beds. They are growing more and more in favor every day.

Parlor Furniture.

We have the greatest bargains on earth in Parlor Sets. Plush, Rugs, Hair Cloth, Tapestry or Silk Brocatelles, prices $25.00 to $90.00. Odd Chairs and Fancy Rockers.

Chamber Furniture.

Oak and Ash, handsome designs. We offer GREATER VALUE than can be found in any retail store in the State. $15.00 to $50.00.

Carpets,

Mattings. Rugs, etc. Reliable Goods, Attractive Patterns. Mattings, 9 cents to 35 cents. Carpets, 22 cents to 85 cents. CARPETS TAKEN UP, CLEANSED and RE LAID.

Bissell Carpet Sweepers

No matter what you need in Furniture, you will do well to merit by our wonderfully low prices on Reliable Goods.

THE FUTURE SUPPLY.

State Board of Health Report on Quincy Water Supply.

In the report of the Massachusetts State Board of Health upon a Metropolitan Water supply reference is made by the chief engineer as to the Quincy's supply. It is estimated that the reservoir at Braintree will supply 750,000 gallons of water per day in the driest year, and that the well near the pumping station will yield about 90,000 gallons per day, making a total capacity of the present sources of 840,000 gallons per day. The average daily consumption for the past five years is given as follows:

In 1890, 497,000 gallons.
In 1891, 565,000 "
In 1892, 602,000 "
In 1893, 729,000 "
In 1894, 798,000 "

It will be seen that the consumption of water in 1894 very nearly equalled the capacity of the sources in a very dry year, and that an additional supply is now required.

Concerning the future supply the report says:

Future Supply.—"Outlines of a plan for increasing the water supply of this city have recently been submitted to the State Board of Health for its advice by the mayor and water board. The plan suggested is the construction of another storage reservoir upon a small brook very near the existing reservoir, and the diversion into the existing and proposed reservoirs of the water of Blue Hill River. The city officials were advised that this plan would probably increase the supply so that it would in the driest year meet the requirements of the city until the year 1905, and that, if it were feasible to build a large reservoir above the Taunton turnpike, referred to in a report published by the city of Quincy in 1890, the supply might be increased sufficiently to last until about the year 1921. The cost of the works for supplying a water of good quality from these sources would be large.

"There is no source, other than the Blue Hill river, within a reasonable distance of Quincy, from which any large additional supply of water of good quality could be obtained, which is not already controlled by other cities and towns."

"Upon estimating the cost of works for taking an independent supply from the Blue Hill river, as well as it was feasible to do so from the limited information available, but on a conservative basis, it was found that the yearly cost to Quincy for obtaining its water from the metropolitan supply was not likely to be more than two-thirds as much as for obtaining it from independent works, and the metropolitan supply would furnish a water of better quality."

A Quincy "Dark Horse."

The "dark horse" among the third class cats of the Quincy Yacht club, will be the one being built by Capt. "Arb" Crocker of Cohasset. Rumor says it is for George W. Morton of Quincy, and Crocker built Mr. Morton's little Zip, known as the Red Lion in her palmy days along in the 70's, and there were few races then in which Com. Morton did not get his share of the prizes. The new one will have the lines of the Zip below the water line, and the long overhangs of the more modern racer.—Globe.

April Magazines.

Mrs. Jenness Miller continues her article on "Law, Order and Art in Dress" in the April number of the Jenness Miller Monthly, being a chapter on "The Importance of Perfect Poise." Geraldine Gower writes of the Jenness Miller Fashions, Ainsley Crawley tells "How to Enjoy Painting and Sculpture." The kindergarten lessons, household science, and other departments make it a valuable number.

☞ Look at other wheels, then at the Columbia—we know the verdict—Columbia—for sale by Henry L. Kincaide & Co. $50, $60, $80, $100.

THE GRANITE INDUSTRY.

Many Men Still Idle—One of the Agreements Illegal.

There is still a considerable number of men out of employment, although a few of the firms last week added to their forces. Quite a few have left Quincy lately for other parts of the country, where the business prospects seem somewhat brighter than they do in this locality at present.

Opinions vary among the manufacturers regarding the season's outlook here, some contending that immediate improvement is doubtful, whilst perhaps a larger proportion say that the call for work is steadily increasing.

The Lyons Granite Co. has ordered an additional machine for cutting circular work. The plant already in operation has been found wholly inadequate to meet the growing demand for that class of monumental work.

The Granite Manufacturers' Association has raised its initiation fee to $1000. Judged by its monetary standard, the protection it affords to members must be valuable indeed.

In contrast to the above rise, the local branch of the Granite Cutters' Union has reduced its initiation fee to $5, and is making a determined effort to infuse new energy into its members. The numerical strength of the local organization has not been quite satisfactory since the prolonged lock-out of three years ago, and it is for the purpose of placing it on its ancient basis that the proposal has been resolved upon.

Until last week it was thought that the Quincy bill of prices was happily disposed of for at least a year, but again has the old adage been honored. "It is best not to hallo till out of the wood"'

Last week a meeting of the joint committees that compiled the agreements was called in reference to the blacksmith's settlement. It seems that the committee found it impossible at their ordinary meetings, to agree upon one or two of the items governing the blacksmith's clauses so in accordance with previous arrangements the questions were submitted to representatives of the two executive committees. These sub-committees came to satisfactory terms without having to call in the services of a disinterested party, and the conclusions drawn were accordingly ratified. It was afterwards discovered however, that one of the represensatives from the workmen was not a member of the executive committee of the Union he appeared for. Under these conditions Mr. James Thompson, chairman of the original board at the recommend meeting declared the agreement reached to be illegal.

The questions will therefore be reconsidered and the manufacturers' committee of nine, will this week meet a like number from the blacksmiths and reconstruct the debatable clauses. The matters at issue, refer principally to the rate of pay for two extra men and for piece work. Work of course will not be interrupted pending a settlement.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds. SIMS BROS., Leeds, Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds, croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

Slight Fires.

The alarm from box 62 at 2.35 this morning was rung in for a fire in a small tool house situated in the gravel pit on Water street, near the Neponset bridge, which was extinguished by the Chemical Co. from Atlantic.

The building was owned by a man named Lyons, of Neponset, and was damaged to the extent of about $50.

Whether it was lightning or incendiary that caused the fire is unknown.

Two alarms were rung in between 10.30 and 11 o'clock this morning.

The first was for a grass fire near Putman street. The wind was blowing fiercely, and the fire was rapidly approaching the dwelling of the late Mrs. Joseph Newcomb. But, before the fire department arrived the citizens extinguished it. Fortunate, as a few feet farther might resulted in considerable loss.

Box 28, on Hancock street, near the residence of Mr. Charles Crane, was rung in for this fire; and it was we believe the first time ever rung.

While the department were returning from the fire on Putman street some one pulled in another alarm from Box 28, which was interpreted as Box 52.

The apparatus was ordered to that box and notwithstanding that the horses were tired out a good run was made.

Arriving at the box it was found it had not been opened and then it was the firemen learned that they had been on a wild goose chase.

—The 150th anniversary of the formation of the Second Parish (Unitarian) at South Hingham was recently observed. This parish was set off from the First Parish on March 25, 1745, and was originally the Third Parish, the second being in Cohasset, but upon the establishment of Cohasset as a separate town, in 1770, this parish became the second in Hingham and has since been known as such. The society's meeting house was erected in 1742, and, while many alterations and improvements have been made to the building, a large part of the original structure is still in use. The Rev. Daniel Shute was the first minister to the parish, having been graduated from Harvard in 1743 and ordained here in June, 1746. The present pastor is Charles T. Billings, a native of Fitchburg, being 33 years of age. He graduated from Harvard College in 1884 and was formerly a school teacher at Quincy.

—Five thousand herrings were taken from Mattakesett creek at the Vineyard on a recent morning. So far this season 15,000 have been taken.

—Astronomers claim to have made the discovery that on April 12 (Good Friday) the stars will be in the same position in the firmament which they occupied on the day that Christ died on the cross. It is an interesting fact to know that since the commencement of the Christian era, this has never occurred before.

—The government has appropriated $25,000 for the Brockton postoffice building, and the rest of the $75,000 is ready when needed.

MAY RULE IN IRELAND

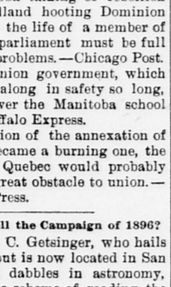
IT IS SAID THAT ABERDEEN WILL BE NEXT LORD LIEUTENANT.

He Was Viceroy of Ireland Before Being Governor General of Canada—His Appointment Will Cause General Satisfaction In the Green Isle.

It is stated that Lord Aberdeen is to leave Canada and his gubernatorial position to become lord lieutenant of Ireland.

This last is indeed exciting news and unprecedented. The governor general of Canada is appointed for five years, and the Earl of Aberdeen has served but two. Moreover, he cannot leave the country without especial and specific permission from her majesty the queen—not even to cross the border and enter the United States.

Thus, if Lord Aberdeen goes to Ireland, it must be looked upon as a recall for some good reason and a transfer to other office. It is said that Lord Houghton, present lieutenant governor of Ireland, is to enter the cabinet, and there is no doubt that Lord Aberdeen would be amazingly pleasing to the people as his successor. The Aberdeens have been always more or less identified with Ireland. Lady Aberdeen is openly proud of having had the great O'Neills, kings of ancient Hibernia, for her ancestors, and, as every one knows, she is president of the Irish Industries association and has probably done more to popularize Irish work than has any other living being. Lord Aberdeen, too, is used to Ireland and the Irish people.



EARL OF ABERDEEN.

In brief biography Right Hon. John Campbell Hamilton Gordon, seventh earl, son of the Earl of Aberdeen, prime minister in 1854, was born in 1847 and was educated at the University college, Oxford, where he graduated in 1871. He succeeded to the title on the death of his brother in 1870. He entered the house of lords, but in 1876 he disagreed with some of the principal measures of his party. In the debate on the Afghan war he voted against the government of Lord Beaconsfield.

In 1886, having by this time become a member of the Liberal party, he was appointed by Mr. Gladstone lord lieutenant of Ireland, with the mission of carrying out the home rule policy. In this capacity he was immensely popular in Ireland, and the scene in Dublin on his "leave taking," after the fall of the Gladstone cabinet, is said to have been such as has never been witnessed since the days of O'Connell. Lord Aberdeen is a member of many Protestant religious societies, at whose meetings he frequently presides.

When he was viceroy of Ireland, he occupied Dublin castle and had all the state and splendor of a court. This seemed the natural atmosphere of the Aberdeens, a thing which chilly Canada never quite granted.—Chicago Post.

The Canadian Problem.

With Manitoba talking of rebellion and Newfoundland hooting Dominion annexationists the life of a member of the Canadian parliament must be full of interesting problems.—Chicago Post.

Is the Dominion government, which has staggered along in safety so long, about to fall over the Manitoba school question?—Buffalo Express.

If the question of the annexation of Canada ever became a burning one, the intolerance of Quebec would probably be found the great obstacle to union.—Philadelphia Press.

Can He Foretell the Campaign of 1896?

Professor E. C. Getsinger, who hails from Detroit, but is now located in San Francisco and dabbles in astronomy, has hit upon a scheme of reading the future by sound waves. He expects to be dead some time before it is understood by the vulgar herd.

Hard Times For the Rustler.

It is hard times for the rustler when a paleface judge drives white men off an Indian reservation merely because the white men have no business there.—Chicago Times-Herald.

As Good as a Circus.

If Carl Browne is determined to be married on the capitol steps, the Washington police can be counted on to do the "belling."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Splendid Triumvirate.

The International Situation.

In England they're talking of trouble,
And making up faces at France;
The French are inclined to be ugly
And lead the bold Britons a dance.
The English have put up a placard—
It's "Keep off the African grass!"
The French have ignored it completely,
And England may not "let it pass."

Japan wants a use for her navy,
While China is willing to rest—
We've followed the course of their struggle
And know the result of the test—
But Russia is looking for chances
To grab up additional land,
And when she attempts to secure it
There's apt to be trouble on hand.

In Cuba there's fighting already—
They're shooting at all that's in sight—
And Spain is decidedly careless,
Though claiming she wants to do right.
The reichstag is fighting with Bismarck,
So Germany's having some fun,
And Italy'll be in the scrimmage
If ever the fighting's begun.

Canadians, too, are disputing—
There's talk of a war over there;
Armenia's furnishing stories;
Hawaii is doing her share;
Then south of the isthmus are quarrels
In every conceivable spot,
And while our own eagle likes quiet
You bet he is thinking a lot.

Crespo's Message to the Venezuelan Congress

Endorses America's Proposition For a Settlement by Arbitration.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Senor Andrade, the Venezuelan minister here, yesterday received copies of President Crespo's message to the Venezuelan congress and resolutions adopted by that body. In a day or two he will have enrolled copies to be delivered to the state department and probably to the president. The people also are getting up a popular monster petition, breathing the warmest appreciation for the support of "The great republic of the north."

President Crespo's message was concerning the attitude of the United States on the British-Venezuelan question. Immediately following the receipt of the president's message the congress passed resolutions, amid great enthusiasm, heartily thanking the United States for its sympathy and support.

The legation is informed that Venezuela feels so certain of her rights that she is pushing forward public improvements in the disputed territory.

This is shown by a report from the commissary general stating that he has finished a church, which is to be the nucleus of the settlement in the Amacuro region. This is a sort of Venezuelan outpost, where they are taking a stand to resist further encroachments of Great Britain.

The Message.

President Crespo's message says: "The high powers of the United States have just given in the pending question between Venezuela and England a signal proof of the extent to which the principle of human justice prevails among the great people. The chief magistrate of that powerful republic, being persuaded of the great peril which is involved for American interests through a prolongation of a conflict of such a grievous nature, expressed in his message to congress the strong wish of inducing Great Britain to put an end to the dispute by arbitration, a resource long ago and earnestly proposed by Venezuela.

"In the house of representatives there was introduced, as a consequence of the president's salutary words, a resolution which has been inserted in the yellow book of Venezuela, and in the terms of which is disclosed the noblest interest towards seeing the unfortunate conflict closed in conformity with justice and reason. The resolution earnestly recommends to the two conten ding parties the adoption of the course indicated by the message of the President of the United States, in order to peacefully settle the dispute,, which, as has been said, is the same course Venezuela has stood ready to pursue.

"The legislative act referred to was approved by both chambers, and his excellency, President Cleveland affixed the signature and seal thereto on Feb. 21.

"Such tokens of the spirit of justice with which the transcendant question of the Guiana boundaries, as studied and considered by the magistrate and legislators of the great republic of the north, requires from Venezuela a significant act of special gr. ude, which only you can sanction so as to express the wish of the whole people of Venezuela. Certain I feel that this idea will have the most enthusiastic acceptance in the heart of our worthy legislators."

Taffy For America?

LONDON, April 10.—In an editorial this morning on the subject of Great Britain securing the payment by Nicaragua of the demanded indemnity of £15,000, by collecting the customs duties of that country, The Times says: If we are compelled to collect the customs, Nicaragua will presumably have to pay the costs of collection in addition to the indemnity. She will find it cheaper and less troublesome to settle with us forthwith. Her efforts to excite America's jealousy have failed. The justice and good sense of the Americans have proved too strong for the success of this characteristic maneuver.

Diamond Cutters Under the Ban.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The commissioner of immigration has telegraphed to New York an order for the deportation of the diamond cutters who have been held by the immigration officers, awaiting the decision of the bureau upon the question whether their admission would be a violation of the alien contract labor laws.

Bribery Charges Unfounded.

LITTLE ROCK, April 10.—The bribery investigation ended yesterday in the exoneration of all those about whom rumors have been so frequently circulated and against whom Representative Yancey made a direct charge on the floor of the house. No evidence was found to indicate the wrongful use of money.

Bumped Into a Bridge.

ALBANY, April 10.—Steamer Drew was dashed against the draw and abutment of the Greenbush bridge last night. The wheelhouse of the steamer was smashed into kindling wood, and several of the deck cabins were stove in. There was wild excitement among the passengers, but no one was injured.

Chinese Supplies Headed Off.

SHANGHAI, April 10.—A Japanese man-of-war has seized the British steamer Yik Sang outside Yaku, having on board 220,000 cartridges shipped by a respectable German as "bamboo and steel." The owners of the Yik Sang, it is added, accepted the shipment in good faith.

Heirs to a Fortune.

GLOUCESTER April 10.—John Halloran of this city with his brothers and sisters are presumed heirs to an estate valued at $800,000. This good fortune comes to them by the death of an uncle. Halloran a few years ago drew $15,000 in the Louisiana lottery.

Radicals In the Ascendency.

COPENHAGEN, April 10.—The general elections for members of the lower house of the Danish diet, resulted in the return of 61 Radicals, 28 Moderates and 24 members of the Right. The Radicals gained 15 seats.

Mourned For Her Husband.

AUBURN, N. Y., April 10.—After having dressed herself for her funeral, Mrs. Mary Rich yesterday committed suicide by taking laudanum. Her husband died five weeks ago and she was despondent.

CHITRAL RELIEVED.

Tribesmen Scatter After Another Battle With British Troops.

SIMLA, April 10.—The report of the withdrawal of Umra Khan's forces from Chitral is confirmed. Umra Khan is apparently now massing his forces on or beyond the Panjkora river. The British garrison in the Chitral fort is thus virtually relieved. The tribesmen north of the Swat river had another battle with the British troops, and were scattered in every direction. Details of the fight have not yet been received.

Coudry Wins His Suit.

CHICAGO, April 10.—The long delayed trial by which George W. Coudry seeks to collect $50,000 in a damage suit against Jacob Sweinfurth, the Rockford "Messiah," began and ended yesterday. Coudry alleges that the defendant alienated Mrs. Coudry's affections from her husband by inducing her to enter his "Heaven." The jury returned a verdict awarding Coudry $50,000 damages, the full amount asked for. Sweinfurth's people say he has no money to meet the damages.

Many Stumbling Blocks.

KOBE, April 10.—Responsible statesmen of Japan are desirous of the success of the peace negotiations, but their efforts are thwarted by the war party. The Japanese press is virtually unanimous in deprecating the conclusion of peace at present, and it would be incorrect to infer that the armistice for northern China indicates a disposition towards peace. Some of the influential papers demand, besides the occupation of Pekin, the subjugation of southern China.

New Sporting League.

CLEVELAND, April 10.—The convention of turfmen called to organize a sporting league concluded its business yesterday afternoon. A committee reported a charter which gave the name of the organization as the American league, and its object is to encourage and protect the manly sports and the business interests connected with them. Subordinate leagues must consist of not less than 10 members.

A Leader In Two Wars.

LOUISVILLE, April 10.—General T. A. Harris died yesterday at his home near Pewee Valley. When but 16 years old he distinguished himself against the Mormons in Missouri. General Harris commanded a regiment from Missouri in the Mexican war, and when the civil war broke out he was given command of another regiment of the confederacy. He was a West Point graduate.

In the Jury's Hands.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 10.—Judge Acheson yesterday afternoon completed his charge in the case of Anna L. Dickinson against her sister and four others. Miss Dickinson seeks to recover $50,000 damages for being confined five weeks in the Danville insane asylum in 1891. The jury is still out.

Whew!

CHICAGO, April 10.—The direct charge that Joseph B. Greenhut absorbed in one transaction $225,000 and never accounted for it, is contained in the papers in a suit by Receiver McNulta of the Whisky trust, and asserted complainants against the president of the trust and his fellow directors.

More Trouble For Grady.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 10.—Thomas M. Grady, the former cashier of the First National bank of Mariotta, was rearrested yesterday upon a new charge of fraudulently drawing eight drafts, aggregating $21,000, on the First National bank of Philadelphia.

Von Kontze Vindicated.

BERLIN, April 10.—The emperor has confirmed the finding of the court-martial that recently acquitted Baron von Kontze, a court chamberlain, of the charge of being the author of the anonymous letters that caused such a scandal in German society.

Same Old Story.

DOVER, Del., April 10. — Contrary to general expectation there was no change when the 106th ballot was taken yesterday for a United States senator, and the deadlock seems no nearer a solution than previous to the death of Governor Marvil.

Prominent Vermonter Dead.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., April 10.—W. H. Hunt, aged 45, state senator from Franklin county, paymaster of the Central Vermont railroad and business manager of the St. Albans Messenger company, died here last evening.

An Even Thing.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 10.—The settlement between Mexico and Guatemala contains seven clauses. Guatemala yields to Mexico in the matter of territory, but Mexico receives no indemnity for war preparation expenses.

Recognized by Great Britain.

LONDON, April 10.—In the house of commons Sir Edward Grey, replying to a question, said that the republic of Hawaii had been recognized by Great Britain.

Lockout Turns to Strike.

NORTH ADAMS, April 10.—The lockout at the Linwood mills has resulted in a strike, and the employes demand a restoration of the 9 per cent cutdown.

A REAL ENOCH ARDEN

MORE REMARKABLE THAN EVEN THE FAMOUS TICHBORNE CASE.

A Union Soldier Killed In Battle Returns After Nearly Thirty Years and Is Recognized by His Family—Claimant Not Sustained In Court.

The United States supreme court has just handed down final decision in a legal dispute over a question of identity, which is the most remarkable in the history of law, outdoing even the famous Tichborne case. It is the story of a Union soldier who was killed and buried on the field of battle, yet who was resurrected and rejoined his family and friends.

Few tales of fiction approach in interest this romance of a real Enoch Arden, whom cruel fate relegated to a penitentiary.

On April 6, 1862, William Newby, private in an Illinois regiment, was killed and buried on the field of Shiloh. At all events, no question of the fact was raised for nearly 30 years. He left in the town of Carmi, Ills., a widow and a mother.

Nearly four years ago a man walked into Carmi, hatless and by no means well clad, and announced that he was Newby, the lost soldier. Nobody recognized him at first, and this was not surprising after such a lapse of time. But he talked with old residents of the place and recalled so many antewar incidents, with reminiscences of persons and places, that finally they were convinced of his identity. He explained that he had been shot in the head and left on the battlefield. Afterward he recovered consciousness and was made a prisoner, being taken to Libby prison.

Being partly deprived of reason by his wound, he spent many years in southern poorhouses until at length he landed in the almshouse at Taylorsville, Ills., where he came to himself again and remembered who he was.

Now, it is quite true that he was for a time in the almshouse at Taylorsville. There he met an old man named Joseph Newby, brother of the William who fought at Shiloh.

This aged pauper was rather garrulous and had many stories to impart about his brother William, the history of the family, incidents respecting old residents of Carmi and its neighborhood, etc. Incidentally it was made to appear that William, if he were alive, would be entitled to $20,000 in pension arrears.

The new acquaintance listened until he was chock full of information. Then he declared to the astonished Joseph that he was in very truth his long lost brother, William Newby.

This part of the story did not come out until later. Meanwhile friendly citizens of Carmi sent to Tennessee for William Newby's wife. She came, but at first repudiated the alleged lost soldier. Nevertheless he succeeded in persuading her fully of his identity, while his supposed mother recognized him almost immediately as her son.

Presumably there would never have been any further dispute in the matter, and the soi disant Newby would have received the $20,000 pension money for which he at once applied had it not been that he was accidentally recognized by an ex-convict, who declared that he had met him in the penitentiary at Nashville, where he was known as Rickety Dan Benton and was serving an 18 years' sentence for horse stealing.

This caused an investigation. Thomas H. McBride, one of the most expert officers in the employ of the pension office, was sent to look the matter up. He traced the history of Dan Benton back to his earliest childhood, accounting for every year of his life.

He was born in Tennessee and was rickety from infancy. His wife and son were found and recognized him without hesitation. In short, the meshes were woven about him so closely that there seemed to be no possibility of escape.

But the other side was equally strong. The alleged Newby was recognized with as great positiveness by his supposed wife and mother. Many of the best citizens of Carmi and its vicinity were entirely satisfied of his identity, including men prominent in the G. A. R.

The case came up for trial. The proceedings occupied 11 days. The defense used 200 witnesses, the government about 60.

There was almost a riot in and about the courtroom. Attempts were made to intimidate the jurors. Nevertheless Newby, or Rickety Dan, was found guilty of perjury and of making false claim for pension.

Motion for a new trial being overruled, an appeal was made to the supreme court of the United States. This was dismissed on technical grounds. Again on a writ of error the case was taken to the supreme court, only to be again dismissed a few days ago and remanded to the lower court for the accomplishment of the sentence. Rickety Dan Benton has been clapped into jail by this time.—Washington Star.

A COMPLICATED CASE.

George Wright Is Charged With Stealing a Horse and Buggy.

Sister-In-Law Charges That He Is a Bigamist.

Alleged Sinner Was on Good Terms With Both Ends of the Family.

LYNN, April 11.—George Wright, 42 years old, a paper hanger of Hyde Park, was last night arrested, charged with larceny of a horse and buggy belonging to Mrs. Jennie Martin of Hyde Park. Wright will not only have to answer this charge in court, but will also be arraigned on a charge of bigamy.

The more serious charge would probably never be made if Wright had not stolen the horse and buggy, the owner of which is a sister of Mrs. Wright No. 1. The horse and buggy was originally the property of Wright. Last March he sold them to Mrs. Martin for $150. Last week he borrowed the team of its owner and rode to this city, and there sold the rig to Mrs. Randall of North Reading, his second mother-in-law. The purchase price was $80.

Wright again borrowed the horse and buggy, and tried to sell it to a stable keeper on Chestnut street. The livery man was suspicious, however, and held the team until yesterday, when Wright and the property were taken in by the police.

Mrs. Martin was notified of the arrest and came to the police station here, and in addition to charging Wright with theft, stated that 10 years ago the prisoner had married her sister, Eva Morse, at Newburyport, and two years later married a Miss Eva Randall of Worcester, and that his wife was Neither Dead or Divorced.

To support her charges she drew from her traveling bag what she said was the marriage certificate of Wright and her sister. To her consternation and the amazement of the officer at the desk the instrument was not what she claimed it to be, but a certificate of marriage between Wright and Miss Randall.

When asked how she came to be in possession of the certificate of Wright's second matrimonial adventure she did not explain, but promised to be on hand with the right certificate and her sister to swear out a warrant.

Wright's story is that after living with his first wife two years, they separated, and soon after he heard of her death. He then married the young lady in Worcester, and lived with her about two years. Learning that his first wife was not dead, he returned to again live with her, and at the time of his arrest he was living with neither particularly, although on good terms with his first mother-in-law and his second mother-in-law.

When arrested, he was at the house of Alfred Randall, the brother of his second wife, who resides in this city.

Shoeworkers In Session.

BOSTON, April 11.—Shoemakers from all the shoe manufacturing centers met here yesterday for the purpose of forming a new organization. Hitherto the shoeworkers have been divided into three bodies, viz.: Knights of Labor, International Shoeworkers and Lasters Protective union. It is proposed to form one organization which will do away with the present lack of uniformity in schedules and competition among the different bodies, which have been detrimental to all three. Committees to frame a constitution and attend to other necessary business were appointed. The convention will last until Saturday.

Cardinal's Love For Archbishop.

BOSTON, April 11.—Cardinal Gibbons will defer his departure for Rome until after the jubilee exercises in honor of the venerable Archbishop Williams. This mark of the esteem and respect in which Cardinal Gibbons holds Archbishop Williams is appreciated in an eminent degree, as it is known that the cardinal, in order to be present, must forego the pleasure of participating in several celebrations in Europe, to which he was invited upon the publication there of his intended visit abroad.

Golden Cross Grand Commandery Meet.

BOSTON, April 11.—The 17th annual session of the grand commandery of the United Order of Golden Cross of Massachusetts opened yesterday with 260 representatives present. Grand Commander Talbot reported 80 deaths and $100,000 paid to beneficiaries during 1894. Total membership April 1, '95, 8399, an increase of 2127 in the year. Grand Treasurer Wares reported $2624.02 in the treasury, after paying the year's expenses.

Old Schedule Restored.

FALL RIVER, April 11.—The Fall River iron works mills yesterday posted notices of a restoration of wages to all operatives to the schedule in force previous to last November, the new prices to go into effect April 22. The reduction in November was 10 per cent. The mills employ 1800 hands. The action of the iron works mills officials will probably result in a demand for a general restoration of wages in all mills.

Good Templars In Session.

BOSTON, April 11.—The 37th annual session of the Independent Order of Good Templars opened here yesterday. Reports showed that 52 lodges had been instituted last year, with a gain in membership of 1679. Total number of lodges in the state 223, a gain of 25 in the year. A resolution condemning the Norwegian system of liquor selling was passed.

Harvard and Football.

CAMBRIDGE, April 11.— The action of the Harvard overseers in voting for the continuance of football is received with much satisfaction by the students. As the case now stands, it is the college corporation, the trustees and the athletic committee against the faculty. A quiet acceptation of the situation is now expected on the part of the latter.

Unfathomable Mystery.

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Conn., April 11.—The public inquest in the murder of George Cutler revealed the fact that all clews to the murderer were worthless. The testimony of the medical examiner was convincing on the point that it was murder and not an accident. The mystery will probably never be cleared up.

An Unfortunate Woman.

MYSTIC, Conn., April 11.—Mrs. Anthony Parker deliberately ended her own life and that of her 6-weeks'-old babe, by throwing herself in front of a locomotive yesterday, with her babe in her arms. Temporary insanity, resulting from sickness, attending upon the child's birth, is thought to have led to the act.

The Electric Juggernaut.

BRIDGEPORT, April 11.—Anton Lauser, who was struck by a trolley car Tuesday night and thought not to be badly hurt, was yesterday found to be suffering from a concussion of the brain and the spinal column. He will die.

MEDFORD, April 11.—An electric car ran into a wagon last night, demolishing the wagon and badly injuring its occupants, Charles Homer and James H. Roach.

Olneyville Weavers Out.

PROVIDENCE, April 11.—Six hundred and fifty weavers, employed in the four mills of the Atlantic corporation at Olneyville, struck this morning after running their looms 15 minutes. Employes of the other departments in the mills are going out in sympathy. The mills employ 2500 hands.

Nothing For Public Institutions.

SPRINGFIELD, April 11.—The will of the late Colonel M. V. Edgerly was filed for probate yesterday. No public bequests are made. The bulk of the estate goes to his daughter, Mabel C. Edgerly. To Clinton C. Edgerly, a son, is bequeathed $500. A few small bequests are left to near relatives.

Alleged Case of Forgery.

PORTLAND, April 11.—John Linquist was arraigned yesterday, charged with forging a false certificate of admission to the marine hospital. Probable cause was found, and he was held for the grand jury. This is the first case of this kind that has ever occurred in New England.

Ashore on Great Ledge.

NEW BEDFORD, April 11.—Schooner Lizzie W. Hannum, loaded with a cargo of shells and curiosities, while putting into Buzzard's bay yesterday for harbor, went ashore on Great Ledge. The vessel struck heavily and pounded big holes in her bottom, soon filling with water.

Did $25,000 Damage.

MONSON, Mass., April 11.—Monson was visited by fire last night, and Green's block, formerly the old Congregational church, Gray's hall and two tenement houses were burned. The loss is estimated at $25,000. Albert Bede is supposed to have perished in the flames.

Drowned In the Mystic.

BOSTON, April 11.—Manuel Griffin, aged 4½, who has been missing from his home since Tuesday morning, was found drowned yesterday afternoon in the Mystic river. It is supposed he accidentally fell in.

A Long Rest In Jail.

NORTH ADAMS, April 11.—The case against May Matthews, a colored servant girl charged with arson, occupied all day in court yesterday. The Matthews girl has been confined in the county jail since her arrest more, than six months ago.

Brakeman Badly Hurt.

ROCKLAND, Me., April 11.— Fred Snow, a brakeman, had several ribs fractured and received internal injuries yesterday, while assisting in getting a derailed car on the track. He was struck by a heavy log which was used as a wedge.

Joseph Shaw, a sailor, aged 45, started at midnight Monday to board schooner Laura Robinson in the harbor at Rockland, Me. His boat was afterward found bottom up.

Rev. Edward Anderson is to resign as pastor of the Westfield Congregational church, Danielsonville, Conn., and is supposed to have a call from the vicinity of Chicago.

The voters of Dracut, Mass., voted, 176 to 134, to rescind the vote of the recent annual meeting to build a new town house at a cost of $10,000. The farmers killed the project.

John Phillips, one of the Nashua 19 enjoined liquor dealers under the ironclad oath, gave bonds in $1000 for his appearance in the supreme court at Manchester next week with others who have been called into court.

The Connecticut senate passed the bill amending the charter of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad so as to permit it to acquire the property of the Tomlinson Bridge company and the Union Wharf company of New Haven.

SAYS HE WILL WIN.

Senator Palmer Will Fight Illinois Silverites to a Finish.

Recent Convention Call Was Without a Precedent.

Assertion That It Was Intended to Entrap the Democratic Party.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 11. — From present indications, United States Senator John M. Palmer proposes to fight the so-called free silver Democrats of Illinois to a finish. The venerable senator last evening made such a declaration. "I am in this fight to stay," he said, "and I will not be beaten either.

JOHN M. PALMER.

"Some members of the state committee were in the secret, others were not; some members of the committee attaching but little importance to the meeting of the state committee, gave their proxies thoughtlessly, and others who appeared in person are reported to have asked some delay in a measure which was intended by the managers to separate the Democracy of Illinois from the Democratic party of other states.

"I had no notice, formal or otherwise, of the meeting of the state committee, nor do I understand that the Democracy of the state was better informed than I was. When the committee assembled, I am told, a call for a convention to meet in June was produced, of which Mr. Hinrichsen was the putative author. In this call the Democracy of the state are told by the state committee that the only question before the country is

That of the Currency.

"It is further declared in the call that no general legislation will be attempted for many years, while it is known that upon the return of Republicans to power they will attempt to apply and extend the doctrine of protection with all its socialistic features. This is Republicanism. I repeat, that in my opinion, the call for a state convention was issued as a means of entrapping the Democratic party into the silver movement.

"The call is without precedent, not only in the history of the Democratic party of Illinois, but of any other political party in any of the states. My poor friend, Mr. Merritt, is reported to have said that 'the Democracy has nothing to lose.' God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb, unless the lamb is a fool."

Croker Behind the Throne.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The men who are now directing the policy of Tammany Hall have decided to go into another campaign without a regular leader and try the experiment of selecting a special committee to lead and direct the organization in the next campaign. Richard Croker will be the real leader, or the directing power behind the special committee.

Escaped From the Asylum.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Oliver Curtis Perry, noted as one of the most daring train robbers of the day, succeeded last night in eluding his keepers at the Manhattan asylum for the criminal insane, where he had been confined, and with four companions, equally desperate, in making his escape from the asylum buildings.

Suspicions of Crookedness.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 11.—The building and loan association committee of the Illinois house last night adopted a resolution to investigate "The interstate building and loan associations of Bloomington, Ills." The president of the association is Adlai Stevenson, Vice President of the United States.

Murder at Newark.

NEWARK, N. J., April 11.—Joseph Buck murdered Mrs. Jessie Williams in her home here yesterday. The woman's husband was away at the time of the tragedy. Two children of the woman were in the house at the time of the shooting. The cause of the murder is not known.

A Loss to Rebels.

HAVANA, April 11.—The report of the death of Brigadier Guillermo Moncada, the famous negro leader of the rebels is confirmed. Guillermo, as he was more generally known, possessed very great influence over the people of his race in Cuba.

Contract Laborers Returned.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The diamond cutters who came to this country on the steamship Westerland last month and were held as contract laborers, were deported yesterday on the Waesland. They were brought over by F. Van Reith.

Tenants Scrambled For Life.

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 11.—Fire broke out early this morning in a tenement house on West Hancock street. The damage will be about $5000. The house was occupied by six families and much excitement prevailed. All the occupants got out safely

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Our line of these goods is unquestionably larger than that of any other Boston or New England dealer — very likely on a par with any house in New York, even.

We have for years made a specialty of exclusive styles, which are owned by us, and cannot be obtained elsewhere.

The present tariff (which only went into full effect Jan. 1) has combined with other causes to greatly lower the prices of all carpets, whether foreign or domestic.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy

"Holy City" tonight.

Many were surprised to find it so cold this morning.

Mrs. William Pratt of Revere, is the guest of relatives in this city.

Frank Hodges, son of Mayor Hodges, returned on Wednesday from his trip to California.

Several church programmes for Easter will appear in the DAILY LEDGER tomorrow.

Mr. Edward Richardson has gone to New London, Conn., to attend the funeral of his uncle.

Atlantic seems to be the newsy part of the city this week: burglaries, suicide, fires, etc.

Five alarms of fire inside of three days with a loss of about $9,500, is considerable for a city like Quincy.

The dissolution of Pratt & Curtis is advertised today. L. M. Pratt & Co. will continue the business.

The assignee sale of the stock of Clapp Bros. will begin Saturday and continue until sold. See advertisement.

There are fifty voices in the sacred cantata, "The Holy City" to be presented this evening. Mr. A. L. Hood is the conductor.

The Sunny Hour Club will give a musical and dramatic entertainment in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian Church on April 19.

According to the auditor's annual report for 1894 the repairs on the three brick school houses amounted to $795.65, and on the six wooden ones $677.81.

There was a large party at the Granite City club's rooms last evening, and the whist prizes were won by Mrs. Frank E. Hall and Mr. Horace E. Spear.

Box 28 on the corner of Hancock and Greenleaf streets was put in about nine years ago and Wednesday was the first time it was ever pulled for a fire.

Auctioneer Kincaide held the attention of a goodly number of purchasers at his auction of household goods Wednesday afternoon and found many buyers.

Charles F. Tirrell will probably be discharged from Bridgewater, Dr. Harrington stating that he is now all right mentally. District Attorney Harris has asked the superior court for an examination.

Work laying out the Adams property on President's hill, into house lots and streets is being rapidly pushed forward, and when completed will make one of the most desirable residential parts of the city.

The Ladies' Society of the Methodist Episcopal church of Wollaston, met Wednesday evening with Mrs. A. J. Colgan, Winthrop avenue, to arrange plans for work for the conference year.

Services appropriate to Holy Thursday were observed at St. John's church this morning at 8 o'clock. There will also be services at 7.30 this evening. Friday services will be held at 8 A. M., 3 and 8 P. M.

Mrs. Wade gave her second cooking lecture Wednesday afternoon at the First church chapel which was even larger attended than the first lecture and much interest was manifested by the ladies present.

A special car was attached to the South Shore train Wednesday evening, to accommodate those who desired to attend the wedding at Hingham of Mr. Alfred L. Lincoln and Miss Edith W. Clapp, many of those present being from Quincy.

The Assessors have divided as last year. Messrs. Fegan, Drake and Curtis will assess Wards One, Two and Three; and Messrs. White, Orcutt and Holbrook will go the rounds in Wards Four, Five and Six.

The Epworth League will give a grand entertainment in the Methodist Episcopal church, Wollaston, next Thursday evening. It will consist of music, readings and a grand exhibition of the phonograph. Persons who have witnessed this exhibition elsewhere speak in the highest terms of it and all desire to witness it again.

AN $8,000 FIRE.

A Residence at Atlantic Totally Destroyed.

NONE OF THE CONTENTS SAVED.

Poor Alarm at Atlantic and Steamer Too Far Away.

Seldom has Quincy been visited by a more disastrous fire than the one this morning when the large dwelling house of Le Roy S. Carter on Squantum street was totally destroyed.

The family who occupied the house consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Carter, their two sons and daughter. Wednesday evening a fire was built in the open grate and it is supposed that in some way the fire started from that.

It was a few minutes past 1 o'clock when Mr. Charles Carter was aroused by the strong smell of smoke and he immediately aroused the family who had barely time to escape with their lives as the building was a seathing mass of flames.

An alarm was sounded from Box 64 at 1.15, but when the department arrived but little remained to do but to throw water on the burning embers, and to keep the adjoining buildings from taking fire as a high wind was blowing at the time and the sparks were flying in all directions.

An effort was made to save some of the contents of the building but these efforts were fruitless as the fire had too much headway.

The chemical engine of Atlantic was early on the scene with the three members who sleep in the house. The wind probably prevented the other members of the company from hearing the bell, and the first they knew that there had been a fire in their district was this morning.

The loss on the building is estimated at $6,000 and on the contents, $2,000, both of which are insured.

That the fire was not a repetition of the Driver fire is a miracle. When Mrs. Carter was awakened she and her husband were almost overcome, and they had hard work to escape, and as it was Mr. Carter had his face badly singed by the flames.

He had his little girl with him when he tried to escape but lost her in the smoke and flames. Fortunately, however, she managed to escape; how, she does not know.

The others of the family made their escape through the windows, and so hasty was their exit that it was impossible to properly clothe themselves. They considered themselves fortunate to get out at all.

When seen this morning Mr. Carter could form no idea of how the fire originated. He says there was a fire the night before in the kitchen stove and in the open fire place, and also a lamp left burning when the family retired. Doubtless the fire originated from one of these causes but which one will never be known.

CELEBRATED ALL DAY.

The Fourteenth Birthday of Harry Trask of West Quincy.

Master Harry Trask of Willard street, celebrated his fourteenth birthday on Wednesday, by inviting eight of his boy friends, who are his Sunday School mates, and his teacher, to spend the day with him. The day was spent in many games; a ball game being the chief feature as two young ladies took part in the game and did their part to perfection. Lunch was served late in the afternoon at which Miss Alice Trask poured chocolate. A very pretty birthday cake upon which were the initials "W. H. T. 14 years" adorned the center of the table and was cut in honor of the occasion. Master Harry was the recipient of many presents, among which was a magic lantern which the boys enjoyed after their lunch. The boys left at 8 P. M., after wishing Harry many happy returns of the day and thanking his parents for their jolly good time.

Comedy at Wollaston.

At the Wollaston Unitarian church vestry on Wednesday evening the Altar Society presented "A King's Daughter" to a large audience. The comedy was very well carried out and merited the generous applause which it received. All of the parts were well taken. The cast:

Mrs. Graham,	Miss Thayer
Aunt Clarissa,	Miss Cora Wellington
Rebecca Spencer,	Miss Carrie Holmes
Helen Graham,	Miss Helen Sibley
Sallie Browning,	Miss Blanche Taylor
Florence Baldwin,	Miss Zannetta Sprague

VICTORY FOR ADAMS.

They Inaugurate Season by Defeating a Harvard Nine.

The season opened well for the Adams Academy nine Wednesday. They played a five-innings game with a team from Harvard and won by a score of 19 to 10. The high wind which was blowing and the fact that it is still early for practice, made clean fielding impossible. The game consequently abounded in errors. Some of the new material in the Academy team showed up well, and as a whole the game was encouraging. The batting of both nines was nearly even. Manning's three-base hit was one of the features of the game, as was also his catch of a high foul fly.

The nine plays three games next week. On Wednesday another strong team from Harvard will play; on Patriots' Day, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, the opponents will be the Pansy Whist Club, captained by Mr. Schenkelberger; and on Saturday, the 20th, the nine plays Dean Academy of Franklin. Wednesday's score:

THE NEW SOUTH

Shown to Have Many Inducements to Offer Northern Capitalists.

BOSTON, April 11.—The legislative grist included the report of the committee on mercantile affairs in the cases leading up to the exodus of northern cotton mills; the passage of a bill appropriating $150,000 for the extermination of the gypsy moth pest; the report of the metropolitan affairs committee recommending the abolishment of the Boston city council and the acceptance of Mayor Curtis' charter; the rejection of a bill to do away with dark solitary cells in prisons; engrossment of bills for street railway police and permitting cities and towns to regulate the width of tires used on their highways. The house adjourned owing to the death of Representative Bennett of Tyngsboro, the fourth member of this legislature to die.

The committee on mercantile affairs, which consists of both manufacturers and labor men, submitted a unanimous report on the proposed removal of Massachusetts textile corporations to the southern states.

The committee after a careful investigation concludes that although a large amount of Massachusetts capital has been sent into the south for the erection of cotton mills during the last few years, there is no immediate danger from southern competition. The committee adds that four Massachusetts corporations have recently asked for legislative permission to move south, but have not decided to make use of the permission.

The report emphatically says that no actual removal is to be considered by these corporations. Figures are given to show that during 1892,68 per cent of the increase of spindles in the whole country were put in operation in this state. Some of the causes of the southward tendency discussed by the committee are: Cheaper coal in the south, cheaper labor, exemption from taxation, nearness to the cotton fields, absence of restrictive labor legislation, abundance of water power, etc.

The committee admits that the lack of labor legislation is a great inducement to the manufacturers to locate in the south.

Thousands of Dollars Involved.

OMAHA, April 11.—Frank Roseberry, an Omaha real estate dealer, who left here suddenly two weeks ago, is alleged to have been connected with some extensive swindling through bogus mortgages placed with eastern investors. He has for years done a large business as a loan broker, handling many mortgages. Since evidence of his crookedness developed, it is believed he is very deeply involved, aggregating many thousands.

Hard to Catch.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—United States Marshal Baldwin made return yesterday on the bench warrant issued for the arrest of C. P. Huntington, on an indictment for a violation of the interstate traffic law. The marshal stated that Huntington could not be found within his jurisdiction. This will involve the service of the warrants wherever the accused can be located.

A Russian Prison Horror.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 11.—The inspector of prisons at Koongoor, while drunk, ordered that three prisoners who had tried to escape, be beaten to death by the guards with the butts of their rifles. One of the prisoners was killed, and the other two are dying from the effects of the injuries inflicted upon them.

Approved by Directors.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The Atchison railroad directors have approved the plan of reorganization made by the joint reorganization committee. The board recommends that the stock of the company be deposited under the plan, that the assessment be paid and that the reorganization be facilitated in every way.

Reminder to French Catholics.

MONTREAL, April 11.—La Croix, the French-Canadian organ of the Catholic clergy, impresses upon all the electors that if they are interested in the settlement of the Manitoba school question, as desired by the Catholic minority, they must vote for the government in the coming elections.

Deficiency In Expense Account.

BOSTON, April 11.—The annual report of the trustees of the Boston Museum of Art shows that the total admissions were 265,112, of which 19,169 were paid. There is a deficiency of $2361 in the expense account, and the total bequests were $95,000, with a $30,000 conditional bequest for a Paris scholarship fund.

Must Have Free Beer.

OMAHA, April 11.—An attempt to settle the strike of the journeymen brewers has failed. The boss brewers drew up a contract to be signed by the union, but the workmen refused to sign unless free beer was allowed every hour. The workmen in every brewery in the city are out.

Had No Opponent.

NICE, April 11.—There was but one starter in the steam yacht race yesterday. Henry McCalmont's Giralda made one round of the course and took the challenge cup valued at $2500, offered by James G. Bennett.

Caused by a Spark.

COLUMBIA, Pa., April 11.—The Susquehanna rolling mill was destroyed by fire yesterday. A spark from one of the rolls dropped into a can of oil, causing an explosion. The loss is about $50,000.

On a Big Scale.

PARIS, April 11.—Police have seized in the room of an American named Wing, who is charged with putting up bogus collateral for a loan, 16,000 $100 bogus shares of a railroad, and other papers.

William's Latest Tribute.

BERLIN, April 11.—Emperor William has sent a wreath to be deposited on Princess Bismarck's coffin on the anniversary of her birth.

A WAVE MOTOR.

A Machine by Means of Which the Inventor Would Harness Old Neptune.

E. Gerlach of Santa Monica, Cal., has invented a "wave motor," which has found favor with engineers. The inventor claims for his machine that it will settle the question of cheap fuel by generating electricity in any part of the city and may be utilized for motive and other power. In speaking of the invention Mr. Gerlach said:

"It is a wheel segment with three paddles journaled on an axle and placed on the end of a pier built to extend some 50 to 100 feet outside the breaker line in the ocean. These paddles are about 30 feet long and from 12 to 30 feet wide, according to the power required. They dip from 12 to 15 feet, and the wheel segment is arranged so as to raise or lower it with the tide. The never ceasing, oscillating motion of the ocean operates on the parts dipping and causes them to sway to and fro. This motion is transmitted with one straight and one crossed cable to pulleys which are loose on the power producing shaft, but so arranged with ratchets that the shaft always rotates in one and the same direction, any lapse of motion being overcome by a heavy balance wheel.

"This power producing shaft will be used to operate pumps which will force water from the ocean to a reservoir built on a bluff near by, and from this storage a uniform power can be obtained by the use of Pelton wheels. These Pelton wheels, by the aid of a dynamo, will generate electricity, which can be transmitted by copper wires to any shop or power house within 100 miles. Factories and street cars may be run by this same power, and our houses may be lighted and cooking done by it."

The inventor claims that a hundred horsepower machine embodying his invention can be built for about $6,000.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

How an Italian Woman Bought a Husband For $200.

A queer story of Italian matrimonial methods came to light recently in Hoboken, N. J. The parties to the case were Antonio Lamart, 21 years old, and his wife, Philomena, who is 15 years his senior.

She fell in love with him in August, 1893, and did the proposing. She was so infatuated that she agreed to pay him $200 if he would marry her.

Lamart married her and got the money. Then she tried to get him to take charge of a fruit stand. Lamart did not like that vocation, so he deserted her and spent his $200 in gay company.

Since then Lamart has not contributed anything to his wife's support, and she seeks a separation, explaining that she has found another lover, who will marry her without money.

Dr. Guerin's Little Joke.

An amusing anecdote is related of Dr. Alphonso Guerin, the well known surgeon and the author of a number of valuable medical works, who has just died at a good old age. A short time before the war of 1870, when he was surgeon to the St. Louis hospital, he was summoned to Rome to perform an operation on Pius IX, a task of which he acquitted himself with the utmost success and much to the satisfaction of the pope, who, in his enthusiasm, pronounced him to be the greatest doctor in Christendom. "You see," the doctor used to remark, with a smile, when he told the story, "I was obliged to believe that he was right in his opinion of me, for is he not infallible?"

Nordau's New Book.

Max Nordau's book upon "Degeneration" bids fair to be the most talked of thing in literature for awhile. It says many acute and sharp things about the degenerates in literature, music and painting, among whom he counts Ruskin, Swinburne and William Morris. His book upon "Conventional Lies of Society," published about ten years ago, also made more or less of a stir, but the new work will surpass it in interest because it has more of a scientific basis and makes greater pretension to an accurate description of society in what he regards as its present condition.—Buffalo Express.

—The decrease in the number of failures in the United States for the first quarter of 1895 as compared with the corresponding period of 1894 is not large, only about 11 per cent. but it is a matter for congratulation that the returns show a decrease. Still more gratifying is the fact that the decrease in the amount of liabilities is 25 per cent. There is conclusive proof here that the turn in the industrial and business tide has been reached and passed.—Boston Record.

A ROMANTIC STORY.

An Estranged Pair Reunited Through a Newspaper Item.

Here is a story that is the aftermath of a romance and the prologue of a wedding. It occurred recently in a Cincinnati store:

A handsome blond gentleman walked from the elevator at the third floor, evidently in a state of expectant perturbation, and after a hurried glance about the room walked hastily toward a pretty black haired saleswoman. The young lady, hearing his approach, turned half around to wait on a prospective customer. The gentleman grabbed the lady before she had turned completely around, and drawing her close to him planted a kiss upon her rosy lips. Clerks and customers looked on askance until an explanation was made.

Mrs. Ella Gruenmeier was the saleswoman, and the man who embraced her was Mr. Charles Gruenmeier, her ex-husband. Four years ago Mr. and Mrs. Gruenmeier occupied a handsome home on East Fairfield avenue, Dayton, Ky. They had been married two years, and a pretty little girl was the fruit of their union. He began to indulge in mild dissipation and lost his position. Strained relations between husband and wife followed, and they finally separated.

For three years Mrs. Gruenmeier heard nothing of her husband. She sought and obtained a decree of divorce upon the grounds of desertion and failure to provide.

Their little daughter became dangerously ill of typhoid fever, and she published the fact in a newspaper. This was noticed by the father at his new home in Chicago, and he wrote to his former wife as to the condition of the little one. This led to a correspondence between the separated ones, and learning that Mrs. Gruenmeier had secured a divorce Gruenmeier went to her. The scene described above resulted. Mrs. Gruenmeier took her daughter to see her father, and for the first time in four years the little family was reunited. He returns to the Windy City to wind up his business affairs, after which he will remarry his wife.

THE MEXICAN BOUNDARY.

The Westward Half of the New Survey Has Just Been Completed.

Since July, 1892, the international boundary commission, with a staff of 80 engineers, soldiers and laborers, has been engaged in resurveying the boundary line between the United States and Mexico from El Paso, Tex., to San Diego, Cal. The work is practically finished, and a corps of draftsmen is now busy at the government building in San Diego completing the final and summary maps, profiles and details of the labors of the commission. The survey has covered more than 709 miles.

The commission has rebuilt the 52 early boundary monuments and set up 296 more at an expense of about $80,000. The new monuments consist of an iron shaft, bearing the letters "U. S." on the north side and the word "Mexicana" on the south side.

A few weeks ago another commission, known as the international boundary (water) commission, started upon the work of resurveying the boundary line between Mexico and the United States along the Rio Grande from El Paso east to the gulf of Mexico. It will probably not finish its labors for three years. It will set up a chain of monuments similar to those erected from El Paso westward.—New York Sun.

Yankee Ingenuity.

A Connecticut genius has invented a trotting sulky so arranged that "the weight of the driver becomes a propelling power." The horse is evidently a doomed beast.

This invention, however, will have results reaching far beyond trotting sulkies. If a driver, by sitting a little behind the wheels of his attenuated vehicle, can give it a forward impulse without decreasing his own altitude, there is no reason why a captain, reenforced by a crew sufficiently large, cannot replace the costly engines that now take up so much valuable space in ocean steamers, or why every one of the now existing sources of power should not be abandoned in favor of a weight, live or dead, placed "just behind the wheels."—New York Times.

A Gigantic Engineering Plan.

The latest engineering and ship canal idea is to dispense with the 24 locks in the Welland canal leading from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario, and to make the whole drop of 326 feet between these two lakes in two pneumatic balance locks, built of steel, operated by compressed air and large enough to admit vessel of ocean draft. The greatest lock now in existence is on the Manchester ship canal, 45 feet high.—Philadelphia Ledger.

CONTRACTS HIDDEN.

Norfolk County Citizens in Dark as to Proposed Cost

OF THE DEDHAM COURT HOUSE.

Would Exhibit to Committee in Executive Session.

The Committee on County Estimates requested on Monday that the Norfolk County Commissioners bring the court house contracts to the hearing of Wednesday, but on Wednesday they refused point blank to exhibit them, except to the committee in executive session. Chairman Morrell of the commissioners said on Monday that citizens had but to ask and they could see. Wednesday, Fred H. Williams appeared as counsel and stated that he had advised the commissioners not to exhibit, except in private. Judge French and others combated this position but the committee was powerless.

Counsel Williams said the estimates were based largely on estimates of past years. There were five increases and one deduction.

He called John H. Burdakin, register of deeds, who testified that the $4,000 was needed for books, also that the $4,000 for indexes should be appropriated that good progress might be made in continuing the work of indexing. In cross-examination he admitted that he had not been consulted on the estimate as to the amount.

Mr. Williams next took up the items of $10,000 for addition to county court house and $20,000 for repairs and furnishing of county buildings. It was at this point that the controversy over the contracts, as above related, occurred. Mr. Williams claimed for business reasons it was not proper to present the contracts that they might be overhauled He argued that if the commissioners estimated the money necessary it should be appropriated.

One of the committee suggested that it was the duty of the committee to learn if appropriations for the building in the past had been properly used.

Judge French believed that it was the right of any citizen of Norfolk county to know the amount of the contracts, and the proposed cost of the improvements.

Ex-Commissioner Wiggin said it had been the custom without an exception during his fifteen years of service to file all contracts as soon as made with the clerk.

A motion was made in the committee that the Commissioners present the contracts, but Mr. Williams' statement that contracts would not be exhibited, caused the motion to be withdrawn.

J. R. Bullard of Dedham was called by Mr. Williams. Lived opposite court house and was familiar with work. In his judgment the building must have cost over $300,000, and thought at least $30,000 must be due. Could not speak for county, but Dedham people were pleased at the improvements.

Judge Grover had no reason to doubt that expenditures for court house had been properly made. There is an expensive building there, but one the county wanted. Did not know that $30,000 would complete it, but supposed it would.

Congressman Morse

Was called by Mr. Williams. He hoped there would be no cheese paring for Norfolk County. It was a wealthy county, with a per capita of wealth the highest in State. Norfolk should have as good buildings as other counties.

Mr. Williams said he had other witnesses but the testimony 'would be merely accumulative. He requested those present who endorsed the estimates to stand and 20 to 25 responded.

Henry H. Faxon was the first remonstrant. He objected to the estimates because he did not consider the county commissioners competent to handle such large jobs. Was outrageous to remodel court house as had been done.

George W. Wiggin was the principal remonstrant. He complained that citizens were not allowed to see what its servants were doing, as previous to 1894. He claimed that money had been illegally paid from treasury as no contracts were on file. Twice during his service of fifteen years the Legislature had cut down Norfolk county estimates, so there was a precedent. In 1879 from a tax of $70,000 to $68,200. In 1880 from $67,000 to $60,000. Now $160,000 is wanted. Many of the Norfolk county towns have a large municipal debt. He presented figures showing the estimates to be $53,600 in excess of needs, and the income was estimated at $9,500 when it was $11,161 last year and had averaged $14,758 for ten years.

Then there was a surplus of $40,000 in treasury, none of which was utilized. In 1886 the estimates were $84,000 but the tax was only $60,000.

In 1892 the changes in the court house at Dedham were inaugurated. I was then a member of the board and presented estimates of $65,000 to $70,000. Legislature granted right to borrow or raise $75,000. A contract of $8,766 was made for the foundation. Later a contract of $79,250 was made by the board for superstructure, although I am on record against it as the amount exceeded $75,000. It was to be completed April 1, 1893. Apparently $122,388.19 has been paid for this part of the work. I left the board Jan. 1, 1894. There were other contracts of which I might speak, but will submit to committee. The architect's bill was an outrage. As near I can now summarize it the contemplated cost of the court house will be $365,446.91, and the work still goes on, the citizens being kept in the dark.

To Solicitor Blackmur of Quincy he said he knew of no reason why the estimates should be so largely in excess of expenditures of 1894. County could be carried on as well as ever if only $90,000 was levied.

Solicitor Blackmur

Remonstrated against the levy of $160,000. He said Quincy paid a county tax of $14,000. Quincy had to be economical and wanted county to be also.

Ex-Senator Ray remonstrated. Was a Senator in 1892 and promises had been made that additions could be made for $75,000. In 1894 they were sure $125,000 would complete it. Large expenditures had been made without consulting wishes of citizens and the end was not in sight. The rate should be kept down in a year like this. The extravagant expenditures were not in good taste if not suspicious. The presence of many of the supporters today was owing to pleas sent by messengers yesterday to be sure to attend. I have endeavored through counsel to see contracts, but have failed.

John Q. A. Field thought the feeling spoken of was an effort to keep people quiet who wanted to learn where money was going. Acts and records should be on file open to public. The proposed levy might safely be reduced $60,000.

The time was limited and the preceding speakers were only allowed fiae minutes. A motion was made to close the hearing without giving others an opportunity, but Judge French remonstrated and was allowed a few minutes. He attacked the commissioners vigorously, saying an open hand had not been shown, but rather an effort to cover up. Why should not contracts be shown? Have they given any reason? Have not the citizens a right to know what the contracts are? They should show the contracts. Why not let counsel see contracts? Counsel should be allowed to attend the executive session. The County Commissioners should be governed by laws. Authority to spend $75,000 had resulted in expenditures of $350,000. People should have a right to vote on such large expenditures. Braintree, with a tax rate of $21.60, had a right to be heard. Commissioner Morrill had impressed him as not knowing, or else he wanted to keep secret. The committee have got no information that these large sums are necessary. They had not appeared necessary by the evidence of Commissioner Morrill. No one was better qualified to give information than Mr. Wiggin, and those who know him know that he would not purposely mislead the committee.

The committee voted to allow Judge French to be present when contracts were submitted to committee.

The hearing then closed.

OOOOOOOOOOOOOOOO

Perhaps You Don't Know It,

But there is a law against falsehood in advertisements. It isn't on the statute books, but it is written in the hearts of the people, and when they convict a merchant of this offence they fine him "LIKE SIXTY."

Ranges.

In building a business we know of no better way to win the endorsement of the people at large than to handle standard merchandise. Of course the margin is smaller, but the increased sales and universal satisfaction and endorsement of the users, more than offsets the former. We need only add that we carry in stock a full line of the SPLENDID GLENWOOD and MAGEE RANGES, prices $20 to $35.

Baby Carriages.

Our new Spring Patterns are models of beauty,—Attractive, Easy Running, and, best of all, wonderfully low-priced, $3.95 to $20.00. Cut prices on Wakefield and Heywood Carriages.

Refrigerators.

We have looked the market over carefully, and we are convinced that no Refrigerator manufactured today is made with more care or will give such universal satisfaction as THE EDDY. Twenty per cent. discount from the manufacturer's list, they net in price from $5.20 to $25.00. We carry the full line, also special designs in Oak and Hardwood Refrigerators.

Gasoline Stoves.

We have selected THE RELIABLE, and we can frankly say that after witnessing many tests we are convinced that this is by all odds vastly superior to any other make on the market. It is as near an approach to perfection as Yankee wit will permit. Absolutely safe, and so economical, too, they will be more popular this summer than ever before. Prices, $3.50 to $10.00.

White Iron Beds.

The newest and most attractive patterns, $5 to $15. Children's White Iron Cribs, $7.50 to $9.50. Disease germs find no lurking places in these modern beds. They are growing more and more in favor every day.

Phœbe Couzins Has Grit.

Mr. Fair's last will is said to be holographic and in lead pencil. That, however, is not the only graphic thing about the will contest, which is now assuming the aspects of a full fledged melodrama, as Phœbe Couzins is claiming to be the dear deceased's intended. As a fighter Phœbe has grit, as the lady managers of the World's fair board have cause to remember.—Philadelphia Press.

A British Dollar.

The British people will soon know the meaning of the phrase, "the almighty dollar," for a real British dollar is soon to be coined and launched on this eager world. It is hoped America is not going to be jealous of it, but will remember that imitation is the sincerest flattery. England has always liked American coin. Now it is about to see one of its own.

Bank Treasurer For Many Years.

CHARLESTOWN, N. H., April 11.—George Olcott, treasurer of the Connecticut River Savings bank, which has just passed into the hands of a receiver, died yesterday, aged 57. He had been treasurer of the bank for more than 30 years.

Assistant Treasurer Wiggin.

BOSTON, April 11.—Frank H. Wiggin who for eight years has been associated with Langdon Ward, treasurer of the American Board of Foreign Missions, has been appointed assistant treasurer by the prudential committee.

In the Nick of Time.

SOUTH VERNON, Vt., April 11.—Trackmen discovered a washout of an embankment 300 feet long on the northern division of the New London railroad yesterday. Their discovery doubtless prevented an accident.

Portland Folks Buy Sirocco.

ROCKLAND, Me., April 11.—Commodore M. A. Rice of the Penobscot Yacht club has sold his yacht Sirocco, winner of the Castine cup last season, to Portland people.

No Dividend.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The semi-annual dividend on the preferred stock of the Chicago Brewing and Malting company, limited, payable April 14, will be deferred, there being trouble in maintaining prices.

Employers Unwilling to Arbitrate.

BOSTON, April 11.—A mass meeting of the striking rubber workers of Hyde Park was held here last night, and the executive committee reported that the company refused to arbitrate the differences.

On Friendly Terms.

BUENOS AYRES, April 11.—It is officially denied that there is any quarrel between Argentina and Chili.

REBELS GAIN GROUND.

Spanish Troops Lose Heavily In Skirmishes With Cuban Insurgents.

Maceo Joined by Many of His Old Soldiers.

British Schooner With Rebel Recruits Aboard Sunk Off Baracoa.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—Late reports by steamer from Havana assert that the steamer Manuelita has just arrived from Santiago with more than 300 wounded Spanish soldiers. They were taken to the hospitals there because the hospitals at Santiago are crowded.

A letter from Santiago mentions a battle at Troconos, near the Canto river, in which the Spanish general, Salcede, with 1000 men, engaged a band of revolutionists under Rabi about March 26. The Spanish loss was said to be 380, while the Cubans lost four killed and 30 wounded. The Spanish troops were mostly boys. The letter states that in the battle pity was taken on many who were caught and their life spared.

Maceo has organized a large force in Santiago province. Since his arrival, 800 soldiers who fought under him in the former revolution, have joined him. They are principally from Majaquabo, Maceo's old home.

Some Startling Details of the successful efforts of the insurgents to get an entrance into the port of Baracoa, Cuba, and the wreck of the small British schooner that brought them to the entrance of that place, the shooting of her master by the Spanish soldiers and the imprisonment of her entire crew was told by the officers of the Norwegian steamship Spero, which arrived yesterday from that port.

Excitement runs high at Baracoa, and the majority of the residents of this place seem to sympathize with the insurgents. The large number that were landed from the British schooner, which foundered before her name could be learned, made good their escape after a hot fight with the Spanish soldiers, 15 of whom were dangerously wounded and are in the hospital.

This occurred on April 1, but until the time the Spero left, April 5, none of them had been captured, and they are supposed to be proceeding overland to El Cobre, outside of Santiago, the scene of most of the insurrection.

The condition in Baracoa, which is the center of nearly all the banana plantations of northern Cuba, is assuming serious shape, and nearly all the laborers are being pressed into the service of the revolutionists. Over 1000 men gave up work the day the Spero left and joined the ranks of the insurgents.

The harbor of Baracoa is being watched by the Spanish gunboat Espana, and any further landing of troops from the insurgent forces at this point will probably be prevented. Those who gained entrance by the British schooner came, it is thought, from either Nassau or some of the United States ports in the gulf. They were well armed, and fought their way through the city and out over the mountains, which lie to the southward of the quaint old settlement.

Captain Shot Accidentally.

One of the Spero's passengers said that the shooting of the English captain was an accident, as it happened while he was being taken to jail by the Spanish soldiers. He was shot through the head and instantly killed. No one in Baracoa seemed to know his name nor the name of the vessel he commanded.

The sailors who were on board have all been cast into the dungeons at Baracoa and are being closely guarded. The insurgents that were on board the schooner were well armed and supplied with a lot of gold.

The distance overland to Santiago is not far, but the country is mountainous in this locality, and they would not be able to reinforce the insurgent forces for a week or 10 days.

On the night of April 1 a Spanish mail steamship landed at Baracoa 200 troops, brought up from other sections of Cuba. The Spero visited Mtaya and Uyumuro, two small towns in Cuba, but all was quiet there.

The Farn line steamship Moukslaton, Captain Beazley, arrived from Santiago in Cuba yesterday, but no news of the condition of affairs at this place could be learned. The management of the Farn Line Steamship company has issued orders prohibiting any of the officers of these ships to give to the public information of any sort regarding the Cuban affairs.

No Use For Arbitration.

PHILADELHHIA, April 11.—President Harris of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad has notified the committee of presidents of anthracite coal roads, which was appointed to secure an adjustment of the difficulties among the various companies, that the Reading positively declines to submit its claims to arbitration.

An Ungrafetul Pugilist.

MONTREAL, April 11.—Pat Griffin of Boston was backed by Fred Clarke for $250 in the fight with Costello here, on the understanding he would pay back the money. When Clarke asked for it, Griffin knocked him down. Griffin was arrested.

Went Down With His Boat.

HALIFAX, April 11.—Alexander Lynch of Dartmouth started to cross the harbor last night in a canvas boat. A squall struck the craft, causing it to founder. Lynch, who was an aged man, went down with it.

Sailors' Profitable Run.

HALIFAX, April 11.—The ship Shelkirk, from Boston, made the run in a few hours over two days. Twelve of her crew were signed for the run, for which they received $18, and they at once returned by steamer.

Struck a Ledge.

BATH, April 11.—Schooner Charles Balch, coal laden, struck on the ledge off Small point yesterday and began leaking badly. Two boats and a wrecking scow went to her assistance.

Strike Is Spreading.

CINCINNATI, April 11.—The striking coatmakers had a parade yesterday, and got several shops out in the line of their march. They now claim there are 8500 on strike here.

Trains Delayed.

HALIFAX, April 11.—All trains arriving here are several hours behind time, owing to washouts on railways, caused by the heavy rains of the past few days.

A PLUCKY LAD.

Rescues a Woman From a Would-Be Negro Assailant at Providence.

PROVIDENCE, April 11.—A Western Union telegraph messenger boy, William Carroll, was a hero last night on the aristocratic east side.

When Emma Johnson, a servant, was attacked by a burly negro, who was armed with a revolver, the plucky messenger boy rushed to the servant's aid and saved her from serious injury, if not death.

The negro lay in wait on Carrington lane and Power street, and pounced upon the girl when she left the house to go on an errand.

The negro had his intended victim by the throat and was trying to stifle her cries, but she shouted for help, the boy rushed to the rescue and the negro fled into the night.

Talent Wasted in America.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Otto A. Dreier, Danish vice consul, left Chicago last night with Gasta Blomgren, a poet from Finland. Blomgren has the distinction of being a protege of the Dowager of the Empress Maria Feodorovna, a daughter of King Christian IX of Denmark and a sister of the Princess of Wales. The poet had written and sung for seven years in America in a vain endeavor to win fame and fortune and failed of success. The empress secured a royal order instructing Dreier to return the homesick poet to his native land.

Umra Khan Tired of Fighting.

SIMLA, April 11.—Umra Khan, chief of Jandol, against whom a large British force is carrying on a campaign growing out of his invasion of Chitral, has released the Sepoys recently captured by his forces. The Sepoys have reached the British forces, and report that Lieutenants Edwards and Fowler, who were also captured by Umra Khan, are still held as prisoners. The Sepoys assert that Umra Khan is unwilling to further fight the British.

Peel's Successor.

LONDON, April 11.—The house of commons yesterday elected William Court Gully, Liberal, as speaker, by a vote of 285 to 274 for Sir Matthew Ridley. Mr. Gully expressed his thanks to the house for his election, and his appreciation of the honor and great responsibility which they had conferred upon him. Sir William Harcourt and Mr. Balfour congratulated Mr. Gully on behalf of their respective parties, and the house adjourned.

Deaths Were Needless.

HAZELTON, Pa., April 11.—The coroner's jury in the cases of the four victims of the recent trolley disaster at Jeanesville, have have found that the accident might have been avoided if the rear brakes on the car had been properly and promptly applied, and censure the conductor of the car for not having had the "ability and presence of mind and aptitude which are necessary to one occupying the responsible position of conductor."

Dickinson Jury Fails to Agree.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 11.—The jury in the case of Anna F. Dickinson against Dr. Underwood, Dr. Hileman and others, after being out for 17 hours, was discharged, not being able to agree upon a verdict. The majority of the jurors, it is said, favored a verdict for the plaintiff. Miss Dickinson sued to recover $50,000 damages for being incarcerated five weeks in the Danville asylum in 1891.

Captain Mahan's New Position.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Captain Mahan of the Chicago, who is about to be relieved of the command of the Chicago, which is going out of commission, was yesterday appointed to special duty in connection with the Naval War college. The captain will probably contribute to the lecture course of the institution this summer.

St. Paul Takes the Water.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11. — The new American liner St. Paul was successfully launched from Cramps' shipyard yesterday, and now lies on the waters of the Delaware, a cable's length from her twin sister, the St. Louis—two wonderful achievements of modern architecture, American in every feature.

Have Nothing to Say at Present.

PEORIA, Ills., April 11. — President Greenhut and Sam Woolner did not care to discuss the reported resignations of trust directors last night, though both denied the charge against them contained in the suit started by Receiver McNulta, and announced that they were to be heard at the proper time.

A War Hero.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A medal of honor has been awarded to Charles H. Packham of Worcester for distinguished gallantry in action at Fort Stedham, Va., May 25, 1865, in capturing the battle-flag of the Fifty-seventh North Carolina infantry.

Rioters Sentenced.

BROOKLYN, April 11.—Judge Moore yesterday afternoon sentenced 11 prisoners who had been found guilty of rioting during the recent strike on the trolley lines. They were all sent to the penitentiary for terms ranging from 60 days to 15 months.

On the Japs' String.

TIEN-TSIN, April 11.—The British steamship Yik Sang, which was captured by a Japanese man-of-war, having on board 220,000 cartridges, shipped at Shanghai by a German firm as "bamboo and steel," has been taken to Port Arthur.

Balfour Sails Away.

BUENOS AYRES, April 11.—Steamer Tartar Prince, which was scheduled to sail on Mondy last for England, with Jabez S. Balfour, the fugitive ex-member of the British parliament on board, finally sailed at noon yesterday.

Many Men Made Idle.

ST. JOHN, N. B., April 11.—A. Cushing & Co.'s large mill was burned to the ground yesterday. The cause of the fire is unknown. Over 175 men are turned out of employment by the fire. Loss, $50,000.

Flood Is Over.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—The rivers in this state began to subside yesterday afternoon, and have already fallen several feet. The damage to property along the banks will amount to thousands of dollars.

Tree Trimmer Fatally Hurt.

LYNN, April 11.—James Lyman, 47 years old, was fatally injured last night while assisting to remove a dead limb from a tree.

Duchesne Prepared to Fight.

PARIS, April 11.—General Duchesne, commander of the French expedition to Madagascar, has started for that island.

SIGNIFICANT OPINIONS.

Views of Two Well Known Men on the Coming Presidential Campaign.

"If the Republican party declares in favor of free silver, I will not be a candidate for president."—William McKinley, Jr.

These are the words of the foremost Republican candidate for the nomination, and they were uttered in Thomasville, Ga., a few days since, under circumstances that called for such a declaration.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The proportions of gold and silver taken for 1,000 years, as long as we have history upon the matter, remain practically the same. For a period of ten years or more one or the other may show a slight change, but the ratio remains surprisingly at 15½ or 16 to 1. And if gold and silver were interchangeable for so many hundreds of years in the past it is difficult to see what has occurred to prevent changeability now, provided all nations are willing to receive it. It is an invariable law that where there are two circulating mediums the least esteemed is driven out. If the United States should attempt to carry silver alone, the United States would be deprived of all her gold and then would have no more commercial strength in other countries to carry the silver that she had taken in exchange for her gold. It is well to bear in mind that not to exceed 5 per cent of the business of this country is done with either silver or gold, all the rest being credit. The better the quality of the credit of the commercial nation the less money it requires to handle its business."—J. J. Hill, President Great Northern Railroad, in St. Paul Pioneer Press.

DAVID B. HILL'S MEMORY.

Judge Beckner of Kentucky Relates a Striking Incident Concerning It.

Senator D. B. Hill has a strong memory. Judge W. M. Beckner of Kentucky, who filled the vacancy in the Fifty-third congress caused by the death of Hon. M. C. Lisle, relates a striking instance of it. One year ago the judge was a member of the Kentucky legislature. The struggle over the confirmation of Peckham as a justice of the supreme court came up. Judge Beckner offered a resolution instructing the senators from Kentucky to "vote for no man for a seat on the bench of the supreme court who was not a Democrat in practice as well as in theory." It called no names, but was published all over the country and had the effect to strengthen the forces of Senator Hill. Peckham was beaten, and the country got a great man and a true Democrat in Judge White of Louisiana.

When Judge Beckner came on to Washington last fall, he was introduced to Senator Hill, who instantly said: "I am very glad to see you and thank you for that resolution in the Kentucky legislature last winter. It came at a good time."

The judge is a warm friend of President Cleveland, but he regards Hill as one of the ablest politicians that the country has ever produced. "He is full of information," remarked the judge the other day, "about public questions, is always in sympathy with the masses of the people and is recognized as one of the most accomplished parliamentarians in the senate."—Washington Post.

BOTH CANNOT BE GUILTY.

A Peculiar Case In England For Which Two People Are Being Punished.

A peculiar state of affairs has arisen in a case which was before Lord Chief Justice Russell a few weeks ago. A man named Kelsall was convicted at Manchester in May, 1892, for manslaughter in killing his wife by throwing a lighted lamp at her. The principal witness against him was the sister of the wife, who gave a circumstantial account of the affair, showing that the husband's act was deliberate and unprovoked. Kelsall was sentenced to 14 years in prison. A few months ago the woman who testified against him confessed that her story was untrue. She insisted upon telling the authorities, but the judges at first refused to listen to her. At last an accusation of perjury was made, and she insisted upon pleading guilty. Lord Chief Justice Russell sentenced her to seven years penal servitude. Kelsall still remains in custody, as it seemed impossible to decide whether there was sufficient cause for setting aside the verdict.

Don Cameron as a Presidential Candidate.

Senator Dubois of Idaho said to a reporter in New York recently: "I think at present the west is almost unanimously in favor of the nomination of Senator Don Cameron of Pennsylvania as the Republican candidate for president. Senator Teller would make a splendid candidate, but he is too far west. Senator Cameron is a strong Republican, he is for protection to American industries, he lives in a protection state, and, above all, he is for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. He will have the support of all the western states at the national convention, and his nomination is among the probabilities."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Seaworthiness of Warships.

The wreck of the Spanish cruiser Reina Regenta brings up once more the question of the seaworthiness of modern warships. This is the third or fourth demonstration that their tendency is to be top heavy, owing to the weight of guns and armor. That is a fault which does not apply to the monitor type. What is the matter with Ericsson's famous model as a warship?—Buffalo Express.

Mr. Howells' New Book.

"True, I Speak of Dreams," is announced as the title of Mr. Howells' forthcoming book relating some curious psychological experiences. But Mercutio says, "True, I talk of dreams." Is it possible that Mr. Howells is going to depart for once from a title that is strictly Shakespearean?—Boston Herald.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

—All the prepossessions of the civilized world have been overturned and violated by the war in the East between China and Japan. Heretofore it has been thought that the strength of character was on the side of the Chinaman, and that the "Jap," as he was familiarly called, was an amiable little fellow as yet in the mere infancy of his national existence. In the course of a few months all these ideas have taken flight. China is found to be a mass of incoherent material, without organization, or strength, or patriotism. Nothing can surpass the astonishment with which the world has looked on while the thoroughly drilled and equipped forces of the Japanese, have advanced into the vast empire of China and dissolved the illusions of centuries. And the success of their arms has been followed up at a later date, by a diplomatic skill as great or even greater than their courage.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co, Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

TOILERS LOCKED OUT.

The Intended Strike Forestalled by the Atlantic Mills Managers.

The Corporation Must Fight Its Battle Alone.

Operatives In Other Cities Will Contribute Toward Support of Strikers.

PROVIDENCE, April 12.—When the 2500 operatives of the Atlantic mills, Olneyville, went to work yesterday morning, intending, according to program, to labor 15 minutes and then go out on strike, they discovered that their plans had been forestalled by the managers. Signs were posted on the gates, notifying the operatives, that the mills would be closed until further notice. The strikers held a meeting and discusssed the outlook. A vigilance committee of 25 was appointed to guard the vicinity of the mills.

Superintendent Lougee of the Atlantic mills stated that the mills were closed by the corporation to avoid complications associated with a strike and not through a feeling of spite, as the public might infer. He said:

"If the men had been allowed to carry out their intentions, and 2500 men had come in and gone out in 15 minutes, there would have been considerable disturbance, and some damage might have been done. I am very sorry the strike has been called, because in the past 14 years we have succeeded in obtaining a superior force of workmen. The operatives seem more intelligent and capable than any I ever saw under one roof."

The Atlantic corporation is the only one in Providence

and the other manufacturers are not concerning themselves with the trouble. Only one-third of the 2500 employes belong to the union, but as the majority are weavers the strike will be continued as long as the latter remain out.

Matters were quiet at Olneyville last night, and the streets were practically deserted at 10 o'clock. About 25 men patroled the streets about the Atlantic works and did so until relieved by others this morning. It is intended to maintain a perpetual patrol about the factories as long as the strike lasts, to prevent, if possible, outsiders from going to work.

The weavers of the Providence and National worsted mills met last night and voted to assess themselves $1 a week each for the benefit of the strikers. They number nearly 600 persons. The employes of the Saxon worsted mills also met, but decided to leave the matter of assessment to the judgment of the executive council. The worsted and woolen spinners will take up the matter of assessment at meetings tonight.

Notice has been received from Andover and Lawrence, that the operatives in those cities will assist the Olneyville strikers in every way possible. Popular dances are to be held at Olneyville, Pawtucket, Central Falls and Pascoag every Saturday night while the strike lasts.

Richard McGuy, secretary of the Textile union is seriously ill at his home and unable to take charge of the strike, and it is expected that on Saturday the union will elect some one to act in his place.

GOOD TIMES AT HAND.

Mills In Massachusetts and Rhode Island to Increase Pay of Employes.

FALL RIVER, April 12.—Agent Cunneen of the Seaconnet mills announced yesterday that he would follow the example of the iron works mills and concede an advance of 10 per cent in order to secure the best class of operatives for the new Seaconnet mill No. 2, which is just starting up. The Seaconnet is not in the Manufacturers' association.

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I., April 12.—The Rhode Island Cotton company's mills here yesterday restored the rate of wages which existed prior to the summer of 1894. The restoration means an increase of 10 per cent over the present schedule prices.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 12.—The Norwegian liquor bill was rejected in the house by a vote of 128 to 65. The committee on education has decided to report a bill establishing textile schools at Lowell, Lawrence, Fall River and New Bedford. The state will appropriate $25,000 for each of the schools, provided an equal amount is raised in each place. The committee on finance reported a bill authorizing the state board of education to expend for new state normal schools in Lowell, Fitchburg, North Adams and Hyannis $25,000 for each school, in addition to the amounts appropriated last year. The bill allowing the Merrimac Manufacturing company to increase its capital stock and engage in business outside the commonwealth was engrossed. At the meeting of the governor's council, the governor appointed Herbert Parker district attorney for Worcester, also N. Thomas Merritt clerk of the municipal court of Boston.

Shoe Workers' Decisions.

BOSTON, April 12.—At the second day's session of the convention of shoemakers, an unsuccessful attempt was made to have the delegates endorse the socialistic principle of collective control of all means of production and distribution. It was decided to name the new organization the Boot and Shoeworkers' union, and to establish as far as possible a uniform rate of wages for the same class of work. It was also decided to favor equal pay for both sexes; to control the system of apprentices; to reduce hours of labor by refusal to work more than eight hours a day; to abolish the contract system in shops, prisons, and all public institutions; to prohibit the employment of children under the age of 16 years; to establish a system of communication with boot and shoeworkers of other countries; to conduct the organization so as to render strikes and lockouts unnecessary, and to adopt the union label.

Outsiders Will Fill Strikers' Places.

NORTH ADAMS, April 12.—Thirty families among those of the mill strikers were served with notices last night ordering them to vacate the company's tenements within a week. The strikers, who demanded a restoration of a 9 per cent cut-down, refused to arbitrate and the company has secured help from out of town, and will start the mill Monday.

A Mother's Rash Deed.

WRENTHAM, Mass., April 12. — Mrs. Hobbley, the wife of John Hobbley, killed her 7-year-old boy yesterday. Shortly after her husband had gone to work Mrs. Hobbley arose. She went into the yard and secured a large stone. Then returning to the side of her sleeping boy she crushed his head with repeated blows and he died in a short time. Mrs. Hobbley gives as her reason for the crime that the boy had to work too hard, and would be happier dead. She is about 40 years of age, and has often acted strangely. Several years ago she quarrelled with her husband, and they have been living apart until last month.

Wages Were Away Down.

WATERBURY, April 12.—Two hundred and twenty-five employes at the union city malleable iron foundry struck yesterday afternoon for a readjustment of wages and hours, and 175 other employes are thrown out of work owing to the stoppage of machinery caused by the strike. Trimmers received 80 cents per day of eight hours, and the floor hands, numbering 200, were getting $1 for eight hours' work.

Subway Favored.

BOSTON, April 12.—The subway question was discussed at last night's session of the common council. Councilman O'Callaghan offered an order protesting against the resubmission or repeal of the act, as advanced at the turbulent meeting in Faneuil hall. Numerous speeches were made on the subject, and for a time there was considerable disorder. The council decided in favor of the subway by a vote of 29 to 11.

Will Marry Maria Clegg.

BOSTON, April 12.—Harry P. Entwistle, convicted in 1892 of assault with intent to kill one Maria Clegg, his sweetheart, was released from state prison yesterday. He is to marry Miss Clegg, who visited him regularly while he was confined in the prison, and who has forgiven his attempt upon her life. Entwistle has been a model prisoner since the first moment of his incarceration. He was sentenced to serve 15 years.

The oldest manufactured weapon is the sword.

KEEPING UNDER COVER.

Perry and His Companions Have Thus Far Eluded Arrest.

Left the Asylum Without Forcing a Door.

Suspicious Circumstances Lead to Suspension of a Night Watchman.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., April 12.—The attendants from the Mattewan criminal insane asylum, who have been out scouring the country for Perry and the other escaped convicts, have not been able to find any trace of the fugitives. Police of all the important cities have been asked to look for the convicts.

Though as yet, no evidence has been adduced to show that Night Watchman Carmody had any hand in the escape, the circumstances point so strongly to negligence, that Superintendent Allison has relieved Carmody from duty, pending investigation.

"At this time we are so greatly in need of men that I do not deem it wise to make any large number of suspensions," said Dr. Allison last night. "I court the fullest investigation, however, and shall do everything in my power to bring the guilty to justice if he is within the institution."

Carmody's Keys Gone.

The asylum authorities are still unable to find out how the men left their rooms without forcing the doors. The only keys to the doors were in the possession of Keepers Boyle, Altey and McNulty and Roundsman Carmody. All these men produced their keys, except the roundsman, who says that his were taken from him after the prisoners had overpowered and taken him to Perry's bed, where he was found yesterday morning.

Referring to the insanity of the escaped men, Dr. Allison said: "Quigley is the most insane of the lot. He has hallucinations of hearing. He imagines that he hears people plotting against his life. He does not sleep well and has frequently asked for medicine to make him sleep.

"Perry's insanity is of a peculiar order. He is possessed of great cunning, but is of a low degree of morality, though he likes to pose as a man of good principle and as a martyr. He is said to have received injuries by a fall some years ago, and bears the mark on his head. At times he has an idea that he is going to be killed, and I am informed that he attempted to put out his eyes while in Auburn prison."

A Refugee's Story.

CALCUTTA, April 12.—A dispatch from Peshawur says that a jemidar of the force of Bengal sappers, belonging to the British garrison at Chitral, was captured by the forces of Sher Afzul, but succeeded in escaping, and eventually reached Peshawur. He says that when Umra Khan first invaded Chitral, a portion of the garrison of that place marched out in an attempt to stop his advance, but was overpowered and obliged to retreat. During the engagement Lieutenant Gurdon, an able officer, and two native officers and several Sepoys were killed.

Chinese Hate to Give Up.

PEKIN, April 12.—The officials in the Chinese capital are largely ignorant of the situation in respect of Japan. Discussion of warlike questions is limited. At the war office, especially, the grand council has few consultations with the ministers of the foreign powers. The Manchu people strongly resent the idea of ceding Manchuria to Japan. The former war faction is still strong, and argues the danger of creating disaffection among the people. This faction is unwilling to yield to Japan, but fears that resistance is impossible.

Hungarian Floods Increasing.

VIENNA, April 12.—The floods in Hungary are increasing. Two more villages, near Semlin, Slavonia, have disappeared beneath the rising waters of the Danube. Many of the inhabitants of the villages were drowned. At Semlin, a number of Servians tried to cut the dike protecting the Hungarian shore in order to save Belgrade from being inundated. Hungarian guards frustrated the attempt.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Good Friday.

Herbert Otis has moved to Washington street, South Braintree.

Cars will commence running to Houghs Neck, April 19, Patriots' day.

Hodenosaunee tribe of Red Men will be reinstituted at Wollaston next Thursday evening.

A warm day but a strong wind, and the bicyclist makes his way with difficulty against it.

You are not in style now unless you have a new awning over your store windows and doors.

Somebody in Atlantic must be getting short of fire wood as they are carrying off the back stop in the ball ground, a board at a time.

The high wind for a few days past has resulted in making the streets very dusty and a watering cart about this time would be appreciated.

Department Commander Joseph W. Thayer of the Grand Army has appointed Franklin Curtis of Paul Revere Post as aid-de-camp and Horace O. Souther as an assistant inspector.

A pool tournament for a prize valued at $15 will open at Cunningham's room next Wednesday evening. Among those who have entered are Stevens, Seamore, McKenna, R. Moxon, F. Moxon, Whalan and Landers.

Mr. Frederick Souther called to see us on Thursday. It was his eightieth birthday and he was feeling quite smart for one who has reached four score years. He was born in Hingham and his parents moved to Quincy when he was but a few weeks old.

The new pews for the Swedish Lutheran church arrived Thursday night, but for some reason the car was left at South Braintree instead of Quincy, much to the disappointment of the parishioners who hoped to have them in position by Saturday night.

The second pool tournament between McKenna and Horne was played in Boston Wednesday evening when McKenna was beaten by a score of 75 to 69. There was also a contest between Fred Moxon of Atlantic and W. J. Donovan in which the latter came off victorious by a score of 50 to 16.

The Park and Downs Union society has been tendered the use of the Quincy Mansion for its Sunday services and for the Ladies' Aid to hold their semi-monthly meeting, and monthly entertainments. Next Sunday being Easter, the society will meet at its usual place in A. O. U. W. hall, Norfolk Downs, but the following Sunday, April 21st, it will avail itself of Wood, Harmon & Co.'s offer.

Good Time at Quincy Mansion.

On Wednesday evening, April 10, the Ladies' Aid of the Park and Downs gave a bean supper in the Quincy mansion which was largely attended and a success both socially and financially. The song "Day after Day" was finely rendered by Mr. Herbert Fay Nye, a duett by Mrs. Justin Hill and Mr. Nye, readings by Miss Jenness, humorous recitations by Mr. Justin Hill. The entertainment concluded by eighty blinded people trying to re-tail a donkey. Mr. Wallace secured first prize and Mr. Weymouth the booby. Mr. Henry Weymouth presented the Ladies' Aid with a nice domestic sewing machine.

☞ Miss S. H. Hussey has Spring Millinery, desirable for all in style and price, at 121 Hancock street.

IN OLD KENTUCKY.

State Senator Goebel Takes the Life of Bank President Sanford.

COVINGTON, Ky., April 12. — Senator Goebel and John Sanford, president of the Farmers' and Traders' National bank, met on the street while returning from lunch yesterday afternoon, when Senator Goebel shot twice at Sanford, both shots taking effect. Senator Goebel at once gave himself up.

While the feud is an old one, the immediate cause of the shooting is said to be due to the Goebel road law. Sanford was president and owner of several turnpikes. Goebel had a bill passed reducing the tolls, so that it made the senator popular with the people, but was bad for the turnpike stock, and Sanford is reported to have used severe terms in talking about Senator Goebel and his turnpike law.

Sanford died at 2.30. It is stated that Sanford fired first, his shot going through Goebel's coat, but not scratching his body. Goebel returned the fire, shooting Sanford through the head. Goebel's friends justify his defense. The excitement is at fever heat.

A PROFITABLE TOUR.

New England Men Learned Much of Value on Their Southern Trip.

BALTIMORE, April 12.—The Manufacturers' Record believes that the result of the trip of New England cotton mills people to the south will prove of very great value to the south. It has given some of the leading men of New England a clearer insight into the south and its business conditions than they ever had before. The Record says:

They wanted to see for themselves the character of help employed in the southern mills, all the conditions surrounding labor and anything else that would enable them to form an accurate judgment as to the wisdom of New England people making large investments in southern cotton mills.

After a careful investigation of many mills in the Carolinas and Georgia, every member of the New England party was greatly impressed with the operatives in southern mills. They freely admitted that they were more than pleased with finding that southern mill operatives were, as a general thing, so bright, quick and intelligent, and also that all of the mills had the appearance of comfort and convenience for the operatives.

Stevenson In Defense.

BLOOMINGTON, Ills., April 12.—Vice President Stevenson, who is president of the Interstate Building and Loan association at Bloomington, a legislative investigation of which is proposed, said last night: "The association is entirely solvent, as will be shown by the report of the auditor, based on an examination just completed. Every shareholder can, if he desires, obtain the money due him on presentation of his certificate, and can examine the books and loans for himself if he wishes. I personally know that the management of the association has been conducted with the greatest care and attention." In conclusion, Mr. Stevenson said he is not now receiving any compensatson as attorney from the association, and has not for many months; further that he has never received a dollar of compensation as president of the association.

A Wail From Madrid.

MADRID, April 12.—The Epoca in an attack on the American press, says that it admires only the "almighty dollar." Spaniards, it adds, cannot expect better treatment than the leading American politicians, who suffer unheeded insults so gross that they would cause duels and lawsuits in other countries. The paper advises Spaniards to despise a press that sympathizes with filibusterers, doubtless from interested motives.

Had to Move Lively.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Fire broke out at 9 o'clock last night in a five-story brick building occupied by the Colonial bank. Eleven families occupied rooms on the upper floors, and a number of daring rescues were reported. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Malietoa's Power on the Wane.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—Advices from Samoa, dated March 27, says there are many rumors of war. The general belief is that when the wet season ends the rebels will move. Old King Malletoa seems to be losing force and influence.

Religious Bodies Must Contribute.

PARIS, April 12.—The chamber of deputies took action yesterday on the proposal made in connection with the budget, to reduce the succession duties imposed on religious bodies. It was rejected, 301 to 233. The budget was then adopted.

Two Less Outlaws.

HENNESSY, O. T., April 12.—Another desperate battle was fought between the Dover train robbers and United States marshals, in which two more outlaws were killed. None of the marshals were badly wounded.

Ran Into a Rubbish Fire.

NEW HAVEN, April 12.—A 2-year-old son of Marcola Rappa was fatally burned. He escaped from the house and ran into a rubbish fire in the yard. His father received serious injuries in trying to rescue him.

Easter Finery Gone.

PROVIDENCE, April 12.—The millinery and dressmaking parlors of Miss Clough caught fire last evening, and $1500 worth of Easter gowns and bonnets, intended for her customers, were destroyed.

Tennessee Silver Resolution.

NASHVILLE, April 12.—In the senate the Stovel resolution, requesting congress to enact a law for the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1, was adopted by a vote of 14 to 10, 9 not voting.

The Usual Draw.

CHICAGO, April 12.—The eight round contest between "Kid" Lavigne and Jerry Marshall last night was declared a draw. Lavigne did all the leading and fighting from first to last.

Thayer Couldn't Prosecute.

BATH, April 12.—The two cases of the state vs. Marshall Kittredge and Officer Reynolds for false imprisonment of Archie Thayer, the ex-gambler, have been nol prossed.

Thought to Be Tailor Guilfoyle.

LYNN, April 12.—The body discovered in the Mystic river at Medford is believed to be that of John J. Guilfoyle, a tailor, who has been missing since March 31.

Won by New Yorkers.

NEW YORK, April 12.—New York won the water polo game with Chicago by a score of 4 to 1.

The Baptist Ladies' Aid gave a supper and entertainment at the lower Town Hall Thursday evening. Of course it was a good time as usual.

Dr. H. L. Dearing administered antitoxine this week to one of Mr. Richard Belyea's children, who is sick with diphtheria. We understand the patient is doing well.

The Universalist dime party Tuesday evening at Mr. Brigham was a success. The principle feature of the evening was the art gallery. The music, singing and refreshments were much enjoyed by the good number present.

Mr. E. Stanwood Hollis has sent out invitations for a card party to be held this evening at his home on Washington street.

William Cunningham, who was arrested last fall for illegal liquor selling, has left town, as have also his bondsmen. His case was to have come up this week.

POST 87. Tuesday night the Grand Army men had a grand celebration of the anniversary of the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox Court House. The members of the W. R. C. were present, and withal it was a most glorious affair. The entertainment included singing by Miss Nina and Miss Bessie Gage, remarks by Mr. H. A. Monk, E. A. Fisher and Mrs. E. A. Fisher, president of the W. R. C. There was singing by the quartette.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

Last Night's Concert.

The second concert in the series by the Congregational Chorus was given in the Evangelical Congregational chapel Thursday evening. The chorus were assisted by several soloists and an orchestra of eight pieces.

In part one of the programme four selections were given, opening with "Gloria in Excelis" by the orchestra. The solo "To Sevilla" by Mrs. N. S. Hunting was very sweet and received a hearty encore. Mr. E. E. Bullock sang a tenor solo, "I watch thee from afar," which was very well sung and called forth loud applause, as did also the violincello solo.

Part two of the programme was the main feature of the evening, when "The Holy City" by Alfred R. Gaul was rendered by a chorus of fifty voices assisted by Miss Grace M. Isaac, soprano; Mrs. N. S. Hunting, mezzo soprano; Miss Edith L. Poole, contralto; Miss Edith P. Gray, contralto; Mr. Bruce W. Hobbs, tenor; Mr. E. E. Bullock, tenor; Mr. Charles H. Porter, Jr., baritone; and Mr. Herbert Youtz, bass. Mr. Arthur Raymond presided at the piano and Mr. A. L. Hood was conductor.

The solo, trio, quartette and double quartette singing was well rendered and the chorus showed much practice and was full and strong in all parts.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Cycle Club Social.

The Wollaston Cycle club outdid itself on Thursday evening at its regular monthly social. It was a treat to the members from the time when President Brown set the ball rolling until the last member had lighted his cigar and hied away home. There was fun and humor, and more fun and humor. The air was full of it. It was contagious.

The Entertainment Committee,—Mr. Charles E. Merrill, Mr. James C. Gillespie and Mr. James Lewis,—had drawn upon all of the local talent in the town, and it was good talent too, a squad of Company K, 5th Reg., and two of Boston's most talented impersonators, Mr. H. H. Meyers and Mr. C. E. Burnett.

It is a waste of space to say that it was a success. Everyone who was present knows that.

Wollaston is a gregarious community, with its many churches, lodges, and social organizations. One of these organizations which holds a prominent place is the Wollaston Cycle Club. Its members are enthusiastic devotees of the wheel. But it does not lose sight of the fact that a cycle club to be successful must have strong social ties to hold it together during the winter months. Carrying out this idea the club has permanent headquarters in the well appointed hall formerly occupied by the K. of H.

An interesting feature of the entertainment was the drill given by Corporals McGrath and Smith, Privates Gannon, Jones, Fritchof and Leslie, under Sergt. Cahill of Co. K, 5th Reg. Sergt. Raiche of the club also did some clever work with a musket.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the entire company, headed by the squad of militia, a drummer and cornetist, marched to Odd Fellows' Hall where Steward Merrill served an excellent supper.

TODAY'S COURT.

John O'Brien was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. This was the third time within a year that John had been arrested for drunkenness and the court sentenced him to the House of Correction for 60 days.

Patrick Levangie of Braintree was fined $10 for disturbing the peace.

Richard D. Fox and James F. Boyd of Randolph were arraigned for breaking and entering the store of Charles Prescott & Co., and the larceny of goods valued at $30. Case continued Saturday, April 20.

Mason Jason and Joseph F. Rogers of Cohasset were arraigned for selling intoxicating liquor to Asel F. Knott. Case continued until Monday, April 15.

The cases against the seven boys arrested for breaking and entering at Squantum were disposed of as follows: Henry Bailey and Alex. Hume were given in charge State board. Thomas Hume and William Turner to the Lyman school for the boys and Burke, Heyer and Page boys were placed on probation.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds. SIMS BROS., Leeds, Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds, croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

You Don't Have to Swear Off,

Says the St. Louis Journal of Agriculture in an editorial about No-To-Bac, the famous tobacco habit cure. "We know of many cases cured by No-To-Bac, one, a prominent St. Louis architect, smoked and chewed for twenty years; two boxes cured him so that even the smell of tobacco makes him sick." No-To-Bac sold and guaranteed by A. G. Durgin and all Quincy druggists. No cure, no pay. Book free. Sterling Remedy Co., New York or Chicago.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 14. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Risen with Christ—from what?—Rom. vi, 1-12, 20-23. (An Easter meeting.)

The practical lessons from the resurrection of Christ are many and important. In this twelfth chapter of Romans Paul deals principally with the question of holiness, of sanctification, illustrating and enforcing the necessity of dying unto sin and living unto God, by the resurrection of Christ, who died unto sin and now ever more liveth unto God. The topical references emphasize two ideas—first, that with Christ we die unto sin, and, second, with him we live unto God.

1. With Christ we die unto sin. "In that he died, He died unto sin" (verse 10). Christ died unto sin. This may mean several things—that He died for the destruction of sin; that He died for its expiation or on account of sin. In any sense it means that Christ separated Himself, by His death, for the burden of man's sin, which He had willingly assumed. With Christ believers also die to sin, but in an entirely different sin. It is personal, indwelling sin to which they die, or from which they separate themselves. But Christ not only died to sin, but died to it once for all. By His death He threw off the burden of sin forever. So the Christian must die once for all to sin. There must be no return or no continuance in sin after we have once separated ourselves from it. It is true that the greater the sin the greater is the grace of God in forgiving it, and yet we are not to sin that grace may the more abound. It cannot be. It is self contradictory. Death and life are antagonistic, and therefore if we are dead to sin we cannot be alive to sin. To live in sin would be therefore an evidence that we have not died to sin with Christ.

2. With Christ we live unto God. "In that He liveth, He liveth unto God" (verse 10). Others who were raised from the grave arose to live as before, but Christ arose to live unto God, not, though, that He had not lived unto God before His death. In Him the believer also rises to live unto God. "Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God, through Jesus Christ our Lord" (verse 11). To die unto sin is only half the story. We must live unto God. We must not only put off the old man, but put on the new. We must not only cease to do evil, but learn to do well. Repentance includes a turning from sin and a turning to God. Sanctification includes a dying unto sin and a living unto God. We rise with Christ Jesus from sin that we may live with Him unto God. This is the object of the Christian's life, not to yield himself unto sin, but to yield himself entirely unto God. We are freed from sin and become the servants of God that we may have fruit unto holiness and the end everlasting life. "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ."

Bible Readings.—Ps. xvii, 15; Isa. xxvi, 19; Math. xxii, 31, 32; Luke xx, 37, 38; Rom. vii, 4-6; viii, 11; I Cor. vi, 14; xv, 14-20; II Cor. xiii, 4; Gal. ii, 20; Eph. ii, 4-6; Phil. iii, 10-14; Col. ii, 12; iii, 1-4; I Thess. iv, 13, 14; II Tim. ii, 11, 12; I John iii, 2.

A Sweet Temper Makes a Clean Heart.

Losing the temper takes all the sweet, pure feeling out of life. You may get up in the morning with a clean heart, full of song, and start out as happy as a bird, and the moment you are crossed and you give way to your temper the clean feeling vanishes, and a load as heavy as lead is rolled upon the heart, and you go through the rest of the day feeling like a culprit. And any one who has experienced this feeling knows that it cannot be shaken off, but must be prayed off.—Presbyterian Banner.

Junior Committees.

In small Junior societies it has sometimes been found best not to divide the society into committees, but to appoint simply the chairmen of the usual committees, requesting each chairman to consider the entire society his committee for the accomplishment of the work ordinarily assigned to him. When the missionary committee, for example, would have work to do, the chairman of that committee calls a meeting of the entire society, and so with all the other committees.—Exchange.

Loyal to the Church.

The editor of The Lutheran Evangelist takes occasion, in a recent number, to praise in high terms the loyalty of his Endeavorers to the church to which he ministers. "A larger per cent of them," he says, "sustain the second service on the Lord's day and the midweek service than of the older church members."

Christian Endeavor Gossip.

Since the state convention in October nearly 140 societies have joined the Pennsylvania union.

Kansas City local union is thinking of instituting noon prayer meetings in the business portion of the city.

Eight languages are regularly heard in the meetings of Chicago local societies — Welsh, Norwegian, Swedish, Dutch, German, Bohemian, Chinese and English.

One of the active members of the Presbyterian society of Union, S. C., a young lady, made the rather remarkable record during 1894 of attending every Sunday morning service, Sunday school service, church prayer meeting and meeting of her society held during the whole year.

Scranton is already pushing its claims for the Pennsylvania state convention of 1896.

Christian Endeavor societies contributed $7,137.56 to the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church between May 1, 1894, to Jan. 1, 1895.

Two hundred more Junior societies, and there will be 8,000 on the rolls.

CONFEDERATE DEAD.

FIRST TRIBUTE TO THEM EVER ERECTED IN THE NORTH.

A Monument In Oakwood Cemetery, Chicago, to Be Dedicated on Memorial Day to the Men Who Died In Douglas Prison—A Patriotic Undertaking.

The dedication of the monument that has been erected at Chicago in memory of the 6,000 Confederate soldiers who are buried in Oakwood cemetery will take place on Memorial day, and the preparations that have been made for the event by far surpass anything of the sort that has ever been undertaken. This is the first time that a monument has been erected to the Confederate dead in the north, and for this reason the uniting of the north and south in the patriotic undertaking is all the more significant.

THE MONUMENT.

The monument is to mark the resting place of the prisoners who died in Camp Douglas prison during the years from 1862 to 1865, 6,000 in number. The shaft is of Georgia granite, and the bronze figure of a typical Confederate soldier as he would appear just after having surrendered his arms to the other side is the work of a Chicago sculptor. The figure is a most faithful representation of the subject, showing the dejected attitude and downcast countenance of the southern soldier in the moment of humiliation that excites now sympathy as true as that felt for the humiliation that might have been experienced by the Union soldiers.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

GENERAL HARRISON.

He Has No Idea of Running For the Presidency.

Louis T. Michener, ex-attorney general of Indiana and General Harrison's friend, was in Philadelphia recently and said to a reporter that the ex-president has not any idea whatever of becoming a candidate in 1896. It is not even considered by him, and he will not be a candidate in any sense. "The fact is," he says, "the ex-president has never sought any office, and it has been chiefly owing to political circumstances that he has consented to run for office. He is not the kind of a man to lay pipes for a nomination, and he is always frank and outspoken. If any one imagines the ex-president is giving a thought to the presidency in 1896, he is egregiously mistaken. I know General Harrison has no idea of running for the presidency again unless it becomes a matter of patriotic duty."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Stateswoman.

The Australians have invented a new word. At any rate, it is unusual if not new. In order to describe Miss Flora Shaw, the very gifted lady who has been instructing the English in colonial matters, they call her a "stateswoman." Miss Shaw is, at any rate, in a unique position. She is on the staff of The Times and has contributed to that journal a great number of papers on colonial affairs, in which imperial and colonial views are skillfully blended. She lectures on this subject also and is probably at this moment one of the influences which more closely knit relations between the mother country and her big daughters across the seas. It would be simpler and equally correct to call her a statesman.—Chicago Post.

The Kid's Prophecy.

Verdigris Kid, the western desperado, who was killed the other day, was a good deal of a philosopher. In his pocket was found a written variation of Solomon's vanity of vanities, which read as follows: "It is hell for a man to live in a world of hell and be killed and go to hell, and such a fate will be for me." A man who is able to look his destiny in the eye so steadily as this is not afraid to look into the barrel of a winchester. Kid's prophecy came true. He died with his boots on.—New York Sun.

Five Years Behind the Times.

A would be poetess, writing for Kate Field's Washington, starts out on an ode to the departed congress with these inspiring lines: "No bustle at the capitol, no lobbying to do." We should trust not! Every up to date poetess ought to know that bustles went out of style at least five years ago. Such a mistake might be excused in a poet, but a poetess, never!—Omaha Bee.

Trilby In the Windy City.

A NOBLE LIFE

SPENT FOR AND WITH SUFFERING WOMEN.

A Life's Work Perpetuated through a Faithful Daughter, and Records of Priceless Value.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

What a vast amount of misery and suffering has been prevented by the clear-headed foresight of one noble woman!

She had struggled, labored, and sacrificed for the welfare of her sex.

The eyes of the women of the world were upon her.

As she recalled the past, and tried to penetrate the future, a smile of supreme satisfaction passed over her honest face as she remembered that her life's work would be perpetuated.

The room in which she sat contained hundreds of volumes of records; and, turning to her daughter, she said,—

"My daughter, this room, as you well know, contains the records of my life's work, in which for many years you have so diligently assisted me.

"By earnest application you have compassed my methods; and it is a happiness to think that when I leave, the glorious work will, through you, go on.

"The mission is a noble one. Do as I have done: never permit a woman's appeal to go unheeded.

"These records tell of every case ever submitted to me; and it is my wish that the facts they contain shall in time prove a much-needed education to the women of the world."

Thus did Lydia E. Pinkham hand over to her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Pinkham, what may be termed the salvation of her sex; and that wonderful remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which all druggists consider as standard as flour, goes on redeeming hundreds of women from the fearful consequences of female diseases.

Perhaps You Don't Know It,

But there is a law against falsehood in advertisements. It isn't on the statute books, but it is written in the hearts of the people, and when they convict a merchant of this offence they fine him "LIKE SIXTY."

Ranges.

In building a business we know of no better way to win the endorsement of the people at large than to handle standard merchandise. Of course the margin is smaller, but the increased sales and universal satisfaction and endorsement of the users, more than offsets the former. We need only add that we carry in stock a full line of the SPLENDID GLENWOOD and MAGEE RANGES, prices $20 to $35.

Baby Carriages.

Our new Spring Patterns are models of beauty,—Attractive, Easy Running, and, best of all, wonderfully low-priced, $3.95 to $20.00. Cut prices on Wakefield and Heywood Carriages.

Refrigerators.

We have looked the market over carefully, and we are convinced that no Refrigerator manufactured today is made with more care or will give such universal satisfaction as THE EDDY. Twenty per cent. discount from the manufacturer's list, they net in price from $5.20 to $25.00. We carry the full line, also special designs in Oak and Hardwood Refrigerators.

Gasoline Stoves.

We have selected THE RELIABLE, and we can frankly say that after witnessing many tests we are convinced that this is by all odds vastly superior to any other make on the market. It is as near an approach to perfection as Yankee wit will permit. Absolutely safe, and so economical, too, they will be more popular this summer than ever before. Prices, $3.50 to $10.00.

White Iron Beds.

The newest and most attractive patterns, $5 to $15. Children's White Iron Cribs, $7.50 to $9.50. Disease germs find no lurking places in these modern beds. They are growing more and more in favor every day.

Parlor Furniture.

We have the greatest bargains on earth in Parlor Sets. Plush, Rugs, Hair Cloth, Tapestry or Silk Brocatelles, prices $25.00 to $90.00. Odd Chairs and Fancy Rockers.

Chamber Furniture.

Oak and Ash, handsome designs. We offer GREATER VALUE than can be found in any retail store in the State. $15.00 to $50.00.

Carpets,

Mattings. Rugs, etc. Reliable Goods, Attractive Patterns. Mattings, 9 cents to 35 cents. Carpets, 22 cents to 85 cents. CARPETS TAKEN UP, CLEANSED and RE-LAID.

Bissell Carpet Sweepers

No matter what you need in Furniture, you will do well to merit by our wonderfully low prices on Reliable Goods.

Barge Oneonta Goes Down.

CHATHAM, Mass., April 12.—The tug Dudley Pray, towing three barges, was coming over the shoals about midnight, when the stern barge Oneonta, which was loaded with coal, collided with the three-masted schooner Isaac H. Tillyer. The latter was considerably damaged forward. The barge soon sunk, and Captain Le Fevre was drowned. The other members of the crew were saved.

Deaths Due to Overturned Lamp.

HAVERHILL, April 12.—Lizzie and Jennie Bryant, unmarried sisters, about 70 years old, were found dead in their house yesterday. The body of Lizzie was burned to a crisp, and beside it was an overturned half-burned kerosene oil lamp. Jennie probably died from the shock occasioned by the accident to her sister. It is thought that the women had been dead about 24 hours.

Uncle Sam's New Battery.

NEWPORT, April 12.—The United States is in communication with the owners of Fox Hill on Conanicut island, with the object of acquiring possession of land on that point, for the erection of a battery of 8 and 10 inch guns which, in connection with the batteries on Dutch island, will command the western passage of Narragansett bay.

Nick Fessenden Extradited.

BATH, April 12.—Warden Bridges of the Massachusetts state prison arrived here and returned to Boston with Nick Fessenden, who forged Secretary of State Fessenden's name and obtained a lot of furs under false pretenses. He escaped from the prison, leaving an unfinished sentence of two years. He was here awaiting trial.

May Have Been Incendiary.

SPRINGFIELD, April 12.—A. A. Fountain, a barber who was burned out in the Monson fire Wednesday, says that he has facts which point to incendiarism, and states that he saw a well-known Monson man around the building when he locked Gray & Lombert's undertaking rooms at 10:40.

Machinery Broken Down.

PROVINCETOWN, April 12.—The pilot boat Varuna reports that 90 miles south east of the Boston light she sighted the Warren line steamer Kansas, Liverpool to Boston, proceeding slowly. The machinery of the Kansas had broken down. Tugs went to her assistance.

Has a Chance of Recovery.

MALDEN, April 12.—There is but little change in the condition of Dr. William H. Farnsworth, who is suffering from a bullet wound inflicted by Charles S. Witham. If anything, Dr. Farnsworth is slightly better. It is now thought that he has a chance of recovery.

Will Stand by Finishers.

PROVIDENCE, April 12.—Seventy employes of the Rhode Island Tool company organized a local union yesterday. The 20 finishers who struck three weeks ago, are still out, and unless the demands of the finishers are granted, the other employes will go out.

Slaughtering Plant Burned.

WATERTOWN, Mass., April 12.—The slaughter house, barn, carriage house and storehouse of George A. Sawyer on Arsenal street were burned last night, together with about 400 head of dressed sheep, lambs, veal, hogs, etc. The loss is about $20,000.

Sewers Had Set Back.

HARTFORD, April 12.—Annie Pearle, 3 years old, of 11 North street, strayed down cellar at her home last evening and was drowned in the water there, two feet deep, which had set back through the sewers from the Connecticut river.

MANY OPEN QUESTIONS

Remain to Be Decided Regarding the Income Tax Statute.

Many Appeals Expected From Collectors' Decisions.

Indians Who Have Not Severed Tribal Relations Are Not Taxable.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The supplementary instructions issued yesterday to income tax collectors leave undecided many of the questions which were raised by the supreme court decision exempting from taxation incomes from lands.

Consequently the collectors will be called upon to pass judgment on many points, and these questions doubtless will be appealed to the department.

On account of the short time left for making returns, the revenue officials could not undertake to decide just what forms of property will be exempt under the head of real estate, nor could they foresee all of the questions which may arise in the practical enforcement of the law as plainly as if their time had been unlimited.

Therefore, many appeals are expected from the decisions of the collectors to the commissioner of internal revenue, and pending the commissioner's judgment, the appellants will not be obliged to pay their disputed taxes. So far as payments are concerned, the decisions of Commissioner Miller will probably be final. Aggrieved citizens may pay the tax under protest and then bring suit to recover the money.

It is thought that no court would interfere to prevent the collection of disputed taxes in view of the statute forbidding injunctions for that purpose. So the treasury will be able to collect the money on all classes of incomes that the officials think are not derived from state, county and municipal bonds or rents from land, and if the courts should eventually decree the return of taxes on all classes of investments the money would be taken from the treasury at a time when it will probably be in better condition than it is at present.

Great numbers of inquiries are being received at the treasury department. Many of the inquirers are being referred to the collectors of their districts, with the information that all questions should be addressed to them in the first instance.

Its Effect Upon Indians.

One of yesterday's callers was a president of a bank in the Indian Territory, who is himself an Indian of full blood, and who sought information concerning the status of individuals of the tribes and of corporations controlled by them under the law. He was told that the Indians who have not formally severed their tribal relations are not taxable, but that all Indians who have done so and who have taken lands in severalty must make the returns.

White men who are living with Indians still in their tribal state, or who have married tribal Indians, as many have in the territory, are not exempt from taxation, as the courts have decided that tribes cannot adopt white men so far as to confer upon them the legal status held by the Indians of the tribes.

The Supplemental Instructions

were as follows:

1. Interest received from state, county and municipal bonds or securities and rents from real estate, are not taxable as income, but persons or corporations receiving said interest or rents shall include in their returns as receipts the full amount thereof received or accrued within the year for which return is made, and shall deduct the same as not subject to taxation.

2. The amount actually paid for taxes, insurance and repairs on real estate, may be deducted from income as heretofore provided for by the law and regulations.

3. All persons and corporations that have heretofore rendered income tax incomes for the year 1894 to a collector or deputy collector, including therein interest received from state, county or municipal bonds, or from rents from real estate, may have the amounts of said interest and rents deducted from their income by duly making an affidavit and delivering the same to the collector or deputy collector to whom the original return was rendered.

4. The collector, upon the receipt of the affidavit, shall attach said affidavit to the return of the affiant heretofore made, and shall make the correction in said return in conformity with the facts stated in said affidavit and forward said amended return with the affidavit attached to the commissioner of internal revenue.

These telegrams were sent to collectors:

Have the affidavits and instructions printed and distributed immediately to all persons who have rendered returns.

All returns received here will be forwarded to you by mail. Correct same by attaching affidavit and making deduction as shown therein.

Require all persons in making returns in future to show clearly that rents included and deducted were received only from real estate and include nothing whatever paid for rent or use of personal property or franchise.

If necessary for accommodation of persons filing income tax returns you will keep your office open for business from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., up to and including the 15th inst.

Desperate Negroes.

GREENVILLE, Ala., April 12.—Five negroes had a dispute about clearing some land, 12 miles from here, which resulted in a desperate fight. Bob Peagler and his two sons stabbed Shade Brown in two places, and then broke his neck with a club. Frank Brown had an arm broken in the scuffle. The Peaglers were not seriously hurt.

Combines Propose to Fight.

CHICAGO, April 12.—The repeal by the city council of the alleged boodle ordnances, Ogden Gas and Cosmopolitan Electric promises to develop a hot fight between the city and the two companies. President Pope of the Cosmopolitan company declares that he will defy Mayor Swift to prevent that company from using its franchise.

Bridge and Track Gone.

HALIFAX, April 12.—The washout caused by recent rains are more serious than at first reported. On the Dominion Atlantic railway portions of the track and a bridge have been carried away, it being necessary to make transfer for through connections.

Pritchard Laid Up.

LONDON, April 12.—The fight between Frank Craig and Ted Pritchard, which was to take place Saturday night, has been declared off. Pritchard is confined to his bed with pneumonia.

Grace Vaughan Insane.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Mrs. Grace Jennings, the actress, better known to the public as Grace Vaughan, was adjudged insane yesterday.

DARING HIGHWAYMEN

Hold Up a Colorado Stage and Get Away With Thousands of Dollars.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., April 12.—The mail and express wagon, which connects with the Midland railroad at Grassy, was boarded yesterday, about two miles from this city by two men, who overpowered the driver, Robert Smith, secured an express package containing $16,000, and escaped on horseback.

The holdup took place about 9 30 o'clock, on the summit of Tenderfoot hill, on the highway between Cripple Creek and Grassy, a station on the Midland Terminal railroad. The mail and express wagon, drawn by horses, driven by Messenger Robert Smith, was en route from Grassy to Cripple Creek, with the mails and express matter received at Grassy on the morning train from Denver and Colorado Springs.

Two men sitting beside the road accosted Smith, asking for a ride. He drew up his team and one of the men climbed up the seat beside him while the other mounted the baggage behind. As soon as Smith started to drive on the man behind struck him on the head several times with a revolver. The blow staggered, but did not stun him.

The man on the seat also drew a revolver, and, leveling it at him, commanded him to get down, walk to the heads of the horses and hold their bridles. He complied, and while he was covered with their guns they ripped open and rifled the mail and express pouches. After securing $16,000, which was being shipped to the Bi-Metallic bank of this city, and several other valuable packages, they unhitched the two leading horses and mounted them and rode off rapidly into the mountains.

The men left the regular Cripple Creek and Divide road about six miles north of the town and headed toward Alhambra. As soon as their course was determined a posse of 50 heavily armed men cut across the country on horseback toward High Park, where they hoped to intercept the robbers, as it was believed here that they were heading for either Alhambra or the Arkansas valley.

Over 500 men from this place are scouring the country, among the volunteers being men who know every inch of ground for miles around.

Further Rebel Victories.

TAMPA, Fla., April 12.—Steamship Mascotte, which arrived last night from Havana, brought an American engineer who went to Matanzas and was ordered away within three hours, being told he was not wanted. A ship chandler and provision merchant there, Frank Cabellero, was treated likewise. The Cuban taxes are to be increased $5,000,000 to provide war expenses. At La Mecha, Vicente Garcia, with 200 men, ambushed General Pratt's forces, who three times rallied, but were finally routed with heavy losses. Jiguana, a place of 10,000 inhabitants, was captured by the Cubans under Rabi on March 25. On April 3 the Spaniards attempted to regain possession, but were repulsed, and left 45 dead for the Cubans to bury.

Canada Is Afraid.

OTTAWA, April 12.—An order in council has been passed embodying Canada's reply to the United States' proposals for joint action on the part of Great Britain and the United States, Russia and Japan to protect seal herds from extinction, and to the suggestion of the United States that in the meantime sealing in the Behring sea be prohibited, and the Paris regulations as to the close season and inhibition of firearms be extended over the entire waters north of the 35th parallel. Canada strongly opposes such changes, as it is feared she would get the worst of it.

Dominion's Great Opportunity.

LONDON, April 12.—The Daily News admits that Canada has the right to legislate on the copyright question as she chooses, and says that if the manifesto of the copyright association really represents the views of the Canadian people there is little hope of a satisfactory settlement being reached. It must be owned that the world has hitherto treated the copyright question rather narrowly and shabbily. A young state like Canada may yet set an example of a new departure.

Discovery of Great Value.

CHICAGO, April 12.—In the Kent laboratory at the Chicago university, a new compound has been found which has sweetening powers in excess of those possessed by saccharine, which has been hitherto considered the sweetest substance known to chemists. Candy makers and druggists who have examined the new chemical say it will prove valuable in many ways.

Fractured the Treaty.

PARIS, April 12.—The Temps announces that, contrary to the treaty stipulations respecting the free navigation of the Niger, the Royal Niger company recently stopped a steam launch belonging to a French warship, which was ascending the lower Niger.

Indifferent as to His Future.

COLUMBUS, O., April 12.—Charles Hart, aged 18, for killing a boy, aged 4, and a girl, aged 6, was executed early this morning at the penitentiary. Hart apparently took no interest in the hereafter.

Signed For a Fight.

CINCINNATI, April 12.—Peter Maher last night signed articles for a fight with Steve O'Donnell, to take place at Coney Island on Thursday, May 30, Marquis of Queensberry rules.

Spree Ended In Death.

BANGOR, April 12.—Charles Pooler of Basin Mills, aged 40, was run over by a train near his home and mangled to death. He had been on a spree and laid down on the track.

—The recent decision of the postal authorities, by which the use of postal cards for notices to tax-payers and other similar notices was forbidden, has been so modified that such use is permissible, provided nothing of a threatening nature is included in the notice. The ruling is explained as follows: "What the department particularly desires to exclude from postal cards is not a statement of the amount due nor a respectful request for the settlement of an account, but those that are of a threatening nature, or calculated by their manner or style of display to reflect injuriously upon the addressee."

—The largest flash light photograph ever made was by Ernest Marx, at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York City, of 3,500 people on the evening of March 21st, at the 100th representation of Wagner's "Siegfried." The management only allowed Mr. Marx one minute between the acts but he secured a remarkably clear photograph many of the people in the 3,500 audience being easily recognizable in the reproduction in Harper's Weekly of April 6th.

SUCCESSFUL OUTCOME

Calculated Upon by Striking Operatives of the Atlantic Mills.

They Expect Mill Officials to Make Overtures.

Strike May Be Conducted Without Drawing Upon the Union's Funds.

PROVIDENCE, April 13.—District Master Workman Quinn, yesterday afternoon, issued a manifesto to the strikers at the Atlantic mills. He says he does not believe the manufacturers are as willing to close their mills as their recent actions would indicate, and expresses the wish that the strikers would not be guilty of hasty or ill-advised action. He thought if they remained out three weeks they would win.

The strikers' executive committee will meet tonight to arrange ways and means for the continuance of the strike and to provide for the mass meeting. The strikers declare themselves perfectly satisfied with the outlook and so confident of success that they do not propose to appoint a committee to visit the Atlantic mill officials, believing that the overtures will come from the mill within a few days.

Considering Finances.

The striking spinners held a meeting at Textile hall last night and appointed a committee to work in connection with the other operatives, in obtaining subscriptions from outside sources. At 8 o'clock all the spinners of Olneyville met, and after some discussion, agreed to assess themselves 75 cents a week each. If more money is needed the assessment will be increased, some of the men signing themselves for as much as $2 each.

A committee was appointed to visit all the cotton mills in the city to ask for contributions from the spinners. The collections will be made every Saturday and will be paid to a representative of the union. In this way it is hoped to conduct the strike without drawing upon the $9000 now held by the union.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 13.—The committee on towns reported against the division of the town of Weymouth. The adverse report on reimbursing Worcester for a part of the expense of sewerage purification was tabled in the house. The bill to remove restrictions on shad and alewife fishing in the Merrimack river was engrossed. The water supply committee reported a bill allowing the town of Bradford to take additional water supply. The house refused to recommit the bill relative to the control of children in the charge of the state. The senate refused to admit an amendment to the newspaper libel bill. The amendment provided that in a case where damages had been received the fact should be recognized as a mitigating circumstance in the case of another suit brought for the same libel from another place. The bill to prevent the increase of docktailed horses in Massachusetts was engrossed. The governor sent to the senate a message relative to the vacancy in the office of treasurer and receiver general, occasioned by the resignation of Henry M. Phillips.

Boston Child Lost.

BOSTON, April 13.—The Savin Hill quarter of Boston is in a high state of excitement over the mysterious disappearance on Wednesday last of 8-year old Alice Sterling, who was enticed away by an unknown man in broad daylight. There is no room for doubt that it was a case of kidnapping, but what the motive was, or what has become of the little girl and her abductor is a startling puzzle that still confronts the police and the child's parents.

Oakland's Fire.

OAKLAND, Me., April 13.—The plants of the Waterman Tool company and the Oakland Machine company, were partially destroyed by fire yesterday, together with the dwelling house of Mrs. Bryant. At one time nine houses were on fire, but assistance came from Waterville in time to prevent their complete destruction. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

Three Boys Missing.

NEWTON, April 13.—William Mullen, 8 years of age; Charles Schmidt, 9 years, and Roy Schmidt, 9 years, are missing from the Williston Home, West Newton. Yesterday afternoon they left the home. A few minutes later they were seen on the wagon of a fruit pedler going in the direction of Newton. No trace of them has since been found.

Won't Accept Reduced Wages.

LYNN, April 13.—The armature winders at the Thomson-Houston electric works, who were given notice of a reduction in prices for piece work, have decided they will not go to work if the cutdown goes into effect. Superintendent Shugg will allow them the old prices pending a settlement on the return of the general manager.

Summer Hotel Destroyed by Fire.

REVERE, Mass., April 13.—The Strathmore hotel at Crescent Beach, the largest summer hotel on this part of the north shore, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss will be $30,000. The cause of the fire is unknown. When the walls fell three men were caught in the burning debris, but only one was seriously injured.

Dr. Fitzgerald to Sue.

BOSTON, April 13.—Dr. O. B. Fitzgerald of Allston is to bring suit against 26 newspapers, to recover damages for financial loss and personal wrong resulting from the publication of a story that he attempted to commit suicide on March 21, while on a train en route from Boston to Dexter, Me.

Matilda a Total Wreck.

ROCKLAND, Me., April 13.—Schooner Matilda, Woodman, of Boston, which sailed yesterday with paving, went ashore on the rocks on Green's Landing harbor at low water, capsized and sunk. She is a total loss. The crew were saved. The wreck is a dangerous obstruction to navigation.

An Appreciable Gift.

PORTLAND, April 13.—W. W. Thomas of this city, one of the board of directors of the Maine general hospital, has provided that institution with a setrilizing machine and a full set of instruments. The gift amounts to about $3000.

Fatal Fire at Worcester.

WORCESTER, April 13.—Fire did $50,000 damage last night to the five-story block at 418 to 422 Main street, killing Fireman McLaughlin, probably fatally injured Frank Jones and slightly injured three others. They were in the rear of the building putting up their ladder when a corner fell off the roof and they were buried beneath the mass of bricks. The building was occupied by the Quinsigamond Clothing company and several other firms and societies. The fire started in the rooms of the Endicott Social club from some unknown cause.

May Not Accept at Once.

BOSTON, April 13. — State Treasurer Phillips yesterday sent his resignation to the governor, to be accepted at the governor's convenience. It is understood that the resignation will not be immediately accepted, but that Mr. Phillips will continue in the office for a time.

Wife Saw the Suicide.

MALDEN, April 13.—J. H. Murphy, 26 years, committed suicide last evening by shooting himself. The act resulted from despondency, on account of being out of work and the sickness of his wife, who was sick in bed in the room where the shooting took place.

Conference of Evangelist Association.

PROVIDENCE, April 13.—The Evangelistic Association of New England held a conference here yesterday. The services were addressed by Rev. H. C. Mable, Miss Elizabeth S. Tobie, J. P. Gray, H. D. Walker, Miss N. M. Cordon and others.

Changes Will Be Numerous.

BOSTON, April 13.—The international shoeworkers convention took up the entire day yesterday in discussing the constitution recommended by the committee. There will be several radical changes over the constitutions of the old bodies.

Miss Matthews Exonerated.

NORTH ADAMS, April 13.—In the arson case of the commonwealth against May Matthews, which has been on trial in the district court for the last three days, the defendant was discharged.

Decision Reserved.

PORTLAND, April 13.—The hearing of the railroad commissioners into the cases of the accident on the Maine Central at Veazie, April 2, was concluded yesterday. The commissioners reserved their decision.

Over Fifty Miles an Hour.

LYNN, April 13.—A carrier pigeon, owned by E. B. Barrett of Saugus, was liberated at Waterbury, yesterday morning, and arrived home in three hours. The distance is 158 miles.

Blaze at Mechanic Falls.

MECHANIC FALLS, Me., April 13.—Fire consumed the dwelling of Frank G. Purington. The loss is $4000. The fire was caused by children playing with matches in the stable.

The Kansas Safe In Port.

BOSTON, April 13.—The disabled British steamer Kansas, from Liverpool for this port, reached Boston early this morning. Her broken propeller will be repaired here.

New England Briefs.

The residence of John Kirwin at Providence was destroyed by fire. Loss, $5000.

The body of Mrs. Horace Bloodgood, a prominent leader of Providence society, was cremated at Boston.

In the superior court at Boston, Halrina S. Richardson obtained a verdict of $1879 against Attorneys J. S. Dean and J. A. Sawyer.

Thomas P. Beal sues to recover $35,000 from the Essex Savings bank, which he claims is liable, because it held stock in the Maverick bank, Boston.

A Sensational Elopement.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 13.—The courtship of Colonel A. D. MacCorkle, brother of Governor MacCorkle, and Miss Carrie Comstock, a prominent society leader, met with bitter opposition from Miss Comstock's mother, which resulted in the surreptitious leave-taking yesterday on a special train for Gallipolis, O., where they were married. The couple was safe in Ohio before their flight became known. Colonel Carr, a member of the governor's staff; J. B. White, the governor's private secretary, and Miss Dent accompanied the runaways to Gallipolis.

A Lone Star Lynching.

CORSICANA, Tex., April 13. — Nelson Canhoun (colored) was taken from the authorities yesterday, carried to the scene where Mrs. Hughes was ravished some days ago, and shot. Mrs. Hughes identified the negro. The verdict rendered was: "Carried where his hellish crime was committed and there received wounds that caused his death, a punishment certain, speedy and deserved."

Makes Turks Uneasy.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 13.—The ordering of two United States men-of-war to the Syrian coast has caused much comment and some uneasiness here. United States Minister Terrell said that the Washington government's sole intention was to protect American citizens in case of need.

A Weekly Established in 1878.

THE $8,000 fire at Atlantic on Thursday morning again emphasizes the fact that a central fire station should be built between Wollaston and Atlantic, as recomended by Chiefs Ripley and Williams for several years. In 1892 the total fire loss in the city amounted to $23,115 and of this amount $15,000 or 65 per cent. was in Wollaston and Atlantic; in 1893 the total loss was $34,287.50, of this amount $24,517 or 72 per cent. occurred in those two wards, and in 1894 the total loss was $13,259, Wollaston and Atlantic's share being $6813, or 51 per cent.

The Young Ladies' Charitable Association take pleasure in announcing the freedom from debt of the Free Home for Consumptives in the city of Boston, and in commemoration of same give an Easter reception Monday evening, April 22, from 9 to 11 o'clock, in Mechanic's building, Huntington avenue. West Quincy branch takes part in reception. The ladies will be pleased to receive any of their friends who are kind enough to show their sympathy with the cause by their presence on that occasion. A grand musical program has been prepared, the Naval Battalion Band being engaged. During the evening refreshments will be served by the ladies of the association.

BRAINTREE.

Miss Mary G. Osborne, assistant teacher in the High school, has received an offer to teach in the Pawtucket High school and will leave for that place probably the last of next week.

The steam yacht, recently launched at the Fore River Engine Company's yards, is being rapidly completed; the engines and boilers are all in and the finishing work nearly done. Her trial trip will be the last of the month.

Miss Mary Thayer, granddaughter of Mr. Lewis Richards, is to be the first one to ring the Baptist bell, which is now in position in the church belfry. Miss Thayer was the first to put forth efforts for means to purchase the bell, hence the honor.

Some of the scholars of the Monatiquot school are rehearsing for a flag drill to be given soon. Miss Colbert has charge of the affair.

Mrs. C. Brockway from Mystic, Conn., has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. A. G. Langfitt, on Taylor street. Mrs. Brockway has now removed to Danvers and will reside there.

Mr. C. W. Clapp has begun another new house near his own residence on Mt. Vernon avenue. Custance and Simpson will do the stone work and Mr. George Holbrook will construct the building.

Our tax collector, Mr. Hunt has had to come to it, as well as others. The grip has got hold of him.

☞ Miss S. H. Hussey has Spring Millinery, desirable for all in style and price, at 121 Hancock street.

THE WATER INCOME.

Commissioner Cavanagh Reports Profits of $5,975.94 in 1894.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

In your editorial of April 9 you say that the whole of the maturing debt was met by direct taxation. This statement is apt to give the citizens generally the impression that the maintenance of the water works is and will be a burden on the taxpayers and a source of increased taxation. On the other hand the water works at the present time is on a substantial paying basis and the income is sufficient to pay all running expenses, including interest on the bonds, and leaving a net increase to establish a sinking fund or to pay off the maturing debt. In looking over the accounts of the City Auditor and City Treasurer we find that there is a net income from the water department.

In 1892, the first year the city came into possession of the works, the total income from every source was at the rate of about $30,000 per year, while the expenses were: Interest on notes and bonds ($610,000) $24,400; expenses of maintaining, $12,000 per year; total expenses $36,4000; a shortage of about $6,400 for the city to pay by taxation besides the maturing bonds.

But since that time the income has so rapidly increased until now it exceeds all expenses.

The income for the year ending Dec. 31, 1894, actually paid in was $40,943.05. Uncollected income for 1894 (most of which has been paid since) $5,693 51. Total income $46,636 56. The expenses for 1894 including interest on bonds and maintenance, $40,660.62, leaving a profit to the city of $5975.94, to go toward paying off the bonds. Beside this the water department should be credited with $5,715.00 for 189 hydrants which have been put in since the city took possession of the works and for which the water department has received no return. This amount added to the actual profit would make a showing of $11,690,94 income for the water department last year. The income is bound to increase annually even if no more extensions are made. Last year there was laid 12 miles of pipe. Not one half the connections have been made on this line that will be called for and each year will bring an increase in the income, even on the old lines of pipe new connections are being added continually.

RECAPITULATION.

Receipts actually paid in for 1894	$40,943 05
Bal. uncollected Jan. 1, 95 for 1894 most of which has been paid since,	5 693 51
Total income for 1894	$46,636 56
Total expenitures for 1894: interest on bonds $27,235 00, cost of maintenance $13,425 62	40,660 62
Actual profit to the city	5,975 94
Extra amount the city should pay for hydrants	5,715 00
To the credit of the Water dept.	$11,690 94

This in addition to the fact that the water rates were reduced last July ten per cent. is a good showing for the water department. JOHN T. CAVANAGH

OPPOSED TO STRIKES.

President Penna Exhorts Miners to Act In a Conservative Manner.

COLUMBUS, O., April 13.—A manifesto has been issued by President Penna of the United Mine Workers advising the settlement of the mining scale for the coming year by districts. The present scale expires May 1, and the Pittsburg operators have refused to meet the Ohio, Indiana and Illinois operators in joint conference.

President Penna says: "It may still appear to some people that the operators and miners in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois could have held a convention and agreed on a schedule of prices without these Pittsburg disputes. It seems to me that the experience last year should dispel this idea. Early last year the Ohio miners accepted a reduction of 20 cents per ton—forced to do so because mining rates had been reduced in the Pittsbuag district.

"Again, last December, when the Pittsburg operators, who had signed the scale in June in accordance with a contract provision, were relieved from its obligations and reduced the mining rates, a large portion of Ohio miners were again made to suffer, not in the form of a reduction in the price of mining this time, but by enforced idleness, and to such an extent that relief was asked from the charitable people of Ohio by the governor of the state.

"This, it seems, is enough to convince anyone of the ability of the Pittsburg district to control the mining situation in Ohio." President Penna recommends conservative action. He does not favor strikes.

Murderously Assaulted.

CHICAGO, April 13.—E. R. Hunter, a wealthy cattle dealer at the Union stockyards, came staggering out of his office last night covered with blood and said to the janitor of the building: "Did you see him?" After asking the question Hunter fell to the floor unconscious, and is now lying at the point of death. Someone had dealt him a blow with a brick, which fractured the skull. Nobody saw the assailant enter or leave the building. Hunter had with him when assaulted a gold watch and a large sum of money, and no attempt was made to take them away from him.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Having sold my West Quincy store, I intend to confine my attention wholly to my store in Quincy Centre for the future. I respectfully ask a continuance of the favor of the patronage of the public.

It will be my aim in the future, as it has been in the past, to cater to the wants of every man, woman or child who enters my store. I would like your trade, if I have it not already, and promise in return courteous treatment, correct prices and above all other things, first-class goods.

Thanking you for past favors, and soliciting a continuance of the same, I remain

Blue Hill Predictions.

Sa	Su	Mo	Tu	W	Th	Fri	Sa
13	14	15	16	17	18	19	20

The coming week will probably average warmer than normal, with less rainfall than during the past two weeks. The warmest days promise to be the 15th to 16th and afternoon of the 18th to 19th. The coolest promise to be the 13th to 14th and 17th to morning of the 18th. The greatest probability of rain is on the 15th to 16th. The remainder of the week will be generally fair, except possibly local showers on the afternoon of the 18th. The greatest probability of clear weather is on the 13th to 14th, and 17th to morning of the 18th.—Norfolk County Gazette.

Hollis Street Theatre.

A novel change in the usual class of attractions at the Hollis has been made for the week of April 15th, when a most magnificent minstrel aggregation, organized by Primrose & West will hold the boards. Over 70 artists comprise the company and an entire train of special cars is necessary to transport the company and scenery. The engagement is for one week only and an extra matinee will be given on Lexington Day, in addition to the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees. The mere fact that they are to appear at the Hollis is a guarantee to the fact that the entertainment is absolutely free from any touch of vulgarity whatsoever.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

The strong and always popular English melodrama "Hands Across The Sea" will be the next attraction at the Bowdoin Square Theatre and will be presented with a splendid equipment of company, new scenery and mechanical effects. This play has stood the test of 600 consecutive nights in London and 150 nights in Boston and has everywhere been played to enthusiastic and delighted audiences. It has been witnessed by a round million on people in New York, Philadelphia and Boston alone, and by thousands elsewhere in the United States. Henry Pettitt never wrote a stronger or more picturesque melodrama. While it is a melodrama it is without the overwrought situations that characterize most plays of this class.

THE SOCIAL REALM.

The Joyous Easter Season Causes an Awakening.

MANY MILLINERY OPENINGS.

The Personal Items Which Interest Quincy and Vicinity.

The week following Easter is always a week of entertainments and there will be more than the usual number next week. The cantata of "Esther, the beautiful queen" will be a leading attraction. The cast is a very strong local one, and without doubt Faxon hall will be crowded both Wednesday and Thursday evenings. The drama "Placer Gold" will be presented the same evenings at West Quincy, and a minstrel entertainment will be given in the Universalist vestry Wednesday night, and at Hancock hall Friday night O'Neills New York Theatre company will present "The Colleen Bawn."

Extensive alterations have begun in the residence of Water Commissioner James H. Stetson on School street. Mr. and Mrs. Stetson entertain much and they probably have the convenience of their guests in mind. We also note that Mr. Stetson's business is increasing, the Walker, Stetson, Sawyer Company of which he is president, having just leased the handsome new building now being erected by the estate of Fred L. Ames on Lincoln and Essex streets, Boston. The lease of this building to the above company is one of the most important consummated in the city for a long time. It runs for a long term of years at a big rental per year. The structure has a frontage of 133 feet on Lincoln street, and a frontage on Essex street of 62 feet. The materials of construction are sandstone and red brick, and the building will be equipped with automatic sprinklers. There will also be two freight elevators and one passenger elevator of the latest construction.

Among the supporters of the proposed club are Theophilus King, Esq., Councilmen C. F. Adams 2d, and C. M. Bryant, ex-Councilmen Stephen O. Moxon and James Thompson and ex-Representative Graham. The above names are signed to a circular issued this week requesting an expression of opinion from Quincy's 400. There will be no charge for initiation of charter members, and it is promised that the annual dues shall not exceed twenty-five dollars per annum. Many favorable replies are being received.

The Lincoln-Clapp church wedding Wednesday evening in the First Parish church at Hingham was the society event of the week on the South Shore. The bride, Miss Edith Whiton Clapp, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Clapp of East Weymouth, and Mr. Alfred Loring Lincoln is of an old Hingham family. The bride was gowned in white satin, and the maid of honor, Miss Eleanor R. Clapp of East Weymouth, in blue satin. Rev. J. W. Day officiated. The church was decorated with palms, calla and Easter lillies. A reception in the parish house followed the ceremony. The ushers were: Roy M. Lincoln of Philadelphia, Pa., Edwin M. Thayer of Newtonville, Davis B. Clapp of East Weymouth, Henry E. H. Whiton of Hingham, Alexander T. Baxter of Cambridge, John O. Hall, Jr., of Quincy.

One of the prettiest millinery openings seen this Easter is that of Miss C. L. Bliss, successor to Miss M. E. Fish. The interior of the store is transformed into a perfect bower of loveliness. In the show window are displayed, art silks, millinery ornaments, French flowers and all the novelties in gilt, silver and jet ornaments. In the interior the chandeliers, etc., are completely covered with all the prevailing flowers, etc. In the show cases are seen, the crepe de chiene trimmings, fine laces, French flowers, a full line of art linen work and children's bonnets and muslin hats for Easter. The Reinsford hat and little Dutch bonnet are very popular this year and some very prettily trimmed ones are shown. The flowers are of no particular hue but are of all shades combined, making them very attractive. Miss Bliss has for a trimmer Miss F. E. Cummings, who is an artist in her line. One of the most taking Dresden bonnets shown is a combination of emerald green, with cut steele trimmings, flowers of amethest hue, and Dresden ribbon of white ground with pale blue, green and pink tints. The hat that has been much admired is a black Reinsford with a French lace rim, jet and fancy straw crown with three large ostrich feathers, crepe ribbon and cut jet spikes.

All the prominent people in Christ's church are interested in the "experience meeting" which is to be held next week. The ladies have used all their ingenuity in earning a dollar, and the poems written, telling how the money was earned, are very bright and promise a most entertaining evening.

Miss E B. Collins, the milliner in Faxon block, has displayed at her rooms many pretty hats and bonnets for Easter. The style this year is confined to no one particular color, all shades being worn in ribbons and flowers. In ribbons the latest is the Dresden and Taffeta, while the prevailing shapes in hats are the Continental, Napoleon and Adelaide, and in bonnets the Dutch is the leader. This year Miss Collins has been fortunate in securing the services of Miss Ma Belle Octavie Vian of New York as trimmer.

HIGH PRICE OF MEATS.

Arguments Pro and Con as to the Advance Recently Decided Upon.

BUFFALO, April 13.—The Express today publishes a column interview with Christian Klinck, the millionaire wholesale dealer in beef and pork of this city, in which Mr. Klinck emphatically states that the present high prices in meat are directly chargeable to a combine of the large packers in the west. Mr. Klinck says:

"This monopoly has driven the small dealers to the wall, principally by a shrewd arrangement with the railroads, whereby the roads are carrying the ring's product for about one-half less than the rates ordinary dealers have to pay. The ring own their own cars, and these they load up with 35,0000 to 40,000 pounds, and then bill them generally at 20,000 pounds.

"The railroads dare not question the rates, lest they lose their patronage, and so the bill goes. Smaller dealers have to pay full rates, and are thus forced out of business, after which the agencies in the various cities of the monopoly can put their prices at what they please. This is what is now being done."

KANSAS CITY, April 13. — Secretary Morton's instructions regarding the investigation into the causes for the prevailing high prices of meats have not disturbed the cattle men and packers in this city. All of those interviewed in reference to the matter unite in the statement that the scarcity of cattle is the cause, and that there is not the slightest reason for the supposition that a combine exists either among the cattle men or packers.

Robert C. White, senior member of the R. C. White company, who has been in the cattle business for 40 years, expresses the opinion of a majority of the cattle men. "A poor corn crop," he said, "has invariably been followed by high prices for cattle and beef in the past. The receipts for cattle have decreased remarkably for the first quarter of 1895. Chicago receipts decreased 17 per cent; Omaha, 32 per cent, and Kansas City, 12 8-10 per cent. In the four largest live stock markets in the country—Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis and Chicago—the shortage is 300,000, as compared with 1894."

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—Representatives of the packing houses at the stockyards say the advance in the price of dressed beef is legitimate and caused by the advance in cattle. They claim they have been working at a disadvantage during the past six months, as the price of cattle has advanced more rapidly than the meat. Cattle commission merchants say the price of cattle is due to their scarcity. Owing to the short crop of corn, native cattle have been cleaned up closer than in many years. Texas has a good corn crop, but the prices have been so low during the two previous years, that it has not been a profitable business to ranch owners, and they have turned their attention to raising other things, making the cattle supply short this year.

CHICAGO, April 13.—Referring to the proposed investigation by Secretary Morton, P. A. Armour said: "The shortage in cattle at the four principal western markets thus far this year amounts to nearly 270,000 head compared with a year ago.

How They Got Out.

NEWBURG, N. Y., April 13.—John Quigley, who, with Oliver Curtis Perry and three others, escaped from Matteawan asylum Wednesday night, was recaptured yesterday at New Hamburg. Quigley made a statement which shows that the escape of the five men was due to the negligence of the attendants. When the attendants give the men their food in their cells, every article is counted. Two galvanized iron spoons, however, were kept by Maguire, through the negligence of some of the attendants. In the boots they use in the institution is a long steel shank. Maguire secured one of these shanks and made a small saw of it. With the saws he made two keys from the spoons, with which he unlocked the cell doors and released the prisoners. Quigley does not know what became of the other men who escaped.

Served Under Lincoln.

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—James H Campbell, minister to Sweden and Norway under President Lincoln, died suddenly at his home in Wayne yesterday, aged 75 years. In 1844 he was one of the delegates from this state to the Whig national convention at Baltimore. In 1846 he was elected to congress, and in 1858 and again in 1860 he was re-elected by Republicans.

Jailbirds Chased and Captured.

ROSWELL, N. M., April 13.—Prisoners in the jail here overpowered Jailer Taliaferro yesterday and locked him up. They then armed themselves and escaped. Three of them are murderers. Citizens started in pursuit, and a short distance from town a pitched battle was fought. One of the fugitives was dangerously wounded. The remainder surrrendered.

Money Matters Mixed.

TACOMA, April 13.—The dead body of Paul Schulz, general land agent of the Northern Pacific railroad, was found dead in bed yesterday afternoon. He had fired a bullet into his left temple. Despondency and the loss of his position was undoubtedly the cause. His financial affairs are badly tangled up.

Not on the Market.

NEW YORK, April 13.—R. E. A. Dorr, the publisher of The Mail and Express, denies emphatically that there is any truth in the statement that The Mail and Express was to be sold.

Lord Kelvin holds that the internal heat of the earth has nothing to do with climates. The earth, he says, might be of the temperature of white-hot iron 2000 feet below the surface, or at the freezing point 50 feet below, without at all affecting a climate.

PEACE IN FAR EAST

Thought Likely to Be Declared Within a Few Days.

Independence of Corea Is Regarded as Settled.

Russia Is Preparing to Frustrate Proposed Plans of Japanese.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Minister Jurino of Japan said concerning the Japanese-Chinese peace understanding, announced to him by official cable from Tokio yesterday:

"The cablegram is quite brief and does not recite the terms, nor does it say that peace has as yet actually been agreed upon, but that an understanding has been reached between the envoys by which peace seems assured. I have no doubt from this that we will have a treaty of peace within a few days.

It undoubtedly will be concluded within the next seven days, as the armistice expires at the end of that time. Should it not be arranged by that time, there probably would be no difficulty in continuing a truce, now that a peace understanding has been definitely reached. There may be some delay in arranging the details of the new Japan-China treaty, as it will cover all of the commercial interests of the two countries.

"One of the most essential items will be that of the tariff. Heretofore the Japanese duty has been 5 per cent on all Chinese goods, and under the favored nation clause all other countries were entitled to the same rate.

"With Japan's new treaty with the United States, Great Britain and other countries, all of which contain the favored clause, it will be no longer possible to give China the 5 per cent rate."

Mr. Kurino said that, in the absence of definite word from his government as to the terms of peace understanding, he did not wish to speculate on the terms. He regarded it as settled, however, that the island of Formosa would be permanently ceded to Japan. That much had already proceeded beyond the stage of contention. He also considered the independence of Corea as settled. This would leave the question of indemnity, of Port Arthur's occupation and of future treaty arrangements as the subjects on which the Japanese plenipotentiaries may have granted some concession.

Mr. Kurino takes a conservative view of the conclusion of peace. He shares the feeling of his countrymen that Japan had won the right to expect much as the price of peace.

The minister communicated the information from Japan to the state department during the day. It was after the cabinet meeting, however, and Secretary Gresham did not communicate the news to his cabinet colleagues. Later in the day President Cleveland was informed.

WAR DOGS GROWLING.

Russia Preparing to Resist Acquirement of Asiatic Territory by Japs.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 13.—Russia has determined to make diplomatic opposition to the annexation by Japan of any portion of the Asiatic continent. The Russian army and navy in the far east are being reinforced with the view of supporting this decision. The Russian government has also resolved not to interfere in Armenia in order to have a free hand in the far east.

China, considering it impossible for her to accept the Japanese conditions for peace, is sounding Russia and the other powers as to whether they will intervene.

Japan's Fairness.

KOBE, April 13.—With regard to the prospective revision of the Japanese-Chinese commercial treaty, responsible Japanese statesmen claim that Japan will be placed on an equal footing with the western powers, but she will not seek exclusive privileges.

Allianca Was Unmolested.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Steamer Allianca arrived yesterday afternoon from Colon. Captain Crossman reported that when within five miles of the Cuban coast he sighted the same barkentine rigged Spanish gunboat that fired on the Allianca on her previous voyage. She paid no attention to the Allianca, which steamed along on her usual course.

Had Smallpox Aboard.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—Steamer Coptic arrived yesterday from Hong Kong and Yokohama. Soon after leaving Hong Kong two or three firemen were stricken with smallpox. On her arrival here the Coptic was fumigated and sent into quarantine for 14 days. She brought an exceptionally large number of passengers.

Jack Tars Enjoying Themselves.

KINGSTON, April 13. — The American North Atlantic squadron, bearing the flag of Rear Admiral Meade, has arrived here. As there is also a British fleet of warships in these waters it makes things quite lively. The sailors have obtained leave and have gone in a good deal for boisterous entertainment.

Coatmakers' Strike Still On.

CINCINNATI, April 13.—A conference between coatmakers and clothing manufacturers was held yesterday, and the ultimatum of the manufacturers that they refused to treat with the men as a union, and promised to meet them as individuals was given. This leaves the strike on for the present.

Higher Than Before.

TOPEKA, April 13.—Colonel of Militia Hughes, who was removed by Governor Lewellyn and court-martialed for not driving the Republicans from the legislative halls two years ago, was yesterday appointed major general of the Kansas militia.

Held on Suspicion.

PUEBLO, Colo., April 13.—Two men answering the description of the Cripple Creek express robbers, were arrested here last night. They gave the names of F. M. Miller and A. E. Wilhile. They will be held until their identity can be established.

Gillies' Contract Cancelled.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Secretary Herbert has cancelled the contract of John Gillies for the construction of the Brooklyn dry dock, because of the many delays on the part of Gillies.

Citizens Hustle Out of Town.

SHAWNEETOWN, Ills., April 13.—There are 39 cases of smallpox here. There is great excitement, and many of the citizens have left the town temporarily.

TRADE REPORTED FAIR

With Bright Prospects For Improvement In Eastern Cities.

Strikes Have Largely Overbalanced Agreements.

The Shoe Manufacture Continues to Lead All the Great Industries.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Bradstreet's today says: The feature in trade circles is found in the prices movement, more particularly those for cattle, dressed beef and hogs.

Drouth, low prices and "hard times" within two years have resulted in a shorter supply of cattle — prospectively 30 per cent less than last year. Live cattle are $1.60 higher per 100 pounds than last year, and $1 higher than the lowest point this year. Dressed beef is 2½ cents higher than the average last year, the highest since 1885.

The comparative scarcity of high grade cattle is emphasized by the fact that the present quotations, when made in previous periods of scarcity have never failed to bring a supply when one existed.

The maintenance of a generally higher range of clearings totals, an improved outlook for manufacturers in the staple lines, the spread of the feeling of confidence that the volume of business will increase in the near future, and an improved crop outlook in western and northwestern grain states are among the more significantly favorable features.

Less activity is reported from almost all eastern cities, general trade being fair or quiet, with prospects for improvement bright.

Central western cities report improvement in business, and confidence as to the future. Greatest activity is noticed in dry goods, hats, shoes and leaf tobacco.

Dun's Review.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Progress toward better business continues, but it is slow and meets many obstacles. In speculative aspects and in wholesale demand for goods, the week shows improvement. Money markets are undisturbed and a little more active.

But among the chief obstacles is the anxiety of operatives to secure better wages, even while many manufacturing works are running without profit, and others at the risk of loss. In a number of establishments better wages have been conceded, thus increasing the purchasing power of the people, but strikes have largely overbalanced settlements, several of importance having thrown about 12,000 workers out of employment this week.

Retail trade has improved on the whole since March, as the approach of Easter brings more business, but distribution to individual consumers still lags behind purchases of jobbers and such demand for products as springs from building and other investments, looking into the future.

For the first time in a long period, prices of commodities average a shade higher than a year ago, and in Great Britain also, owing to different causes, a slight advance occurred in March. On both sides of the ocean the lowest level ever known may naturally be followed by some rise.

Staple Products.

Crop prospects will greatly affect the course of trade for some months, and the government report has little influence to discourage. For consumers, the worst feature is the rapid advance in meats.

Wheat has yielded nearly 1 cent, although Atlantic exports for two weeks have been 3,706,643 bushels, flour included, against 3,599,688 last year, with western receipts only 2,588,467, against 4,223,434 last year.

Receipts of corn are about half, and exports about a fifth of last year's.

Decreases in receipts of cattle are exaggerated, 659,406 having arrived at Chicago, against 789,543 to date last year, and the prevailing opinion is that western packers are helping nature to some extent.

Cotton and Wool.

Cotton is on both sides more buoyant than anything else, except meats and petroleum here, crude oil having risen to $1.80, the highest price for over 17 years. Nothing supports the advance of ⅛ in cotton the past week, except the impression that the next crop will be short, for receipts are large and about 150,000 bales more than the largest crop ever grown have already come into sight this year.

Sales of wool are particularly interesting, amounting for the week to 6,030,200 pounds, and for five weeks previous to 25,621,200, against 25,277,676 in the same weeks of 1892. In brief, sales are close to the quantity required for a full consumption, and the long delay in placing orders and the lateness of the season make the proportion of mills at work larger than usual. No improvement in prices appears, and domestic wool does not respond to recent advances in foreign markets.

The low price encourages manufacturers to compete much more vigorously with foreign goods of many kinds than they had expected, and for the medium and cheaper grades of goods they have more than the usual demand, because purchases of consumers have for two years been comparatively small. The better goods fare not so well, foreign competition being more effective, but there is a good demand for dress goods.

In cottons, continued strength appears, with further occasional advances of ¼ and ⅛ in print cloths, and the aggregate is fair. Many agents are sold well ahead.

The shoe manufacture continues to lead all the great industries, with shipments over 20 per cent larger in number of cases than a year ago, though not in value, while orders have been more liberal at advancing prices.

Failures for the week were 207 in the United States, against 218 last year, and 27 in Canada, against 34 last year.

Over the Border.

Bradstreet's report says: The weather has been unfavorable throughout portions of the Canadian Dominion, with the natural effect of no trade, although the outlook at Montreal and Toronto is encouraging.

In New Brunswick, lumber operators fear that recent rain will carry off the ice before they can move their cut. Halifax reports an average volume of trade, although somewhat depressed by the low temperature. Bank clearings at Winnipeg, Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax aggregate $17,595,920, an increase of about 5 per cent over the previous week, practically the same total reported one year ago, but 15 per cent less than in the corresponding week of 1893.

There were 26 business failures in the Canadian Dominion this week as reported to Bradstreet's, against 31 last week.

BURIED IN MANURE PIT.

Body of Alice Sterling Unearthed In a Dorchester Stable.

The Little One Had Been Outraged and Slain.

Station Agent Gilbert Suspected of Having Committed the Awful Crime.

BOSTON, April 15.—Alice Sterling's fate was learned Saturday. She was murdered last Wednesday afternoon. Her body was buried in the cellar of a barn on Savin Hill avenue, Dorchester, and the police dug it up.

Death was caused by a blow on the left side of the head, which crushed in the sku l. She was 8 years old, the pride of a household, the pet of a school, and the idol of her brothers and sisters and playmates.

Angus D. Gilbert, night station agent at the Savin Hill depot of the Old Colony division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, is under arrest, charged with the crime.

George Sterling, a barber, reported to the police at midnight on Wednesday last that his little daughter had disappeared some time during the afternoon while Mrs. Sterling and other members of his large family were away from home. Searching parties looked all day Thursday, but could find no trace of her.

Officers Perkins and Smith were given charge of the case, and on Saturday the latter was informed by Miss Edith Reid that she has seen from her residence a man with a red mustache and light overcoat leading the little Sterling girl by the hand. They were going down the railroad track toward the beach which borders that section of Dorchester.

The Suspect.

From the description, the officers decided that the man they wanted was Angus D. Gilbert, the night agent at the depot. In the daytime he worked for G. W. Emmons on Denny street, near Savin Hill avenue. He slept in the top of an old stable on the Denny estate near by, and as Miss Reid stated that she was positive the man went in this direction after leaving the railroad tracks, the officers Saturday afternoon instituted a thorough search of the premises surrounding both the Denny estate and the Emmons place. Miss Reid was sure the two followed the top of an old sewer, a distance of probably 200 yards, but lost sight of them soon after they left the track. This was an unusual route, and indicated that the man wished to avoid public streets.

During the search Gilbert was found at work at the Emmons place. He was immediately placed under arrest. This was about 3.30 p. m. The old stable on the Denny place was then searched. Two old towels and pieces of old rags with blood on them were found in Gilbert's room. When the manure pit was searched Officer Perkins struck a human foot. A body was pulled out, and was soon identified as Alice Sterling. Her skull was crushed, and the cause of death was only too apparent. Her clothing was disarranged, showing too plainly the motive of the horrible crime. A bloody ax was found near by, concealed under a beam. Medical Examiner Draper was then given charge, and an autopsy will be held.

Denies Guilt.

Gilbert would not admit the crime, but when brought down handcuffed to view the body he trembled like an aspen leaf. Gilbert is a rather stout man, 5 ft. 8 in. in height, 28 years old, fair complexion, with a reddish mustache. He came from Musquodobolt, Nova Scotia, over a year ago, and was always considered a good man by the railroad people.

Miss Reid, who furnished the clew, and another woman living near named Mrs. William Allen, called at station 11 and positively identified the prisoner as the man they saw with the little girl on Wednesday.

Mrs. Sterling is prostrated over the affair and is in a precarious condition.

Gilbert was an acquaintance of Mr. Sterling's, and consequently was not unknown to the little girl.

Autopsy Kept Secret.

An autopsy over the body of the murdered girl was held yesterday, but the medical examiner refused to make known the result of it, stating that he intended to hold it until the case came into court. The police say that they expect a confession from Gilbert.

Death of Captain Waters.

NEWPORT, April 15. — Captain John Waters, mayor of Newport, died last night, after an illness of six weeks, death having resulted from disease of the liver. Captain Waters was born in Boston in 1825, and during the war served as a diver under Admiral Farragut, from whom he received honorable mention for his services. He had served in both branches of the Newport city council for a dozen years, and was elected by the Democrats for mayor at the last election. He was a high Mason and a member of many societies.

Tuberculosis and the Law.

PALMER, Mass., April 15.—The working of the new law providing that cattle affected with tuberculosis shall be quarantined and killed was given its first practical trial in Massachusetts, when Morrill A. Stebbins and Walter H. Williams, Monson farmers, were tried here for obstructing the agents of the cattle commission, breaking quarantine, and the latter with selling meat from a tuberculosis cow. Both men were found guilty. Sentence was suspended.

Witham's Victim Is Dead.

MALDEN, April 15. — Dr. Charles H. Farnsworth, the victim of the shooting affair here last Tuesday evening, died at the Malden hospital yesterday afternoon. Witham, the jealous husband, who did the shooting, was rearrested upon a charge of murder. Witham is in the last stages of consumption, and having worried greatly since the shooting, he has grown worse daily.

Death Came Without Warning.

NEW HAVEN, April 15. — Professor James D. Dana, a geologist of world-wide fame, died at his residence here last night from heart failure, aged about 83 years. He was apparently in perfect health during the day, and last night while conversing with his wife he was suddenly stricken and died before a doctor could reach him.

Shoeworkers Elect Officers.

BOSTON, April 15.—The convention of shoeworkers, which formed a new international organization to take the place of former bodies of those workers, came to a finish Saturday, having completed a constitution and elected officers. The officers are: President, J. E. Tobin, Rochester; vice president, W. H. Laughlin, Marlboro; secretary, H. M. Eaton, Lynn; treasurer, A. C. Hause, Middleboro; executive board, E. M. Bannister, St. Louis; Walter E. Molster, Detroit; R. B. Golden, Baltimore; E. L. Whiting, Auburn, Me.; Charles W. Greene, Manchester, N. H.; John H. Murray, Marlboro; Miss Mary Nason, Haverhill.

Captain and Cook Barely Escape.

BRIDGEPORT, April 15.—Tug Annie R. Wood, owned by the Bridgeport Towing company, sunk at her wharf yesterday. Captain Wakely and the cook were asleep in the cabin. Both were obliged to jump ashore wiehout waiting to dress. The tug is valued at $6500. She lies in 10 feet of water. The cause of her sinking is a mystery.

Spring Freshets.

BOSTON, April 15.—The heavy rainstorm which began Saturday and continued up to a late hour last night has caused considerable damage in this city and vicinity. Reports from all the New England states indicate that the rainstorm was general. Rivers have become surging torrents and lowlands have been flooded.

Murder In Second Degree.

BOSTON, April 15.—Robert F. West and Walter A. Scott are both guilty of murder in the second degree. The jury that tried them, after five hours of deliberation, brought its verdict into the superior criminal court at 2:15 o'clock yesterday morning. The penalty for murder in the second degree is life imprisonment.

Had Plenty of Money.

HYDE PARK, Mass., April 15. — A woman, 74 years old, was found wandering through this town Saturday. She was demented and unable to tell anything about herself beyond the fact that her name was White. The sum of $1000 was found on her person.

FOUND IN A STEEPLE.

Nude Body of Murdered Minnie Williams Discovered by Searchers.

Blanche Lamont Was Killed the Day Previous.

Both Crimes Laid at the Door of a Member of the Church.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 15.—On Saturday the mutilated and murdered body of Minnis Williams was found in the library of the Emanuel Baptist church. Yesterday the nude body of Blanche Lamont was found in the tower of the same church. The same hand, the authorities believe, slew both girls, and W. H. T. Durant, the young man suspected of both crimes, is now in custody.

Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams were members of the Emanuel church and members of the Sunday school class. The former was a student at the normal school; the latter was a companion in a family in Alameda. They were both 21 years old, brunettes, and pretty, modest girls. Both had been the recipients of attentions from a young medical student named W. H. T. Durant, who is also a member of the church and secretary of the Young People's society of the church.

On April 3 Miss Lamont disappeared. The last person seen in her company was Durant, who, it seems, had been on friendly terms with the missing girl. On Saturday, about 11:10 a. m., the mutilated body of Minnie Williams was found in the library of the church. The girl had been assaulted and her remains were cut and hacked, the girl having evidently died

From Loss of Blood.

Two witnesses state they saw a young man and a young woman, the former answering the description of Durant, and the latter that of Minnie Williams, enter the church.

Miss Williams had been a regular attendant of the Emanuel church, having formerly lived in that neighborhood, but the separation of her father and mother had caused her to move to Alameda.

Friday evening she was to have attended a meeting of the Young People's society of the Emanuel church at Dr. Vogel's house. At 7.15 o'clock she left Mrs. Voy's house to attend the meeting, taking a latch-key with her. She never appeared there.

On Saturday Mrs. Noble, the aunt of Miss Lamont, received through the mails a paper containing the four rings worn by her niece the day she disappeared. On the paper were written the name and address of Theodore Durant. This, together with the fact that Miss Williams had been heard to say that she knew Miss Lamont had been murdered, but had refused to tell what she knew, lead the police to suspect that some one who had killed Miss Williams had slain Miss Lamont, and that learning that Miss Williams knew of his crime attempted further concealment by Committing a Double Murder.

The detectives had about decided Durant had murdered Miss Williams, and this theory was further strengthened yesterday after making a thorough search of the Emanuel church. The dead and outraged body of Miss Lamont was found concealed in the steeple. Death had been caused by strangulation. The body was lying just inside the door of the tower room, nude, and on the floor.

At 5 o'clock last evening came the news that Durant had been arrested at Walnut Creek. Detective Anthony and his prisoner left on the next train for San Francisco, where they arrived last evening. Durant is about 26 years old, and was born and raised in the neighborhood in which the murder occurred.

The police think Durant is another "Jack, the Ripper," with a mania for murder. They state that it is highly probable that Durant is responsible for the killing of Eugene Ward, a young drug clerk, who was found stabbed to death several months ago in the store where he was at work.

Famous Hotel Destroyed.

LOS ANGELES, April 15.—Hotel Raymond, at Passadena, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Not a stick of the famous resort is left. The cost of the building was almost $500,000, and the furniture cost $50,000. The servants are nearly all imported from Boston and other New England points. They lose everything and are left destitute.

McGuire and O'Donnell Gathered In.

MATTEWAN, N. Y., April 15.—Patrick McGuire and Michael O'Donnell, two of the five convicts who escaped from the Meemwan asylum last Wednesday night, were captured at Pine Plains yesterday by Attendant James Coyle of the asylum. This leaves only Perry and Davis still at liberty.

Missing Broker Seen.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Paul M. Swain, the drug and chemical broker of Boston who disappeared Dec. 11, it is reported was seen in this city yesterday. It is supposed that he has just arrived from Europe. Swain was prominent in club and social circles in Boston and New York.

THE FIGURES of Commissioner Cavanagh in Saturday's LEDGER certainly sustain the position of the LEDGER, that the income of 1895 is underestimated by the board of Water Commissioners in their annual report, and that $5,000 to $10,000 or more might be applied to the payment of the maturing water debt of 1895, and thus reduce the amount to be raised by direct taxation and the tax rate. We reprint Mr. Cavanagh's recapitulation:

Receipts actually paid in for 1894		$40,943 05
Bal. uncollected Jan. 1, 95 for 1894 most of which has been paid since,		5,693 51
Total income for 1894		$46,636 56
Total expenditures for '94: interest on bonds $27,235 00, cost of maintenance $13,425 62	40,660 62
Actual profit to the city	5,975 94
Extra amount the city should pay for hydrants	5,715 00
To the credit of the Water dept.		$11,690 94

It is evident from the above figures that it was not necessary to raise so much by taxation last year by $5975.94, as Mr. Cavanagh admits that that sum might be applied toward paying off the bonds. Unless it is appropriated for this purpose, however, it will be used for extensions as was the balance of $14,375.60 for purchase of water works, as per page 95 of the City Book just issued.

The income of 1894 was $46,636 56, and yet the Water Commissioners in their annual report just issued estimate that of 1895 at only $41,000. They estimated the amount necessary for maintenance at $14,000, and it cost but $13,425 72 last year, but in the mayor's estimates $15,000 appears. Why this increase for maintenance?

By using the profits of 1894 and 1895 it is possible to meet about half the maturing water bonds and reduce the tax levy from $10,000 to $15,000.

A New President.

The annual meeting of the Granite City Club was held Saturday evening and these officers were elected:

Sentenced for Two Years.

Harry S. Nye, the rogue who broke into the Wollaston ticket office several weeks ago; and was subsequently arrested at Malden from a description given of him by Officer Furnald of this city; was before the court at Dedham on Friday, and received a full sentence, all the law allows in such cases, two years at the House of Correction. It appeared from evidence gathered by Officer Furnald that he is an old offender, having been twice arrested, found guilty and sentenced to jail for similar offences.

CHRIST IS RISEN.

Easter Themes and Music in Quincy Churches.

SOME BEAUTIFUL DISPLAYS.

Carol Services, Sunday School Concerts and Special Music.

Sunday was not a typical Easter. There were no new gowns, or hats, or jackets to be seen upon the streets. Somber colors predominated and mackintoshes covered rainy weather clothes.

It took something more than a vivid imagination to make one's self believe that that wet, drizzly day was Easter Sunday.

Centre Congregational.

Rev. A. E. Bryant's text Sunday morning was from Rev. 14:13—"And I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me: Write, blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." Chorister Hood introduced a variety in music, there being a mixed quartette, a male quartette and a double quartette. Palms and Easter lilies and a floral harp with the words "He is Risen" made a pretty decoration.

An excellent Easter Sunday School concert was given in the evening at 7 o'clock, being the first concert since Mr. E. W. Branch became superintendent. It was entitled "Hugg's Greeting—Easter 1895," and the arrangement was as follows:

Organ Voluntary.

Unitarian Church, Quincy.

Easter was observed with appropriate services Sunday at the First church. The interior of the church especially in front of the pulpit was very prettily decorated with potted and cut flowers, Easter lilies predominating. Special Easter music was rendered at the morning and afternoon services by the choir.

At the morning service Rev. Ellery C. Butler the pastor, occupied the pulpit and preached an eloquent sermon taking for his text these words found in Job 14:14, "If a man dies, shall he live again?" Before pronouncing the benediction Mr. Butler urged members of the society to join the church.

Christ's Church, Quincy.

The interior of Christ's church presented a very pretty appearance Easter day, and the edifice was fragrant with the many beautiful flowers that were used in the decorations which were quite elaborate. In each of the windows was a large potted plant surrounded by pine twigs and about the altar and chancel rail were arranged many beautiful potted plants and cut flowers including the beautiful Easter lily. The severe storm interfered with the attendance somewhat although many braved the inclement weather.

Services were held at 7.30 and 10.30 A. M., 4.30 and 7.30 P. M. At each of these services Easter music of high order had been arranged by Prof. Wrigley which was very finely rendered by the vested choir. Rev. Walter Russell Breed, rector, officiated at all of the services, Holy Communion being celebrated at the close of the 7.30 and 10.30 services.

At the 10.30 services Rev. Mr. Breed took for his sermon these words found in the second epistle of Paul, the apostle to Timothy 1:10, "Our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." The speaker enlarged upon the resurrection of Jesus Christ and the lessons it should teach us. Death to him was not a step into the dark but the passing from one room to another in his Father's mansion. He came back to enact the truth he had taught that life was immortal and Jesus resurrection does not leave death a matter of uncertainty, for it is but a step in life and not a step out of life."

Universalist Church.

The platform and desk at this church was very beautifully decorated with plants and flowers. The pastor, Rev. A. E. White, preached a very interesting discourse appropriate to Easter. The singing by the chorus choir, under the leadership of H. F. Nye, was pleasing and attractive. At the close of the sermon seven ladies and gentlemen joined the church and were baptised. Then followed the communion services to which all persons present were invited, whether members of any other church, or of no church.

At 5.30 the Sunday School, of which George H. Hobby is superintendent, gave an excellent Easter Concert. The school was assisted in the singing by the church choir and others, and it was an hour very delightfully spent.

St. John's Church.

Easter Sunday is an important day in the Catholic churches, and at St. John's church the services were of a very impressive nature. The altar was one huge bank of potted plants and cut flowers which looked beautiful amongst the myriad of candles and electric lights.

The order of services for the day were: First mass at 8 A. M., celebrated by Rev. Fr. Campbell, with music by the juvenile choir. Children's mass at 9.30 A. M., celebrated by Fr. Wallace of Lewiston, Me. High mass at 10.30 A. M., celebrated by Rev. Fr. Cuffe, at which Weber's mass was song. Solemn high vespers at 7.30 P. M., celebrated by Fr. Wallace, with Fr. Campbell as deacon, Fr. Cunningham as sub-deacon and Fr. Cuffe, as master of ceremonies. Buheller's vespers, arranged by Wilcox and Dressler, were sung, the following solos being rendered: Haec Dies, Miss Mary White; Veni Creator and O Salutaris, Mrs. Ita Welsh Donovan. An eloquent sermon on the resurrection was preached by Rev. Henry Barry, of St. Cecilia's church, Boston.

Swedish Lutheran.

The services at the Swedish Lutheran church were quite largely attended. Rev. Mr. Johnston occupied the pulpit and there was special singing by the male and mixed choirs. At the morning service a beautiful solo was rendered by Miss Hultmark of Boston.

Calvary Baptist, South Quincy.

At the Calvary Baptist church Rev. C. A. Parker preached from Mark 16: 6, "And he saith unto them, Be not afrighted; We seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified; he is risen; he is not here; behold the place where they laid him."

They are cheery words to sad hearts, the announcement of Christ's resurrection was positive and certain and was sustained by a view of the empty tomb. We have to consider here first the resurrection of Christ as announced by the angel. It was made known to those who were fluctuating between hope and despair, and gave them confident joy. So may the fact of his resurrection come to timid doubting ones today, and give them Christian joy. Secondly, the evidence of Christ's resurrection given in this scripture, the evidence coming from the angel's simple statement, "He is risen." The angel coming commissioned from God's throne spoke with authority. Then there was the evidence of sight, the tomb was empty. As the sepulchre had been secured by seal and sentinel he could only come forth by his own power. Closely examined this two fold evidence of word and sight as to Christ's resurrection comes clearly to view in these times.

Washington Street Congregational.

At the Washington Street Congregational church, Easter was observed in an appropriate manner. There was special Easter music by the choir, and the pastor, Rev. Herbert Youtz, preached a touching sermon from Job 14:14,—"If a man die, shall he live again?"

The altar was prettily decorated with Easter lilies and other potted plants, and considering the weather there was a large congregation. The programme was as follows:

Doxology
Invocation	Pastor
Responsive reading
Anthem, "Hallelujah! Christ is Risen"	Simper

Methodist Episcopal, West Quincy.

At the West Quincy Methodist church Sunday morning, the pastor preached upon the text "The time of the singing of birds has come"; Canticles 2:12.

The music of the morning service was appropriate and well rendered, the selections being:

The True Easter,	Excell
Christ Arose,	Lowry
Anthem, The Saviour Hath Arisen,	E. H. Bailey, op. 81

In the evening the Sunday School gave a concert service entitled "The Lighthouse." The Lighthouse was a structure about fifteen feet in height, especially prepared for this service. The program was as follows:

ROBBER IN HER BED.

Plucky Bridgeport Girl Overcame An Unwelcome Midnight Intruder.

BRIDGEPORT, April 15.—At about 2 o'clock yesterday morning Mamie James, a 16-year-old girl, discovered a man lying on the bed beside her. She leaped from the bed and arming herself with an iron coal shovel attacked the intruder. In the fight the man received a broken nose and several severe cuts on the head.

The police arrived in time to arrest him. At the station he gave the name of William Riley, and claimed not to know how he came in the house. Entrance was effected through a window, and he was held on charge of burglary.

Contributing Much to History.

ATHENS, April 15.—The excavations of the American school of archæology at Heraion and Argos have been resumed, giving employment to 250 workmen. The excavations will be completed this year. They rival the objects found in the French excavations at Delphi in magnitude and importance, and represent all the periods of Greek life, from the pre-historic to the Roman, and give specimens of the sculpture and architecture of the Periclean age. They have already produced more material for the history of the earliest ceramic art than was discovered in any previous excavations.

Vindicating His Honor.

BERLIN, April 15.—Herr von Kotze, whose acquittal by a military court on the charges of writing anonymous and insulting letters to the highest court personages has been confirmed by Emperor William, has not allowed the matter to rest there. He has determined to entirely vindicate his honor, and he has already sent three challenges, and the first duel came off Saturday with Baron von Reischach, the court chamberlain. Pistols were the weapons used, and Von Kotze received a bullet in the hip.

Another Battle In Cuba.

HAVANA, April 15.—In an engagement between government forces and insurgents near Palmarito, insurgent Brigadier General Crombet, it is said, was killed. One colonel, Major Fostier and Thomas Sainz, secretary of Major General Maceo, were taken prisoners by the government forces. One lieutenant was wounded. Jorge Estrada surrendered the men belonging to General Maceo's expedition.

Double Murder and Suicide.

CLEVELAND, April 15.—John Zjhar, a Bohemian, aged 28, shot and instantly killed Carl Richter, aged 35, and fatally wounded Albert Richter, aged 22, the brother of his first victim. Two hours later the murderer was found dead in a cell at the central police station, where he had been taken. The police say that Zjhar was jealous of the attentions which Carl Richter had paid his wife.

Shippers Will Appreciate It.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., April 15.—The Big Four railway has arranged with the Lake Superior and Lake Michigan Transportation company for a regular line of large freight boats between this port and Duluth. This will make a new through line between the seaboard and the northwest.

Bridge Jumper Drowned.

NEW YORK, April 15.—James Duffy announced on Saturday afternoon that he was about to jump from the Brooklyn bridge at its highest point. A small and half incredulous crowd accompanied Duffy half way across the bridge and saw him make the jump. Duffy never came up.

Goes to Parliaments.

OTTAWA, April 15.—The conferences between the Newfoundland delegates and the committee of the privy council have been concluded. The result of the conferences will have to be submitted to the Dominion and Newfoundland parliaments before being made public.

Circus Train In a Smashup.

CHICAGO, April 15.—Hall's circus train was in collision with a freight train while the circus train was being switched in the yards of the Chicago and Northwestern railway. Several cars were badly smashed, and Mrs. Hall was seriously injured.

City Council tonight.

The Quincy & Boston street railway is rebuilding its line to Neponset.

Several dances are announced for tonight in different parts of the city.

It is predicted that the appropriation order will not pass without some opposition on certain items.

It was thirty-four years ago today that President Lincoln issued his famous call for seventy-five thousand troops.

The neighborhood prayer meeting will be held on Tuesday evening at Mr. George F. Pinkham's, Grand View avenue, Wollaston.

A large number of men under Commissioner Eaton are at work in different parts of the city scraping the mud from the streets.

The Street Railway company will be given a hearing this evening by the City Council on the extensions to Braintree and Milton.

Although it was stormy Sunday quite a number took advantage of the cars running to Houghs Neck to take a look at their summer cottages.

The last meeting of the Elliot club, Wollaston, for the season will be held on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. W. E. Simmons.

Very amusing and unique invitations to a "Povertie Partie" to be held on Friday, April 19, at the Wollaston Baptist church have been received.

Commodore Pettengill, of the Quincy Yacht club, attended the banquet of the South Boston club on Saturday evening at the United States Hotel.

The Granite Manufacturers' Association through Marshall P. Wright, treasurer, have sent their check for $300 to the City Hospital, being their yearly contribution in support of a free bed.

It is said the work of pruning the trees in the Hancock street cemetery was stopped because some members of the board of managers discovered Mr. Bennett was not a Democrat.

The box at the post office for literature for the City Hospital has been running over for over a week now. Perhaps some patient might have been brightened up with some of the contents if they had had them to read.

Mrs. James H. Stetson has arranged a fine concert for Wednesday evening in the Unitarian Chapel. The proceeds to be used for the benefit of the Church. The singers taking part are advertised in another column.

Miss Prescott at the PATRIOT Office, a member of the N. E. Woman's Press association, has a few choice tickets for sale for "Longfellow's Dreams," which is to be presented by the Club at the Hollis Street theatre, Thursday afternoon, April 25.

On account of the storm which caused the absence of so many of the children who had promenent parts in the Easter concert announced for Sunday afternoon by the Sunday School of the Park and Downs Union Society, it was necessary to postpone the concert till next Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, at the hall at Norfolk Downs.

Granite chips tomorrow.

The Dudley Association Cycle club will make a run to Quincy Point next Sunday.

The Be Game Pleasure club will hold a dance in Hancock hall tonight.

The schools opened their spring term this morning.

Rev. C. T. Douglas of Brockton has purchased a house lot at Houghs Neck.

Sunday was not much of a day for the ladies to display their new Easter bonnets and hats.

Mount Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows have added to their rooms a splendid upright McPhail piano.

The Adams academy ball nine will play two games at Merrymount park this week, Wednesday and Friday.

The reported engagement of Miss Josephine Hayden and Mr. Peter Turner is denied by the interested parties.

The Commonwealth Cycle Club was to make a run to Quincy Sunday, but it was not much of a day for bicycling.

A convention of the Y. P. S. C. E. will be held in the Centre Congregational church Friday afternoon and evening.

The Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society will meet on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock with Mrs. Josiah Sparrow, Wollaston.

The highest score which has yet been made on the Duck's Nest alleys was the one put up on Saturday afternoon by Mr. Elbert H. Brock,—246.

It is said that the residents of South Walnut street are to petition the City Council for a ferry boat as the water in some places is very deep.

At an Easter "at home" given by Mrs. H. E. Burns, Saturday afternoon, the engagement of her daughter, Miss Bessie Lincoln Burns, to Mr. John Otis Hall, Jr., was announced.

Steward Williams of the Duck's Nest has offered a silver cup, to be known as the Patriot's cup, to be bowled for on next Friday for the highest three string total on that day. Open to all comers.

On Thursday evening the Ladies' Social Union hold a Birthday Sociable in the M. E. church vestry at West Quincy. Cake and cocoa will be served and a short entertainment. All are invited.

Closing Hymn.

At Wollaston.

The heavy rain greatly diminished the attendance at the Wollaston churches, it being but slightly in excess of that of other Sundays. The decorations at all of the churches were beautiful, consisting chiefly of lilies and roses. The pastor preached appropriate sermons and the music was well rendered.

The music at the Wollaston Baptist church on Easter was especially good. The choir had the assistance of Mr. S. P. Moorehouse, violinist, in the morning, and Mr. Chas. B. Dickey, cornetist, and Miss Edith Olney, violinist, in the evening.

Mr. Charles B. Dickey's solo, Easter Evening, was beautifully rendered. Mr. Dickey is a thorough musician and his songs will be greatly missed upon his removal from town.

A Woman Commissioner.

Miss Emerson of San Francisco was appointed commissioner of the United States court of land claims a few days ago. The position is to some extent judicial. Commissioner Emerson will take testimony as an examining officer and will decide whether the statements made before her are relevant, competent and material or the opposite. Miss Emerson's appointment came about in this way: When Attorney Thomas Ball of Virginia was in California last summer, Miss Emerson proved herself a very valuable assistant to him in his investigations under the Indian depredation act. Together they made a tour of inquiry from Eureka to Los Angeles, and when Mr. Ball returned to Washington he carried with him a high opinion of Miss Emerson's abilities.

Exceptions Prove the Rule.

It does not exactly accord with our preconceived ideas of English earls to learn that a gentleman who has for some years earned an honest living as a bookkeeper in Toronto has been identified as the heir of the Scottish earldoms of Strathern, Monteith and Airth. It is of course possible that he may be a genuine nobleman, but he has not consorted with prizefighters, he has not married a skirt dancer or a money chest, and he seems to be wholly unconscious of what is expected of a hereditary legislator of Great Britain.—New York World.

Came Out With Colors Flying.

When Uncle Sam touched the pockets of the Jamaican Britishers by refusing to buy their coal at an exorbitant price, he went into an international complication and came out of it with full colors.—Philadelphia Press.

Both Are Right.

It is not likely there will be any Riel fighting in Manitoba this time.—Chicago Tribune.

There is a prospect of a real rebellion in Manitoba this time.—Chicago Post.

Characteristic Friendliness.

A Chicago woman acted as bridesmaid at the second marriage of her divorced husband. The most charming characteristic of the Chicagoan is friendliness.—Buffalo Express.

Bismarck's Finest Title.

"Uncle," as applied by Emperor William's amiable spouse, is one of the most royal titles that Bismarck has ever worn.—New York Telegram.

Not the Right Grip.

Governor McKinley has the grip, but it is not the kind he wants.—Galvestor News.

A Hint.

The Ailsa knows her business.—New York Tribune.

An Important Step.

CLEVELAND, April 15.—Ætna lodge of the National Union of Iron and Steel Workers has surrendered its charter and reorganized as a lodge of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers. This step marks the beginning of the dissolution of the Finishers' union, which was an offshoot of the Amalgamated association, and its organization greatly weakened that great association.

Narrowly Escaped Lynching.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 15.—In a drunken brawl among Hungarians in the village of Maltby, Mrs. Tonish, a boarding-house keeper, was fatally stabbed, and her husband received nine knife wounds in the body. George Line committed the crime. Had it not been for the interference of a number of citizens he would have been lynched by his countrymen.

Sixth Body Recovered.

WHEELING, April 15.—Men at work in the ruins of the Main street building which fell last Tuesday came upon the body of M. T. Horan yesterday. He was horribly burned from head to foot. Work on the ruins has been suspended since Horan's body was recovered, he being the last of the six who are known to have been killed.

Mob After Hamilton's Murderers.

MORGANTOWN, Ky., April 15.—Spencer and Belcher, the murderers of Major Hamilton, who helped to plan the escape of Union officers from Libby prison, were taken to Louisville for safe keeping. The sheriff got notice that a mob of 100 men had formed for the purpose of lynching the prisoners.

Zimmy Takes a Bride.

TROY, N. Y., April 15.—Arthur A. Zimmerman, the bicyclist, was married in this city last night to Miss Grace Riley. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Walsh of St. Peter's. Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman left for a southern tour, preliminary to a trip to Europe.

A Millionaire Husband.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Elizabeth Cochrane, better known as "Nellie Bly," confirms the report that she was married to Robert Seaman, a millionaire several times over. Mr. Seaman is nearly 70 years of age.

Crack Wheelmen Matched.

NEW YORK, April 15.—An agreement was signed yesterday for a series of races between the two crack wheelmen, Johnson and Sanger, that will settle between them the question of the championship.

A Mother's Horrible Crime.

RALEIGH, April 15.—In Pamlico county a colored mother put her infant child in the fire place on the hot coals and put the oven lid on it to hold it down. The woman is now in jail.

Steamer Ran Ashore.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Steamer Continental struck a rock yesterday on the southeast point of Ward's island. No one on board was injured and the steamer was not badly damaged.

Komatsu Starts For China.

HIROSHIMA, April 15.—Prince Komatsu, escorted by three men-of-war, sailed yesterday for Shimonoseki, whence he will proceed to take command of the Japanese troops in China.

Custom House Figures.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The imports at this port last week were: Gold, $218,389; silver, $14,397; dry goods, $3,134,187; general merchandise, $7,817,794.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds. SIMS BROS., Leeds, Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds, croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

In Jewish marriages the woman is always placed to the right of her mate. With every other nation of the world her place in the ceremony is to the left.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

Don't Go.

When she sighs and answers "No,"
Wait a bit and do not leave her.
Who shall say she bids you go
When she sighs and answers "No"
In a voice that's soft and low?
Ask again—it will not grieve her,
When she sighs and answers "No,"
Wait a bit and do not leave her.
—Kate Field's Washington.

A Good Match.

Old Lady—Then you are not married?

Modern Miss—No, indeed. I am one of the bachelor girls you hear about so much nowadays—have a profession, rooms of my own, and dine at the club, you know.

Old Lady—Ah, I see! You must let me introduce you to my dear son, who lives with me. He is one of the old maid men, you know.—New York Weekly.

A Triumph of Genius.

"Mamie has stolen a march on all us girls," said Mabel angrily.

"Why, what's she done?" inquired one of Mabel's sweet friends.

"She sent a 25 pound sack of flour to her modiste," said Mabel, with growing anger, "and had it used as a design for the sleeves of her new gown."—Chicago Record.

The Poem of Part of a Week.

Of an old and noble foreign house
He was the eldest Sun;
She, just a plain American,
But then she had the Mon.
"Love, why should we longer Tue?"
One eve he softly said.
She saw no reason why they should,
And next week they were Wed.
—Indianapolis Journal.

Wanted Him In the Game.

Daughter—Papa, please put a sign on the front door, "No admittance except on business."

Father—Why, my darling?

Daughter—I am beginning to have that tired feeling when Tom comes around here, and I want him to take a hand or get out of the game.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A "Lord of Creation."

A henpecked husband called the servant maid aside and said:

"Look here, Robustina, I am told that my wife and daughter are planning a trip to the continent. Do you know whether I am going with them or not?"—Tit-Bits.

Spoiled Those Balloon Sleeves.

She is given to frown
As she journeys to town.
O'er the crush she with good reason grieves,
Since her limited space
Well may cause a grimace,
For destroyed is the spread of her sleeves.
—New York Press.

His Modest Request.

Judge (at the assizes)—Have you anything further to say?

Prisoner—I should only like to ask that the time occupied by counsel's speech for the defense be deducted from my term of imprisonment.—Il Popolo Romano.

Without Pain.

Mrs. Homer—It pains me to spank my children.

Mrs. Roamer—Me too. I always turn them over to my husband. His hands are harder.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Thank Heaven For This Relief.

Bored, wearied to the edge of grief
With all the bridal time commotion,
We draw a long breath of relief—
The Castellanes have crossed the ocean.
—Boston Courier.

He Knew.

"Name 12 animals of the polar regions," said the professor, and the despairing student wrote:

"Six seals and six polar bears."—Youth's Companion.

They Can Talk Anyhow.

Now that a prizefighter's grandson is to be made speaker of the house of commons Sullivan, Corbett et al. will be more unendurable than they have been, as they will have visions of the presidential chair, or at least a chance in the next heavyweight cabinet.—Philadelphia Press.

There Is Yet Time.

Prince Bismarck, in a recent interview with an American, made the remark that one of his greatest regrets was that he had never visited the United States. This regret is fully reciprocated by the American people.—New York Mail and Express.

CLEVELAND'S KEYNOTE

Of the Campaign About to Be Waged Against Free Silver.

Explicitly States His Position In the Matter.

Advocates Plain and Simple Presentations of Sound Money Argument.

CHICAGO, April 19.—One hundred of the most prominent citizens of Chicago, both Democrats and Republicans, on April 6 sent an invitation to the president to attend a public reception here to himself and Mrs. Cleveland, stating that they were anxious to express their deep appreciation of his statesmanlike and courageous action in maintaining the financial credit of the nation and his attitude in favor of the preservation of sound national currency. President Cleveland yesterday sent the following reply:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, April 13.

GENTLEMEN—I am much gratified by the exceedingly kind and complimentary invitation you have tendered me, on behalf of many citizens of Chicago, to be their guest at the gathering in the interest of sound money and wholesome financial doctrine.

My attachment to this cause is so great, and I know so well the hospitality and kindness of the people of Chicago, that my personal inclination is strongly in favor of accepting your flattering invitation; but my judgment and my estimation of the proprieties of my official place obliges me to forego the enjoyment of participating in the occasion you contemplate.

I hope, however, the event will mark the beginning of an earnest and aggressive effort to disseminate among the people safe and prudent financial ideas. Nothing more important can engage the attention of patriotic citizens, because nothing is so vital to the welfare of our country, and to the strength, prosperity and Honor of Our Nation.

The situation confronting us demands that those who appreciate the importance of this subject and those who ought be the first to see impending danger should no longer remain indifferent or over-confident.

If the sound money sentiment abroad in the land is to save us from mischief and disaster, it must be crystallized and combined and made immediately active. It is dangerous to overlook the fact that a vast number of our people with scant opportunities thus far to examine the question in all its aspects have nevertheless been ingeniously pressed with specious suggestions, which in this time of misfortune and depression find willing listeners prepared to give credence to any scheme which is plausibly presented as a remedy for their unfortunate condition.

What is now needed more than anything else is a plain and simple presentation of the argument in favor of sound money. In other words, it is time for the American people to reason together which can promise them continuance of protection and safety only so long as its solvency is unsuspected, its honor unsullied and the soundness of its money unquestioned. These things are ill-exchanged for the illusions of a debased currency and groundless hope of advantages to be gained by a disregard of our financial credit and commercial standing among the nations of the world.

If our people were isolated from all others, and if the question of our currency could be treated without regard to our relations to other countries, its character would be a matter of comparatively little importance. If the American people were only concerned in the maintenance of their physical life, among themselves, they might return to the old days of barter, and in this primitive manner acquire from each other the materials to supply the wants of their existence. But if American civilization was satisfied with this it would abjectly

Fall In Its High and Noble Mission.

In these restless days the farmer is tempted by the assurance that if our currency may be debased, redundant and uncertain, such a situation will improve the price of his products. Let us remind him that he must buy as well as sell; that his dreams of plenty are shaded by the certainty that if the price of the things he has to sell are nominally enhanced, the cost of things he must buy will not remain stationary; that the better prices which cheap money proclaims are unsubstantial and elusive, and that even if they were real and palpable he must necessarily be left far behind in the race for their enjoyment.

It ought not be difficult to convince the wage-earner that if there were benefits arising from a degenerated currency, they would reach him least of all and last of all. In an unhealthy stimulation of prices, an increased cost of all the needs of his home must long be his portion, while he is at the same time vexed with vanishing visions of increased wages and an easier lot. The pages of history and experiences

Are Full of This Lesson.

An insidious attempt is made to create a prejudice against the advocates of a safe and sound currency by the insinuation, more or less directly made, that they belong to financial and business classes, and are, therefore, not only out of sympathy with the common people of the land, but for selfish and wicked purposes are willing to sacrifice the interests of those outside their circle.

I believe that capital and wealth, through combination and other means, sometimes gain an undue advantage, and it must be conceded that the maintenance of a sound currency may, in a sense, be invested with a greater or less importance to individuals according to their condition and circumstances. It is, however, only a difference in degree, since it is utterly impossible that any one in our broad land, rich or poor, whatever may be his occupation, and whether dwelling in a center of finance and commerce, or in a remote corner of our domain, can be really benefitted by a finance scheme, not alike beneficial to all our people, or that from a common and commercial interest in the character and stable value of the currency of the country.

In our relation to this question, we are all in business, for we all buy and sell; so we all have to do with financial operations, for we all earn money and spend it. We cannot escape our interdependence. Merchants and dealers are in every neighborhood and each has its shops and manufactories. Wherever the wants of man exist, business and finance in some degree are found, related in one direction to those whose wants they supply and in another to the more extensive business and finance to which they are tributary.

A fluctuation in prices at the seaboard is known the same as in the remotest hamlet. The discredit or depreciation in the financial centers of any forms of money in the hands of the people is a signal of immediate loss everywhere. If reckless descent and wild experiment should sweep our currency from its safe support, the most defenseless of all who suffer in the time of distress and national discredit will be the poor, as they reckon the loss in their scanty support and the laborer or workingman as he sees the money he has received from his toil shrink and shrivel in his hand when he tenders it for the necessaries to supply his humble home. Disguise as we may, the line of battle is drawn between the forces of safe currency and those of silver mono-metallism.

I will not believe that if our people are afforded an intelligent opportunity for sober second thought they will sanction schemes that, however cloaked, mean disaster and confusion, nor that they will consent, by undermining the foundation of a safe currency, to endanger the beneficent character and purposes of their government.

Yours, very truly,

forms of Consumption can be cured. You have been told otherwise? Yes; so have others. But facts disprove the statement. This is not an age of impossibilities. Scientists have discovered the cause of Consumption, and how it can be prevented and cured. It is a contagious disease, and it is caused by a germ. It can be cured by destroying the germ.

does this. It is a scientific compound of Cod Liver Oil, Ozone and Guaiacol. It is unlike any other preparation of Cod Liver Oil, because it contains Ozone and Guaiacol, the destroyers of germ life. That is why it cures consumption and all wasting diseases. It does not treat symptoms, but strikes at the cause—the poisonous germs. It kills them first and then builds up the wasted tissues. The Cod Liver Oil does the building—that's all. It can't destroy the germs; Ozone and Guaiacol do that. All the Cod Liver Oil in the world couldn't kill a germ. He would simply live on it—and grow fat. Ozomulsion cures because it first destroys the cause of disease and then restores the wasted body to a healthy condition. It is not an experiment. Thousands of people attest its value. Good results are always proof of merit. It is

EDITOR SCOTT DEAD.

Old Newspaper Man Who Was One of the World's Fair Organizers.

NEW YORK, April 15.—James W. Scott, proprietor of the Chicago Times-Herald and the Chicago Evening Post, died at 3 p. m. yesterday at the Holland House, this city. He was taken with pains in the left side in the morning, and a doctor said the pain arose from the passage of a stone from the bladder and administered morphine. At 1 o'clock Mr. Scott became unconscious and the doctor was summoned again. He found that apoplexy had supervened, probably brought on from the pain, and Mr. Scott died without recovering consciousness. Mrs. Scott and a little niece were the only relatives with him.

JAMES W. SCOTT.

James W. Scott was born in Walworth county, Wisconsin, in June, 1849. After engaging in several newspaper ventures he, in 1881, united with others in forming the Chicago Herald. Some time ago he bought a controlling interest in The Herald and recently purchased the Chicago Times and amalgamated it with The Herald under the name of The Times-Herald.

In 1890, in conjunction with John R. Walsh, Mr. Scott founded the Chicago Evening Post, which was a success from its first issue. Mr. Scott was president of the United Press for six years, and was thrice elected president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association.

He was one of the originators and organizers of the World's Columbian exposition and was one of its directors, a member of the executive committee and chairman of the committee on printing. He was offered the presidency of the local board of directors, but refused it, because of the stress of his private business.

A Barcelona Incident.

BARCELONA, April 15.—In the course of a bull fight here yesterday the enraged bull jumped over the barriers and among the spectators. A wild rush was at once made for the exits, and in the stampede many persons were injured. Employes of the bull ring could not capture the bull, and finally a civil guard fired at him with his carbine, killing the animal and one of the spectators. The spectators then hurried back to their seats and the entertainment proceeded as though nothing out of the ordinary had happened.

Aged Ex-Judge Dead.

GREENFIELD, Mass., April 15.—Ex-Judge David Aiken, 95, died Saturday night, after a week's illness, of pneumonia. He was one of the most prominent members of the Franklin county bar, though he retired from active business life several years ago.

Done In Self-Defense.

ANSONIA, Conn., April 15.—Frank Branch, the 14-year-old boy who killed Hermon Hettick by throwing a stone, was acquitted. The defense was that Hettick began the quarrel and the stone was thrown in self-defense.

Shoe Failure at Lynn.

LYNN, April 15.—C. W. Varney & Co., shoe manufacturers, have made an assignment. The assets and liabilities are not known at present. The firm has been in business 24 years, and at present employ about 150 hands.

The Wiggins' Wonderful Baby.

LYNN, April 15.—Mrs. G. R. Wiggins residing in West Lynn, gave birth to a baby with two well-developed front teeth. It is the second affair of the kind that has happened in Mr. Wiggins' family.

Farmer Avery Missing.

FITCHBURG, April 15.—Granville Avery, a farmer and milkman of this city, has been missing since Friday noon, when he had considerable money on his person. Foul play is feared.

Dangerous Fooling With a Gun.

WAKEFIELD, Mass., April 15.—George Gammons, 12 years old, accidentally shot Newman Feberguest, aged 12, while playing with a rifle. The injured boy cannot live.

Cylinder Head Blew Off.

AMESBURY, April 15. — The 450-horse-power engine in No. 4 mill of the Hamilton company was wrecked by the blowing off of a cylinder head.

New England Briefs.

Higher wages are expected in all the Fall River mills.

Martin James, a Dorchester (Boston) child, was fatally burned.

Petitions in favor of the Boston subway are to be presented to the legislature.

Selectmen of Foxcroft, Me., secured bondsmen for the new town treasurer.

The Southern New England Telephone company made a big cut in rates in Connecticut.

The Portland National bank has increased its circulation $45,000, and deposited that sum in new United States 4 per cent bonds.

The Saco Congregational church has invited Rev. Philip H. Moore to continue his pastorate another year, at an increased salary.

News is received of the death at Los Angeles of Frank A. Burnham, formerly of Biddeford, while crossing a railroad track on a bicycle.

A. H. Rice & Co., silk braid manufacturers at Pittsfield, announce that they will at once begin the erection of an addition to their mill.

The infant child of a widow named Chadwick was run over and killed by a herdic in Andover, Mass. No blame attaches to the driver.

Secretary of War Lamont has informed the New Haven city authorities that a drawbridge is necessary in place of the present structure over Quinnipac river on Grand avenue.

Couldn't Celebrate High Mass.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The first service in the new Russian Orthodox church of St. Nicholas took place at midnight Saturday. The pastor and his assistant, both of whom recently arrived from St. Petersburg, brought with them various sacred vessels and altar decorations. These had not passed the custom house Saturday night and as a result only low mass was celebrated.

Murder and Suicide.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Charles D. Janda, 20 years old, shot and killed his sister-in-law, Iannella Janda, 30 years old, at his home yesterday, and then shot himself in the right side of the head. He was taken to Bellevue hospital, where he died last night.

Close to Two Millions.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The police census makes the population of this city 1,888,780, a gain of 87,041 over the state census of 1892. In many of the districts figures are not complete and the population is merely estimated.

GLEN CARBON, Ills., April 15.—The St. Louis Press brick works here were partially destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss is thought to be about $300,000.

Sentenced to Death.

FORT SMITH, Ark., April 15.—Crawford Goldsby, alias Cherokee Bill, was sentenced to be executed June 25 for the murder of Ernest Melton. Bill, who was the most brutal and savage member of the Cook gang, took his sentence stoically and without showing any feeling.

NEW ENGLAND FLOODS

Have Caused Widespread Damage to Property In Many Places.

Bridges In Imminent Danger of Being Wrecked.

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 16. — The Piscataquog river has reached an unprecedented height. Coon bridge, on Second street, is in danger if the boom at Wallace's lumber yard breaks. Craft & Green's shoe shop is flooded, and streets in West Manchester are two feet under water. Many families are moving out in boats.

The Merrimack at Amoskeag Falls is 10½ feet over the dam and still rising. The Cygnet boathouse may be carried away, imperilling the Amoskeag bridge. Mt. McGregor bridge is level with the water. A heavy freight train was hauled upon the North Weare bridge to hold it in place. The steamer General Stark floated from the drydock, but was held by a cable just above the falls. If the railroad bridges at Hooksett give way, other bridges here may go.

No trains from the north are arriving. Filling around the iron bridge at Thornton's Ferry has washed away and the bridge is unsafe. Over 1000 feet of river front above falls also washed away. Word was received that 1,500,000 feet of logs broke away at Lincoln, and an attempt to save them will be made here.

In and Around Saco.

SACO, April 16.—The boom of the Saco lumber company and that of J. F. Fearing & Co., containing 200,000 feet of logs, were swept away last night and many logs in the boom of T. D. Proctor were also lost. A portion of the old Deering mill, on Water street, was washed down the river, and many of the streets in Saco and Biddeford are impassable and several of the bridges are closed.

Flood and Landslide.

CLAREMONT, N. H., April 16. — The Sugar river at this point is the highest since 1869, and the Connecticut is the highest within 30 years. Ascutneyville bridge is in great danger of being carried away. The railroads are under water in many places. A bad landslide has occurred on the Concord and Claremont railroad, and reports of great danger come from all points in this vicinity.

Farms Under Water.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., April 16.—The country for miles around is one vast waste of water, and many farms and homesteads in this section are either partially or wholly flooded. Several villagers are using boats and ill-provised rafts as a means of moving about. Much damage has been done to bridges and washouts have occurred in many places on both railroads and highways.

Caskets Floated Off.

BRISTOL, Vt., April 16. — Forty-eight hours' rain has raised the river to almost unprecedented height, and the damage to roads, bridges and mill property will reach thousands of dollars. About 40 feet of the foundation of the Bristol Manufacturing company's four story building was washed out, letting over 100 caskets into the stream, and they were carried away.

The Raging Androscoggin.

JAY, Me., April 16.—The Androscoggin is the highest in years. About 40 feet of an immense stone wall on the island have been carried away, and also the bridge built a few years ago. Hundreds of dollars worth of logs have gone down with the freshet. The bridge over Seven Mile brook has been swept away.

Records Broken.

BRADFORD, Vt., April 16.—Not since 1876 has the Connecticut river been as high as yesterday. The tracks of the Passumpsic division, Boston and Maine railroad, is under water for two miles. Wait's river was never known to be as high before. Much damage has been done to mill property.

Concord Crippled.

CONCORD, N. H., April 16.—Rivers north of here are receding. The Concord and Claremont road is the only railroad outlet from the city. A house occupied by Mr. Quimby has been swept away and others are threatened. The water is 13½ inches higher than ever recorded before.

Wreckage From Up the River.

LAWRENCE, April 16.—A tremendous freshet is raging in the Merrimack at this point. Large sections of a bridge came down the river, presumably from Concord, N. H. Many trees have also been swept over the dam, and several large boats likewise came from above.

Trains Cancelled.

NORTH CONWAY, N. H., April 16.—The heaviest rainfall since 1869 has caused damage here. Bad washouts on the Maine Central caused all trains to be cancelled. A heavy landslide at Zealand also did great damage. Eastman's sugar camp was carried away.

No Communication With Big Cities.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., April 16.—High water did little damage here, aside from washing out the railroads so that communication with Boston and New York has been cut off since Saturday night. No mails have arrived.

May Carry Away Bridges.

HANOVER, N. H., April 15.—Over 2,000,000 feet of logs are reported coming down the river from McIndoe's Falls, Vt., and it is feared that they will carry away the bridges here and at White River Junction.

Bridge Reported Gone.

NASHUA, April 16.—It is reported here that the Souhegan river bridge at Thornton's ferry is gone, but the report cannot be confirmed, as wires are all down. The Jackson company reports 200 looms under water.

Logs Lost.

CANTON, Me., April 16.—Great damage has been done here by the storm. The middle span of the bridge over the Androscoggin has been carried away and thousands of feet of logs lost.

Seventy-Hour Storm.

RANGELEY, Me., April 16.—It has rained and snowed here continuously for 70 hours. Great damage is reported. The ice will leave the lakes a week earlier than was expected.

Lowell's Dose.

LOWELL, April 16.—The damage and inconvenience from the flood seriously threatens the city. The water has crossed Pawtucket street on the south side, the height reached in 1872. The land at Pickering's mill is submerged. The boulevard on the north side is 18 inches under water. One portion of the Lowell and Suburban railway tracks at Dracut is under water and has been abandoned, passengers being transferred by barges.

Boom Gave Way.

BERLIN, N. H., April 16.—The Berlin Mills company's boom here broke and some 500,000 feet of spruce logs were carried down the river.

Biggest Since '87.

GARDINER, Me., April 16.—The Kennebec river has risen rapidly here. Many store cellars are flooded. This is the greatest rise since 1887.

Lucky Laconia.

LACONIA, N. H., April 16.—The storm did little damage here. Washouts have made travel on railroads impossible.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 16.—The Boston subway received a blow in the legislature yesterday when the house voted, 98 to 72, to order to a third reading the bill repealing the law relative to the construction of subways in the city of Boston. The entire day was spent in debating the bill. The committee appointed to examine the Bulfinch front of the state house reported that it would not be necessary, in the interest of public safety, to tear down the historic pile. The foundation and outside walls are strong, but the interior is shaky and needs remodeling. The commission recomends an appropriation of $375,000 to provide for a fire-proof interior and a general overhauling of the old structure. The senate killed the bill imposing a fine of $20 on any policeman who failed to read the law to every drunken person when arrested. The senate concurred with the house in the amendment to the Sunday observance bill. The committee on judiciary has reported adversely on the bill to prohibit the use of high hats in theaters.

Gilbert Waives Examination.

BOSTON, April 16.—Interest in the Savin Hill tragedy yesterday centered in the arraignment of Gilbert in the Dorchester municipal court. Gilbert was brought into the pen, escorted by Officers Perkins and Smith. His hair was carefully brushed and he looked neater and more composed and a trifle more intelligent than he appeared Sunday night. Justice Churchill was on the bench. The complaint charged the prisoner with the murder of Alice Sterling by hitting her on the head with an ax or some other sharp instrument, which crushed her skull and thereby caused her death. Hardly had the clerk finished his reading when the voice of the prisoner rang out in a sharp, quick tone: "I waive examination." There was no evidence presented, and nobody was put on the stand. He was bound over for appearance before the superior criminal court, which convenes the first Monday in May.

Will Try to Unravel the Snarl.

PORTSMOUTH, April 16.—Judge Wallace of the supreme court has agreed to give a hearing on the rival police situation at the close of the jury trials of the present session. Judge Emery has filed a bill in equity asking the court to restrain the city from paying the old force and also compelling the city government to turn over the police headquarters to the new commissioners. The members of the old force received their salaries as usual yesterday.

Swindling Commission "Merchant" Captured.

BOSTON, April 16.—George F. Cole, who is now at police headquarters charged with obtaining goods by false pretenses, has for the past three years flooded the New England states with letter heads proclaiming that he was a fruit commission merchant in this city. His latest victims were Messrs. B. Buckingham & Sons of Drownville, R. I., who sent Cole oysters to be sold on commission.

Schooners In Collision.

PORTSMOUTH, April 16.—Schooner O. D. Witherell collided with the schooner Charles Lawrence during a heavy blow in the lower harbor yesterday, inflicting considerable damage upon the latter. The Lawrence will be compelled to make repairs before leaving port.

To Consider Wage Scale.

FALL RIVER, April 16.—A call has been issued for a meeting of the Cotton Manufacturers' association this afternoon to consider the feasibility of a restoration of wages. It is the general opinion that a restoration of 10 per cent will be voted by the association.

New England Briefs.

Charles M. Bacheller & Co., dealers in soles and leather in Lynn, made an assignment.

John McDougall, arrested on the charge of setting fires to buildings at Malden, confessed.

Oscar Hyerde, aged 25 years, dropped dead at Cambridge. Apoplexy was the cause of death.

A Lynn woman secured the arrest of her husband because she heard that he was attempting to abduct her daughter.

James Maiden of New Boston, Mass., was found at the Winsted House, Winsted, Conn., nearly asphyxiated. His family lives in Waterbury.

Active preparations are in progress for the resumption of work on Boston's great water basin at Southboro, and labor on the great dam will begin again the present week.

A meeting of the New England Tobacco Growers' association was held at Hartford. It was reported that 450 shares of $25 each of the 1000 required to raise the reduced capital of $25,000 had been subscribed for.

THE SILVERITES' SIDE

Bimetallists Take Exceptions to the Letter of President Cleveland.

More Points For Wageearners to Consider.

How Silver Men Would Sustain the Credit of Our Great Nation.

CHICAGO, April 16.—President Cleveland's recent letter to the Chicago business men has brought forth the following communication from the Bimetallic league:

"In reply to your letter addressed to a committee of business men of this city, we wish to say that the committee that waited on you and the persons who attached their names to the petition such committee presented did not represent a majority of the business men and citizens of this city, who take a deep interest in the welfare of this republic. They represented that class that owns money and securities payable in money—fixed incomes.

"We respectfully submit that your letter does not present the true merits of this controversy. With prices coming down regularly and steadily, since the demonetization of silver, our merchants, manufacturers and the people generally have been doing business on a falling plane. This shrinkage in values, added to the ordinary risk and expense of business, has led to an ever-increasing volume of debt—to a money lending period, until it has increased all debts, public and private, to about $40,000,000,000,000, or about two-thirds of the total value of all the property in the United States.

"Money and those debts payable in money have been steadily increasing in exchangeable value with the property of the people. A debt for $1000, that 1000 bushels of wheat would have paid 10 years ago, now requires the farmer to give up 2000 bushels of wheat in exchange for these dollars with which to pay the same debt. The debts now in existence are principally old debts or renewed debts, or new debts contracted to pay old debts, or debts the people have been forced to contract by reason of the

"The owners of the products must now give up twice as much property to pay their taxes as in 1873. Seventeen thousand bushels of wheat would have paid the president's salary of $25,000 in 1873, and it now requires 100,000 bushels of wheat to pay your annual salary of $50,000. We have constantly pointed the people to the ever-increasing interchangable value of the creditor's dollar and to the reason why it was increasing, but the influence of these creditors have dominated your administration, and you insist on such a currency as they have established as a sound currency.

"It means confiscation of the property of the people by the sale of property under mortgages, judgments and executions. It means that fixed incomes will wipe out the interest of stockholders in our railroads and corporations. If it is an injustice to restore prices so that people can exchange their property for a sufficient number of dollars to pay their debts and bring happiness and prosperity to our land again, it was a greater injustice to destroy the value of property and enhance the value of money by demonetization of silver and the establishment of a single gold standard.

"When you call the attention of the farmer and wageearner to the fact that rising prices will make him pay more for what he buys, you should at the same time call his attention to the fact that it will enable him to pay his debts, free him from bondage in which he has been unjustly placed and again make him the owner of a home and a free and independent citizen. We might say further to him that rising prices causes money to seek investment, and would thus open up the channels of commerce and trade and give employment

To Millions Now Idle.

"Our forefathers fled from Europe and established a government here that they might be free from the class legislation of those countries, and yet it is now being seriously insisted upon that we must adopt and continue the most pernicious class legislation that the monarchies of Europe have ever fastened upon their helpless people.

"By adopting their policy we have increased the demand for gold and its exchangeable value, and all money based thereon, with all other property. We have aided then in the adoption of a single metal for primary money that they can control and corner—that they have cornered—and forced you to get their own price, to sustain the credit of this great and resoureeful nation. We submit that this policy should be abandoned, and our mints again thrown oped to silver (as they are now to gold) and our stock of primary money increased thereby.

"We agree with you that it is time for the people to reason together, and to that end we respectfully ask that you make it possible for men to get printed copies of the act of 1792, on which our forefathers based our financial system, and all subsequent acts, to that of 1873 that reversed the former policy, as well as all the statistical and other information of an equal nature that bears thereon. We but express your own opinion as president of the people when we say that all the people should have the opportunity to investigate and intelligently pass upon this question."

Found Dead by Her Mother.

SOMERVILLE, April 16.—Mrs. Ida Harmon was found dead yesterday afternoon at the home of her mother, Mrs. Abbie Towne, with her face submerged in six inches of water. According to medical opinion, Mrs. Harmon deliberately committed suicide. The mother is inclined to the belief that death was caused by an accident.

Parkhurst at Boston.

BOSTON, April 16.—Rev. Dr. Parkhurst of New York made an address in Music hall last night under the auspices of the Boston Congregational club. He paid his respects to Tammany and the New York police, and gave a detailed account of the reform campaign and how it led to the triumph of the reform candidates.

Brussels Carpets.

Our Spring stock is particularly strong in Brussels, of self-colored designs, or two or three tones of colorings, with border to match. The same may be said of our assortment of Wiltons, for that matter.

Our line of these goods is unquestionably larger than that of any other Boston or New England dealer — very likely on a par with any house in New York, even.

We have for years made a specialty of exclusive styles, which are owned by us, and cannot be obtained elsewhere.

The present tariff (which only went into full effect Jan. 1) has combined with other causes to greatly lower the prices of all carpets, whether foreign or domestic.

THE City Council as is well known from its organization, is purely a political machine, not that we would have our readers believe it to be a unit in this respect. The powers behind the throne showed their hand too early in the game and we are glad to say, that there is more than a majority of the Republican members who will not bow to the party lash as wielded by the Republican City Committee.—Advertiser.

What a contradictory statement! It must be a small machine or else the Democrats and some Republicans train together, for a majority of the Republicans are not in it, as per the above. If the Republicans were a machine they might have things their own way. It is well as it is, politics should be excluded. If the LEDGER was playing politics it would not strive so hard to help out the administration with a lower tax rate.

Easter at M. E. Church, Wollaston.

Rev. C. W. Wilder took for the text of his morning sermon 1 Cor.; 15:20,—"Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept." He said, The resurrection of Christ is the central truth of the gospel system; all else is grouped around this fact. If he died and remained in the grave like other good men, he can have no more power to save mankind than they. Belief in the resurrection of Christ gave the apostles their power as teachers and ministers. They preached the resurrection in the very place where Jesus died and only fifty days after his death. The Jews never disputed the reality of his death, and never tried to disprove his resurrection. Among the proofs of his resurrection are the facts that he himself foretold it; the testimony of the guard placed at his tomb by the Jews, and the ten recorded appearances of Christ between his resurrection and ascension. To these must be added his subsequent appearances to Stephen, Saul and John. His sending the Holy Spirit as he promised is still another proof. In him we have a living Saviour, who ever makes intercession for us. He lives to "save his people from their sins." His resurrection is the pledge of ours. His resurrection makes ours possible and certain.

In the evening the church was filled to overflowing to listen to the concert by the Sunday School. An orchestra of eight pieces: Mr. Mansfield, clarionette; Mr. McDonald, flute; Mr. Critchley, cornet; Mr. Robinson and Miss Bjorkman, 1st violins; Mr. Ranson and Miss Durgin, 2d violins; and Miss Stiggins, piano, furnished music and accompanied the singing by the school. Dr. A. J. Colgan directed the singing. The whole concert was arranged by Miss Bertha Baker as chairman of the concert committee. Great credit is due her and those who so ably assisted her in making the concert a decided success.

Dance at Hancock Hall.

The Be-Game Pleasure club is the name of an organization of young men who have their headquarters in the old engine house on Hancock street.

Monday evening the club made its first appearance before the public by holding a dance at Hancock hall, where from 8 to 2 o'clock they with their ladies enjoyed themselves to the utmost on the waxen floor of the hall.

Wilson's orchestra furnished music fo the dancers who numbered nearly one hundred couples, who were gratuitously granted the many encores demanded.

The order contained some twenty numbers, each of which was dedicated to some one individual or organization.

Thomas Little was floor director and he was assisted by an efficient corps of aids.

Advertised Letters.

COMPETITIVE PLANS.

The City Council to Try the New Way and Request

ARCHITECTS TO SUBMIT PLANS.

Appropriation Order Advanced—Street Railway Hearing.

The submission by architects of competitive plans for new schoolhouses is something new for Quincy, which in the past has employed an architect to prepare plans. The City Council at its meeting Monday evening decided on this course and the result will be watched with interest.

The absentees at the meeting were Councilmen Johnson and Sidelinger, both of Ward Two.

Appointment.

Mayor Hodges reappointed Lester M. Pratt as Registrar of Voters for three years. Confirmed

An Unpaid Bill.

Auditor Hall reported that a bill of $502.60 had been presented for a fence at Mount Wollaston cemetery, for which there was no money. He suggested that the receipts were large enough to pay it. To Committee on Finance.

In Debt for Water.

City Treasurer Burgin submitted by request a list of unpaid water bills of July 1, and of previous date. President Bass read a part of the list in which the City of Quincy frequently appeared with well-known citizens. Upon motion the reading was suspended and the order referred to committee.

The total amount due by years according to the report is:

In 1888,	$28 26
In 1890,	10.00
In 1891,	102 69
In 1892,	368.85
In 1893,	3,453.13
In 1894,	6,290.09
Total,	$10,253.02

Petitions.

There were several applications for various licenses which were referred to the Committee on Licenses.

E. H. Doble & Co. and others petitioned for the rebuilding of portion of Furnace avenue; and H. F. Doble and others for widening culvert over brook on Furance avenue. Referred.

Beale Street.

The Committee on Finance reported a substitute order for the rebuilding of the westerly end of Beale street, providing that it be done under a six year loan. $2,000 was appropriated, and the order sent to the Mayor.

Street Railway Hearing.

At eight o'clock a public hearing was given on the locations at South and West Quincy asked by the Q. & B. street railway.

President Graham said this road was ready to go on with the work and finish it up for summer travel. It would be a great benefit to business men of Quincy, as it would bring people from Braintree, Holbrook and Milton. The road had the assurance of the selectmen of Milton that they would give them a location in East Milton.

Miss Mabel Adams opposed. Admitted that people at centre would be benefitted, and had no objection to the shopkeepers receiving the benefit, but did not see why people of Franklin street should put up with a nuisance to accommodate the business men when there was another and better way by Presidents avenue.

Peter T. Fallon made one of his lengthy speeches which was in the main against the T rail and in favor of the flat or girder rail.

Mr. Graham said the road intended to put in first class construction and would like a committee of the Council to inspect the different rails used. The comfort of the passengers should be considered. The T rail of a few years ago is not the T rail of today. The road intended to reconstruct its system soon. The rails now in use were put in for the old horse railroad and was a remarkable piece of work.

The hearing closed at 8.25 and the matter was recommitted.

Reports.

The Committee on Finance on a communication from the Auditor in relation to paying for the horse in Ward Two, recommended that the Auditor be instructed to charge the amount $150, the appropriation for horse, harness, etc., for Ward Two.

The same committee reported ought to pass on order authorizing the borrowing of $250,000, in anticipation of taxes. Under suspension of rules the order was passed to be ordained.

The same committee reported ought not to pass an order appropriating $5000 for work for unemployed, as it was not legal. Accepted.

The same committee reported an order appropriating $247.51 from unexpended balances of 1894 to pay bills of that year in excess of the appropriations.

The joint committee on Finance and Water Supply reported a slight amendment to the order appropriating $45,000 for the extension of water mains and the erection of a stand pipe on Third Hill. The amendments were adopted and the order under suspension of the rules, passed to be ordained.

The order granting the N. E. T. & T. Co. permission to reconstruct its line on Hancock, Elm, Howard and Granite streets was passed to be ordained.

The Committee on Ordinances reported properly engrossed on the order appropriating $1,000 for plans for brick, stone and wood school houses, for "The Rail" and Norfolk Downs.

Councilman Shackley hoped order would not pass in its present form and he moved to amend by striking out brick and stone, and making the amount $800 in place of $1000.

Councilman Bryant hoped amendment and order would not pass. He had talked with an architect and he was willing to draw plans in competition and submit them to the Council. He does not ask any money until plans are accepted and appropriation order signed by the Mayor.

Councilman Shackley thought it preposterous to think they could turn the majority of the Council and Mayor. The buildings will not be built of brick this year.

Councilman Sprague understood the present order if passed did not call for expenditure of money until plans were adopted.

Councilman Russell thought the same.

Councilman Bryant said order was for plans and if passed the Commissioner of Public Works would purchase and pay for them.

Councilman Nickerson hoped order would not pass. There was no need to appropriate money for plans. He favored suggestion of Councilman Bryant.

Councilman Adams agreed with member from Ward Five although it was not thought of when order was drawn. It was duty of councilmen to throw aside prejudice and try and reach a satisfactory conclusion.

The Council refused to adopt amendments of Councilman Shackley.

The Council also unanimously refused to pass the order to be ordained.

The Committee on Claims reported an order settling the claim of Cyrus Noble of Atlantic, for damages caused by defect in the streets for $150. Passed to be ordained under suspension of the rules.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass an order authorizing the Mayor to compromise the case of the city vs. bondsmen of I. H. and E. H. Cushing for not less than $5,000. The order took its second reading and was referred to Committee on Ordinances.

Motions, Orders, Etc.

Council Bryant offered an order that the Committee on Public Buildings be instructed to obtain, in competition from different architects, plans for two nine-room school buildings of wood, stone and brick, and report to the Council with their opinion or approval.

Adopted.

Councilman Russell offered an order changing the incandescent light on the corner of Summer and Gay streets to an arc light. To Committee on Lights.

Appropriation Order.

The annual appropriation order was given a second reading. It was then amended by transfering $100 from deepening and widening brooks to inspection, under Board of Health, and referred to Committee on Ordinances.

Squantum Again.

Councilman Adams moved that if there were any persons from Squantum present who desired to be heard that they be given an opportunity.

Mr. Titus then protested against the action of the committee in not giving Squantum a hearing on the project for annexation to Boston.

Councilman Adams moved that a committee of five be appointed, and after some opposition to reopening the matter, the motion prevailed.

President Bass appointed Messrs. Adams, Rinn, Bryant, Shackley and Lamb.

The Council then adjourned for one week.

Christ's Church Annual.

Senior Warden,—J. Francis Hayward.
Junior Warden,—H. H. Bemis.
Treasurer,—Weston W. Osborne.
Clerk,—Walter S. Randall.
Vestrymen,—Zenas S. Arnold, Frank F. Crane, Thomas E. Furnald, Charles F. Hammond, George W. Holden, Frederick L. Jones, Edwin W. Newcomb, Hazen E. Ricker, J. B. Sewall and John E. Sprague.
Delegates to Diocesan Convention,—Zenas S. Arnold, Weston W. Osborne and J. B. Sewall.
Mr. Elisha Packard, for twenty-five years a vestryman and warden, declined a re-election.

The Willard Crowded.

There does not seem to be much doubt but what additional school room is needed at West Quincy as the Willard building is more than crowded having now over 870 pupils. So crowded has the building become that sixty of the seats used in the old High school have been moved to the hall in the upper part of the building and a school opened there.

Sixty-six new pupils entered the lower primary grade Monday. As new pupils have the whole week in which to enter this number may be swelled to seventy-five.

TODAY'S COURT.

Manuel Jason and Joseph M. Rogers of Cohasset were fined $60 each for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors to Asel Knott.

Michael Crowley of Randolph was arraigned for drunkenness. Case continued until April 27.

His Case Critical.

Fred A. Marsh of Quincy, whose suicide was reported Monday, still lingers in a critical condition at the Frost Hospital in Chelsea. Two balls entered his body so near the heart that it is not safe to probe for them.

At the time of the shooting he was at the home of his brother in Chelsea, where he was taken a few days ago. Previous to this he had been confined to the American House about a week by sickness.

Mr. Marsh is 54 years of age, and is a United States guager, a position he has held since President Grant's administration except during the first term of President Cleveland. Thirty years ago he was on the State constabulary under Maj. Jones. He is married and has a home at Quincy.

Firemen's Ball at Braintree.

The Braintree Veteran Firemen's association held its first annual concert and ball last night in the Town hall.

The affair was a splendid success in every way and the veterans, particularly those formerly in the old Butcher Boy Company deserve great credit for their push and skill in arranging the affair.

The chief marshal was Oliver B. Battles, who was assisted by L. W. Thayer, E. F. Porter and J. H. King. Tirrell's orchestra furnished music and the dancing was continued till early this morning.

Quincy Quarry Company.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Having sold my West Quincy store, I intend to confine my attention wholly to my store in Quincy Centre for the future. I respectfully ask a continuance of the favor of the patronage of the public.

It will be my aim in the future, as it has been in the past, to cater to the wants of every man, woman or child who enters my store. I would like your trade, if I have it not already, and promise in return courteous treatment, correct prices and above all other things, first-class goods.

Thanking you for past favors, and soliciting a continuance of the same, I remain

Your humble servant,

THE GRANITE INDUSTRY.

The Blacksmiths' Scale, Co-operative Work and Local Chips.

The exodus of granite workers from Quincy still continues and bids fair to momentarily solve the problem of the local unemployed. Such a solution is unfortunate in many respects, for the entire prosperity of Quincy depends to an enormous extent on the wholesome activity of its staple industry.

The West Quincy district seems to be recovering itself more slowly from the general depression than some of the other divisions of the trade, such well known and reputable firms as the O. T. Rogers Company and the Granite Railway Company being obliged to reduce their forces to greatly reduced proportions.

The new polishing shop of Swingle & Falconer is nearly completed, and is expected to be in active running order within a short time.

Most of the retail firms have put new men to work lately, and are straining their energies to supply their Memorial Day orders on time.

From outside indications granite building operations are assuming very favorable aspects. Many of the easterly districts that have been practically at a stand-still for some time, are making earnest preparations to resume their wonted enterprise in that special line.

There is an excellent article in the April number of the Monumental News on lettering. Space does not permit its reproduction in the LEDGER, though its perusal would well repay granite workers, and more especially those who make a specialty of that branch. With perhaps one insignificant exception the directions of the writer are worthy of adoption by the most skilled worker.

The proposal to build the two new schools for Quincy of granite is arousing considerable interest amongst those engaged in the granite business. Opinions are divided between the need for municipal economy and trade loyalty. It is reasoned on one hand that the extra expenditure for stone edifices would in time be balanced by greater durability of structure, and the encouragement that would be given to the local industry; whilst the economist holds that if cheaper material can be employed, compatible with safety and reasonable attention to art, it would be for the best interests of the city to avoid the rocky substance.

Owing to the peculiar conditions that called for a reopening of the blacksmiths, scale of prices, it is not surprising that the meeting of the two committees last week resulted in almost total disagreement. The questions in dispute will therefore be submitted to representatives of the executive committees of the manufacturers and and employes associations for final settlement.

Many attempts have been made to introduce cooperative and profit sharing devices into certain parts of the industrial field, and the experiments made have been sometimes extremely successful, more frequently, however the reverse. So far as we know, the first practical movement towards the adoption of the profit sharing system into the granite business has just been made by the well known firm of John Crawford & Son, Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Crawford has made a proposal to each of his workmen that for equity, and minute attention to detail, would be hard to equal. He undertakes to divide the profits of the business from Jan 1, to Dec. 31, 1895, on the basis of giving to each man according to his individual contribution to the aggregate production of the firm. An extract from the communication with which he apprised an employe of the proposal will best illustrate the new plan.

"As an illustration, let us suppose the entire amount of wages paid during the year to be $18,000.00 and my investment of capital, etc., $27,000.00, the total amount would be $45,000.00. Now let us assume that your wages will be for the year $800.00 and the undivided profits are $3,000 00, you would receive 800-45,000 of $3,000.00 or $53.33.

This division shall apply to all men who shall be in our employ for three months or longer during the year, and should a man from any cause cease to be in our employ, he shall, if he has been at work for three months or more, be entitled to a certificate showing amount of wages received which at the end of the year shall be of the same value as though he were still working for us.

It will be optional for each man to draw his share in cash or to leave it invested at 6 per cent. payable on demand, the rate of wages to be paid during the year remaining as heretofore."

The result of this new departure will be watched with keen interest by all students of social and industrial conditions, and if the operations of the project be in accordance with the worthy motives that have prompted the new order of things they will merit more general adoption.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

You Don't Have to Swear Off,

Says the St. Louis Journal of Agriculture in an editorial about No-To-Bac, the famous tobacco habit cure. "We know of many cases cured by No-To-Bac, one, a prominent St. Louis architect, smoked and chewed for twenty years; two boxes cured him so that even the smell of tobacco makes him sick." No-To-Bac sold and guaranteed by A. G. Durgin and all Quincy druggists. No cure, no pay. Book free. Sterling Remedy Co., New York or Chicago.

Cause of Death a Mystery.

PORTLAND, April 16.—David I. Murdock has brought suit against the Mutual Life Insurance company for $35,000 for refusing to pay an insurance policy of $25,000 which he had on the life of Clinton A. Woodbury of Deering. Woodbury died very suddenly Sept. 29, 1894, and it was claimed at the time that he had committed suicide. This will be made a test case to determine the cause of his death.

A Preacher's Strange Death.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 16.—Rev. J. M. Jessup, an aged primitive Baptist preacher, while delivering a sermon at Sandy Ridge, suddenly fell to the floor in spasms and died soon afterward. He had taken strychnine which he carried in his pocket on bread crumbs to poison English sparrows. He was also in the habit of carrying sugar in his pocket to clear his throat for his sermon.

Probable Fate of Lenz.

LONDON, April 16.—The Daily News publishes an Armenian letter giving the result of the inquiries made to ascertain the fate of Frank Lenz, the American bicyclist, who disappeared in Armenia while engaged in making a tour of the world. The writer of the letters says he hears that Lenz was shot dead on the road between Kourtali and Zahar.

Fit For Whipping Post.

HARTFORD, April 16.—In the police court Thomas Sheren, whom Judge Bill described as a brute and fit for the whipping post, was fined $20 and sent to jail for three months for brutally illtreating his wife. He dragged her out of bed, kicked her and cut her arm with a knife.

Thief's Big Haul.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—While the Chilian minister's family were at the theater last night Mme. Gana's room was entered and diamonds and pearls, said to be worth between $5000 and $6000, were stolen. Jose Brauer, the butler, was missing and the police were notified.

Threatened Suicide.

BRIDGEPORT, April 16.—Alderman W. E. Flynn has been missing since Saturday, when, while suffering from mental derangement, he wandered away. He told people whom he met that he intended to kill himself, and it is feared he has carried out his threat.

Want Old Wages Restored.

NORTH VASSALBORO, Me., April 16.—One hundred and fifty weavers and spinners of the Vassalboro woolen mill struck yesterday for a restoration of a 10 per cent cut. Superintendent Lampson says he will close the mill rather than accede to the demands.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cookin. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

AT OLNEYVILLE.

Strikers Figuring on Plans For Holding Out Against Employers.

PROVIDENCE, April 16.—The executive council of the Textile union has prepared a set of resolutions requesting the national body to pass an order forbidding all union men from serving in the state militia and ordering all union men now doing military duty to resign on penalty of being deprived of the weekly benefit in case of a strike. The council was prompted to take this action because of the unwillingness of union men to serve in the militia should they be ordered to take up arms during a strike. As fully one-quarter of the Rhode Island state militia is made up of mill operatives, such action would cause a large reduction in the present military force.

The striking weavers of the Atlantic mills at Olneyville met yesterday afternoon and voted to recognize the dyehouse employes by placing them on the same footing as themselves. It was decided to purchase provisions at wholesale prices and sell them to the operatives on strike without profit. Those operatives who are destitute will receive provisions without payment. A general supply store will be opened as soon as possible.

All operatives in the other mills in Olneyville and vicinity yesterday notified the strikers that they would begin collections this week in support of the strike fund.

The drawers-in have notified the strikers that they will not go to work until the strike ends and that they would refuse to draw warp for any weavers whom the mills might employ to take the places of the strikers.

Another encouraging piece of information received by the strikers was an offer of a loan of $280 by a local union. The offer was accepted, and by Saturday night the operatives expect to see a large strike fund on hand.

JAPS ON BIG END.

The Peace Terms as Agreed Upon by Japanese and Chinese Plenipotentiaries.

SHANGHAI, April 16.—Li Hung Chang's son-in-law telegraphed that a peace convention was signed at Shimonoseki by the plenipotentiaries of China and Japan. Terms of the convention:

First, the independence of Corea; second, that Japan retain the places she has conquered; third, that Japan shall also retain the territory east of the Liao river; fourth, that the island of Formosa be ceded permanently to Japan; fifth, the payment of $100,000,000 indemnity, and sixth, an offensive and defensive alliance.

No Fraud Intended.

CHICAGO, April 16.—President Greenhut of the Whisky trust and Nelson Morris have made answer in the United States circuit court to the charges of Receiver McNulta on the Cattle Feeding company. Both deny that there was, or is, any intention to defraud, and allege that there will be some profits to share with the receiver at the end of the season.

Oil Still Going Upward.

PITTSBURG, April 16.—Oil continued its upward course yesterday. At the opening the Standard Oil company advanced its prices 25 cents to $2. May options opened at $2.05 and the first sale was at $2.05. It kept on up to 2:15, and then broke to $2.40½, and went on down to $2.20. It then reacted and kept going up, until at the close it was at $2.53.

Poison For Herself and Child.

HARTSHORN, I. T., April 16.—Mrs. William Baldwin committed suicide yesterday. At the same time she administered poison to her only child, a girl of 7 years, and the child's life is despaired of. She had packed her personal effects and bidden her friends goodby, stating that she was going to return to relatives in Providence.

Good News From Connecticut.

DANIELSONVILLE, Conn., April 16.—The Quineboug mills have posted a notice stating that there would be an advance in wages, to take effect April 22. The Danielsonville Cotton company and the Williamsville manufacturing company also posted notices in their mills to the same effect.

Unfair Treatment Alleged.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., April 16.—The Boston Investment company has filed a motion that Receiver Black be removed and L. B. Burgess appointed in his stead, on the ground that the appointment of Black was in fraud of the rights of the Boston Investment company.

Troops Chasing Fugitives.

HAVANA, April 16.—A detachment of troops commanded by Captain Aguilar has defeated a body of 160 insurgents under Miro, at Palma. Six of the insurgents were killed and several were wounded. The troops are in pursuit of the fugitives.

Policeman Badly Used.

CAMBRIDGE, April 16.—Patrolman Counihan had the thumb of his right hand and the little finger of his left hand chewed off while arresting John Hallahan for drunkenness.

An Incendiary's Work.

TAHLEQUAH, I. T., April 16.—An incendiary fire destroyed 13 business houses, four residences and 15 offices. Loss, $300,000.

RUSSELLVILLE, Ky., April 16.—The army worm has made its appearance in this and many surrounding counties. They have devastated fields of young corn and hundreds of plant beds have been literally uprooted. Some of the farmers have resowed their beds, and it will throw their crops late.

New Englanders at West Point.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The following cadets at the naval academy have been appointed: F. I. Hanscomb (alternate), Belfast, Me.; F. H. Yates, Waterville, Me.; V. A. Kimberly, West Newton; A. C. Birnie, Ludlow, Mass.; W. R. Sayler, Jr., Pawtucket; W. J. Frawley (alternate), Massachusetts.

Orth's Big Purse.

MEMPHIS, April 16.—The most important turf event of the south and the first important race of the season in this country was decided here yesterday, when Orth's bay gelding Fandango galloped in an easy winner in the Tennessee Derby, worth $4656.

Leading Citizen Gone.

NEW LONDON, April 16.—George D. Whittlesey, postmaster of this city during President Cleveland's first term, dropped dead from heart disease on State street last evening. Mr. Whittlesey was one of the best known citizens of New London.

Is He Archduke John?

BERLIN, April 16.—A rumor is current in this city to the effect that Field Marshal Count Yamagata, the Japanese minister of war, is the long-missing Archduke John of Austria, who went abroad some years ago under the name of John Orth.

Fatal Lamp Explosion.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., April 16.—Mrs. Edmund McDougall accidentally dropped a lamp on a hot stove yesterday. It exploded and the woman's clothing caught on fire. She died in a few minutes

Believed to Be Deranged.

FITCHBURG, April 16.—Mrs. W. A. Baldwin, who conducts a bakery in this city, has been missing since Saturday, and relatives can give no information as to her whereabouts. She is thought to have been deranged.

Missouri Town Burned Out.

PLATTSBURG, Mo., April 16.—Fire started in the livery stable of James Storm and resulted in the destruction of the court house with all its records, two entire business blocks, and the partial destruction of a third block. The loss will foot up to $300,000.

Rumors of Sickness Denied.

BERLIN, April 16.—There is no truth in the sensational story circulated in the United States to the effect that Prince Bismarck is seriously sick. The prince is well in health.

Rate War Is On.

NEW YORK, April 16.—The Seaboard Air Line announces a cut in first class passenger fares from New York, Boston, Philadelphia and all eastern points to the south.

THE GUILT OF DURANT

Considered Beyond All Doubt In Minds of San Francisco Folks.

Posed as Lover to Both Unfortunate Women.

Chain of Evidence Connects Him Closely With the Double Murder.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16.—W. H. T. Durant has been attentive to both Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams. Each girl regarded him as a lover. They were both members of Emanuel church and were friends. Both belonged to the same class in Sunday school. The young man was librarian of the church and assistant superintendent of the Sunday school.

Durant has been attentive to both girls. Each girl regarded him as a lover. They were both members of Emanuel church and were friends. Both belonged to the same class in Sunday school. The young man was librarian of the church and assistant superintendent of the Sunday school. He was familiar with the house and carried one of the few keys to its private door.

He was the last person seen in Blanche Lamont's company on the day of her disappearance. Other circumstances which bear against him are these: He had the key to the church; was seen conducting Miss Williams into a private door of the church Friday evening; was late arriving at the Vogel reception, and upon arriving there showed a nervous condition and disordered attire. There is a rumor that There Was Blood on His Hands.

On leaving the party he passed the church again and went within. In his overcoat pocket the girl's missing purse, or part of it, is said to have been found. He admits that he was in church with his friend King Friday afternoon. Miss Williams was to have gone to Dr. Vogel's Friday evening, started for the house, met Durant and never was seen alive afterward.

Another significant fact is that Blanche Lamont, who was murdered first and carried to the church belfry, was strangled by a left-handed man, who used the left hand in choking the girl. Durant is ambidextrous, using either hand with equal facility. He could throw a ball, write, and do many other things with the left hand.

As to Durant's reputation as a pious youth of correct habits, there is another side to the story. From the undergraduates at the medical college where Durant was also a student a different opinion has been obtained. They considered him hypocritical and deceitful, posing before his fellows as a gallant and before his church friends as a saint. He often boasted to the students of having received favors from women.

On one occasion Durant told his friends in confidence of trips which he said he made at intervals to Carson City in company with three railroad employes. He told of brutal treatment to Indian women, in which he took part and of indulgence

In Gross Sensuality.

He has acted strangely since the search for the Lamont girl commenced. During last week, at church gatherings and to groups of friends he has talked continually, and occasionally somewhat wildly, of Blanche, and speculated as to her whereabouts. His conduct surprised his friends, who thought perhaps his love for Blanche had temporarily affected his reason.

The three rings belonging to Blanche Lamont and sent to her aunt on Saturday were wrapped in paper upon which were written the names of G. R. King, organist of the church, and Professor Shoenstein, who taught her music. Experts declare this writing is that of Durant, slightly disguised. The police think Durant tried to throw suspicion on these two men that attention might not be directed to himself.

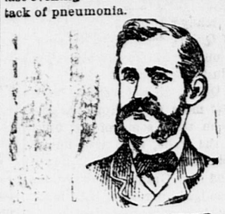
Another young lady, also a member of the same church, says Durant told her she had a female complaint and gave her medicine which benefitted her. Afterwards he advised her to allow him to make a personal examination. She indignantly refused. Durant continued to urge it, saying there was a room in the church to which he had a key, where the examination could be secretly and safely made. It is surmised Durant may have lured the murdered girls into the church on a similar pretext.

About 2 o'clock yesterday morning the police heard rumors of a threatened attack on the prison to lynch Durant. Extra precautions were taken. The relatives of the Lamont and Williams girl believe Durant killed them.

AN ACTIVE WORKER.

Temperance People Lose a Friend by the Death of Dr. John P. Blackmer.

SPRINGFIELD, April 16.—Dr. John P. Blackmer, the well-known Prohibitionist and temperance worker, died at his home last evening at 6:30 o'clock of an acute attack of pneumonia.



DR. JOHN BLACKMER.

Dr. Blackmer was born 67 years ago at Plymouth, and at the age of 18 began teaching school. He entered Brown university when he was about 20 years of age. He afterward entered Harvard medical school. He then went into practice at Effingham, N. H., and from there he went to Augusta, where he had charge of the Augusta insane asylum. He subsequently took charge of the asylum at Concord, N. H.

It was in New Hampshire that Dr. Blackmer first took a definite stand on the liquor question, and in 1870 he was elected chairman of the New Hampshire Prohibition state committee. In 1872 and 1873 he was the Prohibition candidate for governor of New Hampshire.

When the war broke out Dr. Blackmer enlisted as a surgeon. After serving some time in the army he went into the navy, and was in the memorable fight at Fort Fisher.

Dr. Blackmer was twice a candidate for congress in the Eleventh district and was on the St. John electoral ticket. He was Prohibition candidate for governor of Massachusetts in 1889 and in 1890. In 1881, '82 and '83 and again in 1886 Dr. Blackmer was the Prohibition candidate for lieutenant governor.

About two years ago Dr. Blackmer became interested in the Norwegian liquor system, and severed his connection with the Prohibition state committee. Within a few weeks, however, he went back to the Prohibition party.

Americans at the Head.

LONDON, April 16.—The Standard, commenting editorially upon the discovery made by Professor Keeler of the Allegheny observatory that the rings of Saturn are composed of innumerable small bodies or satellites and that they do not revolve at the same speed about the planet, says that this confirms the theory of Professor Trouvelot of Harvard university, which was enunciated 20 years ago. The paper adds: In any case we will await with great interest a fuller account of the latest of these researches in which Americans are obtaining enviable distinction.

Suggests Arbitration.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Particulars as to the contents of Nicaragua's recent reply to the British ultimatum have been received here. Nicaragua, while definitely agreeing to none of the specific demands of Great Britain, concedes the applicability of the principle of arbitration to some of the acts committed in the Mosquito territory, and suggests in the most friendly tone possible that an impartial commission of arbitrators be constituted for all the grounds of complaint.

Archbishop Langevin's Threat.

WINNIPEG, April 16.—Archbishop Langevin, the Roman Catholic head in western Canada, announces that hereafter all so-called adherents who do not follow the teachings of the church in the matter of education cannot be regarded as members of the Roman Catholic church. This means the excommunication of certain Catholics who have taken a stand against the church and with the Manitoba government in their determined fight for national schools.

All Kinds of Weather.

ST. LOUIS, April 16.—The entire southwest and part of the west, including southern Kansas, Oklahoma and the Panhandle of Texas, was yesterday afflicted with a terrible sand and rain storm. At places in Oklahoma there was a veritable shower of mud, and in western Oklahoma and the Panhandle of Texas Egyptian darkness prevailed. Crops were badly damaged, wires prostrated and much other damage done.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Coffee pots are an Oriental invention and are supposed to have come from Arabia in A. D. 1400. About the same time they were used in Persia, but they did not come to France until 1662, and made their appearance in England with coffee in 1650.

It is a wonderful thing that oysters, after they have been brought away from the sea, know by instinct the hour when the tide is rising and approaching their beds, and so of their own account open their shells to receive their food from the sea, as if they were still at home.

TRACKS UNDER WATER

Trains Are Unable to Run In Many Parts of New England.

Bridges Are Weakened by the Raging Torrents.

With the Exception of the Connecticut River the Waters Are Receding.

HAVERHILL, April 17.—The city is without electric lights. All efforts to keep the water out of the wheel pit at the plant proved useless, and the power will not probably run again for several days. The damage in this city amounts to thousands of dollars.

The Situation at Manchester.

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 17.—The flood is gradually subsiding. The Cygnet boathouse has been swung around by the raging waters and partly toppled into the river. No trains have arrived from the north, and there is no travel between this city and Boston, via Nashua.

Boats In Use at Amesbury.

AMESBURY, April 17.—The Merrimack and Powow rivers overflowed their banks and caused a heavy damage to property in this city. The water is the highest in 15 years. Boats are in use in streets along the river front.

Torrent at Lewiston.

LEWISTON, April 27.—The water in the Androscoggin is falling. The river is still a raging torrent, however, and there is great danger to bridges and other property, as large numbers of logs are floating.

Part of Bridge Gone.

SACO, April 17.—River men think the water has reached its highest pitch here. Much damage has been done. The Hollis side of the iron bridge at West Buxton was washed away yesterday afternoon.

Watching For Logs.

BATH, April 17.—It is reported that 20,000,000 feet of logs are adrift in the Androscoggin, and preparations are being made to capture some of them as they pass here.

Concord's Report.

CONCORD, N. H., April 17.—The water is falling slowly. The Concord railroad is washed badly. The foundations of three houses at the South End have been washed away.

No Cars Running.

LOWELL, April 17.—The flood in the Merrimac has passed off. Not a car is running, the street railway company being engaged in transfering its dynamos.

Lower Water at Nashua.

NASHUA, April 17.—The freshet in the Merrimac river has fallen a foot. The electric light plant is badly crippled.

ALONG THE CONNECTICUT.

Water Has Fallen at Some Points While at Others It Has Not.

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., April 17.—The flood at this point has fallen. Runaway logs from the north are passing slowly. William Burke, while crossing the railroad bridge, fell into the rapid current and was carried over the falls and drowned. S. N. Alexander, Jr., and James Fitzgerald ventured on the river in a canoe and were carried down the river. It is feared they are drowned.

SPRINGFIELD, April 17.—The river has continued to rise slowly, overflowing its banks in many places, breaking the dike at Hampden park. Streets in Brightwood are flooded to the depth of four feet. Some families have moved out and boats afforded means of communication between those who remained in their homes. West Springfield people fear the dike on the west side of the river may break.

NORTHAMPTON, April 17.—The flood from the north reached here yesterday, and the river has steadily risen, until the meadows to a width of 10 miles are flooded. The Hadley bridge is closed and one of the piers weakened by the flood. Belding's silk mill has suspended operations and the bed of the new street railway to East-hampton was partially destroyed.

GREENFIELD, Mass., April 17. — The Deerfield meadows and the valleys of the Greenfield and Deerfield rivers are flooded and several highways are impassable and dwellings untenable.

HARTFORD, April 17.—The Connecticut river continues to rise. East Hartford is flooded, and the country is a vast lake on both sides of the river.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., April 17.—The flood at this point has fallen from 18 to 11 feet and is still falling fast.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 17.—The senate adopted an order for a joint convention on April 25 for the election of a treasurer and receiver general. The nominations will be made at a caucus to be held the Tuesday previous. The committee on metropolitan affairs reported a bill for a water supply for the metropolitan district. The bill permitting the sale of artificially reared trout during February and March, which has been vetoed by two governors, was signed by Governor Greenhalge. The senate defeated the bill to abate the smoke nuisance in Boston. The bill in relation to retractions in cases of libel was engrossed in the senate, all amendments being rejected. The bill to pay Boston police officers witness fees was rejected in the senate. The bill relative to punishment for rape went to a third reading in the house. Bills to establish free hospitals for the treatment of contagious and infectious diseases; increasing the salary of the insurance commissioners, and establishing a board of police for the city of Woburn, were ordered to their third reading. Bills to regulate the sale of face bleaches and patent medicines were rejected.

Police Waiting For Them.

BOSTON, April 17.—An attempt was made last night to rob a safe in the law office of Thomas J. Morrison, at 39 Court street. H. E. Page and W. S. Manning entered the office by false keys, this being the third entry made in this office by burglars in the same place within a few weeks. Four inspectors have been watching the office for some time, and last night the thieves appeared. The inspectors allowed them to prepare to blow open the safe, and then arrested them. Page was formerly employed by the police department as a safe expert.

Honored Citizen Gone.

BOSTON, April 17.—Hon. Leverett Saltonstall, for many years a prominent figure in the politics of the state and the city of Boston, died at his home in Brookline. He had been sick since September last, and his death finally resulted from a complication of diseases. Mr. Saltonstall belonged to the old Saltonstall family of Salem, which is one of the three oldest in the state. Hs was 70 years old.

Mystery Cleared Up.

FITCHBURG, April 17.—Mrs. William H. Baldwin's departure last Sunday for parts unknown, in a way most mysterious, has been cleared up. She telegraphed from New York saying she had gone to meet her son, who was coming up from Florida. She missed him, but stayed over.

Big Show of Canines.

BOSTON, April 17.—The dog show at Mechanics' hall was attended by large crowds yesterday. Nearly all classes of dogs are represented, and in making the awards the judges found it difficult in many instances, owing to the similar appearance of many of the animals.

Work For Many Nutmegers.

PUTNAM, Conn., April 17.—The Mechanicsville woolen mill is to resume operations May 1, after a shutdown of 18 months. The woolen mills in Dayville, employing 275 hands, resume in a week. The hands in the latter mill have been idle a year.

Atlantic Mills May Close.

PROVIDENCE, April 17. —According to statements by members of the operatives' executive committee, the Atlantic mills will probably give notice to their employes that if they do not return to work by Monday the mills will be closed indefinitely.

WAGES GOING UP.

Action of Mill Owners Which Causes Rejoicing at Fall River.

FALL RIVER, April 17.—Fall River rejoices. The general advance in the wages of over 25,000 mill operatives has been voted.

Something that two weeks ago seemed to be most improbable, something which above everything else was hoped for, has been achieved, through the action of M. C. D. Borden.

Weavers will be paid 18 cents a cut. They are now working for 16. Wages will go up 12 per cent, and this means a distribution of nearly $18,000 more each week than has been worked into the channels of trade for eight months.

The meeting of the Cotton Manufacturers' association yesterday afternoon was the shortest on record, and productive at the same time of one of the most important results, the voluntary advance of 12 per cent.

The agents were called into session at 2:30. Some minutes were wasted before the association came to order, and at 2:45 the meeting adjourned. The business session is said to have lasted but about six minutes.

Looking Up Durant's Record.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17. — Theodore Durant was arraigned in the police court yesterday for the murder of Marion Williams. The hearing was set for Monday next. Police Detective Anthony has identified Durant as the man who, 18 months ago, took the daughter of an ex-policeman to San Jose and there betrayed her. After returning her, Anthony says, Durant forced the girl to become an inmate of a disreputable house. The police now believe Durant intended to burn the church and so destroy the evidence of his crimes.

Wires Are Down.

KANSAS CITY, April 17.—A storm of great severity passed over eastern Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma and the southwest generally. In Colorado and Kansas considerable damage was done, but it is impossible to learn anything from those sections, because nearly all telegraphic communication has been cut off. In southern Kansas and Oklahoma peculiar features of the storm were the intense darkness and the extraordinary electrical display.

Looks Bad For Buchanan.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The United States supreme court yesterday heard argument of counsel in the case of Robert Buchanan of New York, who petitions for a writ of error and stay of proceedings to prevent his execution. Justice White thought there was no occasion why the court should interfere in this case more than in any other state murder case, and Justice Gray raised the question of the propriety of granting the writ of error.

METROPOLITAN WATER.

The Bill Provides for Heavy Assessments Upon Quincy.

A new draft of the Metropolitan water bill has been submitted, and differs but slightly from the Boston draft, which was submitted by Corporation Counsel Bailey some weeks ago.

By the Boston bill Lynn and Nahant were exempted. The new draft exempts beside those places also Saugus in Essex and Waltham in Middlesex.

The main feature of the new draft, however, is that it is compulsory on all cities and towns originally included, instead of exempting them till they vote to come in. Provision is also made for the payment of the debt of West Boylston. If the bill passes, therefore, Quincy will have no escape from large assessments. Nothing we understand is allowed for the present Quincy source or reservoirs.

The apportionment of the expense of the system is deferred till 1900, but at that time all municipalities must bear their portion of the expense though they may not be taking the water. In that year $500,000 is to be apportioned and $200,000 annually thereafter till all is paid. Assessments for water, parks and sewers promise to be oppressive.

The Works of Thomas Moore.

The Unity Club of Wollaston held its regular meeting in the vestry of the Unitarian church on Tuesday evening, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, presiding, and discussed Thomas Moore and his works.

Mr. H. W. Lull was to have conducted the meeting, but unfortunately he is still confined to his home with a severe attack of the grip. Mr. Lull's paper upon Thomas Moore was very ably presented by Mrs. Lull.

A synopsis of Lalla Rookh was given by Mrs. Charles T. Baker. Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop read selections from Moore's prose and Miss Sherman read a delightfully entertaining paper upon "Notable Irish Women."

There were also several well-rendered Irish melodies by Mrs. Frank A. Page, Mr. Frederick H. Bishop, and a sextette from the Wollaston school,—Ethel Douglas Jennie Flood, Helen Holbrook, Georgia Pitts, Avery Bennett and Fenton Fowler.

Presidents' Hill Lots.

Plans have been made of the estate of Charles Francis Adams on Presidents' hill now controlled by the Presidents' Hill Real Estate Trust. The property, which consists of about nineteen acres has been divided up into lots for residential purposes and several streets have been laid out through the property. Dimmock street has been extended across Goffe through the entire width. Intersecting this street near the mansion of Mr. Adams is Whalley road which runs diagonally to Goffe street intersecting the later street near Saville street.

From Whalley road leads Dixwell avenue running in a south easterly direction and a street known as Avon way connects Dixwell avenue with Whalley road.

There are something like forty-three house lots including that which the mansion now is and which it is proposed to utilize as a club house for the Quincy club.

That wealth is the cause of more crime than poverty is, was the subject of the High school debate today. Report of meeting tomorrow.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. In many instances the attacks may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

☞ Eddy refrigerators, the old reliable. Take no other! A complete line and 20 per cent. discount to our patrons. Henry L. Kincaide & Co. A catalogue for the asking, prices $5.20 to $25.00.

THE SCHOOL COLUMN.

Quincy's Rapid Increase in School Children.

THE NEED OF NEW BUILDINGS.

Manual Training Must be Introduced at High School Next Term.

The educational workers of this vicinity are to observe Saturday by a public meeting, to be held in the English High school building, on Montgomery street, Boston, in celebration of the birthday of Friedrich Froebel. He was born in 1782, and in no place has his work had more attention paid to it than in Boston. The exercises will deal with his work and influence, and leading kindergarteners will bear the principal part. It will be a notable gathering, and the new supervisor, Miss Arnold, will then speak for the first time in Boston.

THE SCHOOL ARMY INCREASED MATERIALLY.

Over 3700 pupils were enrolled Monday in the Quincy public schools with an average daily attendance of over 3500, and the total has been increased since. A summary of the new primary scholars to enter on Monday is given below, a total of 188. Over one-third were at the Willard, which now has an enrollment of 869 and an average attendance of over 800. There were as many new pupils at the Willard as at the Adams, Coddington, Quincy, Washton and Wollaston combined. The John Hancock and Lincoln together had 56. It is evident that a new building at "The Rail" is greatly needed, as it would relieve the Willard, and that building in time would accommodate many from the John Hancock and Lincoln schools who would not have as far to walk as now.

	New pupils Monday.	March Whole number.	Report. Av. daily attend.
Adams	11	367	347
Coddington	22	347	326

The councilmen from Wards Five and Six cannot crow much over Ward Two, as only 23 entered both the Wollaston and Atlantic school while 10 entered the Washington. Some Ward Two children go to the Coddington. The needs of a school building at Norfolk Downs cannot be so pressing as at "The Rail."

THE KIND OF GIRLS THAT GO TO COLLEGE.

Who are the pupils at the colleges for women today? The dowdy, sexless, unattractive, masculine-minded beings who have served to typify for 9 men out of 10 the crowning joke of the age—the emancipation of women? No; but lovely, graceful, sympathetic, earnest, pure-minded girls in the flower of attractive maidenhood.

And that is why the well-to-do American mother is asking herself whether she would be doing the best thing for her daughter if she were to encourage her to become merely a New-World Old-World young lady of the ancient order of things.

For centuries the women of civilization have worshipped chastity, suffering resignation and elegance as the ideals of femininity; now we mean to be intelligent besides, or at least, as nearly so as possible.—From "The Art of Living—Education," by Robert Grant, in the April Scribner.

HIGH SCHOOL MANUAL TRAINING.

After the first day of September, 1895, every city of 20,000 or more inhabitants, which includes Quincy, shall maintain, as part of its high school system, the teaching of manual training. The course to be pursued shall be subject to the approval of the state board of education. Secretary Hill of the State Board of Education says:

"A high manual training school has come to be a sharply defined institution. The definition of such a school, as inferred from the courses of study generally pursued in the high manual training schools of the country, contains the following elements: First, a course of study from three to four years; second, free hand and mechanical drawing throughout the course, one hour daily; third, shop exercises, two hours daily; fourth, academic work, three hours daily, two or more of them devoted to recitations; fifth, the use of power; sixth, woodworking, including the study of tools, materials, and elementary processes of carpentry, joinery, wood-turning, pattern making, and, if advisable, carving; seventh, iron working, including forging, chipping and filing, and the elementary processes of machine work; eighth, a session six hours or longer, with a suitable allowance for recess and lunch; ninth, a correlation of academic work, so far as feasible, with that of the drawing room and shops.

"It is not possible, of course, to attain the standard at once. But a standard like the foregoing, modified by local conditions and improved as experience suggests, should be kept steadily in view if a city would do as well by its pupils as other cities with fully established manual training schools have done."

U. S. MAIL BOXES.

Quincy Has Fifty-five—Their Locations and Collections.

It will surprise many to learn that the city has 55 mail boxes. This large number must make it convenient for people to mail letters. A few have but two collections daily, but the greater number have three and several four and five collections. The LEDGER gives the list below with the location and the hours of collection, which many readers will find handy.

News for the DAILY LEDGER should be mailed before the collection in bold type if for insertion that day. The city editor would be pleased however to receive it on the earlier collection. Keep the list handy and kindly remember the LEDGER when you have a news item or an advertisement. We are indebted to Postmaster Burke for the list:

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
Norfolk, ss.

City of Quincy, April 4th, A. D. 1895.

BY Virtue of an execution which issued on a judgment in favor of George A. Mayo of said Quincy, against William C. Kelly of said Quincy, at the District Court of East Norfolk in said County, I have taken all the right in equity that the said William C. Kelly had on the twentieth day of December, A. D. 1894, the day when the same was attached on mesne process to redeem a certain mortgaged real estate, situated in that portion of said Quincy known as West Quincy, being lots Nos. 36 and 37 on a certain plan of house lots, made by Whitman & Breck, surveyors, dated July 12th, A. D. 1882, and bounded as follows:

Northerly on Centre street, in all a distance of one hundred and sixteen [116] feet; easterly on lot numbered 35 on said plan about one hundred [100] feet; southerly on land owned by Wilson Arnold and John Hannon, in all a distance of about one hundred and twelve [112] feet, and westerly on lot numbered 38 on said plan, about one hundred and two and eight-tenths [102.8] feet, and containing 11,700 square feet of land, more or less, with buildings thereon.

Being the same premises conveyed to said William C. Kelly, under the name of William Kelly, by John Quincy Adams, by his deed dated November 22d, A. D. 1887, and recorded with the Norfolk Deeds, in libro 598, folio, 631, and the same that is described in a mortgage deed thereof, from the same William C. Kelly, under the name of William Kelly, to John Quincy Adams, recorded in the Registry of Deeds for said County, libro, 598, folio, 590, and on MONDAY, the twenty-seventh day of May, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, at my office, No. 12 Adams Building, in said Quincy, I shall offer for sale by public auction to the highest bidder said right in equity of redemption.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE.

BY Virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgaged deed given by "Minnie A. Moreton" to Napoleon B. Furnald, dated October 1st, 1888, recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds, libro, 612, folio, 9, for breach of the condition contained in said mortgage and to foreclose the same, and will be sold at public auction on THURSDAY, the ninth day of May, 1895, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon, on the premises, the following described real estate, viz:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and State of Massachusetts, bounded and described as follows, viz: Southwesterly on Main street, four [4] rods; southeasterly on land now or late of Leonard N. Ferry, six [6] rods; northeasterly on land now or late of Charles Newcomb, four [4] rods; westerly by land now or late of L. Goodnow and of Charles F. French six [6] rods, being all these measurements more or less, and being the same premises conveyed to said "Minnie A. Moreton" by deed of Elizabeth F. Furnald and Napoleon B. Furnald, dated October 1st, A. D. 1888, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, libro, 612, folio, 8.

Two hundred [$200] dollars will be required to be paid in cash at the time and place of sale, and the balance thereof in five days therefrom. For further particulars inquire of Tennis at Wollaston.

The annual meeting of the Merry Mount Tennis Club of Wollaston, was held at the house of the secretary, H. W. Battison, Monday evening. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, E. S. Litchfield; vice president, Robert B. Witham; secretary and treasurer, H. W. Battison; executive committee to serve with the above, A. T. Leavitt, C. L. McClintock, F. C. Howe and William Fenton, Jr. Messrs. Herbert A. Albee, H. F. Bates and H. G. Kingman were appointed a committee to put the courts in order and to keep them in good condition for the year. The club is in a good condition and it is expected that the present season will be one of the best that it has experienced, if any opinion may be formed from the enthusiasm shown among the members at this meeting.

Press Club Matinee.

Every year the New England Woman's Press association gives an entertainment to increase its journalists' fund. Many remember with pleasure the Authors' afternoon given last year at the Hollis Street Theatre and what a crush there was. This year a grand production of Longfellow's Dream will be given by members of the club on Thursday afternoon, April 25th at the Hollis Street Theatre. The spectacle is copyrighted and is not an adaption but an original conception and this will be its 203d production. Tickets are now on sale to friends of the club at regular theatre prices. There will be a minuet dance, a gorgeous golden wedding scene, the village choir, the Ghosts' Children, statues, gypsies Greek sylphs, and Queen Isabella, Queen Victoria, Columbia, Italy, Spain, Massachusetts, Boston, Posterity, Spirit of Poetry, Queen of Sheba, Hiawatha, Minnehaha, Indian witch and many other characters.

—The Boston and Nantasket steamboats will make their first trips on Friday. The N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad will run a special train from Boston at 9 30 A. M., stopping at Braintree. Returning from beach at 3 P. M.

In the Ledger.

As Viewed in Franklin.

The westerly end of the county is aroused over the expenditures on the court house at Dedham. The following from the Franklin column of the Central Norfolk Democrat is republished by request:

"Mr. Wiggin and Hon. William F. Ray attended the hearing before the committee on county estimates at the State House on Wednesday last. They appeared together with numerous taxpayers from other parts of the county to protest against the present extravagant methods in the management of the county's finances by the county commissioners. These commissioners, who seem to be infatuated with the idea of large and continually increasing county expenditures, were represented by Fred Williams, of Brookline, who is so well known among the lobbyists at the State House, and who wept so copiously a few years since when a legislative committee compelled him to exhibit the check book which he used during the time he had been managing his side of the Beverly town division fight. On Wednesday he resorted to his old tactics, and when the interested tax payers asked for the introduction of the contracts upon which their money is being expended, he at first refused to produce them, but finally agreed to exhibit them to the committee in executive session.

"He then blandly attempted a piece of dramatics by resorting to Methodist prayer meeting tactics, and asking all who had confidence in the county commissioners to arise. Then stood up that monument of veracity, Elijah Morse of Canton and a large number of other people. This show would have had considerable effect if Hon. Wm. F. Ray with his keen wits all alive, and his characteristic ingenuousness and appearance of candor, had not remarked to the committee that to his knowledge these friends of the Commissioners, most of them aspirants for the favors of the county ring, had been gathered in and corraled for the purpose for which they had been used, by the frantic efforts of the heelers of the County Commissioners, who had swarmed the county for several days previous.

"The fact that the County Commissioners, the servants of the people, are either afraid or ashamed to openly show the contracts which they have made for the spending of the people's money, is of itself an outrage, which should discredit and condemn them before any fair and honest tribunal legislative committee or other.

"There is a day of reckoning coming for these men, a day which they will be impotent to stave off even by the help of the most accomplished lobbyists they can hire with the people's money."

CARLISLE'S AMBITION.

He Hopes to Be Senator Blackburn's Successor From Kentucky.

According to a prominent Kentuckian who is close to Secretary Carlisle, that gentleman will be a candidate for the senate to succeed Senator Blackburn, whose term expires March 4, 1897, the day when Mr. Carlisle ceases to be secretary of the treasury. Mr. Carlisle will not be a candidate in the ordinary sense of the term, although he will probably go into the state and make some speeches, but as a dark horse he will be prepared to take advantage of anything that may turn up. Some of his friends understand what his hopes are in the matter and will do everything possible to bring about his election. It is well known that Mr. Carlisle has always regretted leaving the senate and will be only too glad to return to that body. Senator Blackburn, who hopes to be his own successor, realizes that he has the fight of his life upon his hands and is making every preparation for the most vigorous campaign he ever waged. He will travel over every part of the state and speak wherever he can find an audience, and in those places remote from railroads he will visit his constituents on horseback, stopping at farmhouses overnight, and entertain farmers' wives and admire the children. Blackburn is a magnetic sort of chap, witty and never at a loss for a clever reply or a graceful compliment, besides which he has a fondness for the three things for which Kentucky is famous—pretty women, a fast horse and good bourbon whisky.—Chicago Times-Herald.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

William L. Wilson of Virginia Found His an Open Sesame to the Treasury Building.

Under the rule of the department the treasury building is not open to the general public after 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At each doorway is a watchman who admits only persons supplied with passes and officials who can identiy themselves as entitled to special privileges. A member of congress or a cabinet minister, on presenting his card or stating his position, will be admitted. To other persons the watchmen are properly indifferent. One afternoon after 2 o'clock had struck and the doors were manned as usual a diffident looking man, with iron gray hair and flowing mustache, sought entrance and was denied admittance. He got in finally, and later on in the office of the comptroller of the treasury detailed his experiences.

"I started to tell the watchman I was a member of the house of representatives, but then I recollected it was after the 4th of March and the people of my district had neglected to send me back to represent them. Then I thought I would say I was a member of the cabinet. I had it on my lips, but felt the man might throw me down stairs. Of course I have been confirmed by the senate as postmaster general, but I will not qualify for some weeks yet. To tell the truth, I didn't know just how to satisfy that watchman, and it began to dawn on me I wasn't much of anything. So I just told him my name was William L. Wilson of West Virginia, and he let me in."—Chicago Tribune.

NICARAGUA'S PLIGHT.

Her Response Is Not at All Satisfactory to Great Britain.

United States Made No "Protest" In the Matter.

England Will Act Firmly, but Is Not Likely to Bombard Greytown.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The announcement that Great Britain had declared the Nicaraguan response to her ultimatum to be insufficient was fully expected at the state department.

This response in substance amounts to a proposition to refer to arbitration the demand for a $75,000 indemnity for the expulsion of Consular Agent Hatch, and it is said that it would be very unusual for such a course to be pursued in the case of a demand for "smart money."

Such a demand differs entirely from a demand made for injuries sustained by private citizens, inasmuch as it is based upon the idea that the honor of Great Britain has sustained a smirch through the humiliation of its official.

Mr. Bayard, our ambassador at London, has been using his good offices to bring about a peaceable settlement of the dispute in Washington. Secretary Gresham has been counselling the Nicaraguan minister, Dr. Guzman, probably to make such concessions as may be consistent with Nicaragua's national honor.

At the same time it is known that the secretary has entertained a doubt of the soundness of the British contention of a right to claim reparation for the expulsion of its consular agent, if he has really been guilty of fomenting rebellion during the Bluefields disturbances last year, and this he has probably communicated to the British government as a reason why it should not be over hasty and dictatorial in the treatment of a Small and Defenseless Nation.

It is not believed that the state department has gone so far as to serve formal notice on Great Britain (though earnest peace representations have been made) that she must not bombard Greytown, however, for that, it is said, would be equivalent to a declaration that no European power may hereafter wage war upon any of the American republics, even in a case involving, as is claimed in this case, the national honor, and it is quite certain that every one of the powers would repudiate such a suggestion.

But, in the present instance, it is felt here that there is little probability that Great Britain would proceed to such an extreme course as a bombardment of a town in which the largest interests were owned by foreigners with whose nations she had no quarrel, and it is much more likely that even if Nicaragua should finally refuse to meet the conditions of the ultimatum the British would essay to collect indemnity from the Nicaraguan customs.

No Protest.

It is learned that the state department has made no "protest" against any proposed British action in Nicaragua, for the reason that the British government has regarded the issue between itself and Nicaragua as one in which no other nation can have any concern, and has not acquainted the government of the United States with its exact purposes.

The only statement of the attitude of the state department which can be obtained is the declaration that the map of Nicaragua will not be changed by any action on the part of Great Britain. This means that Great Britain will not be permitted to acquire any of the territory of Nicaragua, even under color of the old protectorate over the Mosquito reservation, which originally extended southward to the San Juan river, and so commanded the eastern approach to the proposed Nicaragua canal, to the construction of which the United States now stands committed by the action of the last congress.

As to England's Course.

LONDON, April 17.—The Globe asserts that Great Britain will refuse to accept the answer of the Nicaraguan government to the British ultimatum, and will take immediate steps to enforce her demands.

It is stated on good authority that the question of a protest on the part of the United States against the bombardment of Greytown and the landing of British troops in Nicaragua has never been raised between Great Britain and the United States, so far as the British government is aware. In any case, it is added, the British will not bombard Greytown in the event of Nicaragua's refusing to comply with the demands of Great Britain.

But steps will be taken to ensure the payment of the indemnity demanded by the British government, and the necessary papers have been sent to commanders of British warships. But the nature of the orders sent to the British commanders, and whether they include the landing of troops, is not stated.

The Chronicle's Wail.

LONDON, April 17.—The Chronicle, remarking that the Monroe doctrine has never been acted upon, says: Surely it has its corollaries. Washington ought not to interfere with Turkey as it is doing in Beyonk, and if Europe must not interfere in the West, will Washington guarantee the behavior of the semi-barbarous states of Central and South America? Nothing could be more convenient for us than to deal with Washington in such matters.

New Building Collapsed.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., April 17.—The walls of the nearly completed Tretz block collapsed yesterday, owing to defective foundation. Two painters were killed and two plumbers were badly injured. Some dwelling houses had their roofs crushed, but the tenants escaped injury.

Not Archduke Johann.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Officials of the Japanese legation here have exploded the sensational story that Count Yamagata is in reality Archduke Johann of Austria, who disappeared several years ago. Count Yamagata visited Washington a few years ago and made many friends.

But One Juror Accepted.

NEW YORK, April 17.—The six jurors who were selected in the trial of Police Inspector McLaughlin yesterday were all set aside by challenges at the end of the day, leaving but one juror who has been sworn in.

Bismarck Is All Right.

BERLIN, April 17.—Notwithstanding the report to the contrary, the condition of Prince Bismarck's health is satisfactory.

TEN MILES UP.

Henry A. Hazen's Proposed Record Breaking Trip In His Steel Airship.

Henry A. Hazen, the American aeronaut and scientist, proposes to make a record breaking ten mile trip above the earth in an airtight steel car, fitted with parachute and steering gear, that will permit of its use as a boat, if need be. The ascension will be made at some point out west. Meteorological experts and all persons who are interested in ballooning will watch this novel experiment with lively hope.

The kaiser himself takes a lively interest in the trip, because one of the results foreshadowed is the solution of the mooted problem of the direction of the air currents. This has special military importance, affecting, as it does, another problem agitating military strategists—viz, will the dynamite and the destructive chemical bearing airship ever be a reality of the war of the future?

Hazen will substitute for the ordinary open basket a cabin furnished with pure oxygen, and with apparatus for producing either heat or cold in an emergency. It will have in addition arrangements for generating and passing upward through direct tube connections any amount of gas to replace the gas in the balloon. These novelties, therefore, will do away with some of the greatest difficulties aeronauts have heretofore encountered.—New York World.

HIS BRAIN DIVIDED.

Case of a Man the Lobes of Whose Brain Acted Separately.

In the quarterly journal of the Neurological society, called Brain, just issued, there is a curious and interesting paper by Mr. Lewis C. Bruce on a case he had carefully studied. The peculiarity of the case was this—that it appeared to show that, while some general deterioration of the brain was going on, it was going on at a different rate in the two lobes of the brain; that sometimes the right side of the brain alone acted, in which case the patient talked almost only Welsh and had hardly any interest in life at all, showing no sort of eagerness either for money or tobacco or anything but his food alone, and that he was almost entirely left handed and idiotic, while when that side of the brain became inert and the other took its place he spoke chiefly English, was eager for money and tobacco, and even thievish in his desire to possess himself of these objects, and right handed in his physical habits, and that for a certain interval between the two conditions he had a short period in which he mingled Welsh and English words, used both hands and showed an intermediate sort of disposition, being more alive than in his left handed condition, when he spoke Welsh almost exclusively, and, we imagine, less alive than in his right handed condition, when he spoke chiefly English.—New York Post.

THE LATEST SENSATION.

Reported Discovery of Accurate Means to Determine the Paternity of Children.

Nothing has so agitated Paris for a long time as the reported discovery by M. Groussier of a scientific means of tracing the paternity of children who know not their own fathers.

It is easy to understand with what alarm the news of such a discovery will be received in a country where illegitimacy is so common as in France.

The announcement may possibly cause some tremors of nervousness even in America. The Paris journalists have speedily recognized that nothing could appeal more directly to the interests of their readers, and they have been interviewing everybody of consequence about the probable truth and effect of the momentous news.

It is declared that it is time to call a halt in the relentless march of science when it becomes so presumptuous as to invade domestic secrets which it has no right to expose.—New York Sun.

Royal Etiquette Versus Enthusiasm.

Says The Pall Mall Gazette: "An incident of the queen's journey to the south deserves to be recorded. At Toulon Admiral Gervais was so carried away by his feelings that, in violation of all royal etiquette, he seized her majesty's hand and kissed it with fervor, an act which was taken in very good part by our kind hearted sovereign."

At Last, at Last.

It is interesting to learn that the Keely motor is complete at last. Mr. Keely has achieved the all important connection that eluded him so long. He has found the missing link. We congratulate Mr. Keely and hope there is no mistake.—Chicago Tribune.

Always Varied, Always Charming.

The Sunset club has been trying to decide what the "coming woman" will be. The chances are that she will be of as many different kinds as the woman who has gone—just as variable and just as charming.—Chicago Post.

Lots of Troubles Ahead.

It is an off day just now that does not bring some new international complication. At the present rate the president may find it as hard to get to Gray Gables this year as he did last.—Boston News.

Boston's Future Fame.

It looks at present as though the future fame of Boston in the United States would rest on the fact that it was here that "Trilby," the play, first saw the footlights.—Boston Journal.

TELL-TALE FACES.

PINCHED AND CAREWORN,

As Worn by Many American Women.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

The "tell-tale face" is worn by many American women, and is a symptom of symptoms, a signal of distress.

While women do all in their power to hide their condition, the practised eye soon detects the trouble.

When pains and aches are felt in every part of the body, when faintness, dizziness, and that bearing-down feeling prevail, when loss of sleep and appetite are reducing flesh daily, when the society of friends is irksome, and the hopeless "blues" predominate, then the face is pinched, haggard, and careworn, and prompt relief is necessary, or a beautiful life will be sacrificed.

An American woman, Lydia E. Pinkham, a student of women and their diseases, twenty years ago succeeded in producing an absolute cure for all diseases of women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands to-day as it did then, pre-eminent.

Mrs. H. Wampler, of Barabo, Wis., whose letter we were permitted to publish last year, writes that she hopes Mrs. Pinkham will continue to use her name, as the publication in newspapers of the account of her own wonderful cure and relief from years of misery has been the means of influencing many suffering women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and become well like herself. Mrs. Wampler feels, and rightly, too, that in this way she is doing a great good.

Will Do Their Best.

PORTLAND, April 17.—At the annual meeting of the Rigby Park association the action of the directors in securing the New England fair was highly commended, and it was voted to raise $10,000 to put up the necessary buildings and improve the track.

Maine Strike Settled.

NORTH VASSALBORO, Me., April 17.—A committee of strikers called on Agent Sampson in regard to an increase of wages. Mr. Sampson receded from his former position, granted an increase of 10 per cent, and the strike was at once declared off.

Serious Offense Alleged.

PROVIDENCE, April 17.—Thomas W. Manchester, ex-city gauger, was arrested yesterday on a writ issued on complaint of a druggist, who charges that Manchester presented a check for $148 when he had no deposit in the bank.

Court Is Lenient.

BOSTON, April 17. — The petition of Walter A. Scott, who, with Robert F. West, was convicted of the murder of James P. Slamin, for an extension of time, to file exceptions, until April 29, has been granted.

Held For Grand Jury.

WESTFIELD, Mass., April 17.—Dr. Dale of Springfield was before the court here charged with performing a criminal operation upon Mary Farley of that city, and was held for the grand jury in $3000 bonds. He secured bail.

On a Murder Charge.

NEW HAVEN, April 17.—At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the trial of Dr. J. F. Lee, charged with murder in the second degree, in causing the death, by criminal malpractice, of Maggie Schloss of Ansonia, was begun.

Governor Greenhalge's Stand.

BOSTON, April 17. — Governor Greenhalge, in an interview, intimated that in event of the passage of the Boston subway repeal bill, he would veto the measure. Thirty senators are quoted as declaring against repeal.

Fifteen Disappointed Men.

ROCKLAND, Me., April 17.—Collector Moore of the Waldoboro customs district has appointed George W. Hicks as inspector of the port of Rockland. There were 15 other candidates for the position.

Shortage In Sweet Corn.

AUGUSTA, April 17.—Crop bulletin No. 1, issued by the state board of agriculture, indicates an increase in value of farm animals, but a serious falling off in the production of sweet corn the coming season.

Not Endorsed by the Union.

FITCHBURG, April 17. — Thirty long chain quillers at the Parkhill mills quit work yesterday over a disagreement on the wage question. The local union does not sanction the action.

Billiard Tourney Ended.

BOSTON, April 17.—The billiard tournament for a purse of $250 and the championship of New England was won by Fred E. Eames, who took first money and retained the championship cue.

Portland's New Judge.

PORTLAND, April 17.—Ex-County Attorney Frank W. Robinson was seated in the municipal court yesterday as judge. He succeeds Judge George F. Gould, whose term has expired.

Gerard Lasted One Round.

BOSTON, April 16.—At the Cribb club last night, George Gerard of Hyde Park was knocked out in the first round by George Beyers of Boston.

Burns Resulted In Death.

BOSTON, April 17.—Mrs. Mary McGillicudy of the Brighton district died yesterday from burns caused by the upsetting of a lamp.

Democratic members of the Massachusetts legislature held the customary annual banquet at Boston.

A stained glass window is soon to be placed in Memorial hall, at Harvard, as the gift of the class of 1875.

De Campos In Cuba.

HAVANA, April 17. — Captain General Martinez de Campos arrived at Guantanamo yesterday. He met with an enthusiastic reception from an immense crowd of people, which proclaimed him "the peacemaker."

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, April 17.—Trade continues to be quiet on the wool market, with a slight decrease in sales from that of the same week last year. The stock of old wools, however, has been considerably reduced, and there is a prospect of good trade when the new wools arrive. Australian wools are meeting with a good sale and the market holds firm in prices. The selling price for some of the leading descriptions are: Ohio and Pennsylvania, XX and above, 16@17c.; X and above, 15½@16c.; delaine, 18@19c.; unwashed, 11@12c.; X Michigan, 14½@15c.; No. 1 Michigan combing, 19@20c.; Michigan unwashed, 10@10½c.; X N. ALL THEIR OWN WAY.

Japanese Get About All That They Demanded From China.

Russia Threatens to Make Trouble For Victors.

The Treaty of Peace as Analyzed at Our Own National Capital.

TIEN TSIN, April 17.—An imperial edict has been issued authorizing Li Hung Chang to sign the terms of peace in accordance with the Japanese ultimatum. The indemnity to be paid by China is 200,000,000 taels.

The edict further authorizes Li Hung Chang to grant possession of the Liao Tung peninsula to the 40th degree of latitude and the island of Formosa to the Japanese, also to consent to the opening of Pekin and four new ports to commerce and to give the Japanese power to open cotton factories and other industries in China.

The decree further provides that the imperial dues at the open ports shall not exceed 2 per cent.

Growl Not Unexpected.

VIENNA, April 17.—The inspired St. Petersburg correspondent of The Politische Correspondenz declares that a conflict between Russia and Japan is inevitable if the published defails of the Chinese-Japansee treaty of peace are correct.

Speculation as to Results.

WASHINGTON, April 17. — Official confirmation of the press reports of the signing of a treaty of peace between the plenipotentiaries of Japan and China was received by Secretary Gresham late yesterday. It came from Minister Dun at Tokio and was very brief, merely stating that a treaty of peace had been finally concluded.

It is doubted whether the indemnity has been brought down as low as $100,000,000 in gold. As to the territory which Japan is to possess it is understood that aside from Formosa, which is absolutely ceded, the remainder of the seaboard will be subject only to temporary occupation, probably until all of the indemnity has been paid.

This would leave Japan in temporary possession of the entire Laotung peninsula, from Port Arthur, at the southern extremity, clear up to Moukden, the capital of Manchuria, on the north, and from the Liao river, on which New Chwang is situated, on the west, to the Corean border on the east. This territory amounts to about 37,000 square miles, and is populated by about 2,000,000 people.

The report of a condition that there shall be an alliance, offensive and defensive, between Japan and China, is not credited in Japanese circles, where it is not believed to have been even suggested. It is said that the feeling between the two peoples is so hostile, and the differences of government and habit are so pronounced, that, even if such a stipulation were included, it would not be expected to have any great binding force should China hereafter be able to find a powerful ally among the European powers.

On the other hand, some of the diplomatic body here are inclined to believe that the alliance has really been made with an earnest purpose to execute it. They see in it the realization of the prophecy of eminent scholars, recently made, that these two nations would eventually combine against Occidental methods and commerce, and therewith would be "the Orient for the Orientals."

Li Hung Chang is said to have entertained a strong conviction (which he has concealed from prudential motives) as to the wisdom of such a combination, believing that by a close alliance with Japan China would secure an army strong in military prowess, while Japan would secure in return practical control of the greatest trading people of the East.

Of course such a consummation at this time would mean the destruction of European commercial interests in the Orient, and it may be that strong opposition will soon develop on the part of some of the powers to this feature of the agreement.

It is noted, by the way, that this treaty is not final in all respects, but simply a preliminary agreement, indicating on broad lines the ultimate terms of the definite treaty of peace, which may not be perfected for months to come.

Through British Spectacles.

LONDON, April 17.—In an editorial this morning The Times says that it is possible that the indemnity China is to pay Japan, according to the terms of the peace convention, is £100,000,000 instead of $100,000,000, as reported from Shanghai, though the first mentioned sum, the paper says, would be a crushing fine.

Continuing, The Times says that the third clause of the convention, that providing the retention by Japan of the territory she has conquered east of the Liao river, probably refers to Hai-Chow, in the province of Kiangsu and the island of Yuchow, which it was reported the Japanese had occupied before the armistice was declared.

The sixth cause, providing for an offensive and defensive alliance between Japan and China is, The Time declares, a vague term which will mean nothing for Japan beyond what suits her convenience. It is possible that this clause covers nothing more than some commercial agreement, which will undoubtedly include "favored nation" treatment from China. The editorial concludes with the statement that speculation as to the remote consequences of the Eastern upheaval would be very unprofitable.

The Chronicle declares that an offensive and defensive alliance between China and Japan is impossible. It would be a defiance to Europe and a danger to the world.

The Standard takes it for granted that Japan will have to submit the draft of the peace treaty to the European powers, just as Russia did after the war with Turkey.

"Shy" Returns.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 17.—Collector Shearer announces that 875 persons in the Ninth Pennsylvania internal revenue district have made returns that their incomes exceed $3500, while 400 others swore that they were not subject to the income tax. This district comprises 15 counties. The returns are regarded as remarkably small for a big and wealthy district like this.

Flanagan Jury Disagrees.

EL PASO, Tex., April 17.—The jury in the case against ex-Collector Webster Flanagan, charged with conspiring to smuggle sheep from Mexico, failed to agree. The case is continued till next term.

COMMUNION DENIED

Catholics of Manitoba Who Favor Abolishment of Parochial Schools.

WINNIPEG, April 17.—Nothing since the beginning of the Catholic school struggle in this country has created a greater sensation than the announcement of Archbishop Langevan that those Catholics who henceforth lend their aid and influence to those who would abolish Catholic parochial schools will be excommunicated.

Many prominent Catholics have, during the struggle of the church, expressed themselves in favor of a national school system, and among these the announcement has created the greatest consternation. At first it was thought to be simply a move on the part of the archbishop, but it is now understood that Archbishop Langevan received a papal encyclical on the subject.

This encyclical reviews the entire matter, and points out that the case in the United States and Canada is not analagous. In Canada, and particularly in Manitoba, it points out that Catholic schools were guaranteed by treaty and by constitution, while no such guarantee was given in the states. The parochial schools belong to Manitoba Catholics by right, it declares, and on this ground it affirms that the Catholics who continue to lend their aid to those who would take away these rights shall not be received into communion with the church.

Escaped Robber Caught.

HOBOKEN, N. J., April 17.—Train Robber Oliver Perry, who, with four other convicts, escaped last Wednesday from the Mattewan (N. Y.) asylum for the criminal insane, was arrested at Weehawken yesterday. Perry is now in the Hudson county jail awaiting the arrival of New York state officials. As he is a fugitive from justice, extradition proceedings are unnecessary, and he will be surrendered to the proper officials on application.

British Domain Stretched.

SIMLA, April 17. — Colonel Kelly defeated the enemy and relieved the British garrison which had been surrounded at Mastuj for 18 days. This means the ultimate stretching of British dominion, or at least British right of control, right up to the roof of the world, to the furthest point they can reach without trenching on Russian territory.

Voices of Silverites.

DENVER, April 17. — General A. J. Warner, in an interview, stigmatizes President Cleveland's financial letter as a dishonest representation of facts which contained an apprehension of defeat. Mr. Sibley said that the letter was a string of glittering generalities and empty words. James B. Weaver characterizes the letter as stupid.

Faure's Liberal Views.

ROUEN, April 17.—President Faure arrived here yesterday. Replying to the address of the archbishop, who represented the clergy, the president said: "The flag of the republic is large enough to cover all Frenchmen. There is room enough for all well-meaning citizens, whatever be their religion."

Good Bye!

ABSOLUTELY PURE

—The California courts have sustained the complaint of a young woman who brought a suit for damages for slander against a clergyman, who in prayer before his congregation asked the Lord to cleanse her from all sin and make her worthy of the position which she held as librarian of the Los Angeles Public Library. The clergyman took the position that his supplication was privileged, but the court held that a slander can be perpetrated in the form of a prayer as readily as in any other form of speech.

MET INSTANT DEATH.

Arthur Seelye Lost His Balance and Plunged Over a Precipice.

His Head Completely Covered With Wounds.

A Pleasure Tramp Over Mount Tom Which Ended In Death.

NORTHAMPTON, April 18.—The body of Arthur Seelye, son of President Seelye of Smith college, was found on the Easthampton end of Mt. Tom by Patrick McVey, who was at the head of the East hampton searching party. The body was caught by a slender tree trunk on the steep precipitous side of the mountain.

Seelye left home Monday forenoon for a tramp over the mountain to see the spring freshets. He reached the top of the mountain, and had gone out to the edge of the ledge which overhangs the precipice on th east end.

Farmer Lampson, who lives near the foot of the mountain, saw some one standing there about noon throwing stones over the cliff.

Probably young Seelye lost his balance and fell over the 300-foot high precipice. The body fell 100 feet at least, and was caught by the tree. This precipice is almost perpendicular.

The Search.

Searchers went out Tuesday, and yesterday morning Mayor Kimball had a call rung in on the fire alarm, and a party of about 100 men hurried off to the mountain. The mayor, President Seelye, a score of prominent professional men and others were among the number.

Three Easthampton parties were also out, and one of the rubber mills there shut down so that its employes could join in the search. A hundred Amherst boys came up in the morning and were well started up the mountain when they were recalled by a messenger.

The body reached Northampton on the train about 2 o'clock, and was taken to Undertaker R. E. Edwards' room. Medical Examiner Seymour there examined it. He found the head and face terribly mutilated and bruised.

Death Was Instantaneous,

as a hemorrhage at the right ear indicates. This also indicates a fracture at the base of the brain. The whole top of the head and the face are covered with gaping wounds.

It appears that young Seelye took no luncheon with him and was lightly dressed, for he expected hard work on his tramping and had intended returning at night. He was in the habit of going on long walks and frequently walked 25 miles in a day.

Young Seelye was 25 years old. He graduated at Amherst in the class of '94, and was taking a post-graduate course at Harvard. He was at home for a few days' vacation.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 18.—In the senate the bill amending the charter of the city of Lawrence was opposed by the Democratic senators, on the ground that it was "a steal" and engineered by politicians. The gas commissioners made their report to the senate on their investigation into the affairs of the Brookline Gas company, with especial reference to the "Boston contract." The report relates to the discovery by the commissioners of certain "irregularities" in bookkeeping, which were not strictly in accordance with the rules of the commission, but these have since been corrected to comply with the law of 1886. The house had an exciting debate on the bill to put the Holyoke police under the control of a commission appointed by the governor. The bill was ordered to a third reading. In discussing the bill appropriating $300,000 for the continuance of the work on state highways, an amendment increasing the amount to $400,000 was adopted, and the bill engrossed in concurrence with the senate.

No Further Danger.

BOSTON, April 18.—The freshet has reached its culmination, and in almost all parts of New England the waters of the rivers and streams are slowly receding within their ordinary boundaries. The Connecticut at Brattleboro and Bellows Falls, Vt., fell several feet, and there is now little anxiety regarding the great mass of logs which broke away Monday at McIndoes Falls. The farm lands up and down the valley are so widely submerged that a large financial loss for the farmers is estimated on account of the drifting in of sand and debris. The effect of the freshets up north are being felt with increasing force around Springfield, and the overflow of the Connecticut has few precedents.

Bloody Shirt Unearthed.

EAST THOMPSON, Conn., April 18.—State Attorney Hunter, with a posse of officers, examined the old Spashkowith farmhouse, yesterday, in search of some clew to the supposed murder of Rosa Spashkowith and her son. The cellar beneath the old house was spaded over, and buried beneath one of the walls was found a bloody shirt. The search will be continued, and the officers are confident of securing evidence enough to fix the responsibility for the sudden disappearance of Rosa and her boy upon Jerry Spashkowith.

Spinners and Weavers Not Needed.

PROVIDENCE, April 18.—Superintendent Lougee of the Atlantic mills admits that the company has made arrangements for the importation of "gray goods," which can be furnished cheaper than the goods can be made at the Atlantic mills. The unfinished goods will be finished at Olneyville. Spinners and weavers will not be needed in this work. They will, however, be given an opportunity to go to work Monday. If they refuse, Lougee says, then the mills will do without spinners or weavers.

To "Discipline" Recalcitrants.

BOSTON, April 18.—At a special meeting of the Democratic city committee last night the committee appointed to revise the rules and bylaws submitted a lengthy report, which was adopted with slight amendments. The most important change is a new rule disciplining members of the party who will not abide by the rules of the city committee. The rule is especially aimed at the independent Democrats who led the revolt last fall.

Cashier Pleads Guilty.

BOSTON, April 18.—In the superior criminal court yesterday, Sidney W. Sprague retracted his plea of not guilty to the indictment charging him with the embezzlement of $53,000 from Freeland, Loomis & Co. He thereupon pleaded guilty to the sixth and seventh counts, covering embezzlements amounting to $2300. He was the cashier for this concern for many years. He will be sentenced about May 1.

What Autopsy Disclosed.

BOSTON, April 18.—"I am of opinion," says Medical Examiner Draper, "that Alice M. Sterling came to her death by a fracture of the skull and injury to the brain, the effects of blows on the head." This report has been made by the medical examiner to the district attorney, as a result of the autopsy held by the medical examiner on the body of little Alice Sterling.

Pawtucket Labor Demonstration.

PAWTUCKET, April 18.—Three hundred men participated in a labor demonstration in this city last night, which was as successful as any ever held in Pawtucket. A procession was made up of the various unions of the city. At Infantry hall a free entertainment was followed by addresses by labor leaders. The lockout at Olneyville was the principal topic.

Changes Needed.

CAMBRIDGE, April 18. — The Harvard sophomore crew took their first spin in their new "rocker" shell yesterday afternoon. This shell is built on entirely new lines. Its chief characteristics are its broad flat stern and its overhanging bow and stern. The shell made a good impression, but changes will be made in the rigging before it is tried again.

LI'S WISH FULFILLED

By Chinese Empire's Removal of Barriers to Civilization.

European Press Widely Differs In Opinions.

Some Newspapers See Further Complications, Others Predict Peace.

VIENNA, April 18.—It is unusual to combine a treaty of peace with a treaty of alliance, and it is probable, therefore, that a separate treaty not destined for publication has been signed by the Japanese and Chinese representatives.

Whether or not the treaty takes the form of an offensive and defensive alliance matters little, since it is known that Li Hung Chang has always wanted to open his country to European civilization. It is not likely that he would let slip such an opportunity of doing so with the aid of Japan.

Armistice Extended.

A dispatch from Kobe says that the Japanese refuse to disclose the terms upon which peace has been arranged with China until the treaty is ratified, which must be within three weeks. The armistice, therefore, is extended to May 8.

Viceroy Li Hung Chang and his suite left Shimonoseki yesterday on their return to China.

Seven newspapers of Tokio have been suppressed, and an imperial ordinance will shortly be promulgated adopting stringent measures against disaffection.

A Berlin dispatch says, in reference to the Chinese edict that the import duties at the open ports shall not exceed 2 per cent, that a commutation duty of 2 per cent on the original cost of imports into China represents, to all intents and purposes, a differential duty against Europe in favor of Japan.

A dispatch from Hong Kong says it is reported that the cession by China of the island of Formosa to Japan dissatisfies the British there. The dispatch adds that the Chinese soldiers threaten to kill their commanders if the island is ceded.

A dispatch from Hong Kong says it is expected there that a revolution against the reigning dynasty will be begun. The leading Chinese of Canton are coming to Hong Kong in large numbers.

London Press Comment.

The Pall Mall Gazette says the concession of Formosa will surely displease England, while the cession of Port Arthur will be objected to by Russia. Our government, The Gazette says, may safely be depended upon to do nothing, however, unless the other powers take action.

The Times says it presumes that the independence of Corea means a more or less thorough Japansee protectorate. It adds that when the exact terms of the treaty are known, European diplomacy will probably make a show of considering them, but if the Japanese refuse, as they probably will, to listen to diplomatic exhortations, it is difficult to conceive that any more effective interference with their plans need be seriously apprehended.

The St. James' Gazette says if Japan declines to be frightened, Russia may come to the conclusion that she would better not try force. Meanwhile England is benevolent and has no feeling of anger toward Japan. The opening of factories in China by Japan does not mean that she will have a monopoly of such industries, as England could also open factories if she chose.

"Europe Must Protect Her Interests."

BERLIN, April 18.—The National Zeitung declares that all nations interested in commerce in China must lose no time in protecting their interests against a treaty which will completely paralyze European competition as against Japan. All the papers agree that in regard to the territorial concession Russia has the first voice.

Advantageous to the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The small redemptions of government paper money during the first half of April and the cessation of exports of gold from the United States strengthen the feeling which has prevailed at the treasury department since the making of the bond contract that confidence in the stability of the currency was substantially restored upon the announcement of the contract.

Brussels Carpets.

Our Spring stock is particularly strong in Brussels, of self-colored designs, or two or three tones of colorings, with border to match. The same may be said of our assortment of Wiltons, for that matter.

Our line of these goods is unquestionably larger than that of any other Boston or New England dealer — very likely on a par with any house in New York, even.

We have for years made a specialty of exclusive styles, which are owned by us, and cannot be obtained elsewhere.

The present tariff (which only went into full effect Jan. 1) has combined with other causes to greatly lower the prices of all carpets, whether foreign or domestic.

DEATH IN THE AIR.

A changeable climate is the most exciting cause of pneumonia. The mild to-day, cold to-morrow, weather is a prolific breeder of the disease. It is contracted by exposure to wet and inclement weather, from standing or sitting with cold feet; by going from hot and over-crowded rooms into the keen night air, and by sitting in draughts.

The proper way to treat pneumonia is to prevent its development.

Have a care that you are sufficiently clad to meet inclement and changeable weather. See that the wet feet and exposure to draughts do not result in cold. If a cold is contracted check it at once before pneumonia is developed; for it is a well known fact that a protracted cough may suddenly develop into pneumonia, with a slight additional cold. Don't let the disease make any headway. Fortify the system against it by rich, nutritious, liquid food. This can be accomplished in no other way so well as by the liberal use of Ozomulsion, an ozonized preparation of Cod Liver Oil with Guaiacol, prepared by T. A. Slocum Co., New York, and sold by all Druggists. Taken early, when the first symptoms of the cold appear, it cures it promptly and prevents the development of pneumonia. It is a rich, liquid food, and it is a well known fact that strong food is the most formidable foe of pneumonia. It keeps the blood well nourished and puts the tissues in such a condition that they throw off the cold and thus resist the disease.

CONCERTS, MINSTRELS, LECTURE

Most of Them Largely Attended and a Success.

Seldom is there as much going on in one night in our city as last evening, and it is a wonder that so many were successful. Briefly summarized they were as follows:

Concert, First church.
Minstrels, Universalist vestry.
Esther, Faxon hall.
Lecture, Presbyterian church.
Placer Gold, St. Mary's hall.
Benefit, Music hall.
Rehearsal of Elijah.
Reports of each follow:

Concert, First Church.

There was a full house at the concert in the Unitarian chapel, Wednesday evening, and Mrs. Stetson, under whose direction it was given scored a big financial success which will probably net the church over one hundred dollars. The artistic success was due to the efforts of Mrs. Blackmur who arranged the programme.

Selections by a ladies' quartette opened and closed the programme; the sopranos were Mrs. Blackmur and Mrs. Hunting; the contraltos, Miss Chittenden and Miss Everett. These ladies also appeared in solos, duetts and trios, and were liberally applauded, Miss Chittenden responding to an encore.

Mr. Hobbs was on the programme for two solos, and was recalled once. Mr. Porter of Quincy is always a favorite and his numbers captivated all. The musical dialogue of Mr. Porter and Mrs. Blackmur was the hit of the evening, but the individual star was Mr. Wellington whose strong bass solos always called for a second selection. The selection of the mixed quartette was much enjoyed.

Queen Esther at Faxon Hall.

It was not a large audience that greeted the first production of Esther the Beautiful Queen at Faxon hall, Wednesday evening, but what the audience lacked in numbers it made up in enthusiasm, and a crowd may be expected tonight.

Mrs. Fred E. Drake impersonated Queen Esther in a very creditable manner and her solos and duets with Mordecai and Ahasuerus were finely rendered.

Other characters in the cantata were taken as follows:

King Ahasuerus,	Henry C Hayden
Haman,	George W Stover
Zeresh,	Mrs Walter M Packard
Mordecai,	E Carson Mason
Mordecai's sister,	Miss Mae D MacKay
Prophetess,	Miss Leila O Moxon
High Priest,	William Mitchell
Scribe,	C H Page
Queen's attendants,	Misses Ruth Bassett and Beatrice Briggs
King's page,	Master Linde Fowler
Guards,	Charles A Tanner, Charles A Jameson, F K Belcher, William E Howard

These were ably supported by a large chorus of court attendants, Persians and Jews.

Miss Eloise Perry Flood was accompanist, and the whole was under the direction of Mr. George W. Stover.

The cantata abounds in many beautiful scenes, particularly so the appeal of Mordecai to Esther to go unto the King, and the appeal for mercy to Esther by Haman and Zeresh, and the parting of Haman and Zeresh.

Another pretty scene was the banquet in act four, where the Queen's attendants execute a very pretty dance.

It would be hard to select any one character as being better impersonated than another, although particular mention should be made of Haman, Ahasuerus Mordecai, Zeresh and Mordecai's sister.

The proceeds are for the organ fund of St. Chrysostom church at Wollaston.

Placer Gold Drama.

A large gathering greeted the first night of the drama "Placer Gold" at St. Mary's hall, West Quincy, Wednesday evening. The several characters in the drama were impersonated by local talent among whom were: T. D. McGrath, J. J. Reardon, C. G. Mullen, T. Shea, J. C. Dorgan, R. Callahan, W. Walsh, Josephine Barry, Alice Foley, Nellie Farrell, Katherine McGrath, Gertrude B. Boyd.

Besides the above there was "Tula Rice" the baby Carmencita of Boston in songs and dances, and the Granite City quartette composed of J. J. Carroll, W. H. Crotly, C. Barron and E. F. McDevitt.

The drama will be repeated this evening, and will be followed by dancing.

Benefit at Atlantic.

A grand testimonial concert was tendered to Mrs. Jane Cunningham, at Music hall, Atlantic, Wednesday evening, which was largely attended.

The entertainment consisted of selections by an orchestra; solos by Miss Edith F. Castle, contralto, and readings by Miss Agnes B. Yale of the New England Conservatory of Music; duets by Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Briggs, and selections by a Glee club from the manual training school of Cambridge.

The concert was an excellent one and was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience who showed their appreciation by frequent applause.

A Fine Entertainment

The Universalist vestry was crowded last evening to enjoy a minstrel entertainment, given by home talent, in a very acceptable and jolly manner. Great credit is do Mrs. Frank Hobart, who managed the affair most successfully. The ushers were sweet young misses dressed in white, who politely showed the audience their seats. The programme was as follows:

PART FIRST.

Opening chorus, J. Ed. Lakeman
"Ise Going Up Yonder to de Sky," [H. J. Ballow
Miss Alice Litchfield.
"Hide Behind the Door," Mrs. A. C. Craig.
"Shout Brethren," F. K. Krut
E. H. Martin.
"Song of Whip-poor-will," C A. White
Chorus.
"Malinda Jane," J. Ed. Lakeman
Miss A. M. Nash.
Solo, Selected
W. H. Hersey.
"Alabama Coon," Hattie Star
Mrs. F. H. Stoddard.
Closing Chorus, J. W. Wheeler
The Colored Four Hundred.

PART SECOND.

Song, Selected
Mr. H. F. Nye
Stump speech,
Mr. Munroe Perry.
Banjo Duett,
Messrs. Craig and Perry.
Song,
Miss Amy M. Nash.
Reading,
Mrs. Agnes H. Young.
Song, Selected
Miss Alice Litchfield.

Rev. C. F. Clarke gave the concluding lecture Wednesday evening at the Presbyterian church, taking for his subject, "Highways and Byways of Ancient Palestine." The lecture was profusely illustrated.

Y. P. S. C. E. Convention.

The annual convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., of Norfolk county will be held at the Congregational church Friday afternoon and evening.

District Secretary L. B. Bard will preside and the afternoon will commence at 2 o'clock by a praise service, followed by scripture reading and prayer, and an address of welcome by Albert L. Hayden, president of the Y. P. S. C. E.

A business meeting will follow. There will also be a Junior Endeavor hour with recitations, etc., and exercises by the Quincy Junior society under the direction of Miss Baxter.

There will also be addresses on "Conquest by the closet and the cross" by Rev. C. H. Spalding of Cambridge, and "Always One's Best" by Miss A. G. Tillson, of Attleboro. The afternoon services will close by Committee Conferences and leaders.

In the evening the exercises will consist of praise service, prayer, business meeting and addresses by Rev. J. M. Louden, Boston, trustee of the U. S. C. E., and William Shaw, treasurer of the U. S. C. E.

It is expected over 500 members will be in attendance.

THEY'RE OFF!

Crack Ball Tossers Will Today Try Conclusions on Many Diamonds.

BOSTON, April 18.—This afternoon the annual championship race of the National League will commence, and the battle, which ends on Sept. 30, promises to be one of the best in the history of the game.

The strong teams are no stronger than they were a year ago, but the weaker ones have built from the minor leagues, and the race may not be devoid of some startling features.

The opening day finds Brooklyn at New York, Philadelphia at Baltimore, Cleveland at Cincinnati, Pittsburg at Louisville and Chicago at St. Louis. Boston will not play until tomorrow, when the Washingtons will play here.

If one is to believe the newspapers, every one of the league teams is in the very best of physical condition, but it is 10 chances to 1 that, after a few defeats, some one of the teams will be bound to have a weak spot somewhere.

DURANT'S CASE.

Public Opinion Takes a Turn in Favor of the Suspected Man.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—The Emanuel church murders are still the main topic of discussion on every side in this city. Notwithstanding the fact that one or two newspapers have tried and convicted Theodore Durant of the frightful crime, there seems to be a reaction in favor of the accused young man. The evidence so far against him is only circumstantial, and while the police say they have enough evidence to convict 10 men, it is doubtful if any jury would find Durant guilty unless further conclusive proof is furnished.

The young man does not act like a guilty man, and if he did commit the crime, he is certainly a man of remarkable nerve. He continues to assert his innocence, and his whole demeanor is that of a man confident of proving it when the time comes.

Transforming Egyptian History.

EDINBURGH, April 18.—In a lecture delivered before the Edinburgh Royal society, Professor Petrie, the distinguished Egyptologist, declared that recent excavations made in the district 30 miles north of Thebes pointed to the existence 3000 years before Christ of a race quite distinct from the Egyptians. This race were probably the people who overthrew Egyptian civilization at the close of the old kingdom. Who they were and whence they came were uncertain, but the indications suggested that they were a branch of the same eastward migration of the Libyans which founded the Amorite race in Syria.

Late News From Cuba.

HAVANA, April 18.—Colonel Echevaria, who fought the insurgents at Ciego de Rioja, came across the same band in the Las Mascones mountains and dispersed the rebels, killing two of them and wounding three. General Arderius took possession of the acting captain general's office here yesterday. The troops which arrived on Tuesday have been sent to Oporto and to Gibara.

Particularly Significant.

CHICAGO, April 18.—The uncertainty of the Democratic party of Illinois on the silver question was further emphasized yesterday by the action of ex-Judge McConnell in coming out in an extended interview as an out and out advocate of the free coinage of silver. McConnell holds a prominent position in the councils of his party, and is said to have his eye on the gubernatorial nomination.

Cyclist Johnson Under the Ban.

PHILADELPHIA, April 18. — John S Johnson, the bicyclist, was suspended from the League of American Wheelmen yesterday by order of Chairman Gideon, who refused to state what the charges are. Johnson will be given 30 days in which to answer the charges. It is generally understood that the charge upon which he has been dropped is professionalism.

An Affair of Honor.

PARIS, April 18.—A duel with swords was fought between two well-known writers, Jules Huret and Catulle Mendez, arising from the allegation that the former connected the latter's name with that of Oscar Wilde. Mendez, who is a well-known French author and dramatist, was slightly wounded.

Willoughby's Wonderful Work.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—The first experiment ever made in telegraphing of pictures for a long distance was made by The Call, when an outline picture was wired from Los Angeles to this city. The experiment was successful. Charles Willoughby of this city is the inventor of the scheme.

Placing the Blame.

TORONTO, April 18.—As a result of the recent Simpson fire, which entailed a loss of about $1,000,000, Alexander McKee and Joseph Scott were yesterday placed under arrest. Scott and McKee were employed with the Holmes Protection, Police and Fire Patrol company.

Tyler's Management Doesn't Suit.

LONDON, April 18.—The committee of the stockholders of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada has issued a report virtually condemning the management of President Tyler and inviting proxies in favor of inviting Charles R. Wilson to accept the presidency.

No Hope For Buchanan.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The supreme court of the United States has denied the application of Robert W. Buchanan of New York for a writ of error and supersedeas, and, unless Governor Morton interferes, Buchanan will be executed on Monday next.

Justly Punished.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 18.—M. L. Denlinger, whose printing office was raided, and several wagonloads of obscene literature removed, was yesterday sentenced to pay a fine of $1000 and undergo an imprisonment of three years.

Telegraph Companies' Rights.

CHICAGO, April 18.—The federal court, to which was referred a case brought by the city involving the use of streets by a telegraph company, has decided in favor of the latter.

A Choctaw Uprising.

GUTHRIE, O. T., April 18.—A revolution is progressing in the Choctaw Nation. Governor Mosley is said to be in imminent danger. Details of the affair are lacking.

Now For Business.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Bob Fitzsimmons says that he has raised the $5000 forfeit which he must put up on May 1 for the fight with Corbett.

The debate was continued for lack of time. Miss Mary Pitts, Miss Ramsey, Miss Rothwell and Mr. Warshaw spoke effectively.

TODAY'S COURT.

Thomas H. Harvey of Braintree was fined $5 for drunkenness.

Sabratore Daetolo was fined $5 for peddling fruit without a license at Weymouth.

Eugene M. Moran of Weymouth pleaded guilty to selling intoxicating liquor without a license to Daniel O'Meara. Case continued for sentence until June 1.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Carnegie's Generous Gift.

PITTSBURG, April 18.—The Commercial Gazette announces that Andrew Carnegie has donated $100,000 to build a monument to Mrs. Mary E. Schenly of London. The monument is to be erected under the triumphal arch at the entrance to the park of 460 acres which Mrs. Schenly presented to this city and which bears her name.

Well Known to Cyclists.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Robert Centre, one of the best known men in the social life of this city, died last night from the effect of an accident received yesterday afternoon while riding his bicycle, when he was knocked down and run over by a passing coal wagon. Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

Another Victory for Adams.

The Academy nine won its second game Wednesday afternoon, defeating the Graduates of the school by a score of 17 to 10. For the first three innings the game was very loosely played by both teams, but after that the playing was better.

For the Graduates, H. Porter pitched a very good game. Hall did some excellent base-running, and scored the largest number of times for his side. Two of the Academy substitutes, Hayward and Jones, played on the side of the Graduates Hayward doing good work in the field.

For Adams, the in-field work during the first half of the game was poor and showed need of practice. The team showed a lack of snap. Kent's catch of a difficult running fly was the best play of the game. Rippey also made an excellent throw to home-base, thereby shutting out a run. Hall, Holden and Linfield did the best batting.

There will be another game tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock with the Pansies.

TAKING CHANCES.

WOMEN ARE CARELESS.

They Over-Estimate Their Physical Strength. Advice to Young Women.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Women are very apt to over-estimate their strength and overtax it.

When they are feeling particularly well, they sometimes take chances which in the long run cause them much pain and trouble. This is due largely to their not fully realizing how delicate their sensitive organism is.

The girl who has just become a woman can hardly be expected to act wisely, everything is so new to her. She, however, should be told; and every woman should realize that to be well her "monthly periods" should be regular. Wet feet, or a cold from exposure, may suppress or render irregular and fearfully painful the menses, and perhaps sow the seed for future ill health.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will ever be the unfailing remedy in such cases as well as all the peculiar ailments of women. Millions of women live to prove this. Mrs. M. L. Verrill tells plainly what it has done for her:—

"I will write you a few lines to tell you what my troubles were before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It was the same old story,—my back and lower part of my abdomen and painful menstruation. Of course it was female weakness. The doctors (I have tried five different ones) called it chronic inflammation of the womb.

"I had leucorrhœa for over eight years, ulcers on the neck of the womb, terrible headaches and backaches. Your medicine completely cured me." — MRS. M. L. VERRILL, 228 Newell Ave., Pawtucket, R.I.

TERRIBLE SACRIFICES

Will Be Made by Armenians In an Effort to Secure Freedom.

Revolutionary Party Has Both Money and Guns.

Helpless Women and Children Expected to Be the Greatest Sufferers.

LONDON, April 18.—The following correspondence, dated March 15, has just been received from Armenia:

As a result of my investigations, I am in a position to say that the Armenian question will soon reach an acute and painful crisis. Goaded into frenzy by tyranny and continued injustice, and furious with grief and rage over the awful butchery at Sassoun, Armenia has resolved to strike a blow which shall mean freedom or extermination. Christian blood will be avenged in Moslem blood before the snow of Sassoun gives up its dead.

In fact, Armenia is preparing for war. The revolutionary party has now both money and guns. During the past eight weeks money has poured into the revolutionary treasury in a steady stream from many Armenian colonies. The money raised publicly has been obtained by means of balls, socials, theatrical performances and lotteries. The affairs were more successful than anything of the kind ever known before in the communities where they were held. The willingness to contribute money and the enthusiasm for the cause were everywhere so manifest that one could not doubt their sincerity.

A General Uprising.

The central idea of the plan of campaign is a general uprising of Armenians throughout the Turkish empire some time during the month of May. The leaders have promised the people in the eastern part of Armenia that the chief attack will be made on the city of Constantinople itself, and that the brunt of the fighting will be borne by the Armenians resident therein.

The leaders have even gone so far as to declare that the first attack will be on the palace of the sultan, and the reign of Hamid will come to a sudden end. There are men who believe that in the overthrow of Hamid the Armenians will be encouraged by the younger and more progressive generation of Constantinople Turks.

It is a very easy matter to buy guns at Tiflis, as there are numerous gunshops and nearly every human being goes armed, contrary to Russian law, which, in the Caucasus region, is a dead letter. As nine-tenths of the business houses in Tiflis are owned by Armenians, there should be no difficulty of sending even large shipments of arms into Armenia. The only real difficulty in the way of equipping Armenians with guns and ammunition is the raising of the purchase money, and there is no doubt now that the revolutionary leaders have a very substantial fund on hand.

Going Back to Armenia.

A very significant circumstance is that Sassoun refugees at Etchmiadzin are prepared to return to Armenia. Moreover, they are going back with guns in their hands. The spiritual comfort which the refugees received at Etchmiadzin was supplemented by Martini-Henry rifles and a supply of Russian cartridges.

To the one who considers this movement by the tangible facts alone, it has the appearance of unutterable madness. For a handful of untrained Armenians to deliberately begin a fight with the regular troops of the Turkish empire is folly too colossal for human conception; yet one must take into account the underlying motives of the revolutionary leaders before passing final judgment.

The purpose is not to bring Turkey to terms in a fair fight, but to secure a settlement of the quarrel by the intervention of the European powers. Before the revolution is three months old, the powers, it is believed, will be compelled to interfere, for the cruelty, atrocity, outrage, blood-lust and butchery of the struggle will be so unthinkably horrible that Christian humanity will rise in wrath and demand that it cease. Then Armenia, it is hoped, may get her freedom, and the Turkish empire may be torn limb from limb and thrown piecemeal to its expectant neighbors.

Thus there is a possibility that what the Crusaders of old failed to do may be done now, and that Palestine, the birthplace of Christianity, may at last come into the possession of a Christian nation. The revolutionary leaders are not looking as far as Palestine, however. They will be content with Armenian independence and revenge for the blood of Sassoun and the martyrs of Erzingen.

Vengeance Must Be Satisfied.

"The dead of Erzingen," they declare, "cry aloud for vengeance. But it will be the helpless women and children who will suffer most. They will be outraged, tortured and butchered by thousands, and the mountain streams will run red with their blood."

The revolutionary leaders expect that it will be so, and in fact they count upon it as the chief factor in the success of their cause, for the red horror and the awfulness of it all will compel the Christian powers to interfere.

To what extent the plans of the revolutionary leaders are approved of by the Armenian people at large it is difficult to tell. I am quite certain that they are not known at all to the poor wretches whose wives and daughters and sisters are to be sacrificed upon the altar of Armenian freedom. If they know, they would be the last persons on earth to consent to any such arrangement.

It is only common charity for us to suppose that the revolutionary party bears the same relation to distressed Armenia as the surgeon bears to the patient. The surgeon knows that he must inflict great pain and even torture upon his patient in order that good may follow. So the revolutionary leaders know that to free Armenia from the dreadful condition to which she has sunk, they must surrender some of their fellow-countrymen to torture, outrage and death.

The Armenians are encouraged to believe that the revolutionary leaders have a secret understanding with the Russian government, but that is so unlikely that it need not be considered here, except as showing to what extent the people are kept in ignorance of the real purpose of the movement.

"PASSIVE BLOCKADE"

Will Probably Be the Extent of Great Britain's Move In Nicaragua.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Officials here profess to have no information as yet as to the instructions sent to British war vessels for the enforcement of the ultimatum against Nicaragua. Those in a position to understand the status of affairs, however, express the belief that the British instructions are on the following lines:

First—There shall be no exercise of force which will affect the commerce or interests of the United States or her citizens or any other foreign country.

Second—The exercise of force shall be confined to the execution of a "passive blockade" of Nicaraguan ports, according to the established rules for that maneuver.

The "passive blockade" is designed to cripple the intercommerce of Nicaragua, and yet to the foreign commerce to proceed as usual. It does not contemplate any overt act or seizure or detention of property. But the warships will bring to a standstill the local or coastwise trade, and keep it thus paralyzed until a satisfactory response is given. The merchant ships of the United States and other countries would be free to come and go, and care would be taken that no cause should be given for United States intervention on the ground that the United States interests were in jeopardy.

The last time this "passive blockade" was executed was against Greece, 10 years ago. At that time the allied powers of Europe, except France, agreed to suppress the action of Greece in beginning war on Turkey. The various countries sent warships, which blockaded Grecian ports and held all coast commerce in check until Greece yielded.

Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, was at the state department yesterday, but it was said the visit was not in reference to the Nicaraguan situation, as the British foreign office is dealing directly with Nicaragua.

Pugnacious Mr. Greenhut.

PEORIA, Ills., April 18.—The Whisky trust reorganization committee carried yesterday's annual stockholders' meeting of Distilling and Cattle Feed company by storm, and when they adjourned had deposed ex-President Greenhut, elected a full board of directors and empowered the board to take any necessary action toward recovering from the trust's late officials any property that may be due to the corporation. Before adjournment Greenhut superintended the serving of papers in 11 libel suits of $50,000 each. The ex-president made the session interesting by reading a decidedly warm annual report and by intimating that he intended to fight the new management to a finish.

The Chitral Campaign.

SIMLA, April 18.—The force commanded by Colonel Kelly, who are hastening to the relief of Chitral, reached Samoghar on April 12. While the pioneers attacked the breastworks in front, a detached party crept up the side of the hill and took the natives on the flank, driving them out of their defenses. The British loss in the engagement was six killed and 15 wounded. The enemy left behind them 50 dead and carried away a large number of wounded.

American Cattlemen Alarmed.

KANSAS CITY, April 18.—A special to The Journal from Eureka says there has been great excitement among cattlemen there during the past week, occasioned by the shipping in of Mexican cattle. Two thousand head were unloaded at Summit, 18 miles west of here last week, despite the protest of local stockmen and of the State Live Stock Sanitary commission. The cattle are now in quarantine, and another consignment is expected here tomorrow.

Followers Want Him to Remain.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Ex-Mayor Grace yesterday resigned the chairmanship of the executive committee of the Grace Democracy. Poor health and pressure of business are the reasons that he assigns. Resolutions were adopted regretting the action taken by Mr. Grace, and a request was made to try and induce him to reconsider.

Costly Fooling.

WORCESTER, April 18.—While playing with a revolver in a vacant lot on Tainter street, Charles Ollis, 12 years old, shot Frank Anderson, 7 years old, the bullet entering the face under the right eye. The bullet penetrated so deep that it could not be reached with a probe. It is believed that the boy will recover.

Reform Bills Will Pass.

NEW YORK, April 18.—"You can take my word for it, we shall pass all the New York city reform bills before we adjourn. That is certain," says Senator Lexow. If it really comes to pass as he predicts, it will be only because the Platt followers were unable to kill some of these bills.

The Reverse of New England.

AUSTIN, April 18.—Deplorable accounts of the condition of crops are received from all parts of this section of the state as a result of the unprecedented dry winter and spring. Water for stock everywhere is scarce, and will cease entirely in a few days without rain.

Glasgow Dynamiters Set Free.

LONDON, April 18.—The Evening News asserts that Home Secretary Asquith has secretly liberated the dynamiters McCann and Callaghan, who were imprisoned for blowing up a gasometer in Glasgow.

A Canadian Earthquake.

MONTREAL, April 18.—An earthquake shock, lasting about 15 seconds, was felt here yesterday, but did no damage. The same shock was experienced through all the eastern townships of Quebec.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 21. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—On guard—over what; how?—Neh. iv, 6-23. (A temperance topic.)

Nehemiah and his followers in rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem after their return from captivity are opposed by the allied forces of the surrounding heathen nations. They hoped to take them by surprise, but Nehemiah heard of their intentions and made preparations to meet and repulse his assailants. This may illustrate to us the necessity of being on guard against the enemies of our souls, and in the way that Nehemiah guarded himself so may we guard ourselves against the assaults of sin and satan.

1. We must be on guard over our souls. The enemies of Nehemiah were both from without and within. Without were the combined, angry, determined, wily leaders of the heathen armies about them. Within there was the opposition of the despondent and the discouraged laborers. In guarding the soul the Christian must meet the same kind of enemies. The enemies of the soul are without in the form of satan, sin, temptation, evil men, who are anxious to lead God's children astray, and in many other forms. Within are the doubts and discouragements that arise from the natural weakness of the human nature. We must keep guard over all these things if we save the soul from destruction. Then must also skill be displayed in guarding ourselves against the assaults that are made upon us. Nehemiah very carefully arranged everything to meet successfully the attack of the enemy against him. Tact and skill must be displayed in guarding ourselves against temptation and sin. We must know what are our weaknesses, that we may fortify them specially, for it is here that the most vigorous assaults will be made. We must understand ourselves; we must understand the enemy and be on constant guard.

2. How must we guard ourselves? 1. By prayer. Though Nehemiah had a strong, determined enemy against him, he was not discouraged, but first prayed unto God. Prayer is our strongest safeguard. The enemy may be numerous and strong, but God is strength both against numbers and might. He can give us strength to overcome the mightiest enemies if we but ask Him. He knows our foes. He understands our weaknesses. He desires our safety. He has promised to sustain us, and our hope should be in Him. 2. Watchfulness. The Jews not only prayed, but watched day and night. So we should habitually watch ourselves and the temptations and sins that easiest gain the victory over us. 3. Prayer and watchfulness. "Watch and pray," said Christ to His disciples. The two must be combined. Prayer aids watching, and watching aids prayer. Prayer alone is presumption; watchfulness alone is sinful self confidence. Both together insure safety and deliverance. "Watch," therefore, "unto prayer."

Chicago Endeavor Uniform.

Chicago Endeavorers will attend the international convention in large numbers and will wear a distinctive uniform. The following outfit is being considered by the enterprising sisters of the western metropolis and is copied from The Endeavorer News:

White sailor hats, with ribbon band of red, white and blue, in recognition of the state colors.

White waist, navy blue skirt, red Windsor tie.

Bow of red, white and blue on left shoulder, with streamer bearing the word "Chicago" upon the white, name of division upon the blue and "Y. P. S. C. E." upon the red. For the Mothers a similar bow of purple and white, with the initials "M. S. C. E."

Navy blue skirts, white waists, with navy blue bows on shoulders, bearing on one side "Chicago, '98," and on the other "Chicago For Christ."

Pay the Debt.

Forgiveness cannot make a sinner be or feel as if he had never sinned. There must be, in addition to forgiveness, an atonement for his sin, paying of the debt, before he can feel that the burden of his guilt is removed. Hence the necessity of the atonement made by Christ not to appease the wrath of God, but to bring relief to the soul of the penitent sinner. "Jesus paid it all, all the debt I owed," are the tidings that he must hear and believe before he can stand uncondemned and self justified before God.—Religious Telescope.

Verse Names For Juniors.

Each junior in your society should be able to spell his name in Bible verses—selecting, that is, a set of Bible verses that he has made peculiarly his own, the initials of which spell his own name. The children will delight in finding these verses and committing them to memory and will enjoy hearing each other repeat them.—Selected.

The Statue of the Perfect.

Patience, kindness, generosity, humility, courtesy, unselfishness, good temper, guilelessness, sincerity—these make up the supreme gift, the statue of the perfect.—Professor Drummond.

A Buried Grief.

So you are dead and gone, old Sorrow.
Only yesterday there you were,
Filling my heart with an aching care
Of grief for today and fear for tomorrow.
Now the skeleton's gone, and the cupboard's bare.

And in your stead is born, old Sorrow,
Hope, whose bright torch burns night to day
And makes winter bloom with the flowers of May Till even your memory seems to borrow
Bright hues because you have passed away.

Old grief, once I thought you could never cease.
Now I sing your requiem. Rest in peace!

Commemorate the Shot That Was Heard 'Round the World.

The Observance of Patriots' Day In Massachusetts.

Acton, Concord and Lexington Were the Centers of Attraction.

ACTON, Mass., April 20.—Acton was en fete and was the center of attraction for miles around. At an early hour in the morning fully 5000 gathered in the streets and on the common to participate in the celebration of Patriots' day, which opened with firing of cannon and the ringing of bells at 8 o'clock.

Soon after the Isaac Davis post, Grand Army, the old Concord post, and the "Old Six," a local military organization, proceeded to dedicate three bowiders on the outskirts of the town, which mark places of historical interest in the revolution. After the dedication they marched to Woodlawn cemetery and marked the graves of 100 revolutionary soldiers with the tablets of the Sons of the American Revolution.

At noon Governor Greenhalge and staff were received by a guard of honor at the railroad station and escorted to the town hall, where a banquet was served. Hon. Luther Conant presided and made the address of welcome. Governor Greenhalge responded and was followed by Congressman Boutelle of Maine, Secretary of State J. W. Olin, Councillor J. M. Harlow of Woburn, Senator George Burns of Ayer, Hon. Samuel Hoar of Concord, Captain Jack Adams, ex-commander-in-chief of the Grand Army, and others.

Among the invited guests were Luke Smith of Acton and J. Miller Edwards of Bristol, Conn., whose fathers took active part in the revolution. The gavel used on this occasion was a relic much admired, it being composed of pieces from the old "Ironsides" and the British man-of-war Somerset. The festivities were continued throughout the day and concluded with a promenade concert and ball.

At Boston.

BOSTON, April 20.—Patriot's day, Massachusetts' official observance of the anniversary of the battle on Lexington's green, was celebrated here in Boston by about all the people who have not made their pilgrimage to Lexington, Concord or Acton, where the most important events of the day took place.

At sunrise, at high noon and again at sunset the bells all over the city rang out patriotic peans. This was the extent of the municipal recognition of the day, but throughout the city and in the suburbs bicycle, yacht and athletic clubs of all degrees of prominence celebrated by indulging in their particular kinds of sport. The league baseball season opened this afternoon and an immense attendance marked the event.

In addition to the sports many historical, military and other societies held meetings, conventions, reunions, receptions, etc.

The Day at Lexington.

LEXINGTON, Mass., April 20.—The historic old town of Lexington, where the first gun of the revolutionary war, "the shot that was heard 'round the world," was fired 120 years ago, actively engaged in observing Patriots' day, the anniversary of the Battle of Lexington. At sunrise, the day was ushered in with ringing of bells and a salute. Strangers poured into the town from every direction and the streets were soon crowded with the throng. During the day several band concerts were given and a bicycle parade through the principal parts of the city was participated in by over 300 wheelmen.

The city officials with invited guests and the Sons and Daughters of the Revolution banqueted in the city hall at noon.

Concord's Tribute.

CONCORD, Mass., April 20.—Patriots' day here was greeted with a salute of 44 guns and the ringing of the church bells. The principal feature of the day was the procession of the various military companies. After parading the principal streets they marched to the old Concord bridge where they were received by the old minute men, and after presenting arms a battery crossed the bridge and fired 13 guns. The march was then resumed, where a dress parade was held. The Daughters of the Revolution held a meeting in the town hall. In the evening there was a concert and ball.

Quiet Day.

SPRINGFIELD, April 20. — Patriots' day was little observed in this city. Most of the stores and all the banks closed all day, while the remaining stores closed at noon.

Business Suspended.

NEW BEDFORD, April 20.—Patriots' day was observed in this city by a general cessation of business.

Officer Fared Badly.

NORTH ADAMS, April 20. — Officer Dinen of this place, Rev. Father Moran of Adams and Lawyer Maginis of Adams had an exciting time at North Pownal, Vt., yesterday, trying to arrest a young man named Clark, who was wanted as a witness in an illegal liquor case, ten trials having been postponed from time to time on account of the absence of this witness. Clark was located at the North Pownal House. Clark's room was in the second story of the building, and he jumped from the window and ran for liberty. The officer, however, overtook him, and in the melee which followed, the officer was struck over the head with a club in the hands of one of the crowd which had collected. Officer Dinen lies in a critical condition. The party returned to North Adams without their man.

Baldwin Brothers Fail.

BOSTON, April 20.—The Baldwin Brothers company, stock brokers, went to the wall yesterday afternoon. For weeks the company has been using its large surplus and private funds to stem the strong tide of the bull market, but yesterday, when it was found impossible to turn the market, the firm closed its doors. It is impossible to state either the liabilities or the assets at the present time. Since the bull market became evident, the firm, it is said, has sunk, besides its $100,000 capital stock, $188,000 belonging to the Baldwins and a surplus of over $50,000 belonging to the company. Every branch office of the firm, over 50 in all, were instructed last evening to cease doing business.

Eighteen Hard Rounds.

BOSTON, April 20.—The contest for the middleweight championship of New England between Dick O'Brien of Lewiston and Bobby Dobbs of Boston was scheduled for 25 rounds, but after 18 terrific rounds last night, during which O'Brien floored Dobbs a dozen times, Referee Daley awarded the contest to O'Brien. It was one of the best fights that has taken place in New England in many years, and Dobbs put up one of the gamest contests that has been witnessed in Boston in years.

Alleged Forger Arrested.

NEW BEDFORD, April 20.—Charles Gifford was arrested here yesterday for trying to pass a forged check for $168. The check was drawn on the Providence National bank in the name of New hall. It is thought that Gifford is the same man who has been passing forged checks along the New England coast. The police here think that he is wanted in New Haven, New London, Philadelphia and other places.

At Mercy of Waves.

SANDWICH, Mass., April 20.—Persons at the beach here saw a large vessel's hulk floating about in Cape Cod bay, off this shore, Thursday. Early yesterday forenoon it was lost from view entirely. Several unsuccessful attempts were made to reach it, but they were fruitless on account of the heavy sea running. Wreckage has been washed ashore here in large quantities.

Narrowly Escaped Death.

SPRINGFIELD, April 20.—Officer George Wilson went to Thompsonville, Conn., yesterday to arrest William Crulman, who was on a spree, and as he entered the door of Crulman's room, in company with another officer, Crulman fired point blank at him. The load of shot passed through Wilson's overcoat. Crulman was fined and sent to jail for drunkenness and breach of the peace.

Strike Will Continue.

PROVIDENCE, April 20.—The executive committee of the strikers met last night and voted to continue the strike against the Atlanta mills. The weavers of the Providence and National Worsted mills last night voted to assess themselves for the support of the strikers and to order all weavers to keep away from Olneyville during the strike.

Society's Great Opportunity.

NEWPORT, April 20.—The announcement is made that the Prince of Wales will visit Newport during the coming summer. A prominent society man has just received a letter from England announcing that the prince will attend the cup races and spend several weeks at Newport.

Didn't Go Back.

PROVIDENCE, April 20.—The Geneva mills strikers did not return to work yesterday, as they had decided to. Manufacturer Ullmann refused to accede to discriminate against non-union men in discharging help. The strikers immediately voted to remain out.

Boro's Queer Doings.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., April 20.—Andrew Boro, who disappeared Sunday, was discovered yesterday in the Connecticut river, up to his neck, in the rear of his house. He has been to Hartford, Springfield and Pittsfield. His wife at once had him arrested for breach of the peace.

Finances Stand High.

BOSTON, April 20.—The annual meeting of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution of Massachuset was held in Faneuil Hall. The reports of the financial officers showed the society to be in a flourishing condition with a large balance in the funds.

Claim Deception.

ROCKLAND, Me., April 20.—Over 200 granite cutters, who went to Mt. Waldo a few days ago in response to an advertisement inserted by the company, are returning to their homes. They claim that the concern failed to adhere to its agreement regarding the price of piecework.

Maine Man the Winner.

BOSTON, April 20.—Patsey Reardon of Lewiston and John Wallace of Cambridge, ex-amateur champion of New England, were matched for a bout of 15 rounds, but Wallace was put out at the end of the fourth round.

Butler Took Two Races.

DEDHAM, April 20.—In the bicycle tournament here Tom Butler of Cambridgeport was the winner in the 10-mile handicap against 19 competitors, in 27m. 33s. In the three-mile handicap Butler was again first.

Too Busy to Lose Time.

NEWBURYPORT, April 20.—There was no special observance of Patriots' day in this city. Business is so rushed in the shoe factories that none of them shut down and all of the operatives worked as usual.

Stebbins' Shortage.

DEERFIELD, Mass., April 20.—The defalcation of Tax Collector Stebbins is said to be between $6000 and $6500. Mr. Stebbins has voluntarily put all his property in the hands of the town officials.

Clark at the Head.

ANSONIA, Conn., April 20.—William A. Clark of Butte City, Mon., arrived in this city yesterday and inspected Wallace & Sons' brass works. He will be the principal holder in the new company that has purchased the plant.

Fatal Fall Down Stairs.

LOWELL, April 20.—James F. Whitney, aged 60, fell down a flight of stairs while looking into the pressroom of The Herald, receiving injuries from which he died soon after.

Fatal Runaway Accident.

NORWICH, April 20.—Shadrach Simmons, aged 50, was dashed against a telegraph pole, when his horse ran away, and was instantly killed.

USEFUL AND NEEDFUL.

The Pope Pleads With English People For Unity of Faith.

Efforts to Further the Reunion of Christendom.

All Communities Are Called Upon to Render Assistance In the Cause.

ROME, April 20.—In the effort to unite the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches, the pope has addressed an encyclical to the "English people who seek the kingdom of Christ in unity of faith."

It opens with an expression of long-cherished desire to address them in a special letter and thus give the illustrious English race a token of sincere affection. Continuing, the pope says:

"We are further moved thereto by not infrequent conversations with our countrymen, who have testified to the kindly feeling of the English toward us personally, and to their anxiety for peace and eternal salvation through unity of faith. God is our witness to how keen our wish is that some effort of ours might tend to assist and further the great work of obtaining the reunion of Christendom."

After citing the evidence of the love and care of the Roman pontiffs for England from the time of Gregory the Great, the pope alludes to the exertions made by England to solve the social questions, for religious education, charitable objects, the strict observance of Sunday and the general spirit of respect for the scriptures, and the various manifestations of the power and resources of the British nation.

The pope declares that men's labors, whether public or private, will not attain full efficacy without appeals to God in prayer and without the divine blessing. He dwells upon the increasing need of unity among those holding the Christian faith as the means of defense against the Inroads of Modern Errors.

"No thought could be more welcome to our soul," the pope says, "than that happy unity of faith and wills for which our Redeemer and Divine Master prayed in earnest supplication, a unity which is useful at all times for the temporal interests both at home and abroad, shown by the very divisions and confusions of these days to be more than ever needful.

"The time cannot be far distant when we must appear to render an account of our stewardship to the Prince of Pastors. How happy and blessed should we be if we could bring him some proof, some realization of this, our wishes, which he inspired and sustained. In these days our thoughts turn with love and hope to the English people, observing as we do frequent manifest works of divine grace in their midst; how some of the religious confusion and dissension causes deep concern; how others see clearly the need of some sure defense against the inroad of fallen nature, which only too readily humor the wishes of fallen nature and depraved reason, and how the number of religious and discreet men laboring for reunion increases."

The pope turns to all in England, to whatever community or institution they may belong, desiring to recall them to this holy unity. In this cause he calls first to his assistance the Catholics of England, whose faith and piety he knows by experience. He invokes Saint Gregory, Saint Augustine, Saint Peter and Saint George, and above all the Blessed Virgin, to be his pleaders before the throne of God that he may renew the glory of ancient days.

The pope grants to all who piously recite the prayer to the Blessed Virgin appended to the encyclical an indulgence of 300 days, and he moreover grants a plenary indulgence once a month to those who recite it daily. The encyclical, which abounds in biblical quotations, concludes by calling the blessing of God upon the English people.

Higgins Men Breaking Away.

DOVER, Del., April 20.—Massey got back into the senatorial fight yesterday, Burton and Townsend deserting Higgins and with Speaker McMullen of the house voting for Massey. The ballot resulted as follows: Higgins, 7; Addicks, 5; Massey, 3; Pennewill, 4; Ridgely, 9. Thus far the Addicks people have shown no disposition to effect a compromise, saying "Addicks or nobody."

Satisfied With McNulta.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Samuel M. Rice was yesterday elected president of the Whisky Trust to succeed Joseph B. Greenhut, who was removed by Judge Grosscup last February as receiver of the corporation, and expelled from its board of directors last Wednesday by the stockholders. The new board and officers are in perfect harmony with Receiver McNulta.

Lamont Case Not Taken Up.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—The Durant inquiry was resumed yesterday. The jury did not occupy an hour in deliberating and returned a verdict charging Durant with the murder of Minnie Williams. It was the case of her death only that was being investigated. The case of the murder of Blanche Lamont will be taken up later.

New England Briefs.

Robert Harvey, aged 22, was instantly killed by a shifting engine at Barre, Vt.

Michael Fitzhenry, 70 years of age, was struck by a trolley car at Bridgeport and fatally injured.

G. A. Gould of Bridgeport has been appointed receiver of the Duchess Ruffling company of New Haven,

Two horses were stolen from the stables of Manning Armstrong and John McKinney at Fairfield, Me.

Governor Cleaves of Maine has appointed D. W. Heseltine of Portland a commissioner of pharmacy.

A young man who was struck by a train near West Haven died at the New Haven hospital. His clothing was marked "Edward Neckels."

Franklin Stevens, one of the most respected citizens of Randolph, Me., is dead, aged 80 years. For many years he was extensively engaged in shipbuilding.

John Roscoe is under arrest at Fall River, charged with breaking and entering and larceny. He is wanted in several places in Rhode Island and Connecticut on charges of horse stealing.

The street railway had out some of its open cars Friday.

The Swedish Lutherans will hold a fair at Plumer's hall, May 2, 3 and 4.

Commissioner Eaton had his watering carts out in the Centre today laying the dust.

Rev. Albert Bryant, of Cambridge, will speak at the Y. M. C. A. meeting for men Sunday at 3.30 P. M.

The topic of Rev. C. O. Wilder's sermon, next Sunday morning will be "God Seeking Lost Men." Text Luke 19:10.

The Park and Downs Union society will hold their Sunday School at 3.30 in A. O. U. W. hall. It was postponed last Sunday on account of rain.

The next meeting of the Hospital Aid Association will be held in the Probate Court Room, Adams Building, on Thursday, April 25th, at 3 o'clock. Directors' meeting at 2.30 o'clock.

At the Calvary Baptist Church, South Quincy, Mr. Robert Farquhar spoke on Friday evening from 1 Peter 2:2. As new born babes desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby.

Paul Revere Post No. 88, G. A. R., have accepted the invitation of Rev. C. W. Wilder to attend divine service at his church at Wollaston on the evening of Memorial Sunday, May 26.

Today three round trips will be made on the Manet street railway, leaving Quincy at 7.30 A. M., 1.35 and 5.33 P. M. Leave Houghs Neck at 8 A. M., and 2 and 6 P. M. Sunday cars will be run hourly after 8 A. M.

A supper and sociable will be given next Wednesday evening, April 24, under the auspices of the Ladies' Society of the Wollaston Methodist church, at the houses of Mrs. W. R. Campbell and Mrs. R. B. Smith, Atlantic avenue.

A fairly good sized audience was present at Hancock hall, Friday evening to witness the presentation of the Irish drama, "The Colleen Bawn," by William H. O'Neill's New York Theatre Co. who gave a very creditable performance.

The Water Commissioners are to commence active work Monday extending the water mains. A large gang will be put at work laying a ten inch pipe to Houghs Neck and another gang will be put at work at West Quincy.

The annual meeting of the Norfolk County Temperance Union is being held today at Faxon hall, Sanford Waters Billings of Sharon, presiding. The attendance at the morning session was rather small, but a much larger number is expected this afternoon.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. will meet Monday at 3 P. M. in the Association parlor. Miss Lance, of the Woodward School will give a talk on "Power of a living belief in making life happy." All ladies will be made welcome to this meeting.

Arbor Day in Massachusetts is set for Saturday of next week, while in Connecticut it is May 3. Already preparations are in progress for a proper observance of the day in some localities. When it is considered how much beauty is added to the landscape by trees, the periodical custom of planting them cannot be too highly praised.

The grand phonographic, literary and musical entertainment at the Methodist Episcopal Church on Thursday evening was greatly enjoyed by a large audience. Miss Beatrice Porterfield's readings were heartily encored, and the piano solo by Miss Phelan, and duet by Misses Stiggins and Phelan added to the pleasure of the evening.

Owing to the rainy weather the Universalist Sunday school voted to postpone its Easter concert till next Sunday evening, when an excellent program will be rendered, a number of the youngest scholars taking part. The beautiful Hydrangeas and other potted plants used in the Easter decorations will be kept in place so that a very pleasing concert may be expected Sunday evening, April 21, in Pythian Hall at 7 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

In the Lynn Item of Thursday appeared the following of local interest. Miss Mary A. Guilfoyle was married to George H. Ferguson, of Quincy, Wednesday, at 4 P. M., at the residence of Rev. Dennis F. Sullivan, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Fr. Tobin, of Rockport. The bride was attired in white silk, with lace and pearl garniture, and wore a corsage bouquet of bride roses. Miss Eliza J. Guilfoyle, sister of the bride was bridesmaid. She wore white silk and Catherine Mermet roses. Leonard H. Ferguson brother of groom was best man. Following the ceremony there was a reception at the residence of the bride, at E. F. Ring's, 593 Boston street. The ushers were P. J. Foley, J. F. Guilfoyle, E. F. Ring and Daniel J. Guilfoyle. A wedding supper was served. The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson will reside at No. 1 Payne street, Quincy.

The Literary Club of Braintree was entertained Monday evening by the Col. and Mrs. A. C. Drinkwater. The roll call was answered by a patriotic quotation from familiar authors. During the first hour of the evening Mr. C. A. Belcher read an essay on Frederick Douglass; Miss Annie Shaw read a geographical essay on Vermont, with particular reference to Braintree and Randolph, Vt., as namesakes of our own and neighboring town. Miss Maysie Hastings sang several selections in her usual charming manner that were deservedly appreciated. In the latter part of the evening the club was entertained by the literary class. This part included the presentation of a study of Shakespeare's tragedy "Macbeth" and essays by Mrs. A. S. Morrison, Mrs. T. H. Dearing and Miss M. G. Osborne. The next meeting of the club is with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Belcher, and the subject for the roll call will be Longfellow.

Miss Bessie Pray, Miss Julie I. Arnold and Miss Florence Perry gave a small invitation dance in Pythian hall Braintree, Tuesday, from 6.30 to 10 P. M. Mrs. E.W. Arnold and Mrs. Perry were the matrons. The affair was a most successful and enjoyable one, and the management received many compliments on the result of their efforts. The stage was prettily decorated with hydrangeas, geraniums and other plants.

In response to "at home" cards sent out by Mrs. H. Eliza C. Burns, her home on Granite street was thronged with friends from five to seven Saturday evening. A pleasant surprise of the evening was the announcement of the engagement of Mrs. Burns' charming daughter Miss Bessie Lincoln and Mr. John O. Hall, Jr., son of City Auditor Hall. Miss Burns is a student at Radcliffe College and is a very bright scholar. She is very popular with the young people in the city and is active in church work at the Evangelical Congregational church. Mr. Hall is a graduate of Harvard and for several years has been a popular teacher at the Adams Academy. Since a boy in the Sunday School Mr. Hall has been much interested in the Unitarian church and always ready to do his part in advancing the welfare of the church. Miss Burns is the recipient of many beautiful bunches of flowers, and kind wishes from her large circle of friends.

Mrs. A. B. Packard entertained her grand-children and their friends Friday afternoon and evening at her residence on Hancock street. Games, dancing, etc., were enjoyed, as was also the refreshments served by Caterer Wales.

HODENOSAUNEE TRIBE.

Wollaston Has Another Flourishing Secret Society.

The Red Men captured Wollaston Thursday but they did it in a peaceful way, and left after having instituted a tribe which has been forming for the last two months, and the petition for which was presented to the great chiefs last night with 51 names of Red Men and palefaces.

At half past seven the meeting was called to order by Great Senior Sagamore, Walter G. Butts, who after a few remarks proceeded to institute the tribe; with the assistance of the following: Great Chiefs G. C. of R. J. Peter Gardner as G. C. of R.; D. G. S. J. P. Hicks as Great Prophet: Past Sachem J. F. Gardner, as Great Mischinewa; and Past Sachem, Allison Sprague, as G. Guard of Wigwam.

The tribe having been instituted, the following were elected chiefs of the tribe for this term, and were raised to their stumps by the Great Senior Sagamore, as D. G. S. and his suite.

Sachem,—Hon. Henry O. Fairbanks.
Junior,—J. H. Jordan.
Prophet,—John T. Brown.
Chief of Records,—Wm. A. Jordan.
Collector of Wampum,—E Russell Frost.
Keeper of Wampum,—Geo. W. McClintock.

After the Chiefs were raised up, the tribe prepared for adoption and at the suggestion of the G. C. of R., the staff was formed from representatives of ten tribes. The degree was exemplified in first-class shape, and entirely to the satisfaction of the Great Chiefs present, showing how well the different tribes have learned the new adoption ceremony. The work pleased everybody present but the candidate, who expressed himself as being sorry when the degree ended.

Great Chief of Records, J. P. Gardner then took charge of the wigwam and exemplified the unwritten work of the Hunters,' Warriors, and Chief's degrees, after which he made a long talk to those present, strongly urging the tribe to secure first the quality, and quantity of membership would follow as a natural sequence. He spoke of the almost phenomenal growth of the order under the present Great Incohonee, there having been three State Great Councils formed since last November and a fourth is nearly ready for organization. The order now numbers 175,000 and is confined entirely to the United States.

The other great chiefs made long or short talks, and then all repaired to the banquet hall and partook of corn and venison.

The following tribes were represented: Passamaquoddy of Eastport, Me.; Oghneta of Milford; Soangetaha, Eyota and Shawmut of Boston; Pequot of Brockton; Massapoag of Campello; Nahanton of Braintree; Agawam of Tapleyville; Quinobeguin of Waltham. All expressed their good wishes for the welfare of Hodenosaune Tribe No. 62 of Wollaston.

The committee of organization consisted of Hon. Henry O. Fairbanks, Perley R. Glass and William A. Jordan. The tribe will kindle its council fires on the first and third Thursdays and at the next council, May 2, will work the adoption on several palefaces who were unable to be present on the night of institution.

Sad Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Loud received sad and shocking news yesterday from New York. First, that their little seven year old grandson had been run over by the cars and later that the boy had died. Mr. and Mrs. Loud left immediately for New York. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Brandau, who reside in that city.

ELECTRIC ROAD OPENED.

Braintree and Weymouth Now Connected by Street Railway.

The Braintree and Weymouth electric road was formally opened for traffic and given to the people Thursday, April 18, one day earlier than was intended by the president and directors.

For the past few days the whole force of men had been working hard to finally prepare the roadbed for the first trip of the new cars, but as the cars seemed likely not to arrive in time for the opening of the road on the day originally intended, two cars were hired from the B., R. and H. company, and taken across the railroad tracks at the Braintree depot by four horses, at midnight Wedesday.

Early Thursday morning two cars were standing on the track near the Braintree depot waiting for a connection to be made with the circuit of the Braintree road.

At 10.45 the connection was completed and the two cars proceeded to Weymouth. The first car was in charge of motorman, Dennis Travis and conductor, Arthur Hobart.

At 3.30 the two cars left Washington Square for Shaw's Corner and Braintree respectively. The Weymouth band was aboard; and, with the cheering of the people, the racket of the cars and the yelling of the small boy, that ride of the officers, directors and invited guests was one grand triumphant progress.

During the remainder of the afternoon and evening the cars continued to run to and from Weymouth, to Braintree and Shaws corner. Each car was crowded as it left Weymouth square, as no charge was made for passage all day Thursday.

As it began to grow dusk, Washington square was a pretty sight. Many torches of red fire were burning on every side; and with the martial music and rattle of cannon crackers, the scene was most lively and befitting the occasion.

At half past six about two hundred people was seated in Lincoln hall at a supper especially prepared for the day. Rev. Mr. Hyde asked a blessing and the throng ate with good appetite induced by happy excitement. After supper Toastmaster James H. Flint made a few remarks and introduced successively Mr. John Kelley, Mr. George Wreth, Mr. Blood of Fitchburg, Mr. Chapman of Canton, Mr. French of Canton, Mr. Cook of South Weymouth and others spoke briefly on the benefits of the electric road and made appropriate remarks for the occasion.

After supper the band gave a concert in the square, there was a big display of fireworks, withal it was a grand ending to the eventful day. The cars were run till nearly midnight and are now running every half hour from Weymouth to Shaws corner and to the Braintree depot. The new cars are expected daily.

MR. GEORGE C. MANN
To Tell of Horace Mann.

Quincy is to be honored in having as a guest of the Quincy Teachers' Association Mr. Geo. C. Mann, who will speak to them and others interested in educational matters on Tuesday evening, April 23, in the hall of the High school building. In 1896 will occur the hundredth anniversary of the birth of his celebrated father, Hon. Horace Mann, a son of the Bay State, whose political activity was in operation during the fourth and part of the fifth decades of this century, but whose labors in the reform and advancement of educational methods were wrought out through all his mature life. His son, although advanced in years, will speak of his father for the first time in public, thus showing his appreciation of the subject chosen by the teachers of this city. They will doubtless reciprocate by appreciating the service which he will render by his presence. It is not often that one so nearly related can be found to add interest to the celebration of great men's lives.

Mad Dog on South Street.

Two South street families had quite an experience with a mad white bull dog, Friday evening. Mr. A. G. Coffin saw the dog coming down South street, frothing at the mouth, and rushed his own and two other children into the house. The dog then rushed toward the house of James Malcolm, who saw him coming and rushed into his parlor just as the dog sprang through the window, taking sash and all with him.

Mr. Malcolm seized a chair and brought it down heavily on the brute's head, which had the effect of partially stunning him.

The dog, however, recovered in a moment and dashed out of the house and across the field.

Lovell's Grove Plans.

In the plans for reconstructing Lovell's Grove on a basis and under a management that shall insure to the public all that is desirable in a first class pleasure resort, it is intended that no less than 25 or 30 men will commence operations on Monday morning next to build a fine one-quarter mile cycle track and ball ground, a new dance hall, two new restaurants where will be made a specialty of fish dinners, two ladies pavilions newly renovated and numerous improvements which to appreciate will require a visit from all interested on June 1, 1895.

More Five-Year-Olds.

In addition to the 188 five-year-olds who entered the public schools on Monday are the following:

CODDINGTON,—Grace Hanson. It was Lulu Hood and not Lulu Wood who entered Monday.

LINCOLN,—Frank Soldini, Ethel McNeil, Gilbert Booth, Edna Chapel.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL, — Albert Chadwick, Helen Marcelle.

Birthday Sociable.

The Ladies' Social Union of the West Quincy Methodist church held a birthday sociable Thursday evening in the vestry. The secretary sent out the following written invitation to the friends of the church and congregation, enclosing a small bag for each one in the family.

"This birthday party is for you,
'Tis something novel, 'tis something new.
We send you each a litt'e sack,
Please either send or bring it back
With as many cents as years are old.
Kind friends will give you something to eat,
And others will furnish a musical treat.
The Ladies' Aid with greeting most hearty,
Feel sure you'll attend your own birthday party."

The following entertainment was provided, Mrs. M. McCormick having charge of the program.

Flag Presentation.

The Lincoln school now has a flag to display on its building. The former flag was worn out some time ago and Mr. H. H. Safford took it upon himself to provide the building with a new one. A subscription paper was started and the necessary funds were soon raised and Thursday afternoon the flag raising took place.

At the appointed time the pupils marched out and formed in front of the building when the following exercises took place:

Singing, "Prayer During Battle," seventh and eighth grades.
Presentation of Flag by Mr. F. A. Page, who read a letter from Mr. Safford.
Reception by Principal W. A. Reed.
Salute to flag, whole school.
Salute, fired by a detail from Post 88, under Commander J. H. Webb, when the flag reached the mast head.
Recitation, "O Say can you see, etc.," grades seven and eighth.
Reading, "Why should we salute the flag," (original), Grace Craig.
Singing, "America," School.
Singing, "Battle Hymn of Republic," School.

South Quincy Shooting.

There came near being a serious shooting affair at South Quincy Friday afternoon but fortunately no serious results will follow.

Natali Frassati was at work in his yard sawing wood when Cassimiro Ciardi, an Italian barber, came along flourishing a revolver and shouting "What's the matter with me."

His attitude frightened Frassati who started to run but in so doing ran against a clothes line and was thrown down.

As he fell Ciardi fired, the ball skimming Frassati's ear. It is probable that the fall saved his life.

Ciardi then ran away and Frassati reported the matter to the police who secured a warrant and later in the evening Officer Nicol placed Ciardi under arrest.

Caught In Bulls' Corner.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Ed Pardridge, who has been a successful bear on wheat for months, was driven to cover yesterday by the market's steady advance. He is reported to have covered a short line of between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 bushels, making his loss for the day something like $150,000, if current talk on 'change is accepted.

World's Record Smashed.

SAN JOSE, Cal., April 20.—The city celebrated the opening of the Garden City cyclers' new three-lap cement track in good style. Eddie Bald of Buffalo again demonstrated he is a champion bicyclist in the way he won the two-mile scratch, class B, making it in 4:15 1-5, the former record being 4:2 3-5, made by Zeigler in Denver.

Stirring Up Strife.

OTTUMWA, Ia., April 20.—Five hundred miners gathered outside Cincinnati yesterday, but the mayor and sheriff would not let them enter the town. Learning that a number of the Austrians were armed, the sheriff went out with deputies and disarmed 50 of them. There may be more trouble.

Mrs. Darling's Weak Case.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Assistant District Attorney Battle is still investigating the charges made by Mrs. Darling that her son was deliberately poisoned. It is not believed, however, that her suspicions and accusations are borne out by the facts.

Save your patience and fuel by using a Gasoline stove. Those we sell are absolutely safe. Prices, $3.50 to $10.00. A stove in operation at our store. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

DIED.

SANFORD—In Quincy, April 19, Julia A., widow of Calvin Sanford, aged 62 years and 4 months.

BRAINTREE.

Wednesday afternoon, a servant employed by Mrs. C. B. Faxon, died very suddenly of heart disease.

Peter Griffin, of Harrison Square, has accepted a position as telegraph operator at the South Braintree station.

Rev. William Full has been assigned a pulpit at Lynn by the Methodist conference, and has moved to that city.

James Bailey, Jr., was one of the sophomore men who presented "Six Cups of Chocolate" at Boston University last Thursday evening.

An alarm was rung in from box 45 Friday afternoon for a slight wood fire near South Braintree Heights. The blaze was soon extinguished.

The Quincy Water Company have removed nearly all the old signs, forbidding trespassing, around the reservoir and new ones will take their places.

The selectmen have appointed Albert Hobart of East Braintree a special police officer without pay; also, J. Franklin Bates of the north part of the town.

The Grand Army men have returned the $75 which they were to have for a band Memorial day, to the town of Braintree, because the town is trying so hard to economize.

The Universalist Ladies' Aid society met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Cook. There was a large attendance, and arrangements were completed for the annual sale, to be held April 30 and May 1.

The capital stock of the Braintree and Weymouth Electric road has been increased by the addition of twelve hundred shares. Subscribers are expected to purchase the shares by the first of May. The capital stock of the company now aggregates $120,000.

The Literary meeting of the Y. P. C. U. was held Tuesday evening with Mr. John Cates. The hour was spent cutting "The Merchant of Venice" so that a part of the play might be rendered at the first annual celebration of the organization of the club which will take place the latter part of June.

Mr. Louis W. Arnold, who has been spending the Easter vacation with his parents, returned Tuesday to Canaan, Ct.

At a meeting of the directors of the Braintree, Randolph & Holbrook street railway company, held in Boston Monday, it was voted to increase the capacity of the power station.

The next reception at the chapel of the First Church will be held May 15. The "Album Pictures" will be given. Those who attended town meeting will again have a chance to see this production.

The selectmen have, on the petition of the Braintree & Weymouth road, ordered a public hearing to be held in their room Monday, April 29, in regard to granting a permit to the said road to cross the railroad tracks at the Braintree depot and connect with the B. R. and H. electric road. The hearing begins at 3 o'clock.

Miss Florence W. Davis of Dorchester has been selected to fill the vacancy in the High school caused by the resignation of Miss Osborne. Miss Davis is a graduate of Wellesley and comes highly recommended. She was selected from twelve applicants.

TODAY'S COURT.

Today was an unusual busy one in the district court, a number of cases of all kind being tried.

John Gilmore of Weymouth was arraigned for drunkenness. Case continued until Monday.

Joseph Bower and Henry Cessi were fined $5 for carrying firearms in the Metropolitan park.

Holiday Shoot.

A large crowd gathered at the Wollaston Trap Club grounds on Friday forenoon to participate in the regular holiday shoot. D. B. Lincoln was again high man, breaking 21 birds. The score:

Bellevue Gun Club.

The first regular shoot of the Bellevue Gun Club was held at the grounds in Bellevue Park, Friday. The score out of a possible 25 birds at unknown angles was as follows:

W. M. Baker, 12; T. Welsh, 18; A. Williams, 6; P. A. Hull, 6; S. Welsh, 15. Second string: W. M. Baker, 12; S. Welsh, 16; T. Welsh, 10.

HOUGHS NECK.

Patriots' Day the Opening of the Season—Cars Run.

Friday was what might be called the opening of Quincy's popular summer resort known as Houghs Neck.

It was the day when the Quincy & Boston street railway commenced to make regular trips, and being an unusually fine day, hundreds, yes thousands of people, availed themselves of the opportunity to go down and every car was packed to its utmost capacity.

At the beach things look natural except that the houses have not been occupied as yet, although many of them were opened for the day, being aired out while the owners were busy putting things in readiness for occupancy.

Along Sea street most of the peanut stands were open but did not reap much of a harvest. Possibly they did not expect to as the crowd were for the most part either cottage owners or people who were looking for cottages.

If anything can be judged by appearances this season this year promises to be one of the most successful.

The postoffice at Houghs Neck will open for the season on Monday.

Merry Mount Lodge, I. O. G. T.

An open good-of-the-order entertainment was held under the auspices of the Merry Mount Lodge in Doble's Hall, on Thursday evening, C. T. Melville C. Holmes, presiding. The hall was filled with members and friends, who during the evening gave many tokens of enjoyment at the literary program provided.

An orchestra under the direction of Mr. Arthur Metcalf rendered several excellent selections. The following ladies and gentlemen also took part in the evening's exercises, each being compelled to respond to hearty recalls:

Duet,	Misses Milne and Walker
Scotch Dance,	Miss Agnes Kenney
Song,	Miss Belle Fletcher
Readings,	Master Boyden
Banjo Selection,	Mr. Wm. Gragg
Reading,	Miss Hussey
Piano Selection,	Mr. A. Metcalf
Reading,	Mrs. A. Young

At the close of the entertainment the chairman extended a cordial invitation to all present to become members of the Good Templar Order. He said in effect that the primary aim of these open nights was to advance the principles of abstinence and to extend the usefulness and scope of the local lodge.

Next Thursday evening the quarterly election of officers takes place.

Adams Academy vs. Pansies.

The Academy nine had no trouble in winning its third game on the morning of Patriots' Day. The Pansy Whist club took the "booby prize." The score was 20 to 5. There was a general interest in the game owing to the number of well-known ball experts who took part. The game was enlivened by very active betting amongst the supporters of the Pansy club. It is rumored that as much as thirty-seven cents changed hands on Rice's failure to make a base-hit at a critical point in the game.

Eldridge pitched a very good game for Adams, striking out fourteen of the Pansies. The Academy nine played a much cleaner fielding game than they did on Wednesday, and their prospects in the game with Dean Academy today are much better. Rippey's difficult fly was a feature of the game.

For the Pansies, Rice and Schenkelberger distinguished themselves. It is rumored that this action on their part was purely involuntary. Harlow did the best batting.

The base running of both teams was lively. Attendance 200, mostly boys. Below is the score:

The Quincy Point Game.

There was an interesting game of ball at the Owl's field, Quincy Point, yesterday, between the Quincy Point nine and the Dublins, The batteries were Logan, McGuan and Carter, and Flynn, Ibsley and Welsh. Ex-captain "Nifty" called the game and settled all disputes. It was a hard game but the Point boys won. The score was as follows:

EXPERIENCE MEETING.

Ladies of Christ's Church Earn Dollars and Write Poems.

Thursday evening a large audience assembled at the Parish house, Christ's church, and enjoyed a few hours very pleasantly. The church has recently purchased a beautiful new organ and wished funds to pay for the same, so Miss Emily C. Wilde thought up a way to raise money by asking the ladies of the parish to earn a dollar and write a poem telling how they earned it. For several weeks Miss Wilde has been very busy earning her dollar, and inviting others to earn one. She was ably assisted by Miss Carrie F. Spear, Miss Howe of Greenleaf street, Miss Georgie Flint and Mrs. Theodore Hardwick.

Thursday evening the dollars were all earned and between seventy-five and a hundred Quincy poets assembled to tell their friends of their "hard trials and great tribulations." The parish house was tastefully decorated with rugs, portieres, potted plants and piano lamps. Mrs. Theodore Hardwick presided in her usual gracious way and nothing but rhymes fell from her lips. The poem of welcome was composed by Miss Mary Perkins and was a very bright production bringing in the names of the dollar earners.

During the evening Mr. Herbert Barker, cello, Mr. Henry Barker, violin and Mr. Wrigley, piano, rendered sweet music, and Miss Edna Miller, Miss Carrie T. Spear, Mr. Walter Hersey and Master Peter Mitchell sang several solos.

The poems were long and short, some bright and witty, others more matter-of-fact, all in all they afforded much merriment and pleasure. It would seem from words in the poems, rather than the rhymes and gingles themselves that the ladies found it easier to earn a dollar than to write the poetry. However, we think they are to be congratulated and provided they won't expect us to publish all their "spring poems" we will say that Quincy has a fine lot of promising poets.

Some read their own productions, while many were so tired after their work in writing the poems that Mrs. Hardwick read them for them. A few of the ladies earned more than a dollar but were thankful every dollar did not call for a poem.

After the money was all collected, ice cream and cake was served. It is thought that between seventy-five and a hundred dollars was earned by hard experience.

Entertainment by Boys.

The Sunny Hour Lend-a-hand club, composed of young lads from the Wollaston Unitarian Sunday school classes of Mrs. F. A. Page and Mrs. W. E. Simmons gave an entertainment in the vestry of that church last evening, (Patriots' day). The church was prettily decorated with flags and bunting and a large and appreciative audience was in attendance, The work even to serving the ice cream was done entirely by the boys.

The programme consisted of a piano solo by Tyler Brigham; recitation, "The Minute Men," Harold Schumaker; piano solo, Avery Bennett; song, Freddie Thayer; piano duett, Eddie and Freddie Mitchell; violin solo, Bertie Armstrong.

Followed by the play, "The Thief of Time," with the following cast:

Botolph Ready,	Avery Bennett
Charley Cheerful,	Walden Schumaker
John Ray,	Horace Thomas
Mr. Hanks, (a deafman)	Richard Polson
John Clod, (a countryman)	L. Loring
Patsy Flynn, (an Irishman)	T. Brigham

The programme closed with the singing of "Yankee Doodle" by the club, with Freddie Thayer as soloist.

The parts were exceedingly well taken, and each of the lads scored a success. With twenty such energetic young workers the future success of the Wollaston Unitarian society is assured.

Good Bowling.

The Duck's Nest, Wollaston, was crowded from morning to late at night, on Friday. The excitement was the contest over the Patriot cup, which was awarded to the bowler making the highest three string total. It was finally captured in the evening by Mr. R. R. Freeman, whose score was 545. The other high scores were made by Mr. V. J. Emery, 516; Charles T. Baker 512; C. L. McClintock, 519; and H. B. Sanborn 522.

MILTON.

The movement to form an Episcopal society in Milton has taken no definite shape as yet, although those interested in the matter say that they do not intend to let it die out, but will call a meeting of those interested in a few days.

East Milton people are anxiously awaiting the advent of the street railway, and when the line is completed they propose to paint the town a light red.

The spirit that animated the movement to suppress gambling, etc., in East Milton Milton seems to have died out. It is either that or the prime movers in the matter are on the still hunt.

Will that old partly burned building opposite the East Milton depot ever be removed?

Adams street is in a fine condition and on pleasant days scores of bicyclists are seen out for exercise.

Harry Briley has retired from the firm of Daley & Briley.

The fire department was called out Friday afternoon to extinguish a fire in the woods of the Edward Cunningham estate. Several acres were burned over.

Miss Ida Welt, the only woman chemist in Paris, is a graduate of Vassar. She distinguished herself at the universities of Geneva and Paris, and the Academy of Science has just published her "Researches on Dissymmetrical Hydrocarbons."

PARK AND DOWNS UNION SOCIETY, A. O. U. HALL—Sunday School concert at 3.30 P. M. Postponed last Sunday on account of rain.

—To get some very late strawberries, the Massachusetts Ploughman says set plants of a late variety like Parker Earle, on moist, rich loam, manure very heavily to produce a big growth of vines, and apply the winter mulch after the ground freezes and leave it on the bed until late in spring. All these means retard the crop, and, if the season is not extremely dry, there will be a large supply of berries nearly all through July.

—Canker worms are likely to be plenty this season, and a little of Morrill's tree ink put around the trunk of apple and elm trees, now, will catch most of the moths as they climb up this spring. It is for sale very cheap in 3, 5, and 10 pound cans at the PATRIOT office.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

THE PENNANT RACE.

Beaneaters Make a Good Start by Knocking Out the Senators.

BOSTON, April 19.—Greeted by the yells and hurrahs of over 15,000 people, the Bostons played their opening game of the season at the South End grounds, and succeeded in defeating the Washingtons in a well-fought game, in which the home team by terrific batting made a successful beginning in the race for the flag.

HAS A LOT TO LEARN

But Jockey Sims Is Already Able to Give British Brethren Pointers.

LONDON, April 20.—The Sportsman suggests that Britons will have to modify their opinions in regard to clocking. It says: "All the stupidity of waiting behind, whether the pace is bad or not, must be ended, as surely as a jockey appears on the scene who understands how to ride true to time. It is no exaggeration to say that not only American jockeys, but American stable boys, can ride true to time on familiar horses and courses. It only requires the use of ordinary intelligence when it will be found that to clock is almost an infallible guide, if the races are really races."

The writer adds: "I am as firmly convinced as ever that Sims has an immense lot to learn, but whenever he rides with a winning chance he will do our jockeys a lot of good in sharpening them up."

Highwaymen's Aged Victim.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., April 20.—Mrs. Delia T. S. Parnell, mother of the late Charles Stewart Parnell, was murderously assaulted by highwaymen, who robbed her of a satchel and a small sum of money. Mrs. Parnell is nearly 80 years old, and her advanced age may prevent her from rallying from the severe shock which she has sustained. Her injuries consist of a lacerated wound on the right side of the head, back of the ear, and various bruises on the forehead and face. When the news of the crime became known it caused great excitement. Many men volunteered to aid in the search for the assailant or assailants. The surrounding country is being thoroughly searched.

Dissertation on "Practical Politics."

LONDON, April 20.—In a leader this morning The Graphic says that President Cleveland is much too clever to pursue a tail-twisting policy in regard to the British ultimatum to Nicaragua. The Monroe doctrine, it adds, is a fine thing to talk about, but it does not exist in practical politics. The supporters of the doctrine have made it very difficult for foreign powers to obtain reparation when foreigners or foreign interests are assailed by the local populations or authorities. Do they, the paper asks, imagine that we will tolerate an extension of this state of things in the minor republics of the great west?

Rumors Are Untrue.

LONDON, April 20.—A rumor has recently been circulated to the effect that Mrs. Alva Vanderbilt, who lately procured a decree of divorce from W. K. Vanderbilt, is to be married to O. H. P. Belmont. An examination of the records in all the proper offices in London shows that no license to marry has been applied for by Belmont or Mrs. Vanderbilt. Friends of both, here and in Paris, positively report that they are to marry.

To Fight the Altgeld Plan.

CHICAGO, April 20.—An organization to counteract the free coinage movement in Illinois is being formed at the Palmer House. It will be styled the Honest Money league. The leading spirits in the new movement are men who have of late become identified with the administration's opposition to the 16 to 1 idea. It is proposed to combat the Altgeld plan for a free silver convention all over the state.

Strike Caused Big Failure.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—The assignee of Sevile Schofield & Sons, the Manayunko Wolfe manufacturers, who failed Thursday, says that the failure was due to the strike of 500 employes a few days ago, and that if the men will return to work at the old schedule of wages the mills will be reopened. The liabilities will be possibly upwards of $700,000. The assets are not known.

In a Worthy Cause.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 20.—A bazaar in aid of the new baby home, promoted by the wives of the United States minister and the British ambassador here, was held yesterday. The elite of Russian society here were present. The czar gave 500 roubles toward the fund for the home.

Harassed by Business Troubles.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Morris Deetsch, the southern manager of the firm of Bennet, Sloan & Co., tea importers, of this city, committed suicide yesterday at the Grand Union hotel, by shooting himself. Business troubles led him to take his life.

Separate Convention Necessary.

VIENNA, April 20.—The secretary of the Japanese legation here states that he has heard nothing of an offensive and defensive alliance between China and Japan. Such an alliance, he declares, could only take the form of a separate, secret convention.

Row at a Colored Dance.

HARTFORD, April 20.—Albert Peterson, colored, was fined $40 and costs for stabbing J. B. Turpin and his wife. Turpin was stabbed in the arm and his wife in the breast, at a colored dance. Peterson appealed and gave bonds of $300.

Bail Refused Wilde and Taylor.

LONDON, April 20.—In the Bow street court, yesterday, Oscar Wilde and Alfred Taylor, charged with serious misdemeanors, were brought up on remand and were formally committed for trial, bail being refused in each case.

Missionaries Gain Courage.

CANTON, April 20.—The American missionaries are returning to Kalzum, 300 miles to the north. No danger is feared. The Chinese in Canton are becoming more insulting to the foreigners.

Nebraska Bank Goes Up.

BEAVER CITY, Neb., April 20.—The Furnas County bank failed yesterday, and is now in the possession of the state board. No statement of assets and liabilities has been made.

BIG RISE IN PRICES

Has Absorbed Money Which Ought to Be Used Otherwise.

Rise In Beef a Conspiracy Against the Public.

Shoe Factories and Textile and Cotton Mills Are Fairly Busy.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Bradstreet's today says: The volume of general trade has maintained the previous week's proportions and at some points shows noteworthy increases as compared with the total a year ago.

Coffee is lower, as are lard and oats, but Indian corn and pork remain steady at last week's closing quotations.

Relatively, the most improvement in trade is in the region west of Chicago and north of St. Louis and Kansas City.

The rush of the spring demand for millinery, dry goods, clothing, groceries and hardware is over, but a fair volume of conservative trading continues.

Mild weather and needed rains have greatly improved the agricultural and commercial outlook in the northwest.

General trade conditions at the south are no better, and in some respects less satisfactory. Improvement in demand is not announced at any point.

Dun's Review.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

In every speculative department business is growing, but this is really the least satisfactory feature of the situation. Cotton, oil and wheat climbed above the export price, so that the marketing of products abroad must be checked, and money is absorbed which ought to be employed in productive industry and in distribution of products to consumers.

Everybody knows that oil has not risen 200 per cent because it is intrinsically more valuable, nor is wheat actually worth more than it was two or three weeks ago, but the expansive and uplifting force has unfortunately taken to speculation rather than to production, and so we have higher prices in all speculative markets, without a larger demand for consumption. Stories of combinations between the Standard Oil company and Russia as to partition of the oil consuming territory by no means accounts for recent prices of petroleum, which appear to be entirely fictitious.

In iron and steel the situation is rather disappointing, although the output continues large, as the demand for finished products does not seem to increase.

Rise In Cotton Without Reason.

There is no evidence that cotton is in larger demand than it was when the price was a cent lower, but prices have been so low for months that an upward movement was easy without much reason, though stocks here and abroad are 300,000 bales larger than they were at the same date after the greatest crop ever produced heretofore, and spinners here and abroad have taken about 1,600,000 bales more than they have consumed. The rise tends to prevent the decrease of acreage, which is its one reasonable excuse.

Wheat has advanced over 8 cents during the past week. There is no indication that the foreign demand will increase, while the prospects for this year's crop are considered excellent. Western receipts are not large, and it would be strange if they were, with prices so low but advancing. Exports continue to indicate that the European demand will not be particularly heavy this season.

The Beef Corner.

Outside of speculative markets, the most important feature is the rise in the price of beef, but which is largely due to the control of sources of supply by a few strong corporations. There ought to be, but apparently is not, sufficient power in the hands of the government to meet any such conspiracy against the public, and the proposal of Secretary Morton to admit Mexican cattle and cattle from Canada on easy terms for the benefit of customers is heartily commended, though it is not likely to have much influence. The actual facts have little to do with prices in this case, as in the case of oil.

Boots and Shoes.

Boots and shoes are in larger demand, although the jobbers have to pay 10 cents or more above the prices paid two months ago, and there are more orders than when the advance in price was first demanded. Except from the west, there are indications of a larger consuming demand, but on the whole the market is perceptibly narrowed by the advance which higher prices for leather have occasioned.

Labor Troubles Diminishing.

Some large textile mills have advanced wages at Fall River about 10 per cent, restoring the rates paid after the reduction in September, 1893. Labor troubles are comparatively less serious this week, and the tendency is toward larger returns for labor, which will increase the consuming power for other products. The cotton mills are encouraged by improving prices and are fairly busy.

The Wool Market.

Sales of wool at the three chief eastern markets indicate that the production of goods is at present larger than it has been at any other time for nearly two years, and while foreign competition is seriously felt in some branches, the manufacturers are making a vigorous effort to retain the home market, even in lines which at one time they expected to abandon.

Failures during the past week have been 241 in the United States against 219 last year, and 34 in Canada against 45 last year.

Amounts to About $15,000,000.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Commissioner Miller of the internal revenue bureau says that from official returns received and from semi-official estimates, he places the aggregate to be obtained from income tax at $14,000,000. When the corrected returns are all in and the penalties imposed collected, the amount will be increased to nearly $15,000,000.

Quiet at Coal Creek.

KNOXVILLE, April 20.—The strike of 450 miners in the Coal and Coke company's mine at Coal Creek is still on, but there is no fighting among the men. The Ohio men who did the shooting have left, and the men who pursued them have given up the chase.

Negro Murderer Hanged.

NEW ORLEANS, April 20.—Frank Fuller, colored, was hanged yesterday in the parish prison. Fuller murdered his mistress and attempted the life of another woman, dangerously wounding her, and then shot himself.

AN AMERICAN SOCIETY

Formed in London on the Lines Laid Down by the Colony in Paris.

LONDON, April 20.—The many Americans who are living in London have long felt the need of some common meeting ground for social and patriotic objects. The American colony as it exists in Paris is almost unknown in London and Americans seldom meet in society. The growing feeling that some organization was needed to draw Americans together at the last took definite shape, and last night the inauguration of the "American Society in London" was held at the Cafe Royal, presided over by Thomas F. Bayard.

The banquet was marked by the greatest cordiality. Some three weeks ago A. B. Chamberlin, an old newspaper man, approached some leading Americans here with the object of ascertaining their views on the matter of forming a society. He found on all sides that the suggestions thrown out by him were but echoes of the feeling entertained by all.

Mr. Chamberlin then proceeded to work his scheme out in detail, and letters were sent to a number of American citizens, asking them to attend a meeting to draw up and consider plans. Accordingly a meeting of American citizens interested in the formation of an American society in London on the lines of the New England society and the Southern society in New York was held at the United States consul general's house on March 2. After discussion a committee on organization was appointed by Consul General Collins, who was in the chair, and as a result of the work of that committee an organization was effected at a subsequent meeting and a strong general committee was appointed.

The meetings referred to were kept a secret, it being the wish of the organizers that nothing should be made public until the detailed scheme was in a fair way of completion.

Not All In Harmony.

PITTSBURG, April 20.—The largest district convention since the strike was started was held here yesterday, 60 mines being represented. The miners, however, are divided among themselves. The convention instructed the district officers to ask the railroad operators for a conference. This was a backdown for the miners, as they refused a similar offer from the operators two weeks ago. The convention voted to continue the strike for the 69-cent rate, pending the action of the conference.

Reflects on Captain Crossman.

HAVANA, April 20.—Senor de Lome says it has not yet been proved that the assertions made by Captain Crossman of the steamer Allianca are correct, and it might be presumed that the events narrated by the captain had not occurred at all to the Allianca, but to an English steamer belonging to the Atlas line. He added that he did not believe that any important difficulty would be met with in settling the matter.

Age Against Speedy Recovery.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 20. — While out walking last evening ex-Governor Albert G. Porter fell to the pavement unconscious, suffering from an acute attack of vertigo. Mr. Porter has represented the United States at the Italian court. While no immediate results of a serious nature are anticipated, Mr. Porter's advanced age will retard his speedy recovery.

A Compromise.

LONDON, April 20.—The dispute in the British boot and shoe trade growing out of the introduction of American machinery, etc., and which threw a large number of operatives all over Great Britain out of work, was settled yesterday by a compromise arrangement.

Hasn't Fully Yielded.

PEKIN, April 20.—It is understood that China has refused to concede Japan's demands in regard to opening certain ports to foreign trade. Kuopoa Chong, ex-admiral of the Namling squadron, who was dismissed last autumn, has just been appointed a brigadier-general.

For an Eight-Hour Day.

CHICAGO, April 20.—The American Industrial union will be formed at a meeting tomorrow in this city. In its declaration of principles, the most striking is that which seeks to establish a universal eight-hour day. The time for the effort is set for September, 1897.

Quartet of Bad Men.

KINGWOOD, W. Va., April 20.—Sheriff Shaw was shot twice and probably fatally wounded by four horse thieves whom he was trying to arrest. The thieves were afterward captured by a posse and are now in jail here. A lynching may occur if Shaw dies.

Two Men Killed Outright.

CHICAGO, April 20. — Two men were killed and five injured by the collapse of a large derrick in the Chicago shipyards. While hoisting some heavy timbers a portion of the base of the derrick gave way, burying a crew of workmen under the ruins.

Warships Leave Colon.

COLON, April 20.—The United States cruiser Minneapolis has gone on an official trial of speed. The rest of the United States squadron left here today for Port Limon, Costa Rica. The British warships left Panama today, northward bound.

Cogswell and Hitt Laid Up.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Representatives Hitt of Illinois and Cogswell of Massachusetts are seriously sick in this city. Mr. Cogswell's health of late has been improving. Mr. Hitt has suffered a relapse, and his condition is quite serious.

Where They Can't Do Harm.

HALLE, April 20.—Thirteen members of a Communistic club in this place, who were arrested on the charge of belonging to a secret society, were yesterday found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment.

China's Open Ports.

SHANGHAI, April 20.—It is reported here that the new places that have to be opened to foreign commerce are Chen-Chu, Kai-Fong-Fu, Pekin, Shao-King and Huchow.

Still Higher.

CHICAGO, April 20.—The Standard Oil company yesterday notified local companies of an advance of 4 cents a gallon on naphtha and 2½ cents a gallon on gasoline.

Ozomulsion

TRADE MARK.

is a perfect food for invalids. It is also a medicine. It contains Ozone and Guaiacol. These make appetite. Appetite creates a desire for food. Cod Liver Oil—the basis of Ozomulsion—supplies it. It is the best nutrient known. By nutrient, is meant anything that promotes growth and repairs waste. Ozomulsion does this. That's why invalids like it. They like it also because it is easy to take, easy to digest, easy to assimilate. This makes it a perfect food. Then it does not nauseate like ordinary Cod Liver Oil. Does not cause eructations, that is, belching of wind from the stomach. It does nourish, refresh strengthen and fortify. That's another reason why it's an ideal food for sick people. But above and beyond all it is best, not because its basis is Cod Liver Oil, but because it contains Ozone and Guaiacol. That's the point. That's why

FOUND IN A CELLAR.

Farmer Spearing Sent a Bullet Crashing Into His Own Head.

Ample Evidence That Suicide Was Premeditated.

He Even Left Full Directions For the Division of His Large Estate.

WATERVILLE, Me., April 22.—The body of Gideon Spearing, a well-to-do farmer of Benton, who had been missing since last Tuesday, was found yesterday lying on a heap of potatoes in his cellar, with a bullet hole in his temple.

Spearing was about 45 years old. He had been in the west where he was engaged in cattle buying. He came home last February. He had been boarding with a neighbor, James Warren.

Tuesday night he borrowed $10 of Warren, stating that he was going to make a trip to Massachusetts. He said nothing to anybody about looking after his stock, and the neighbors on Friday went to the barn and found the animals in great need of food and water.

A search was begun for the missing man and yesterday the house was broken into. In the cellar the body was found. A Revolver Lay Underneath the Body.

On a table were found two notebooks filled with the dead man's statements of the reasons for his suicide and an account of the troubles that had led up to it.

Some years ago Spearing's mother lived with him and a woman served in the family as housekeeper. When the mother died, she made provision for giving this woman property amounting to a few hundred dollars as a reward for her work.

The settlement of this claim worried Spearing until finally it led to the suicide. In his pockets were found checks and money amounting to $322.80.

The notebooks also contained full directions as to the disposal of his estate. He desired one daughter to have $1500 in money and one of the sons to have the farm.

He went into details even so far as to indicate to which relative he wished a pair of gold-bowed spectacles, which had been his mother's, to go.

Arrest of Baldwins' Laconia Agent.

LACONIA, N. H., April 22.—Laconia people will lose about $30,000 by the failure of the brokerage firm of Baldwin Bros. Co., of Boston. The Baldwins owe $12,000 in legitimate debts incurred here. D. C. Sargent, manager of the Laconia branch, was arrested on the plea of Frank C. Beaman that Sargent was about to leave the state to avoid the payment of the debt. Beaman brought suit to recover $498. Sargent was given a hearing and ordered to appear at the September term of the supreme court on his own recognizance.

Inspired by Jealousy.

ATHOL, Mass., April 22.—John J. Thornton attempted to kill his wife by stabbing her twice with a jackknife. Mr. and Mrs. Thornton have not lived together lately, and yesterday afternoon she was out walking with her employer, Charles Barrett of Hinsdale, N. H., the couple having driven to Athol Saturday. Her brother, who was near by, ran to her assistance and, with the aid of a young man, held her assailant until officers arrived. The wounds are not considered dangerous. The cause of the assault was jealousy.

Twice Saved From Drowning.

BOSTON, April 22.—William F. Birch, aged 34, and Joseph J. Dowd, aged 18, while sailing in a small boat in the harbor, were thrown into the water by their boat overturning. Police Officer Keith and Sergeant Keefe, U. S. A., went to the rescue of the men. After picking them up, they righted the overturned craft and all four got into it. Young Dowd moved about uneasily and the boat was again upset. All four were soon struggling in the water. The fishing schooner Roulette put about and rescued them.

John L.'s Presence of Mind.

BOSTON, April 22.—Pugilist John L Sullivan was leaving his boarding house yesterday when he heard a woman scream in the rear of the house. He turned back and saw that there was a fire in the kitchen. Mrs. Margaret Donnelly, the cook, had her clothing on fire, which had caught from blazing fat on the stove. Sullivan wrapped a mat around her and finally succeeded in extinguishing the fire. She was badly burned, however, and died in a short time. Sullivan's hands were burned.

To Strike or Not to Strike?

PROVIDENCE, April 22.—The weavers of the Providence and National worsted mills have requested the district council to grant them permission to strike. The council is considering the request, but hesitates about granting it, as it may cause a general shutdown of all the mills in Olneyville. The Providence and National mills, which are under one management, employ 2500 operatives. The employes say they will strike unless their wages are increased.

Work of an Insane Man.

BOSTON, April 22.—The police yesterday arrested Alfred J. Claffy, the man who created a sensation last week by entering the Young Men's Christian association and presenting a revolver to the head of one of the members. He also went into a drug store and ordered the clerk to deliver the contents of the money drawer. He flourished the weapon around, but did no damage. He was committed to the Tombs as insane.

Not So Safe After All.

BRISTOL, R. I., April 22.—Robert Wood, a prisoner in the Bristol jail, escaped yesterday. He was arrested at Barrington six months ago for breaking and entering. He sawed his way out of the Barrington jail and was brought here for safe keeping. He was allowed the freedom of the corridor and slipped out yesterday while the door was open.

Wants Insurance Money.

PROVIDENCE, April 22.—A suit has been filed against the Providence Permanent Fireman's association by Mrs. Isabella Monroe to recover $10,000. The association refused to pay $1000 benefit to Mrs. Monroe upon the death of her husband, who was a member of the organization, but who failed to assign the benefit to any one.

Initiation Too Much For Him.

NASHUA, April 22.—The work of organizing a branch of the Knights of Columbus was interrupted by the police, who rushed to the scene on hearing one of the new members shout: "They are murdering a man!" The police found an initiation going on, but nothing to indicate that murder was being committed. It was explained that one of the victims of the initiation, becoming excited during the initiation ceremony, had rushed to the window and shouted for the police.

Woonsocket Weavers' Wants.

WOONSOCKET, April 22.—Weavers of the Lippitt Manufacturing company have demanded a restoration of the wages paid before the last cut-down. The mill managers have the question under advisement.

Consumption's Victim.

NEW HAVEN, April 22.—James Tipper, at one time one of the best known ball players in the country, was found dead in bed in a lodging house yesterday. Death resulted from consumption.

Used Pistol on Himself.

SACO, April 22.—Thomas Davis, a prominent citizen of this place, aged 52 years, committed suicide at York Corner yesterday by shooting. No cause is assigned for the act.

Shoe Stock Damaged by Water.

LYNN, April 22.—A broken water pipe in Baker's shoe factory flooded the two lower stories of the building. The stock was damaged to the extent of $2000.

New England Briefs.

There was a $30,000 fire in Beverly.

Hereafter the national flag will fly from the Marlboro city hall.

Boston national banks will, after June 1, close at 1 o'clock on Saturdays.

Joseph Mooney, aged 6, died at Ansonia, Conn., from injuries received by being run over by an electric car.

Aggie Kane, aged 8, was terribly burned at Southington, Conn., while playing at a bonfire. She cannot recover.

Racco Simmoillo and Principia Romano were arrested at Haverhill charged with assault with a dangerous weapon on a young man.

A dwelling at Wallingford, Conn., was destroyed by fire. Two children fell into an oil well during the fire and narrowly escaped drowning.

After a series of incendiary fires at Waterbury the police caught John Blade and John Hughes, aged 16 years, as they were running from a blazing barn. They were charged with arson.

In Ripper Style.

NEW YORK, April 22.—A murder was brought to light in Bellevue hospital yesterday, which is suggestive, in some of its details, of the Whitechapel crimes in London that made Jack the Ripper notorious. The victim was a woman of the lowest class. Her name was Alice Walsh. When the autopsy was performed upon her body, it was discovered that certain mutilations had been made which distinguished the Whitechapel murders. The murderer has not been arrested, but one man who is thought to have some knowledge of the matter was held on suspicion by the police. A large force of men are at work on the case.

A Horrible Crime and Its Sequel.

GREENVILLE, Ala., April 22.—The county sheriff, when three miles from town, found five negroes, three men and two women, hanging by their necks to some trees. They were suspected of the murder near Butler of Watts Murphy, a popular young white man. After murdering him the negroes placed his body on a brush heap and burned the heap. Three negroes were arrested for the crime, and yesterday one of the negroes confessed, implicating two other negro men and two women. The officers secured them, but the details of how the mob secured the murderers, except that they were taken by force, are not known.

Captain Made a Mistake.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Schooner Lester A. Lewis, Captain Burgess, with a cargo of lumber, from Norfolk, for New York, struck on the Romer shoal Saturday night and filled at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The crew had to remain all night on the deckload, some of which commenced to wash away. The captain said he mistook the light on the Romer shoal for some other light. The crew were saved.

Japs Explain.

YOKOHAMA, April 22.—The government has issued a statement denying that it has concluded an offensive and defensive alliance with China, and declaring that the commercial advantages secured by Japan under the terms of the treaty will also be enjoyed by the other powers under the "most favored nation" treatment.

Fort Worth's Flurry.

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 22. — Things have taken a different turn in the case of the suspended City National bank. Max Elser, late cashier and city treasurer of Fort Worth, was arrested on an indictment charging the embezzlement of funds to the amount of $114,754.40. Elser was admitted to bail in the sum of $1500.

Alleged Spanish Outrage.

KEY WEST, April 22.—It is reported here that a British smack, which plies regularly between Long Key and Nassau, was fired upon by a Spanish gunboat and two of her seamen killed, and that the schooner was taken to Santiago de Cuba by the gunboat

German Capitalists Furnish Cash.

BERLIN, April 22.—The Chinese government has concluded arrangements here for a loan of 30,000,000 marks at 6 per cent interest.

Five Thousand to Quit.

PARIS, April 22.—Five thousand employes of the omnibus companies will go on a strike this afternoon.

CONVICTED AS A SPY.

Ex-Consul Waller Sentenced to Prison by the French Government.

Said to Have Given Information to Hovas.

Matter Considered Worthy of Investigation by the State Department.

MARSEILLES, April 22.—John L. Waller, formerly American consul at Tamatave, who was brought to this port on the steamer Djemmah, after having been tried by a French court-martial and sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment on the charge of having been a spy in the interest of the Hovas, was taken from the steamer by the police and lodged in jail, after having been registered as a prisoner.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The information reaching Washington gives the details of the charge under which Waller was convicted as a spy. The French soldiers had determined to make a descent on one of the large Hovas towns. It was to be a night attack, and was intended to be a decisive stroke. The arrangements for the move were guarded with the utmost secrecy.

In some way, however, Waller learned of the French movement, and is said to have conveyed full information to the Hovas. The latter quickly armed the threatened town, so that when the French soldiers appeared, instead of taking the town by surprise, they found everyone alert for the attack. The alleged treachery was closely investigated and, it is claimed, traced to Waller. Aside from the chagrin to which the French forces were put by having their plans miscarry, it is said to have seriously retarded the progress of the French expedition in Madagascar.

The French ambassador at Washington, M. Patenotre, has not yet been informed of the Waller proceedings. Mr. Gresham is dealing with the French minister of foreign affairs through our ambassador at Paris.

Worthy of Investigation.

An interesting question which has arisen at this stage is what has become of Mr. Waller's concession. He had an absolute grant of about 200 miles of the most valuable lands in Madagascar, abounding in rubber trees and other tropical products, which he had partially arranged to market. It is well known here that every effort had been made to dispossess him by other holders of concessions, who desired to seize upon these lands.

But so far as the facts are known Mr. Waller obtained this concession in a perfectly legitimate manner and his title must be protected. Our government has uniformly held, notably in the cases arising in Central America, that an American citizen cannot be dispossessed of a concession, so long as he complies with its terms, by any revolution in the government of the country where it may be situated.

The rule of international law is clear as to the preservation of the individual's title in such cases, and having laid down this doctrine in our relations with the weaker nations of this continent, the state department can scarcely do less than maintain it against France.

"False and Malicious."

WASHINGTON, April 22.—A. A. Birney, counsel for Mrs. Frances Spranger, has received a telegram from her requesting him to take whatever steps seemed needful and proper respecting charges made by Mrs. Darling. "I do not see that anything further than what I have already done is necessary," said Mr. Birney. "The story is utterly false and malicious."

Political Opponents Had a Chat.

ALBANY, April 22.—Governor Morton called upon Senator Hill at the latter's residence, "Wolfert's Roost," yesterday afternoon, and was the senator's guest for over two hours. They both declared that there was no political significance in the visit.

Waiting For a Good Chance.

KOBE, April 22.—On April 13 and 14, 58 transports left Ujina for Talien-Wan with 30,000 Japanese troops. It is believed that these troops are destined for a descent upon Taku and Shanhaikwan directly the time of the armistice shall have expired.

Wales' Cutter In a Gale.

LONDON, April 22.—The Prince of Wales' cutter Britannia arrived Saturday night at Cowes, from the Mediterranean. In crossing the Bay of Biscay she encountered heavy weather, during which she lost a portion of her copper sheathing.

Welcome News.

VICTORIA, B. C., April 22.—The Tacoma sealing schooner Behring Sea, reported lost with all on board, is safe in Clayquot harbor, Vancouver island, where she was spoken Tuesday morning by the steamer Mischief.

Wanton Slaughter.

RED CLIFF, Colo., April 22.—News has reached here of the wanton killing of 280 head of sheep belonging to J. L. Herwick on Catamount Creek. The killing of the sheep will, it is feared, result in serious trouble.

Hard to Replace.

PARIS, April 22.—A fire in the school of arts and industries at Chalons-sur-Marne destroyed the models and machines for the exhibition to be held in Paris in 1900. The loss exceeds 1,000,000 francs.

Favors Present Law.

LONDON, April 22. — The Times says that the opium commission's report decides against the prohibition of the growth of the poppy or the manufacture of opium in India.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. In many instances the attacks may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.

Resolutions Adopted Favoring a Change in the Jury System.

The afternoon session of the annual meeting of the Norfolk County Temperance Union, Saturday, was full of interest.

Excellent reports were given from Hyde Park, Canton, East Weymouth, Quincy, Foxboro, Wollaston, Sharon, West Quincy, Milford, and Medway.

It was decided to hold the next meeting in July at Canton.

A vote of thanks were also voted the officers for their efficient service in sustaining the work in Norfolk County, to the Quincy Reform Club for use of hall, the janitor, and Henry H. Faxon.

George W. Penniman gave a talk on his experience in the past and present in the temperance cause, and Mrs. Penniman sang a solo.

Mrs. Henry B. Raymond gave an interesting talk on work among the children and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond and Miss Edith Raymond sang "Farther On," to the pleasure of the audience.

After some discussion the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS,—The progress of the cause of law and order has been greatly hindered by rumsellers and other incompetent and vicious men serving as jurors, therefore,

Resolved,—That the jury system, which often renders trials an expensive farce, should be radically changed or abolished.

Resolved,—That the ends of justice would be better subserved by vesting this power in three judges of whom two shall be sufficient to render a verdict.

These officers were also elected:

President,—Sanford W. Billings of Sharon.

Secretary,—Mrs. L. A. Mears of Foxboro.

Treasurer,—Edward Polley of East Walpole.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Dunn and Henry Averill were fined $3 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Lawrence R. Shaw was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Patrick Forbes of Braintree was fined $5 for drunkenness and $5 for disturbing the peace.

Frank P. Casner of Holbrook was fined $15 for assault on Patrick Mattimore.

Patrick H. Hand, James F. Boyle and Richard D. Fox were held in $600 each for the grand jury for breaking and entering the store of Charles Prescott at Randolph.

Henry W. Shea was arraigned for keeping a common nuisance at Randolph. The evidence in this case showed quite an ingenious device for the thirsty people of Randolph to quench their thirst. In the store kept by Shea was a little closet. When a man wanted anything in the liquor line he would walk into the closet, open a slide and deposit his money. He then came out and in a few moments the noise of an electric buzzer was heard upon which he again enters the closet and a transformation had taken place for where he left his money there was a bottle containing liquor.

An inspection showed that the back of this closet opened into a barn and that a system of electric bells had been arranged in the building by which the signals were given. The court thought the evidence sufficient and imposed a fine of $60.

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Pleasant Spring Sabbath and Large Congregations.

NOTES FROM MANY CHURCHES.

The Texts, the Sermons, the Music and Other Services.

The congregations Sunday were unusually large. The pleasant day brought the people out; also the new garments and the spring millinery. The preachers would like to see as many every Sunday.

Sunday evening the Rev. Mr. Peach gave a vigorous discourse on "Practical Talk on Some Things a Christian Ought Not To Do." His text was from 2d Cor. 11:14. The first vice attacked was drinking. He described some of its injurious effects on the human system, and relegated alcohol, like strychnia to medical dispensation. He pointed out the evil effects of dancing, theatre going and card playing. He urged his hearers to be charitable, and not say that it is impossible for one who may have taken part in those games to be a Christian. But he asserted emphatically that participation in such pastime degenerates spiritual life.

Charles Robinson of Boston University Theological Seminary had charge of the services in the Methodist church on Sunday, Rev. Mr. Virgin being called away by the death of Mrs. Virgin's father at Dedham.

Rev. Oliver M. Fisher of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church, preached Sunday morning on "War and Peace, or Trouble in Japan," and in the evening on "Fashions." Epworth League vespers were held at 6.15.

At Christ's church the Easter music was repeated. Large congregations were present at each service.

Sunday morning in the First Presbyterian church, the Rev. Robert Westly Peach gave the "Intermediate State" as the subject for the morning's teaching. This followed as the logical sequence of the sermon of last Sunday on "The Resurrection of the Body."

He did not dogmatize but his exposition was in accord with many eminent theologians. He quoted many scripture passages to fortify his ground and laid emphasis on 21 Cor. 4:1-10 inclusive. He described the decay of the natural body and its identity and restoration in a glorified state after death. In illustrating the three cosmic spheres, the sensual, the spiritual and the glorified, he quoted from Calvin, Bishop Burnette, Ralph Wardlaw and many other eminent men. "There shall be no sleep for the soul." "This day shalt though be with me in Paradise." There is no Purgatory where sinners can be redeemed from past iniquities. "Between us and you there is a gulf fixed so that they which would pass from hence to you cannot; neither can they pass to us that would come from thence." No second probation. "If they hear not Moses and the prophets neither will they be pursuaded though one rose from the dead." So taught Jesus Christ.

There will be a meeting of the standing committee of the Wollaston Congregational church at the close of the Friday evening prayer meeting, to confer with those who desire to unite with the church, either by letter, or on confession of their faith.

At the Calvary Baptist Church, South Quincy, Rev. C. A. Parker, preached from Isaiah 55:1. He spoke from the simple words "Come." This message he said is fraught with good cheer and hope, a message of the Divine Father to His children. This invitation of heaven to earth was made as soon as Adam turned from God to sin. When Jesus Christ came, He seconded and emphasized the same invitation, "Come." Two questions arise concerning this call of God to men. First, from what does He call us? Secondly, to what does He call us? He calls us away from self, away from selfishness, for selfishness is the great root evil from which all evils spring. Selfishness is the cause of all the strife and murder there is in the world. He calls us to companionship with Himself even in this present life, which to many is a life of estrangement from Him. This divine companionship is simply the possession and the living in our lives of the life of Jesus Christ. It means that our thoughts shall be pure and our lives right. This will be truly walking with God. He also calls us to an ideal attainment. Ideal because the heights of character to which we are called are the highest possible to be reached; we are taken into God's heart of love. Nothing short of Christly character should satisfy us, but yet the perfect is not fully realized in this life, only in the other. We will be like Him only when we see Him clearly, and we will see Him clearly only when we stand in the "New Jerusalem," radiant in our purity. No sin there to obscure our vision of Him.

The first quarterly conference of the Atlantic Methodist church for the new year was held at the chapel on Saturday evening at 7.30.

A large audience were assembled on Sunday morning at the Baptist church, Wollaston, to hear Rev. Mr. Gurney, the pastor preach. He took his text from Psa. 121:8. "The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth and even for evermore."

The Tuesday evening prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mr. MacKay on Central ave., Wollaston.

An adjourned meeting of the Atlantic Epworth League was held at the chapel on Thursday evening, April 18. The following officers were elected for the next six months:

President,—Rev. Oliver M. Fisher.

First Vice-President,—Mr. John Ramsdell.

Second Vice-President,—Miss Dora E. Brown.

Third Vice-President,—Miss Mae Webster.

Fourth Vice President,—Miss Barbara E. Vogler.

Secretary,—Miss Flora E. Brown.

Treasurer,—Mr. Nat. C. Pember.

The annual church meeting and supper of the Evangelical Congregational church will be held Wednesday evening.

The annual offering of the Wollaston Congregational society to the American Missionary Association will be made next Sabbath morning.

BASE BALL.

Adams Academy Beats Dean Academy in a Hard-Fought Game.

On Saturday the Academy nine went to Franklin and played a fine game against the Dean Academy boys, winning by a score of 3 to 1.

The Dean Academy nine is much heavier than the Adams team, and in addition to this fact it should be taken into consideration that a professional ball player, who is coaching their men, played in the game. It was expected that Mr. Linfield would pitch for the Adams Academy nine, but he was not in condition. The only alternative was to put in Eldridge to pitch. His work was a revelation to everybody. An examination of the score by innings will show how hard-fought a game it was.

Dean went first to the bat and failed to score. The visitors made one run in their half. Kent reached first on a scratch hit and stole second. Mr. Hall hit the ball to the infield and was put out at first, but Kent in the meantime reached third. The next man retired and then Eldridge came in with a base hit on which Kent scored.

Then for five innings neither side could score. That one run stood like a mountain in front of the home nine; on the other hand they were bound that it shouldn't grow any larger. It was during this part of the game that the visiting team played as it never has played before. More than once during the game, the Dean boys had men on second or third, with nobody out, and yet they failed to score. Eldridge pitched well and played a star fielding game. He made two one-handed stops of hot ground balls, and was in a double play with second base and first, and in another with second base. He struck out eight men during the game and, with Linfield, did the heaviest batting.

In the sixth innings, with two men on third and second, Barker made a pretty hit and brought in two more runs. Then the game went on until the eighth innings, when Sherman, who is the professional trainer, reached third base and scored on a hit. The Dean boys were frantic and the cheering was incessant. Every attempt was made to rattle the visitors but they played a cool and steady game. One feature of this part of the game was Hall's throw to the plate which saved a run. Manning caught an excellent game throughout. Both members of the battery watched the bases well and very little stealing was done. Although the score shows five errors for Adams they were made at times when no harm was done by them. At critical points the playing was remarkably clean.

Barker, Linfield and Eldridge did the best batting for Adams; Sherman and Weaver for Dean. Hancock pitched a very swift ball and struck out ten of his opponents.

The game was won entirely on its merits, and the Adams boys and their supporters are much elated over the result. Below is the score in full:

A TRIPARTITE AGREEMENT

With the Object of Securing Favorable Trade Relations With China.

BERLIN, April 22.—The North German Gazette (semi-official) publishes an article of similar importance to one contained in the Cologne Gazette Saturday afternoon.

The Gazette of Saturday said that in view of the pressure being exercised by the war party in Japan, Germany, at the beginning of March, enjoined the Japanese government to be moderate in the terms demanded for peace, urging that the cession of territory upon the mainland of China would be especially calculated to induce the intervention of the powers. When it was shown by the published terms of peace that Japan was not disposed to follow Germany's advice, steps were immediately taken to establish an accord with the powers, and a complete agreement has been reached with Russia and France.

The three powers, Germany, Russia and France, will now take steps to protect their interests in eastern Asia. The question of territorial changes will be first kept in view, against Japan's desire to bind herself like a solid girdle around China, in order to be able to shut off China entirely from Europe. In case of need, the three powers mantioned intend to avert in good time any injury to their interests.

It was added, however, that Germany would be glad to see Japan enjoy the fruits of her military powers on condition that it does not injure Germany's interests.

ONE OUT OF THREE.

St. Louis Men Won In a Close Contest With the Chicago Colts.

ST. LOUIS, April 21.—Twelve thousand people witnessed an unusually exciting and long-drawn-out game today. Both sides were on Uneasy street until the last man went down. The game was replete with base hits, two and three baggers, home runs and good fielding. The game went to the Browns and gives them one of the three played with Chicago.

More Than Was Wanted.

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 22.—Texas has needed rain, so Evangelist Dwight Moody yesterday afternoon called upon his audience of 8000 Christians to pray fervently that the flood-gates might be opened. Last night, when the tabernacle was crowded by 10,000 people, Mr. Moody announced that rain had fallen at several points. A few minutes later the storm burst on Fort Worth and torrents of rain fell. Then Mr. Moody gave thanks to God and called upon the congregation to join in singing "Coronation," and the song surged forth from 10,000 throats. Then a cracking noise was heard, the rafters gave way and the heavy timbers and boards covered with tar and gravel came down on a portion of the congregation. There was a panic, and scores upon scores of women fainted. Seven persons were dangerously hurt and some 40 others were slightly hurt.

Four Rounds Were Enough.

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 22.—The glove contest between Mike Carney and Dan Sullivan was to be a 10-round contest for $100 a side and the gate receipts. In the fourth round Sullivan received a terrible right-hander squarely on the point of the jaw, which knocked him down and out.

Double Fatality.

RICHLAND, Pa., April 22. — A train struck a team containing Mr. and Mrs. Henry Frank, aged 63 and 65, respectively, near here, and both were instantly killed.

Between 300 and 400 people were carried to Houghs Neck Sunday on the cars.

The Water Commissioners commenced laying pipes to Houghs Neck this morning.

The high wind this morning made the dust fly and it was disagreeable, the streets not watered.

It is said that many would like to kick themselves because they did not order coal when it was low. It has taken a jump.

The house committee of the Quincy Historical society hold a meeting this afternoon to take steps toward securing permanent quarters.

The pole for the arc light on Washington street in front of the Thomas Crane library is in position and the light will be cut into the lines today.

The officials at City Hall do not drink city water but refresh themselves with Shawmut Spring water which is delivered charged in bottles.

A movement is on foot among several well known Quincy gentlemen to open a bowling alley in the centre in the near future for private use.

The Houghs Neck post office opened this morning for the season with Capt Boyd in charge. Only two of the refreshment places are open, however.

The Joseph Newcomb estate on Putnam street was sold at auction Saturday. Auctioneer Crane made a very good sale to Mr. William P. Barker for $1,650.

Extensive alterations are being made to the barge Clifford at East Boston and she will be used in connection with the steamboat line running to Quincy Point, to carry picnic parties.

Auctioneer Crane will have his second grand combination sale tomorrow at the stable of Wilson Tisdale at Quincy Point. Preparations have been made this time for a lunch.

A little more money spent in cleaning the streets and gutters goes a great ways and pleases the abutters. Quite an improvement has been made in some Ward One streets the past few days.

The ladies who participated in the "experience meeting" at the parish house of Christ's church on Thursday, April 18, will be pleased to know that in this case their poetry paid, for it will net one hundred dollars towards the payment of the debt upon the church organ.

The Poverty party on Patriots' day at Wollaston was a great success. Everyone on entering had a name pinned on his back which had to be found out by asking questions. Names of authors, also heroes and heroines were selected and much sport was occasioned by the questions asked. The entertainment consisted of finding those present, and selections from Mother Goose.

The last meeting of the Elliot club was held on Wednesday evening, April 17, with Mr. and Mrs. Simmons. As it was the annual meeting, the officers for the ensuing year were elected. Mr. W. G. Corthell was elected president, Mrs. N. G. Nickerson vice-president, Miss Florence G. Olney secretary and treasurer. Executive committee: Mrs. A. A. Lincoln, Dr. Richards and Mr. Saxe. After all business had been transacted a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Today Rev. Robert Westly Peach and family go to Ashtabula, Ohio, till the 10th of May. Mr. Peach goes to recruit his strength. This is necessary for since his recent illness, the discharge of his onerous pastoral duties has retarded complete recuperation of strength and some relaxation is incumbent. The reverend veteran octogenarian Angler will act as substitute in the interim. The cordial sympathy of his flock will follow Mr. Peach to the west and pray for his return fully invigorated and refreshed.

AMONG THE YACHT OWNERS.

Old Boats Being Overhauled and New Ones Building.

Sundays and holidays are busy days among Quincy yacht owners who spend every spare moment putting the finishing touches on their flyers preparitory to launching them into their native element. If the present weather holds the first of May will see the most of them in the water.

Charlie White has launched his Jeannette and took a cruise in her Sunday. He has made some alterations in her, moving the mast back 18 inches, thus making her a jib and mainsail.

Maloney has put his big jib and mainsail built for Boston parties into the water and she was taken to Boston, Sunday.

These are the only boats in the water thus far, but nearly all those at Gavin's and Lelois's yards have had their coverings taken off and are being scraped and painted, although no extensive alterations will be made to any of the old boats this year.

Fred Tupper has completed the boat upon which he has been at work a long time. It is from his own models and may surprise people.

Kane's "Hattie" is also in the water, and made her first cruise Sunday.

There will probably be four or five new boats in the second class this year. As already noted, Henry M. Faxon has one at Lelois's, and Charles F. Colby's is almost ready for the water at Gavin's. Lawley is building one for the Adams boys, and Councilman Fred B. Rice is having one built at the Fore River engine works. It is rumored also that William B. Barker is having a rival to the Cleopatra built by Hawley, although the prize winner Opechee will still take a hand in the races this year.

Young Men's Christian Association.

The International convention, to be held in Springfield, Mass., May 8-12, will undoubtedly be the most interesting and practical association convention ever held. There will be many new features introduced for the first time. It will be preeminently a gathering of business men, as many of the most prominent business men in the country will be present. Among the speakers will be Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, D.D., and Fred. M. Pratt of Brooklyn, H. M. Moore of Boston, Thomas Cochran of St. Paul, President M. E. Gates, L. L. D, of Amherst, L. C. Warner, M. D, of New York, Dr. Charles A. Eastman of St. Paul, Col. John J McCook of New York, Receiver of the A. T. and S. F. R. R., New York, Rev. W. H. P. Faunce, New York, President J. M. Coulter, Ph. D. of Lake Forest University, Chicago; Gen. O. O. Howard of the U. S. A., Prof. Graham Taylor of Chicago, Chephas Brainerd of New York and D. L. Moody. Among the new features will be an exhibition of educational work and an athletic contest, including penthalon test, basket ball game, and cycle race.

The International Secretary's Conference will be held at Hartford following the convention.

At Home

You may have what thousands visit Europe for yearly, that is the natural Sprudel Salt of Carlsbad. It is obtained by evaporation at the Springs, and is identical with the waters in its action and results, which are the same to-day as when Emperor Charles IV. was cured four hundred years ago, and later George III., Peter the Great, and Maria Theresa benefited by their use. They aid digestion, cure constipation, and purify the blood.

BURGLAR AND POET.

CHAPLAIN PLUMER DISCOVERS ONE IN THE MAINE STATE PRISON.

Some Remarkable Sonnets Written by Fred Irving, One of the Inmates, Who Is Serving a Twenty-five Years' Sentence For Burglary.

Chaplain Plumer of the Maine state prison has discovered in Fred Irving, one of the inmates, a poet of no mean pretensions to fame, says the New York Sun. Irving, who is serving a term of 25 years for burglary, molds his poetic thought in the shape of sonnets, which he writes in the hours of recreation allowed him by the prison rules. His style is fluent, racy and picturesque, and many an author who has won the public ear will envy him his facility of rhyme and meter.

Mr. Irving, who has masqueraded under other names while pursuing his career of crime, placed in the hands of Chaplain Plumer the other day a manuscript of sonnets, the penmanship of which would have been creditable to a writing master. The chaplain discerned their merit at once, but he also saw that he must play the censor if they were to see the light, for Mr. Irving had abused the license permitted to poets in a manner offensive to chaste minds and shocking to ears polite. But after the work of expurgation had been done many passages were left to challenge the attention of critical minds.

Mr. Irving is nothing if not daring, and he often repels by the brutality with which he sings of his chosen profession, for burglary is his business and poetry merely a pastime which he takes up when he is a guest of the state.

Occasionally the burglar poet wearies of base themes, and then he attunes his harmonies to subjects of enchanting lyric sweetness or even strikes a note of religious fervor, and the strains that follow are as rolling, deep and impressive as the melodious thunders of an organ with all the stops pulled out. In order to insure him a respectful hearing he should therefore be introduced by such an emotional flight of rapture as his "Easter," which follows:

Sing, O my soul, the theme exultant sing,
Swift, swift, my feet, the healing message take
To stricken earth that Christ, her Lord, doth wake
And walks in majesty today a king.
Oh, haste thee, heart, thy richest offering bring.
Thine alabaster box of ointment break
Upon his feet, and joyful noises make
With flute and cymbals and the harp's loud string.

Lo! how the hills that late were gray and sad
Come forth all garlanded with verdant bloom,
While lilies pale and sweet besprink the plain.
So let men's hearts rejoice and make them glad
In that our Lord hath burst the awful tomb,
And Judah's lion doth triumphant reign.

By way of contrast, between Mr. Irving's best and worst moods, and the gulf is immeasurable, an audacious trifle, in which he takes the reader into his confidence, should come next. It is called "The Gourmet," and in this sonnet he answers a question which the admirers of his verse would be likely to ask. He says:

Why do I burgle? Well, I'll tell you why.
One great big reason is I hate to go
To a cheap restaurant. It hurts me so
That, if I had to, then I'll rather die.
I simply cannot stand the buzzing fly
And the waiter without a collar, that thinks to grow
A beard in a week. I shrink from the holy show
Of the tablecloth and the beans and the baker's pie.

But at 9 a. m. to step into Young's hotel,
Where a cool, well bred, cathedral quiet reigns,
For absinthe, coffee and rolls and cantaloupe,
Makes life worth living. Of course it costs like ——
But look at that ceiling, those delicate window panes
And this napkin, clean and white as a lady's throat!

The depraved side of this bad poet—i. e., bad in a moral sense—must be shown, however, in its most somber colors. Duty to high art requires it. Therefore the reader must submit to be shocked by Mr. Irving's "Baffled," which was unquestionably inspired by Lucifer himself:

Once on a wild and lusterless midnight,
In a neglected graveyard by the coast,
I dared the Father, Son and Holy Ghost
To come right down and settle it in fight!
I cracked my fists and shrieked with all my might
And raved and cursed until I was almost Exhausted unto death, and 'gainst a post
I leaned hard put and filled with bitter spite.

'Twould have gone hard with man or maid or child
That had come o'er that road about that time,
For once—though that's another—see Rudyard Kip.
Yet I saw but one lone star that quiet smiled
And heard but breakers in whose loud sublime
I caught the choke of many a strangled ship.

Lest this awful fragment deprive Mr. Irving altogether of the sympathy of the generous minded his "Prescience" is introduced:

God sent a poem to my heart last night,
The visitation of the Holy Ghost
Burst through the corridors of thought, almost Prostrating me with a divine delight.
I heard the stars make music in their flight
And saw the pinions of a seraph host
And felt the rushing wind of Pentecost
Sweep by me as I rose and sought to write.

But in an instant was the vision fled,
And I leaned, panting, on my lonely desk.
I know that it will never come again.
But in that foretaste of the joys ahead
I've been of all the earth supremely blest
And thank thee, Father, with amen, amen!

Try as he may to stifle his evil impulses, Mr. Irving is still the burglar, and these selections from his poems may close appropriately with the following realistic sonnet:

Oho! Look out for me. I come in the night.
I come in the dead of the night, when you think all's well.
I come to give you that horrible, sinking fright
In the pit of the stomach of which you've heard folks tell,
And when you see a little pencil of light
And a velvet mask a-hover above your bed
Don't move, don't even breathe, or hap ye might
Be filling a long engagement with the dead.
I'd kind of hate to knife such a pretty girl,
So quiet, my beauty, while I swoop the stuff,
And I'll not injure even your slightest curl.
By George! This is a Jurgensen, sure enough!
Those diamond drops are cockoos, this black pearl
Will keep me many a day like a Lord Macduff.

THE POET'S GIFT.

The poet looks with unsealed eyes
Upon the everchanging skies.
The vale and mountain, plain and brook
He reads like pages of a book.

His ear attuned, earth's melody,
The zephyr and the moaning sea,
The bird's song and musician's art,
All find an echo in his heart.

He feels the charm and subtle power
Contained in every wayside flower.
He is akin to all things wild,
For he is nature's simple child.

All living things to him are dear,
And God is ever very near.
To poets only this is given—
To find on earth a part of heaven.
—Henry Coyle.

A FEUD.

"I'll tell you, Frank, it's got to the point where something must be done," said Mrs. Burnett, and as she spoke she rapped at the small knuckles that were moving toward the sugar bowl. Morton, aged 9, jerked his hand out of the way and laughed at his mother, who pursed up her lips to conceal a smile.

"Don't do that, Morton," said Mr. Burnett. Then, turning to his wife, he asked, "What have they been doing now?"

"That boy and some more of his crowd put tin cans along the top of the fence and then threw at them to knock them off. About every other stone went over the top of the fence and went sailing across our back yard. If one of them had struck anybody, he wouldn't have known what hurt him."

"What did you do?"

"What did I do? I went out and told them if they didn't stop I'd send for a policeman. I said to that Deakin boy, 'It's a shame your mother can't teach you to be a little better than a savage.'"

"Maybe she didn't know they were doing it."

"I do believe she puts 'em up to it. That boy's enough to try the patience of a saint."

"Next time he comes into our yard I'll bet I throw something at him," put in Morton, whose chin was dripping with a mild mixture of milk and coffee.

"You leave him alone," said the male parent. "You get into enough fights already."

"Well, Frank, these boys are forever picking on him," said Mrs. Burnett.

"Boys are a good deal alike," responded her husband. "I'll bet when he gets out he's the same as the rest of them."

Morton grinned and said nothing.

The only member of the Burnett family who had not joined in the arraignment of the neighbors was Alice, 6 years of age. She knew all about the feud and shared in the suspicions of her mother, but at present she was too busy with her supper.

The Deakins lived next door, and although there was a dividing fence it had not kept the two families apart.

In the year during which the two households had dwelt side by side there had been a growing enmity. Yet Mrs. Burnett had never spoken a word to Mrs. Deakin, and her husband knew nothing of Mr. Deakin, except that he worked with his hands for a living and spent a great many evenings at home.

It would have been rather difficult for either the Burnetts or the Deakins to explain how the feud started, but it was operated from the first through the children.

There were two Deakin children—Lawrence, or Larry, aged 10, and little Willie, who, at the tender age of 3, had learned to regard the Burnett tribe with scorn and hatred and suffer to some degree under the indignities heaped upon his family by that arch fiend of juvenility, Morton Burnett.

For when the Deakins sat around the supper table and cast up the accounts of the day it was Larry who posed as the persecuted and abused child, while Morton Burnett was pictured as an infant of dark intents, headed straight for the bridewell.

"If I was a man, Tom Deakin," said the wife, "I'll warrant you I'd go over to that house and give notice that things are simply going too far. Today that boy got up on the fence and called Lawrence all kinds of names."

"He said that his mother had said that ma didn't have clothes fit to wear," suggested Lawrence, who had begun to breathe hard during the recital of his grievances.

"Anyway, I don't try to make myself look like a peacock every time I start to church," said Mrs. Deakin.

This comparison of Mrs. Burnett to a peacock tickled the children, and they laughed immoderately. Tom Deakin restrained them with a quiet "Tut, tut!" and said that the proper way to get along was to pay no attention to the neighbors.

"I'd like to know how you can help it," said his wife. "That boy is up to some mischief every hour of the day, and his mother seems to encourage him in everything he does. He throws things over into our yard, teases Willie and makes faces at him."

"Next time I see him pick on Willie I'll give him another licking," suggested Larry.

"You'll do nothing of the kind," exclaimed his mother. "Don't you remember the talking to I gave you the other time you had that fight with him?"

Lawrence remembered the mild rebuke, and his inward resolution was not changed. Tom Deakin went for his pipe, oppressed with the thought that he had been very unlucky in his selection of neighbors.

These complaints had come to him day after day from the downtrodden members of his family.

The feud had grown from a thousand aggravating circumstances.

Suppose Morton Burnett to be on the fence. His mother would open the back door and say loudly enough to make herself heard through the open windows of the Deakin house: "Morty, get down from that fence! Haven't I told you about that?"

Mrs. Deakin would hear and understand. Then she would wait her opportunity to appear on the back stoop and retaliate.

In summer time, when both women were out of doors much of the time, they occasionally exchanged glances which were more significant than anything they could have said.

When Mrs. Burnett put out her washing, she knew that Mrs. Deakin was watching her and counting the number of pillow slips and tablecloths.

When Mrs. Burnett came to the back door and called out, "Come, Alice, dear, and practice your music lesson," it was equivalent to saying to Mrs. Deakin, "Aha, we have a cottage organ in our house, but you haven't any in yours."

Mrs. Deakin had frequently informed Tom that the Burnett organ was a cheap secondhand thing.

One day, when Mrs. Deakin came home from a funeral in a covered carriage, there was consternation in the Burnett family, and accounts were not fairly balanced until a new coat of paint was put on the Burnett house.

The Deakin children told the Burnett children all that their mother had said about the probable character of Mrs. Burnett. Likewise the Burnett children repeated to the Deakin children all that they heard at the supper table. Mrs. Burnett knew that she was being reported to Mrs. Deakin, and Mrs. Deakin felt it her duty to learn what the viperish thing had been saying. Frank Burnett and Tom Deakin became convinced each that the other's family was probably more to blame over the fence, clothesline and garbage box issues.

Allie Burnett started to run across the street one day in front of a delivery wagon. She fell, scrambled to her feet again, and the horse's knee struck her in the back. She fell on the block pavement and lay quiet.

Mrs. Deakin saw it all from her front window. She ran into the street and gathered the muddy child in her arms. The frightened driver had left his wagon, and he followed her timidly to the front door of the Burnett house.

Mrs. Burnett screamed, and then began to cry.

"Run for a doctor, you loony!" said Mrs. Deakin to the driver as she placed the limp little body on a bed and then ran for cold water and cloths.

When the girl opened her eyes, she found her mother on one side Mrs. Deakin on the other, while a reassuring physician smiled at her over the footboard.

"She's a little jolted up and bumped her head when she fell, but it was mostly shock," he said.

"Law me," gasped Mrs. Deakin; "when I saw that child fall, my heart just went into my throat! Don't cry, Allie; you ain't a bit hurt. The doctor says I can put some more poultice on your bad old bump."

"I'll get it," said Mrs. Burnett.

"No; you sit still. You are as pale as a ghost."

That is how it happened that Frank Burnett, coming home from the works by the back way, found in his kitchen the hated vixen, the trainer of criminals, the woman without character—Mrs. Deakin.

She told him what had happened and begged him not to frighten his wife, as there wasn't any real danger.

Mr. Deakin was likewise surprised upon arriving home. Supper was not ready, and his wife had gone over to the enemy. He went after her and was taken in.

Mrs. Deakin told him she couldn't come home because Mrs. Burnett was all upset, and some one would have to take care of the child. So Mr. Deakin and his two boys ate a cold lunch with Mr. Burnett and his boy.

Mr. Burnett sent Morton out to get two cigars, and while the women sat by the bed in the front room the men sat in the back room and smoked, while the three boys, awed by the revolution, kept very quiet.

"If Morton ever bothers you, Mr. Deakin," said Mr. Burnett, "you just let me know, and I'll tend to him."

"I was just going to say to you that Larry's apt to be too gay now and then, and if I ever hear of him picking on your children I'll make him remember it."

In the front room Mrs. Burnett was thanking Mrs. Deakin, who was hoping that her children had never bothered Mrs. Burnett very much. The little girl went to sleep, and the Deakin family went home.

That was the end of the feud. In each household there was a general order that in case of a neighborhood riot punishment should be visited upon those nearest at hand.

Those two houses, side by side, became the peace center of the west division.

The Deakin children were at liberty to go over and thump on the Burnett cottage organ.

But who ended the feud—the men, the women or the 6-year-old?—Chicago Record.

Runaway on the Ocean.

A runaway steamer must be an exceedingly unpleasant sort of sea serpent for the passengers on board her. The steamer Marchioness of Breadalbane, while making the passage from Rothesay to Gourock, met with an accident to her machinery, and the engineers were unable to stop her. The captain therefore took her out into midchannel and spun round in a circle till the steam was nearly exhausted, when the runaway was headed for Gourock, where she was secured by ropes and the rest of the steam run off.—London Graphic Positive as to One of Them.

"What lessons should we learn, Wendell," asked the Sunday school teacher, "from this story of demoniacal possession?"

"One of the lessons we should learn from it," replied the little Boston boy, "is that the word demoniacal is accented on the antepenultimate."—Chicago Tribune.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER

TRUSTING WOMEN.

THEIR CONFIDENCE OFTEN LEADS TO SUFFERING.

An Ohio Woman's Experience, as Here Related, is Interesting to Every American Woman.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

It is a very sad fact that the more a woman trusts to the skill of her physician in treating her female complaints, the longer she is apt to suffer.

Lydia E. Pinkham fully realized this fact when she commenced that exhaustive study that has enabled the women of the world to help themselves. She discovered the source of female complaints, and produced the Vegetable Compound, which is their absolute cure.

When such testimony as the following is given, the woman who thinks should act quickly, and no longer permit herself to trust to incompetent doctors. The Vegetable Compound is sold by all druggists, and every woman should have it.

"The doctors had told me that unless I went to the hospital and had an operation performed I could not live. I had falling, enlargement, and ulceration of the womb.

"I was in constant misery all the time; my back ached; I was always tired. It was impossible for me to walk far or stand long at a time. I was surely a wreck. I decided that I would give your Compound and Sanative Wash a trial.

"I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and used two packages of Sanative Wash, and I am now almost well. I am stouter and healthier than I have ever been in my life. My friends and neighbors and the doctors are surprised at my rapid improvement. I have told them all what I have been taking."—MRS. ANNETTA BICKMEIER, Bellaire, Belmont Co., O.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE

Was Never Affirmed by Congress, According to Senator Hill.

Its Influence Can Be Only of a Moral Nature.

United States, Therefore, Cannot Interfere In British-Venezuelan Row.

ALBANY, April 22.—Senator Hill was interviewed yesterday in regard to the discussion regarding the true features of the Monroe doctrine. He was asked: "Whether experts in public law think the Monroe doctrine has given to the United States a special right not given by the general law to intervene between Great Britain and Venezuela in the pending boundary dispute, or assume a protectorate over Spanish America?" He answered that he never thought so.

"But does not th eMonroe doctrine declare that the United States cannot permit any Spanish-American republic on this continent to be oppressed or its destiny controlled by a European state?"

"That would have referred," the senator said, "to a legitimate dispute such as we or any other government might have tomorrow with a Spanish-American state. It protested against using such a controversy with an intention to increase European political dominion on this hemisphere or control the destiny of an American state, transfer a colony like Cuba to a new European owner, but did not change what was the law of nations.

"The establishment, a year or two before 1823, of more than a dozen independent states at the south of us naturally forced the United States in

New Lines of Thought and Action.

"John Quincy Adams, our then minister of foreign affairs, had the eyes to discern it. Entangling alliances on this side, as well as on the other side of the ocean, were to be avoided so far as could be. We had to maintain impartial neutrality in the affairs of the new and independent Spanish-American states, and suppress, as we should do today, piratical expeditions from our shores against any of them, or any remaining European colony."

"But was not the Monroe declaration to congress a national pledge, a guarantee of our intervention, forcible if need be, in behalf of each Spanish-American republic, whenever, in our opinion, oppressed by a European state?"

"I think not. Not otherwise, certainly, than if Chili shall oppress Peru, or Mexico shall be unreasonable in dealing with Guatemala.

"Congress has never affirmed the Monroe doctrine. In 1868 President Johnson projected a treaty with Colombia, which was signed, embodying the Monroe doctrine, but neither the Colombian senate nor our own ratified it. You remember that when, after President Monroe made his declaration, a congress was convened by Bolivia at Panama for the consideration and discussion of an American alliance

To Enforce the Declaration,

there was substantial concurrence between President John Quincy Adams, who had formulated the doctrine, and the members of the senate and house, especially the Democrats, including Senator Van Buren of New York, participating in a long debate, that the declaration did not pledge the United States forever thereafter to prevent a European power from interfering with the independence of the form of government of a Central American state."

"Do you think that President Monroe has the reputation of giving his name to a rule of conduct by the United States for which neither he nor Mr. Adams contended?"

"Precisely that," the senator answered, "the 'doctrine' cannot be formulated in a treaty, or a statute, but yet its moral influence has been, is and ought to be, very great. Discrimination should, however, be made between legitimate disputes and illegitimate purposes behind the disputes, such as imposing by force European political control over the destiny of a reluctant independent Spanish-American state.

General McCook Retires.

DENVER, April 22.—After serving continuously in the service of the United States for a period of 43 years, Major General Alexander McDowell McCook retired from the army today, a step made necessary by the law, the limit of age, 64 years, having been reached. Late in the summer the general will sail for Europe with his family, where he will visit for several months.

Satolli Lays a Corner stone.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., April 22.—The Catholics of the Schuylkill coal regions turned out in large numbers yesterday to honor Mgr. Satolli, who came here to lay the corner stone of the new school of the St. John's German Catholic church, which was done in the presence of 6000 people.

Deaf Mutes' Church Sold.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The old St. Ann's church, which was established in 1859 for the special religious instruction of the deaf and dumb of the Episcopalian denomination, today passed into the hands of a syndicate, and the church intends to erect a new building.

Horseflesh For Food.

PENDLETON, Or., April 22.—J. M. Switzler has sold 5000 horses to a Portland syndicate. The animals are to be slaughtered at Portland, Mr. Switzler says, and the meats packed and all parts of the carcass utilized. The price was less than $5 a head.

Testimony Will Not Be Lacking.

BARBOURSVILLE, Ky., April 22.—Over 400 witnesses have been summoned to testify in the trial of Jesse Fields and Joe Atkins, charged with the murder last fall of Judge Josiah Combs at Hazard, which begun today.

One of the Best.

BAY CITY, Mich., April 22.—The launching of the monster freighter, James J. McWilliams, occurred at Wheeler's ship yards. The boat is 360 feet long, all steel and one of the finest of her class afloat.

Mrs. Parnell Is Failing.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., April 22.—Mrs. Parnell has grown weaker. It is doubtful if she will survive the shock of the assault. Nothing has yet developed to throw any light upon the case.

Hitt Is Very Sick.

WASHINGTON, April 22. — Representative Hitt of Illinois is worse. His physicians are with him almost constantly, and they regard his condition as very grave.

KOHLSAAT AT THE HEAD.

Owns Controlling Interest In Three Consolidated Chicago Sheets.

CHICAGO, April 22.—The controlling interest in the Times-Herald and Evening Post has been purchased by H. H. Kohlsaat, who will direct the policy of the two papers hereafter. Mr. Kohlsaat's purchase includes the greater part of the interest owned by James W. Scott, and practically all the stock owned by other stockholders, except Mr. Hawley, who retains the one-fourth interest he acquired when the Herald and Times were consolidated.

HERMAN KOHLSAAT.

Mrs. Scott keeps a portion of her $200,000 interest. Mr. Kohlsaat had been intimately associated with Mr. Scott for many years. Mrs. Scott will receive from the Times-Herald an annuity of $10,000 for 10 years during her life. This income will, of course, be in addition to that derived from the sale of her stock.

A Word From Lady Somerset.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The following letter from Lady Henry Somerset has been received here from Ryegate, Eng: "My attention has been called to the utterly unfounded charges made against me by a Mr. Hicks a few weeks since on the eve of my sailing for home. The ignorance of Mr. Hicks concerning the laws of English entailed property must be his excuse for the absurd statements he makes about my country estates. His attack is libellous, but if all the libels against reformers were brought before the courts we should have but little time for useful occupations. My experience of the fairness of the American press makes me confident that this communication will be circulated as an act of justice to one who has always written and spoken as a friend and not a critic of the Newer England across the water."

Narrowly Escaped Lynching.

FREDERICK, Md., April 22.—Mrs. Thomas Butts, a farmer's wife, living at Broad Run, was brutally assaulted yesterday by Frank Winterchief, a burly 18-year-old negro. Although he failed to accomplish his purpose, Mrs. Butts was fiendishly dealt with. Peter Hemp and Davis Hajaha, who heard the screams and saw the negro running, started in close pursuit. After a chase of four milles the negro halted and surrendered. A mob demanded the surrender of the man, that they might hang him. Hemp and Hajaha refused to give him at the point of their revolvers, and escaped from the mob and brought Winterchief to Frederick.

Relief Forces at Chitral.

SIMLA, April 22.—Major General Low, commanding the Chitral relief forces, telegraphs that the Chitral fort has been relieved. It is not known yet whether it was Colonel Kelly's or General Low's advance column that effected the relief. Sher Afzul, who at one time was de facto ruler of Chitral and whose recent capture of the capital led to the dispatch of the British expedition, is said to have absconded. It is reported that the Ameer of Afghanistan has granted asylum to Umra Khan, and has given him two villages near Asmar.

Alleged Theft of $20,000.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Samuel E. Aymar, the defaulting clerk of the Shoe and Leather National bank, who is charged with the theft of $20,000, during a period covering 20 years, was arraigned before Justice Voorhis yesterday, and remanded. Mr Aymar is a brother-in-law of Samuel C. Seeley, who robbed the Shoe and Leather National bank of a large sum of money.

Ardent Temperance Advocate Dead.

NEW YORK, April 22.—John N. Stearns, one of the best known advocates of temperance in this country, died yesterday at Greenpoint from heart trouble. He was born in Ipswich, N. H., on May 24, 1829. His entire life was devoted to temperance. He visited Europe in 1891, where he was received with honors.

France Must Be Consulted.

PARIS, April 22—The Temps, referring to a statement that an agreement has been arranged between Great Britain and Newfoundland on the French shore question, insists that this matter must be settled to France's approval before Newfoundland enters the Dominion of Canada.

Prominent Ohioian Gone

CLEVELAND, April 22.—James Hoyt, LL.D., died here last night, aged 81 years. He was at one time one of the leading lawyers of Ohio. For several years prior to 1870 he was president of the Baptist Home Mission Society of America.

Murder Out of a Lost Job.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Joe Gunatti, an Italian, was killed in Park place Saturday night by Joseph Sanda. Gunatti had interfered in Sanda's employment, and in consequence the latter lost his position.

Prominent In Grand Army.

ROCHESTER, April 22.—Colonel Richard H. Schooley died last night, aged 51 years. He had served several terms as a Grand Army post commander. Colonel Schooley had been United States consul to Port Rowan, Canada. He was a staunch Democrat.

Choynski Wants to Fight.

CHICAGO, April 22.—"Parson" Davies has telegraphed Jim Hall at Detroit offering to back Joe Choynski against him for a 20 or 25 round contest on June 3. This will give Hall six weeks to get in shape.

Father Was Famous Novelist.

ALBANY, April 22. — Paul Fennimore Cooper, the well-known lawyer, died here last night from paralysis. Paul F. Cooper was the son of James Fennimore Cooper, the novelist.

Peace Treaty Ratified.

HIROSHIMA, April 22.—The Emperor of Japan ratified the treaty of peace on Saturday.

THE ONLY WOMAN CLOWN.

Miss Williams Claims the Unique Distinction and Talks of Her Work.

"My reason for becoming a clown," said Miss Williams, the only lady clown on earth, according to the circus bills, "was to make money. My father was a clown for 40 years. He had 21 children, and all of them were in this business in some capacity or other, generally as acrobats and tumblers. I was not suited for an acrobat. It is too hard work. I thought that I would become a clown. There are 12 of our family now in the circus business. Every day I try to think out something new, and the management usually gives me pretty wide latitude. I am a fair tumbler and manage to get along all right. I shall probably stop in this business until I get married. Of course I hope to get married some day. Every woman does."

Miss Williams is a rather undersized woman, about 25 years old, with an abundance of health and energy. She rides a bicycle, swings Indian clubs and does everything else that a man does to keep herself in proper trim. One of her favorite tricks as a clown is to put on a bonnet and a long cloak and then sit by some innocent young man in the audience. In nine cases out of ten he is very much preoccupied in the performance and does not pay any attention to her. Suddenly she astonishes him by shouting to the ringmaster for a job. He takes the cue and begins to dicker with her.

"How much will you give me?"

"Ten dollars a performance."

"Oh, no! This young man here that I am engaged to will give me more than that to stop here with him." [Great confusion of the young man referred to, if he does not grasp the situation.]—New York Times.

A MARVELOUS MIRROR.

Dr. Peate's Magnificent Gift to the New American University.

At his home in Greenville, Pa., in a shop to which is attached a testing gallery 60 feet in length, the Rev. John Peate, D. D., is preparing to fashion the speculum of the great telescope for the American university, an institution of the Methodist Episcopal church, now taking to itself a local habitation on the heights near the national capital.

A dozen years ago the doctor conceived the project of grinding the principal mirror of a reflecting telescope and, to use his own phrase, "groped" his way to success in a field where the angels of science tread lightly, if at all, and in which a single incautious touch may result in hours of retrieving toil.

He has produced specula 6, 8, 12 and 20 inches in diameter, and a year or two since finished a disk of 30 inches for presentation to Alleghany college. If he shall succeed in the incredibly difficult task of imparting a perfect figure to the present disk, which is 62 inches in diameter, it will be a remarkable triumph of skill and a prodigy of labor. —Philadelphia Ledger.

A Curious Coincidence.

The Living Church of Chicago prints the following: "A Paris special says: The year 1895 will be a remarkable one, both from the astronomical and religious point of view. On Good Friday (April 12) the heavenly bodies which gravitate around the sun will be in exactly the same position they occupied the day Christ died on the cross.

"It will be the first time such a thing has occurred since that great day, just 1,862 years ago. That was the thirty-third year of the Christian era, which dates from the birth of Jesus Christ. At 4:20 in the morning, Paris time (about 11:20 p. m., New York time, April 11), the moon will pass before Virginis (Spica) and hide that star for over an hour."

Superiority of American Labor.

Exporting American boots to England is an achievement to be proud of, but it is an accomplished fact. The labor cost in American boots is less than in England, though the per diem earnings of the American workman are larger than those of his English brother. The American superiority is in method and energy. American superiority in bootmaking is only the forerunner of much more that is coming.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Suggestion For Britain.

It has been suggested that it would be more humane for Great Britain to take care of some of its old colonies rather than be hunting after new ones. Just now New England is sending $20 to relieve the distress in Newfoundland where Great Britain furnishes $1.—Indianapolis Journal.

They Wish For Power.

The armistice declared between Japan and China by the former is substantial proof that the Japanese government prefers a controlling influence in Chinese affairs to any large acquisition of territory.—Philadelphia Press.

FORGED PAPER FOUND

In the Vaults of the First National Bank of Willimantic.

Affairs In the Hands of a Bank Examiner.

Loss to the Bank Will Probably Equal the Amount of Capital Stock.

WILLIMANTIC, April 23.—The First National bank of this city was closed at 10 o'clock yesterday morning by United States Bank Examiner Dooley, and is at present in his hands undergoing examination.

A dispatch from Washington states that the failure is a sensational one, apparently involving forgery and other crimes on the part of its late cashier, O. H. K. Risley, who died within the last two weeks. It is only since his death that the condition of the bank has become known in the office of the comptroller of the currency.

Bank Examiner Dooley of Hartford, in going through the bank after the death of Cashier Risley, discovered and other facts which indicated to him that the bank had been robbed, and that it was in condition to collapse unless it was immediately put in better shape.

$10,000 Worth of Forged Paper

He came at once to Washington last Friday, without completing his examination, regarding the facts he had already discovered as so important that they must be at once communicated to Comptroller Eckels. It is understood that he told the comptroller that all the facts pointed to the dead cashier as the person responsible for the bank's condition, and connected him directly with the forged paper found in the bank and with other forged papers which, it is believed, and with the borrowing of money from other banks on the account of the Willimantic bank.

Will Be Found In Other Banks,

Bank Examiner Dooley was not able to give an accurate estimate of the total amount which the bank would lose in one way or another, but made a rough guess that it would amount to about $100,000, which is just the amount of the capital stock of the bank.

Comptroller Eckels sent Examiner Dooley immediately back to Willimantic, with instructions to call the directors together, present the facts he had discovered, and tell them that unless they at once put the bank in sound condition he would have to close it up.

Yesterday morning Comptroller Eckels received a telegram from Examiner Dooley stating that the directors would not take the steps required to save the bank and, therefore, the comptroller telegraphed him to close it up and take possession, which he accordingly did.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 23.—The senate rejected the doomage bill. The house discussed the bill to prevent the false impersonation of voters in Boston, but took no action. The bill providing for enforced returns of personal property for taxation was rejected in the senate, as was the bill requiring the cleansing of milk cans. The house substituted a bill to establish a Massachusetts hospital for consumptives and tubercular patients in Boston for the adverse report of the committee on public health. A new bill for Sunday observance was introduced in the house. It imposes a fine of $100 on any person who attends a game, sport, theatrical performance, play or other public diversion on the Lord's day, and a fine of $500 on the manager of such diversions. The collateral legacy bill was engrossed in the house.

One Objectionable Clause.

PORTLAND, April 23.—The contestants of Millionaire Farrington's will have agreed to withdraw all opposition to the will being probated, but declare illegal the residuary clause, giving a large amount of money to various state and charitable institutions, which the Farrington heirs claim now possess all the property they are allowed to hold by law. The residuary clause will be decided by the law courts.

Seeking Pardon For "Yankee Dan."

PROVIDENCE, April 23.—A petition for the pardon of "Yankee Dan" Sullivan, who is serving a life sentence for the murder of A. S. Haswell, was referred to the committee on pardons, which will act on it tomorrow. Sullivan's friends claim he is innocent and that new evidence has been discovered. They also make the plea that he contracted consumption in prison and has only a few months to live.

New Machinery For Atlantic Mills.

PROVIDENCE, April 23.—Five carloads of new machinery shipped from Europe, which arrived at the Atlantic mills, were unloaded yesterday and machinists were engaged in setting it up. The operatives claim that it shows a desire on the part of the company to start the mills. They say that the "gray goods" story was intended to frighten them back to work.

Engineer Parsons' Fatal Error.

PORTLAND, April 23.—A freight train on the Grand Trunk railroad broke in two yesterday on a down grade near Norton's Mills, Vt. Engineer Parsons ran the forward section of the train away from the detached cars. While standing between the engine and tender the wild section crashed into the forward part of the train, killing Parsons and derailing 15 cars.

Five Persons Injured.

PROVIDENCE, April 23.—At 1 o'clock this morning an electric car, moving at a high rate of speed, crashed into a furniture wagon in which a party of young amateur actors were returning from the town of Pontiac. The wagon was reduced to splinters, and five members of the party were injured, one of them, Emma Handy, aged 12, it is thought, fatally.

Trying to Fix Prices.

HAVERHILL, April 23.—A meeting of the state board of arbitration was held here yesterday to consider the matter of fixing a price list for work on the Consolidated hand method lasting machine. The board chose a shoe manufacturer and a laster to make a tour of shoe manufacturing towns in the state and report prices paid in those places.

Not Satisfactory to Councilmen.

WORCESTER, April 23.—The lower branch of the city council, by a vote of 13 to 10, last night rejected the offer of Senator Salisbury of a site and $100,000 in money for a new city hall at Lincoln square. The location is not satisfactory to a majority of the councilmen. A motion to reconsider the vote went over for one week.

Looking After Lawbreakers.

GLOUCESTER, April 23.—The police have been instructed to strictly enforce the city ordinances against illegal liquor selling, etc., and to report once a week. The order is the outcome of a meeting of the police committee last week, when resolutions were adopted voting to have the law more rigidly enforced.

Worcester Establishment Burned Out.

WORCESTER, April 23.—J. W. Bishop & Co.'s shops on Foster street were practically consumed by fire this morning. Just before 3 o'clock there was an explosion in the rear of the building, followed by a second and third explosion. The fire was confined to the building.

Maine's Gubernatorial Fight.

AUGUSTA, April 23.—The latest phase in the Powers-Hill fight over the Republican gubernatorial nomination is the declared opposition of Samuel W. Matthews, labor commissioner, to Llewellyn Powers. Mr. Matthews declares himself for Senator J. F. Hill of Augusta.

Hudson's Missing Boys.

HUDSON, Mass., April 23.—Four boys, ranging from 12 to 14 years of age, have been missing from their homes here since Friday, and it is believed they have gone on an Indian killing expedition, incited by cheap literature. Their relatives are greatly alarmed.

Frightened Off by Watchman.

PORTLAND, April 23.—Burglars drilled the safe in the Maine Central station at Freeport and made all preparations for blowing it open when they were surprised by the night watchman. A blacksmith's shop was robbed to obtain the necessary tools.

A $75,000 Mantel.

NEWPORT, April 23.—A mantel piece is being placed in "The Breakers," the summer villa of Cornelius Vanderbilt, which when finished will cost $75,000. It stands 17 feet high, and is made from marble imported from the ruins of Pompeii.

Depends Upon Spinners.

WESTERLY, R. I., April 23. — The weavers of the Westerly Woolen company went to work yesterday. The spinners are still on strike, and the weavers will go out again if the spinners do not obtain their demands.

Democratic Mayor of Bangor.

BANGOR, April 23.—Charles L. Snow (Dem.) was elected mayor in a special election yesterday, there having been no choice at the first trial in March. The vote was: Snow, 1982; Beale (Rep.), 1900; Ellis (Pro.), 40.

Licenses All Given Out.

LYNN, April 23.—The board of license commissioners last night granted the remaining 15 first and fourth class licenses. Twenty druggists' licenses were also granted.

No Trouble For Robbers.

GARDINER, Me., April 23.—G. H. Harrington's coal office was entered by burglars and $140 extracted from the safe, which is thought to have been left unlocked.

Dangerous Business.

New England Briefs.

Two men were injured by a dynamite explosion at Wakefield, Mass.

U. L. Birgs & Son's mill at Bristol, Conn., was damaged $5000 by fire.

The body of Charles Duffy of Hartford was found in the Connecticut river.

J. E. Davis, an honored business man of Gardiner, Me., is dead, aged 83 years.

Principal Fish of Phillips Exeter academy is to resign at the close of the present school year. He has been principal of the institution for about five years.

George H. Ricker, 26 years old, editor of the Bristol (Conn.) Herald, committed suicide yesterday during a fit of despondency by cutting his throat with a razor.

Six plate glass windows in the Camden (Me.) corporation building were defaced by an unknown person, and $500 reward has been offered for the detection of the offender.

President Goldthwaite of the Maine Interscholastic league will call a meeting of the executive committee to discuss the reconsideration of the vote making Bangor the place of the state meeting.

The Edwards Manufacturing company of Augusta has notified its spinners that the 8 per cent cut made some months ago would be restored to them and possibly to all departments in the mill May 1.

Agent Howard of the Cocheco mills at Dover announced that next Monday the operatives would be given an increase of 5 per cent in wages, thus restoring the scale in effect last August, when the cutdown was made. The mills are now running full capacity.

THE GLORY OF JAPAN

Enhanced by the Terms of the Treaty With Her Chinese Neighbor.

Broad-Minded Views In Emperor's Proclamation.

His Subjects Urged to Strive and Reach the Goal of Civilization.

YOKOHAMA, April 23.—Count Ito, president of the Japanese council of ministers, and Viscount Matsu, the Japanese minister of foreign affairs, the two officials who negotiated the treaty of peace with Viceroy Li Hung Chang and his son, Lord Lio, at Shomoneski, were received in audience by the emperor on their return to Hiroshima. The emperor said: "The principal points of the treaty were entirely satisfactory and add much to the glory of the empire. I am highly pleased at the signal service secured by you."

COUNT HIROBUMI ITO.

The following imperial proclamation was issued yesterday afternoon:

"Through peace national prosperity is best promoted. Unfortunately the rupture of relations with China forced upon us a war which, after the lapse of 10 months, is not yet ended. During this period, our ministers, in concert with the army, navy and diet, have done all in their power to further our claims, in obedience to our instructions.

"Our ardent desire, with the assistance of our subjects, in loyalty and sincerity, is to restore peace and thereby attain our object—the promotion of national prosperity. Now that peace is negotiated and an armistice proclaimed, permanent cessation of hostilities is near at hand. The terms of peace fixed by our ministers of state give us complete satisfaction.

"The peace and glory thus secured render the present a fitting time to declare to you, our good subjects, the object kept in our view, and to enlighten you as to the Course of Our Future Policy.

"We are rejoiced at the recent victories which have enhanced the glory of our empire. At the same time we are aware that the end of the road which must be traversed by the empire in the march of civilization is still far distant and remains yet to be attained. We therefore hope, in common with our loyal subjects, that we shall always guard against self-contentedness, and ever in a spirit of modesty and humility strive to perfect our military defense without falling into extremes.

"In short, it is our wish that the government and the people alike should work to a common end, and that our subjects of all classes strive, each in his own sphere, for the purpose of laying the foundation of permanent prosperity.

"It is hereby definitely made known that no countenance will be given by us to such as through conceit at the recent victories may offer insult to other states or injure our relations with friendly powers, especially as regards China.

"After the exchange of the ratifications of the treaty of peace, friendship should be restored and endeavors made to increase more than ever the relations of good neighborhood.

"It is our pleasure that our subjects pay due respect to these our expressed wishes."

No Right to Interfere.

LONDON, April 23.—The Times, after admitting that Japan evidently intends to cripple and humiliate China in a manner seriously affecting European interests, insists that the diplomatic history of Europe does not bear out the pretension that any power or powers are entitled to dictate the terms of peace between these two nations. It adds: Great Britain's interests are involved quite as much as Russia's, but we find no stipulation in the treaty of peace warranting our interference at the cost of exciting the enmity of Japan.

Quite Right.

BERLIN, April 23.—The Vossiche Zeitung blames the government for joining France and Russia against Japan, and says: Suppose Great Britain and the United States supported Japan in refusing to submit to the Russian demands? Germany would become involved in needless complications and would lose her own trade without earning China's gratitude.

Strong Backing.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 23.—The Novoe Vremya says that in return for the support of Germany and France, in Russia's opposition to the cession of the Liao Tung peninsula to Japan by the treaty of peace just concluded with China, Russia has agreed to support all German demands regarding intercourse, and also any action of France in India-China.

Looks Warlike.

KOBE, April 23.—The furloughs of officers of the Russian men-of-war at that place and Nagasaki have been stopped. The commanders of the warships have received an order from the Russian legation to hold themselves in readiness to leave at 12 hours' notice.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

THE QUINCY sewer bill seems to hang fire in the senate, but for no particular reason that is known. It is hinted that Hyde Park objects to Milton having an outlet through Quincy, because the help of Milton is wanted in paying for the Neponset valley system. But why should Quincy improvements be delayed.

THE CITY Council has voted not to have plans prepared for the remodeling of City Hall, yet plans have been prepared this year, and plans were prepared a year or two ago. Certainly City Hall today is ill arranged, and does not accommodate all city boards.

BROCKTON ALDERMEN voted $45,000 Monday evening for ten-room brick schoolhouse. The hustling city of Brockton would not build a wooden schoolhouse.

QUINCY BREVITIES.

Notes from Quincy Point, Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy

The police station has had an invoice of new chairs.

Samuel A. Fowler of Wollaston filed a petition in insolvency at Dedham Monday.

Tirrell & Sons are building quite a large addition to their carriage manufactory on Hancock street.

Storekeepers are complaining because the incandescent lights are not turned on earlier in the evening.

The third degree will be worked upon two candidates by Mt. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F., this evening.

Mt. Wollaston lodge has prepared an excellent programme in celebration of the anniversary of Odd Fellowship to be given tomorrow evening.

George Henderson, who has recently taken up his residence at Atlantic, is building a large stoneware manufactory on Preston street, Neponset.

The Quincy & Boston street railway is running a larger feed wire from its power station at Quincy Point to the Centre and is also running a new feed wire to Houghs Neck.

Congratulations to Dr. Homer Clark of Wollaston are in order. Mrs. Clark was Miss Charlotte I. Collins, daughter of Mr. John W. Collins, chief of engineers' department, U. S. N., R. M. Best wishes and a welcome to Mrs. Clark.

The St. John's C. L. and A. A. have decided after many postponements to present the drama "Peep O' Day" on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, May 8 and 9. The cast is a strong one and Quincy people can feel assured of a fitting presentation of this excellent play.

Owing to a break Monday evening in machinery at the station which furnishes power for the Braintree and Weymouth and other street railways all cars were stalled. The Braintree & Weymouth Company swallowed what ever feeling they might have had and applied to the Quincy & Boston for power. The hurry up wagon was manned and sent to East Weymouth where the feed lines were joined at Shaw's corner and soon everything was running smoothly.

Miss Julia E. Underwood, who recently completed forty years as a primary school teacher of Quincy, has received many congratulatory letters from friends and former pupils. One from Charles Francis Adams she prizes greatly. He would have been pleased to attend the anniversary but was not aware of it until he saw the report in the PATRIOT. Mr. Adams forwarded as a gift two volumes of his works, entitled, "Three Episodes in Massachusett's History," which contain much about the Quincy schools.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

The Meeting of Last Evening Was a Short One.

THE STREETS TO BE WATERED.

City Hall Not to be Remodelled Just Yet.

The City Council had but little business on hand Monday night and it was transacted in less than half an hour. Majority and minority reports on feasibility of remodeling City Hall failed to provoke discussion and the matter was indefinitely postponed. Councilmen Johnson, Rinn and Sidelinger were the absentees.

Charles W. Hall, Frank W. Munroe and Charles G. Batson were drawn as traverse jurors.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Francis A. Spear as sealer of weights and measures and he was confirmed by the Council.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred to Committee on Licenses.

Reports of Committee.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order appropriating $1,015.91 to be expended by the Commissioner of Public Works in grading and setting edgestones on the High School lot. To Committee on Finance.

A majority of the Committee on Public Buildings reported ought not to pass on order appropriating $250 for plans for remodelling City Hall.

Councilman Shackley offered a minority report, that the order ought to pass.

The minority report was rejected by a vote of 13 to 5, and the majority report was accepted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order appropriating $4,100, one-half of which to be assessed upon abutters, for watering the following streets from April 30 to Nov. 3: Hancock, Washington, School to Franklin, Franklin to Independence avenue, Water, Copeland, Crescent, Willard from Copeland to Milton line, Granite to Quarry, Adams to Whitwell, Chestnut to Foster, Foster, Temple, Elm, and Newport avenue between Beale and Brooks streets. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Streets reported leave to withdraw on petitions relating to acceptance, laying out, etc., of the following streets: Glencoe place, Holmes and Moscow streets, part of Broadway, Madison street, Glover and California avenues. Adopted.

The same committee reported on order granting DeBoni Brothers permission to run a guy wire across Kent street, which was passed to be ordained under suspension of the rules.

The Committee on Lights reported an order changing the three arc lights on Adams street between Whitwell street and Furnace brook to incandescents. Ordered to second reading.

The Committee on Lights on petition for oil light on Endicott street reported that it be established and that the Commissioner take one of the old lamps that has been taken out and put it there.

The order for the annual appropriations came up on its final reading and was passed to be ordained.

The Committee reported ought not to pass on order for stone crossings on Water and Willard streets but recommended that same to be put down by the Commissioner and charged to miscellaneous street expenses. Adopted.

The order authorizing the Mayor to compromise the suits against the bondsmen of E. H. and I. H. Cushing for a sum not less than $5,000 was passed to be ordained.

Councilman Bigelow offered the following order which was referred to the Committee upon Fire Department and Police:

ORDERED,—For the better police protection, and the more efficient service after the arrest of drunken and vicious persons, the Commissioner of Public Works is authorized to submit plans and estimated cost of properly altering the stone hose house on School street in Ward One into a Police station, with permanent wagon, horse and driver, said alteration to be acceptable to the Chief of Police and in accordance with his last annual report to his Honor the Mayor.

Councilman Sprague offered an order appropriating $500 for building a wall in the rear of the Wollaston school. To Committee on Public Grounds.

The order transfering $247.51 from unexpended balances of 1894 was advanced a stage.

Adjourned at 8.05.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Brennan was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Henry Mattison was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

William Walsh was fined $5 for drunkenness at Randolph.

A New Industry at Quincy Point.

A large part of the power station of the Quincy & Boston street railway at Quincy Point has been leased to the Rosenfield wrapper manufactory, and preparations are being made to commence active operations. A large number of machines are being put in, and when ready employment will be given to over 300 girls. As an extra inducement, President Graham of the Quincy & Boston, through whose efforts the manufactory was induced to locate here, has offered to carry the employes at half price.

Had Been Reading of Floods.

John Brennan is a Boston herdic driver. Monday night he drove to Quincy to bring out a resident of Granite street, who was too drunk to pass through the gates at the depot.

When the party arrived in Quincy about 2 o'clock this morning Brennan was about as drunk as was his passenger.

When Brennan started for home he was somewhat mixed and when he reached the High school, instead of keeping on the Boston road he turned into Butler's road where he drove through an orchard into the pond where the trap sank in four feet of water.

The horse freed himself as did also Brennan, who started for the Centre on foot where he was scooped in by Officer McKay who had also cared for the horse which he had found.

Brennan said he was not drunk but had got slightly mixed by the street which was flooded with water.

THE PUGILISTIC ARENA.

Favorites In the Prize Ring Put Up Good Fights at Coney Island.

CONEY ISLAND, April 23.—There was a large attendance at the arena of the Seaside Athletic club last evening. The first bout was a six-round one at 148 pounds, between Alfred Hanlon of England and Shadow Maber of Australia. The referee decided on Maber as the victor. The second bout was between Jack Skelly and Johnny Gorman at 128 pounds, eight rounds. The men were evenly matched and the contest was a lively one. The referee declared the fight a draw. The star event was a 25-round bout between Jack Madden of Brooklyn and Jack Connors of Springfield, Ills., at 105 pounds. The men fought well from start to finish. The 25th round was the hardest fought one of the entire contest. The referee decided in favor of Madden.

Governor Waited For Her.

ALBANY, April 23.—Mrs. Buchanan, the wife of the condemned murderer, did not come to the executive chamber yesterday to plead with Governor Morton for a respite for her husband, as anticipated. Although no official notification of her coming had been received, Governor Morton resolved to have an interview with her. He waited until 5 o'clock and then went to the mansion, saying that if Mrs. Buchanan arrived during the earlier hours of the evening he would come over to the capitol and hear her case. She did not arrive last night.

The Milk In the Cocoanut.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—During the bitter trial of the A. R. U. strikers in this city for violation of the Interstate law, Frank R. Stone, a politician and lawyer, was called as a witness. He had been a passenger on a train stopped by strikers and his evidence was wanted to convict them. During the cross-examination the fact came out that he travelled on a pass. This finally resulted in the grand jury indicting Huntington.

Well Known In Musical World.

RONDOUT, N. Y. April 23.—Professor Edward Spoth died here in his 75th year. Professor Spoth was the composer of religious, classical and concert music. Professor Spoth had been organist and professor of languages at the Jesuit college, Georgetown, D. C., and other institutions. As musical instructor of every instrument in music he was a master of counterpoint. He spoke six languages.

The Behring Sea Award.

OTTAWA, April 23.—In the house of commons yesterday it was stated that the Canadian government had been promised the imperial government's aid toward recovering the award of $425,000, the amount agreed upon as the proper amount to be paid by the United States as a compensation to British Columbian sealers.

Pullman's Ultimatum.

CHICAGO, April 23.—The Pullman Palace Car company have served notices upon tenants who are behind in their rent that unless the tenants pay the amount due to the company, suits will be brought to forcibly eject them from the houses they now occupy.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Chief Hazen of the secret service has received notice of the arrest at Berkely, Cal., of Henry Piper, an employe of the Carson City (Nev.) mint on a charge of stealing gold and silver, property of the United States.

Mother and Babe Drowned.

CHICAGO, April 23.—A well dressed woman, carrying a 4½-year-old infant in her arms, deliberately walked into the lake at the foot of Forty-seventh street yesterday. Both were drowned.

Blew a Hole Through Himself.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 23.—Isaac La Forge of Pine Bush, aged 74 and demented, loaded a shotgun, and, putting the muzzle of the gun near his heart, pulled the trigger with his toe. The charge blew a hole through his body.

Italy Will Get Indemnity.

CARACAS, April 23. — Venezuela has agreed to pay an indemnity amounting to $100,000 to Italy for the loss sustained and damage done to Italian property during the late civil war in Venezuela.

Row In an Argentine Province.

BUENOS AYRES, April 23.—A revolt has broken out in Santiago del Estero. Senor La Gara, the governor of the province, has fled from the capitol. The revolt, which is entirely local, is unimportant.

Savoy Is No More.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Savoy, P. J. Dwyer's promising brown colt, who injured himself last week, was shot yesterday. Savoy was engaged for the big spring events.

AN ESTIMATE.

Metropolitan Water to Cost Quincy about $18,300 Annually.

The Boston Advertiser says the state board of health, through its engineer, Mr. Stearns, has just completed an instructive and interesting estimate of the yearly cost of the proposed system to the cities and towns embraced in it, on the basis of their valuation, if the total amount of outstanding bonds for the cost of new works, of old works taken and of deferred payments of interest and sinking funds is assumed to be $25,000,000 and operating expenses are reckoned at $260,000, making the total yearly cost $1,322,500. The apportionment is based upon the valuations for 1894 and the cost per inhabitant reckoned on the estimated population in 1900.

Upon this basis, the annual cost to the city of Boston would be $1,007,500, or $1.78 per capita with a population of 566,085. For Quincy the cost would be $18,300; Malden, $24,000; Woburn, $10,300; Medford, $16,600; Hyde Park, $9,300; Melrose, $10,800; Watertown, $8,900; Wakefield, $6,300; Stoneham, $4,400; Revere, $7,300; Arlington, $8,200; Milton, $20,300; Winthrop, $5,000 and Belmont, $3,900. For Somerville, Chelsea and Everett, which get their water now from Boston, the apportionment would be respectively $47,800, $24,000 and $13,600. Cambridge would be assessed for the water taken from the metropolitan system $60,000 a year, Newton, $10,000, Brookline, $5,000, and Winchester, $1,000, the amount per capita for these four respectively being $.65, $.28, $.26 and $.12. The engineer computes the rate per $1 of valuation at $.001 plus.

CYCLING AS A CURE.

WHEELING THE BEST MEDICINE FOR AILING WOMEN.

A Brooklyn Doctor Who Prescribes Liberal Doses of Bicycling With Excellent Results, and Who Says Women Should Wear Bloomers and Ride Men's Wheels.

Dr. W. C. Latimer of Brooklyn read a very interesting letter before the New York State Homeopathic Medical society recently on "The Bicycle In Its Relation to Diseases of Women." He says:

"In dysmenorrhea, when spasmodic or due to weakened muscles of the pelvic floor singly or combined, it has proved a boon beyond value, accomplishing in one case in six weeks what carefully selected remedies, rest, etc., had failed to do in 18 months. In menorrhagia I am unable to make positive statements, but should not hesitate to recommend the wheel's use in cases due to weakness or malnutrition. In delayed and scanty menstruation, where due to weakness, it is beneficial in proportion to the improvement in the general conditions. In those cases we sometimes meet which seem almost hereditary it has no effect either way. In anæmia and dyspepsia it is a boon beyond value when properly used and equally a curse when abused.

"In these cases the rides must be short, preferably in the morning, preceded by a glass of milk or light lunch, followed by a cool sponge bath and a brisk rubbing and a short rest about one-half hour before breakfast, which may consist of eggs or a chop, rolls or stale bread, milk, cocoa, or, when these disagree, moderately strong coffee, breakfast to be followed by a short rest when the occupation will allow. After a brief time, two to four weeks, a short ride may be taken during the afternoon, returning in time for a short rest before dinner. Never allow hard riding on a full stomach, and it is better not to ride at all for half an hour to an hour after eating a full meal even when in health.

"In the case of relaxed patella and strained knee tendons it has done almost a miracle, for the case was of ten years' standing and had been treated by numerous physicians of both schools without benefit. She was unable to walk any distance or go up or down stairs with comfort. In a recent run she rode 60 miles inside of 12 hours and was in a better condition next day than she would have been after walking a dozen blocks one year ago. In prolapsus, irritable ovaries, spinal irritation and nervous debility we have had no chance to make observations, but should permit riding under proper restrictions."

Dr. Latimer is of the opinion that in learning to ride the novice should choose a smooth, level road and restrict the exercise to half an hour at first. He is against the regulation lady's wheel because it is heavier and allows of more seat vibration and urges women to ride the diamond frame wheel all men use. Too much seat vibration is bad for weak pelvic muscles. Continuing, he says:

"We have found the following rules give the best results: First, wear no corset or waist with steel in front; second, wear all wool garments next the body; third, low or loose shoes, so the ankles may have unobstructed action; fourth, as little weight as possible. In order to reduce the weight of clothing to a minimum and enable ladies to ride a light weight wheel, it is self evident we must abandon the skirt at the outset, for with it she cannot ride the full frame wheel and must still adhere to the heavy drop frame and endure the extra vibration.

"Then what shall she wear? Our own preference would be the knickerbocker, but as that is a little too advanced for the present time we must rest content with the bloomer suit. This will enable her to ride the lightest wheels, mount and dismount easily and get the greatest amount of pleasure with the least exertion out of her ride. As there are yet many who cling to the skirt we will give a few of its disadvantages and dangers. In mounting it is more or less bound to swing to one side and fall over the saddle in a manner to be uncomfortable. If made short enough to prevent this, it is open to all the objections raised against the bloomer and more. Again, in falling to one side it is liable to become entangled in the pedal and cause a severe fall. In one case of this kind the lady had her clothing torn off at the waist and became so entangled in her wheel that she could not rise from the ground until the writer went to her assistance. Since then no more skirts for her. Even in a still day the skirt has much air resistance, while in a wind it becomes a veritable load, and its sudden shifting adds much to its burden and the labor of keeping the wheel evenly balanced. It also acts more or less as a funnel, concentrating a current of air upon the abdomen, with its attendant dangers. In the line of bodily, or rather leg, exposure take it on a windy day, and, to use the expression of the day, the bloomer is simply not in it, while in the matter of weight it is a load little understood. In a sitting position the skirt rests more or less heavily upon the knees, and when we see that with every turn of the pedal that weight has to be raised from 8 to 12 inches, that if we allow but ten ounces, or one-fourth the weight of an ordinary skirt, as the amount raised, it reaches a total of 150 pounds for every mile traveled.

"We have yet to see the woman who, once having donned the bloomer and ridden a full diamond frame wheel, ever returned to the skirt and drop frame. We hardly think the Brooklyn physician who is reported as saying he thought ladies unsexed themselves by cycling was aware of the fact that she attempted to cast a slur upon more than 25,000 of her sisters, many of whom are her peers in education and social standing, while one alone, whose name is familiar to thousands of riders not only in this country, but abroad, has probably done more for her fellow beings in the way of dress reform and physical development than any ten physicians in our city."

No Settlement at Concord.

A dispatch to the Journal from Concord, N. H., says the latest information in relation to the disagreements between the granite manufacturers and the granite cutters is that the former want the minimum price per hour for cutters to be 28 cents, while the cutters' figures are 30 cents. When employed, the cutters work nine hours a day, and hence it is a matter of only 18 cents a day at the minimum rate which divides the manufacturers and the cutters. In any event the maximum rate an hour would reach as high as 40 cents. The business men of the city are exerting their influence to bring about a settlement, for in flush times 1600 men are employed in granite working in Concord, while at the present time there are not probably over 250 men at work, most of these being non-union men.

Historical Society Headquarters.

The following committee on permanent quarters for the Quincy Historical society met Monday afternoon: George W. Morton, W. G. A. Pattee, J. M. Sheahan, M. D., Peter B. Turner, Samuel A. Bates, J. White Belcher, John Underhay, George G. Saville, W. G. Spear and Frederic A. Tupper. The committee organized with Dr. Sheahan as chairman and Mr. Tupper as secretary. Several locations were looked at but no decision was reached and another meeting will be held in a few days. The committees desire to have the rooms located as near the centre as possible, and have in view three sites.

Committee at Dedham.

The Committee on County Estimates of the Legislature visited the Dedham court house Monday, and, after inspecting the new building, went into executive session in the county commissioners' private room Melville P. Morrill of Hyde Park, chairman of the county commissioners, and Robert P. Waite, one of the architects of the building, were in session with them.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

A BROKEN LETTER.

"Is his lordship waiting breakfast, Parkins, or has he already begun?" cried Lady Evesham, rushing like a whirlwind in a riding habit into the great, cool, pillared hall of Evesham house one fair May morning.

"His lordship is not yet down, my lady, but Leon has been with him three-quarters of an hour," answered Parkins.

"Then serve breakfast. His lordship won't be long." And Lady Evesham betook herself to the sunlit, flower decked snuggery where she and her husband always had their first meeting of the day. From there she turned to the breakfast table and ran through her morning's correspondence.

"What a dull post! I wonder if John has got anything better?"

Her white fingers wandered among the pile of letters by her husband's plate.

"From the steward; from Jenks, the trainer; from the lawyers. Three with the city postmark, five from clubs. That one is from Lady Janet Stepney, I know—begging, of course, for her orphans or curates or indigent mothers; that's from Bertie Stanhope—what a niggle he writes—and, oh, this must be what they call a typewritten thing."

Lady Evesham picked from the scattered pile a common square envelope bearing an east end postmark and addressed in type to "The Viscount Evesham, Evesham House, Park Lane."

"How queer it seems that a machine should write all that so straight and neat! I had no idea it looked so tidy and businesslike. I think I'll make John buy me one to write to my dressmaker with. Typewriting looks so awfully fierce." She scrutinized the letters still closer. "This one isn't quite faultless, though. There's something wrong with the capital E. It's got a white spot— Ah, John, at last!"

She dropped the letters among the others and ran to greet her husband, who stooped from his superior height and kissed her lovingly.

A year ago society had called John, Viscount Evesham, aged 45, a fool to saddle his wealth and his freedom with a mere girl as a wife, but his bride had been so sweet, so gracious, so innocently pleased with her new surroundings and so unaffected that at the beginning of this her second season the most cynical had voted the marriage a success and the young viscountess an acquisition.

Lord Evesham adored his wife, yet with that tentative worship, that love tinged with doubt, which must always be where the adorer is speeding swiftly down life's hill and the object of adoration is every day growing more lovely and more desirable.

His first few months of married life, when, a bride, Lady Evesham had won widespread and open admiration, had been torture to him. Even now his self depreciatory doubts were only lulled to slumber by the perfectly blameless conduct of his wife.

"I'm sorry to have kept you waiting, my dear," he began, with old fashioned courtesy, "but the morning was so fine I made sure you would prolong your ride."

"So I might have done, for Mr. Leighton—he has constituted himself my cavaliere servante in the Row—was most amusing, but Kittie Hamer joined us, and it's horrid riding three abreast—one has to shout so. I left them at the top of the Row and"—

"Leighton rides with you, does he?" queried Lord Evesham, looking over the top of his letters.

"Yes, dear, almost always." And then an utterly unaccountable blush came over her until her throat, ears and cheeks were alike bathed in the crimson tide.

"Hum!" said his lordship, while Lady Evesham, furious with herself at the trick her unruly self consciousness had played with her, took refuge in her breakfast. Silence reigned, broken only by the faint tinkle of the silver and china and by the rustle of Lord Evesham's letters.

Suddenly he started, grew pale, then red, looked from his wife to a slip of paper in his hand and back again.

What a strange coincidence!

"Watch your wife!" in typewritten characters, stared from the paper before him. Opposite was the downcast face of his wife—the face which had been but a moment back dyed with a guilty blush at the chance mention of the name of a mere acquaintance.

The next moment he gathered up his letters and left the room. Lady Evesham, too, sprang from her chair.

"Why was I such a fool?" she cried to herself in a tall mirror. "What made me do such a hateful, stupid, underbred thing as to blush like a gawky schoolgirl—and at Rupert Leighton's name, too!—a man who —" She did not speak the words that rose to her lips. Only the faint, coquettish smile—the smile of a woman who is beautiful, who is flattered, who is beloved—dawned again in the misty depths of her eyes.

Before Lord Evesham's eyes and in his ears were ever the words, "Watch your wife!" A younger man, one surer of his hold upon a woman's heart, would have shown her the shameful thing. But he was afraid. He tried to keep the burden of doubt and disbelief to himself, yet Beatrix Evesham guessed at its existence, though she knew neither its origin nor reason. Only she felt that there was no love behind his courtesy, no warmth in his kindness, no faith in his generosity.

"Watch your wife!" Lord Evesham watched, and Lady Evesham knew it.

One night, at Hurlingham, her wounded pride found vent. Rupert Leighton, as ever, was by her side as she strolled to the river's edge, and with the petulance of a spoild child for the first time gave words to her trouble. She was overwrought, and for a few moments she spoke hysterically, incoherently, scarcely reckoning that she had a listener. Then, with a little sob, she dropped her head on her arms and began to cry, as an angry woman will.

"Lady Evesham, what you tell me shocks me terribly! Are you sure"—

"Am I sure? I am dogged at every hour of the day. I am questioned about my movements, then doubted to my face. It is most shameful!"

"It is most cruel," said Leighton slowly. "Pardon the question, but have you given him any cause"—

"Mr. Leighton, how dare you!" flashed from her through the cobalt summer night.

He bowed humbly before he spoke again.

"Then to what do you attribute this change? Has any other woman"—

She shook her head.

Suddenly through the shadows Rupert Leighton's hand stole to Beatrix Evesham's arm, and he drew her so close to him that his breath fanned her hot cheeks.

"Lady Evesham, I have an idea. What if your husband is carrying on an intrigue with a woman? What if he fears discovery and subsequent proceedings and is even now making every effort to trump up a counter charge against you?"

"Ah! Mr. Leighton, how horrible, how cruel to ruin one woman, and that his wife, at the expense of another"—

"Whom he loves," whispered Leighton. "Do you not see, can you not believe that this is the truth—that he is tired of you; that your youth and innocence and beauty are not for him? Ah! Lady Evesham—Beatrix—let me convince you—let me find proof that what I say is true."

"Mr. Leighton, I cannot, dare not, ask you to interfere in this most terrible difficulty. You've been my friend, and I believe you have my happiness and welfare at heart, but"—

"Beatrix!" he murmured hoarsely, "I have no friendship for you. Love and admiration fill me. If I can convince you of the truth of my suspicions, give me yourself."

She slipped from his grasp and fled down the dim pathway.

"Where have you been all this time?" said her husband's voice through the dusk. "The horses have been waiting for half an hour."

"I am ready to go," said Lady Evesham, and looking neither to the right nor to the left she swept before him to her carriage.

Lady Evesham slept little that night. Her shattered faith in her husband's loyalty and trust, Leighton's love, her own unhappiness, jostled in her brain the weary hours through, and it was a very ghost of Lady Evesham who sipped her chocolate next morning and broke the seals of half a dozen letters.

Suddenly the blood rushed to her pale face. A common envelope, bearing a typewritten address, quivered in one hand; a slip of paper was in the other.

"If you would have a proof, be in room 3 at the Imperial cafe today at 4 o'clock."

"No signature, no address," cried Beatrix Evesham. "But the envelope is enough. The E's are broken like those on that other letter which came five weeks ago. Ah! who can be so base, so wicked, as to wish to wantonly destroy the happiness of two lives?"

The big clock over the Imperial cafe had barely struck four when a woman, whose perfect toilet was marred by the singular thickness of her veil, glided into the doorway, and scarcely had the lady disappeared when Lord Evesham passed into the building and followed in the fair one's footsteps.

His lordship moved quickly, but in spite of his efforts only arrived in the corridor in time to hear the sharp click of a closing door, followed by an exclamation in a voice he knew too well.

The sound came from room No. 3. Lord Evesham looked around. Luncheons were over, dinner not yet begun. He was alone, and in another second was pressing his eye to the keyhole.

"You here, Mr. Leighton!"

It was the voice of Lady Evesham, and before her question could be answered she displayed her surprise and disfavor in bitter tones. She continued: "I understand all now. A light breaks in upon me. It is you—you—a gentleman, a friend, who sent the letter to my husband which has nearly broken his heart and wrecked my life—you who have woven a tissue of lies about me and have spread a net for me today into which my feet have almost strayed. The reason I came here today was to discover the identity of the person, man or woman, who sent those two letters to my husband's house. I find you, whom I believed to be a friend, whom I now know to be a foe." She flung out her hands. "Ah, that I were a man to punish you as you deserve!"

Her prayer for a righteous revenge was answered. The door opened a little space, and the tall, spare form of Lord Evesham slipped into the room.

"John! You here?" cried Lady Evesham, laying her fingers across her mouth to stifle the little scream of joy that rose in her throat.

"Stand aside!" said his lordship. Then, with upraised arm, he advanced on the culprit.

Twice the writhing victim cried for mercy, and twice Lord Evesham muttered, "Coward!"

When at last the heavy walking stick snapped in two, Lord Evesham, without casting one look at what lay at his feet, turned to his wife and led her from the room.

Once outside in the dim silence of the corridor Lady Evesham raised her husband's hands to her lips and kissed them.

"Thank you—thank you a thousand times! But, oh, my dear, why did you not trust me?"

Lord Evesham bowed low before her. "Dear wife, I cannot regret what I have done today! I shall trust you to the last hour of my life!"

Then her ladyship reeled a little. "John, dear, take me home quickly. It was an awful sight. I feel—rather—faint!"—London World.

GRANITE STATE LABOR

Fairly Paid and Remarkably Free From Friction With Capital.

Generally Surrounded With Favorable Conditions.

Savings Banks Give Evidence of the Thrift of Laboring Classes.

CONCORD, N. H., April 23.—Some interesting figures are contained in the annual report of Commissioner Bourlet of the bureau of labor tending to show that the working classes of the state have advantages over those of other states. Concerning labor unions, the commissioner says: "There can be no question as to the right of labor to organize for its own protection, and when guided by men of clear ideas and sound judgment, labor organizations will command—yea, do command—the respect and esteem of the general public.

"On the other hand, governed as some of them are by hot-headed fanatics, men more interested in their own personal self-aggrandizement and pecuniary interests than the interests of those who have unwisely placed them in authority, men who disregarded the common rights of all men and hesitate not to incite to acts of lawlessness and violence, agitators, not workers, labor organizations become their own worst enemies, destroying the confidence of all fair-minded men in them and injuring the cause of honest labor beyond hope of immediate recovery. Fortunately but few, if any, of this class are represented in our state."

The total number of labor organizations in the state reporting to the bureau is 58, having a total membership of 2294, 314 of whom are females.

Living In Comfort.

One of the leading features of the report is the individual reports from over 700 wageearners, given in detail, with summaries and analysis following. These show that the working people, as a rule are surrounded with as favorable conditions and are as fairly compensated for their labor as in any state in the country.

As might be expected, wages were reduced in nearly all trades, owing to the distress of the times, and in only one instance was an increase of wages reported. Many own homes free from incumbrance, and those occupying tenements are able to pay fair rental and live comfortably.

As an evidence of the generally thrifty condition of the laboring classes it is only necessary to allude to the fact that 48 per cent making report to the bureau have savings bank accounts, and 43 per cent saved money during the year.

More than half are readers of books from public libraries, and 64 per cent belong to fraternal and beneficiary organizations, which tend to elevate their social and moral condition and provide relief in time of distress and affliction.

Peace Prevails.

Regarding labor troubles in New Hampshire, Commissioner Bourlet says: "The discordant scenes of strife between capital and labor elsewhere finds no counterpart in New Hampshire. In few states is there less friction between employers and employes. Labor is respected and fairly paid, and but little feeling is manifested in the few minor labor troubles that occasionally arise."

It is gratifying to know that, although the number of employes was increased, there was a decrease in the number of children employed of 49 per cent, which was undoubtedly due to wise labor legislation during the decade.

Returns from the establishments reporting to the bureau in 1895 and 1894 show a decrease in 1894 in capital invested of 3.20 per cent, value of material used 4.85 per cent, in wages paid 9.87 per cent, in value of product 13.85 per cent, in number of employes 5.46 per cent; average number of days works were in operation, 1893, 273; 1894, 269, a decrease of 1.46 per cent; the percentage of days run in 1893 was 89.28; in 1894, 87.66 per cent.

The average proportion of business done reached 73 75 per cent in 1893, and 71.48 per cent in 1894, of full productive capacity of establishments considered, a decrease of 3.09 per cent. These conclusions will apply relatively to the entire manufacturing industries.

Dynamite In Illinois.

ST. LOUIS, April 23.—An attempt was made to blow up the residence of Herman Knopke in East St. Louis yesterday with dynamite, and the front of the house was badly wrecked. The wreck was probably the work of strikers, for one of the house's occupants was J. P. Jones, superintendent of the roller mills, who had charge of the importation of men to take the places of strikers.

English Statesman Weds Heiress.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—At St. John's Episcopal church yesterday George N. Curzon, M. P., of England, and Miss Mary V. Leiter, eldest daughter of the Chicago millionaire, L. Z. Leiter, were married in the presence of a large and distinguished company, including guests from England and from leading cities in this country.

To Test Russian Stock.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Duke Dimitri of Russia, brother of the late czar, has presented to W. E. D. Stokes two fine yearling Orloff stallions. It is Mr. Stokes' purpose to ascertain how these highly bred animals will compare with our standard bred American horses under the American system of handling.

FORTUNE OF $15,000,000

Said to Be Awaiting Frank Poor's Release From a Reformatory.

BOSTON, April 23.—Frank Howard Poor, who is at present serving a sentence for forgery at the Massachusetts reformatory at Concord, is heir to about $15,000,000, through the death of Frank Howard, a Nevada mineowner, for whom Poor was named.

Poor was sentenced last January to a year's imprisonment for forging the name of a Lawrence merchant to a note which he gave in payment for a watch. He is about 24 years of age and before he committed crime was very popular. He is an orphan and with the exception of a sister who lives in Lynn there are no near relatives.

The fortune which young Poor is said to have become heir is invested in mining and real estate in Nevada, and besides Poor there are several other beneficiaries who are to receive amounts varying from $200,000 to $500,000.

Cash Basis Suggested.

LONDON, April 23.—The Chronicle says of the report that Nicaragua is willing to cede Corn island to Great Britain: The offer of Corn island instead of the payment of a money indemnity looks like a "plant" on the part of our Nicaraguan friends, for they know that its acceptance would call out against us all the champions of Monroeism. We do not want any trouble with the United States over this peculiar doctrine, and therefore it would be better if we stuck to our money demands. If Nicaragua wishes to sell Corn Island she had better offer it to the Americans or some other people.

Canada Should Keep Off.

OTTAWA, April 23.—In the house of commons last night David Mills (Liberal) protested against any interference by the Dominion government in the affairs of Newfoundland. Canada, he said, had been successful in breaking up the treaty nogotiated by Attorney General Boyd of Newfoundland and James G. Blaine on behalf of the United States, but if Canada had only kept her fingers out of that matter Newfoundland would be by this time in a much more prosperous condition than she could ever hope to be in the Canadian Dominion.

Police Deny Murder Charges.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Augustine Wendel, a Spaniard, has been arrested on the charge of carrying concealed weapons, it being alleged that he had in his possession a "blackjack" or slungshot. His mother was an acquaintance of Alice Walsh, whose mysterious murder the police are trying to unravel. The arrest has started a report that he is being held for the murder of Alice Walsh, but this is denied by the police.

A Shattered Idol.

HAVANA, April 23.—The whereabouts of General Maceo, the insurgent leader, of whom so much was expected, are unknown. According to one story, his body was found in a putrefying condition near Palmorita. Rumors are also current that Maceo committed suicide in consequence of the failure of his movement and because he had been sick ever since landing in Cuba. Maceo's party is said to be disorganized.

Mrs. Parnell May Recover.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Dr. Thomas S. K. Morton of this city, who was in consultation with Dr. Shipps, states that if Mrs. Parnell lives she will be permanently deranged. He says that this almost invariably follows concussion of the brain, accompanied by insensibility. In his opinion it is not unlikely that the old lady's wonderful vitality will save her life. She is 86 years old.

Echo of the Elbe Disaster.

LOWESTOFT, Eng., April 23.—A trawler yesterday brought to this place several articles taken from the body of a woman which was brought up from the deep in the trawler's net. They belonged to Miss Emma Schlegel, one of the victims of the Elbe disaster. The body of Miss Schlegel was recommitted to the deep.

N. Y. and N. E. Buying Property.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Receivers for the New York and New England Railroad company were authorized yesterday by Judge Wallace to purchase a piece of property in Springfield for $61,768.69, which the receivers claim to be necessary for the conduct of the business of the road.

Likely to Be Prolonged.

PITTSBURG, April 23.—The miners' convention is still in session. The delegates say they have no intention of submitting to the 60-cent rate offered by the operators, but will hold out for 69 cents. The operators have refused to join them in a conference.

Clifford Worked Newport.

NEWPORT, April 23.—A. H. Hammett, a lumber merchant, who cashed a check for $185 presented by Charles Clifford, now under arrest at New Bedford, has identified the man. It is alleged that Clifford tried to pass checks on other firms in this city.

Spanish Navy Still Practicing.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Steamer City of Para, from Colon, reports that from midnight Wednesday until daybreak Thursday morning she was followed by a Spanish warship while in the vicinity of the place where the Alliance was fired upon.

Excitement In New Oil Field.

ST. MARY'S, O., April 23.—An oil well just set in at St. Mary's reservoir started off at 200 barrels a day. The excitement is greatly intensified by the news. The danger of a scarcity of oil well supplies is agitating the oil operators.

Seeking Further Loans.

LONDON, April 23.—The viceroy of Nankin, who has just negotiated a loan in Berlin, is negotiating in London for a loan of £1,000,000. These loans have nothing to do with the indemnity that China is to pay Japan.

On Scientific Principles.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 23.—A 10-round glove contest between Neill of St. Louis and Evans of Cincinnati ended in a knockout for Neill in the fourth round. The contest was the most scientific ever seen here.

Chinaman Held For Arson.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Yuen Hoy, a laundryman, who was arrested on suspicion of having set fire to his laundry April 15, was yesterday held in $1500 to answer to the charge.

Spring Has Arrived.

MONTREAL, April 23.—The first steamer of the season, the Tiber, Captain Delisle, arrived yesterday afternoon. She will fill up with a general cargo for St. John's, N. F.

A DEATH DANCE.

Standing In Front of a Mirror, She Kicked and Sang Until She Fell.

Wanda von Flander performed a skirt dance in front of a mirror after she had taken enough poison to kill a dozen girls.

She is a waitress in a New York coffee house and won notoriety as a high kicker. She was so fond of displaying her accomplishment in this line that several proprietresses discharged her, and a crowd of admirers always followed the girl to the coffee houses where she got employment.

In the Cafe Royal, where she sipped coffee and brandy with guests, six weeks ago she met a young man known as Billy.

Wanda and Billy fell in love. He haunted the cafe and spent money freely. The capers of the girl and her high kicking did not please the proprietress, who told Wanda to leave.

She then went to the Cafe Anchor and had worked there only a short time before her ability to kick off men's hats got her into disgrace. The proprietress scolded her, and Wanda tried to kill herself by taking poison, but the drug was snatched away from her before she had swallowed any of it.

Billy then took her from the coffee house and told her he was going to marry her. He hired a room for her from a Mrs. Kern, paid her bills and called on her evenings. They quarreled, and for the last week he has not been to see the girl. She grew despondent and threatened to kill herself.

The other evening she bounded into the room where Mrs. Kern was sitting and began a skirt dance in front of a big mirror.

"I have taken poison and am glad of it," she sang as she danced. "I'm going to dance until I die. This is the happiest moment of my life. My troubles are nearly over. Gayly I have lived, and I intend to be as merry in the next world as I have been in this. I shall have a good time, no matter in what world I am cast."

She danced and kicked higher than her head as she sang. She whirled about and seemed to be mad. Mrs. Kern had often seen her dance wildly, and she did not pay much attention to her antics. She did not believe the girl had taken poison.

Wanda had danced for five minutes before she fell to the floor. The poison had begun to work. She became violently ill. Mrs. Kern helped her to a lounge, then hurried to a drug store and got some mustard, which she mixed with water and tried to get the girl to take. Wanda refused it.

"I want to die," she moaned. "Billy has refused to marry me. I love him and do not care to live without him."

Wanda was removed to the prison ward in Bellevue hospital, and after the doctors got through with her it was said she would recover. At the cafes where the girl had worked it was said Billy had been around since he quarreled with her and had tried to make love to other waitresses.—New York Herald.

EVERYBODY KNOWS HOW.

But This Man Would Run His Paper on a Novel Plan.

It is understood that everybody thinks he knows how to run a newspaper. A gentleman told me how to run one the other day. He is a very prominent professional gentleman.

"I would have a fine building," said he, "and on the first floor would be a cafe. There my staff would board and drink. In the center would be a big table, around which my staff meetings would be held. I would sit at the head, and every man would order his favorite drink. After the drinks we would map out the next day's paper. Then we would drink a few more times and proceed to work. I would have a prominent social leader on my staff, a religious man who took leading parts in prayer meetings, a tough and a ward heeler—in fact, a man from every walk of life. I would have a thorough paper. When I got into a political fight, I would get the names of all my opponent's constituents and send them the paper. I would whip that man. I would give great attention to the cafe and saloon feature, and I would have the most influential and newsiest paper in the world."—Atlanta Constitution.

The little creature which bears the distinction of owning more legs (and feet) than any other known organized being, is the millipede which literally means "thousand footed." There are several species of these curious worms, all possessing the characteristic of having a many segmented body, each segment provided with a pair of legs. Unlike the centipedes — "1 hundred-footed"— they are perfectly harmless.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In many instances the attacks may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

Prof. Prosper De Pietra Santa

Of Paris, Says:

As a large number of patients lack the necessary power to digest sold food, and would through the use of stimulants be merely excited and weakened, therefore, I regard it of immense value to the practitioner to bring to his aid a nutritious tonic and remedy like the Johann Hoff's Malt Extract, which will act not only as a tonic, but as a nutrient as well, and which is less exciting than wine as a stimulant.

Beware of imitations. The genuine Johann Hoff's Malt Extract has this signature on neck label. EISNER & MENDELSON CO., Sole Agents, New York.

BORDEN HAS SKIPPED.

Books of Mills of Which He Was Treasurer Showed a Shortage.

Was His Second Offense of a Like Nature.

Interested Parties May Determine to Allow Him to Live In Exile.

FALL RIVER, April 24.—Thomas S. Borden, agent and treasurer of the Metacomet and Anawan mills, has fled from the city. He is short in his accounts to the extent of $6013, and warrants for his arrest have been issued. He is a son of Philip D. Borden, agent and treasurer of the American linen mills, and has been in charge of the mills named for a number of years.

The news of the shortage became known to the directors Monday morning and at noon they placed the matter in the hands of Lawyer Wood. Complaints were drawn up, but when they were made ready for service at 4 o'clock, Borden had skipped. He left on the 1:29 train, and probably went to Boston.

He dabbled in cotton speculation some years ago and lost $11,000. At that time the

and he has since been paying it off. It is said that he had cleared up the old debt and the new one amounting to the sum stated is an additional loan taken from the mills' funds.

It is reported that Borden himself made the shortage known at the directors' meeting held Monday. His resignation was determined upon some hours before that time. The loss was made good to stockholders by a note said to have been drawn by his father and other friends.

Since his first trouble he has been watched very closely. His salary has never been very large, as the mills are old and employ only about 400 hands, the weekly payroll being less than $2000.

It is believed the affair will not extend beyond the city

In Its Financial Effects.

The mills are owned almost wholly by the Brayton interests and the banking was carried on in local institutions.

Borden was a bachelor, and a short time ago his engagement to a Maine lady was announced. It is said among his intimates that he was well known to many women, but he lived modestly here and was not considered an extravagant fellow.

A very prevalent opinion is that he will be allowed to remain in exile from the city with three others, who, like him, stand charged with tampering with Fall River mill books.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 24. — The Republican members of the legislature, in joint caucus, on the fifth ballot nominated ex-Senator Edward P. Shaw of Newburyport for treasurer and receiver general in place of Henry M. Phillips, resigned. The house spent nearly the entire day discussing the petition of the Massachusetts Anti-Double Taxation league for the exemption from taxation of shares of capital stock of corporations organized under the laws of other states; the exemption of municipal obligations from taxation; relief from taxation of incomes derived from property subjected to taxation, and the prevention of double taxation of merchandise pledged for debt. The bill was rejected, 57 to 131. In the senate the Sunday observance bill was recommitted in concurrence. The Merrimack river shad fishing bill was in the senate referred to the next general court. Governor Greenhalge sent a message to the senate suggesting that Massachusetts be officially represented at the Atlantic cotton exposition in September, and that an appropriation be made for the exhibition of Massachusetts textile products at that exposition. The committee on judiciary reported a bill abolishing bucket shops, so called. The house adjourned as a mark of respect to the late Representative Bennett of Tyngsboro. The Fall River board of police bill was engrossed in the house.

Directors' Names Used Unlawfully.

WILLIMANTIC, April 24. — Excitement continues over the closing of the First National bank by Bank Examiner Dooley. There are ugly rumors about O. H. K. Risley, the cashier, who died a few weeks ago, and it is said that he forged the names of some of the directors, including John M. Hall of the Consolidated road. The bank was the correspondent of the Dime Savings bank, and some of the latter's funds are tied up. Besides forgeries of names of personal friends, Risley is said to have forged paper of the Natchaug Silk company for between $60,000 and $75,000.

A Tuberculosis Scare.

LYNN, April 24.—The death of two children in Lynn recently from tuberculosis spinal meningitis, alleged to have been caused by drinking milk from cattle affected with tuberculosis, has been brought to the attention of the state board of cattle commissioners. The board learned that the milk was supplied to the families where the deaths occurred by a milk peddler who secured his milk from 10 different dairies in Peabody. These dairies have all been quarantined till the board has determined which is the affected one.

A Triangular College League.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., April 24. — A proposition from Dartmouth to the managers of the Williams Athletic association to form a league of the three colleges for football, baseball and track contests was favorably received here. Only bona-fide students can take part in championship contests, thus debarring students pursuing post-graduate, scientific or medical courses in Amherst, Dartmouth or Williams.

The Seizure of the Phillips.

ROCKLAND, Me., April 24.—Charles E. Weeks & Co., owners of the fishing schooner Henry L. Phillips, which was seized last June off the coast of Anticosti island by Canadian officials, have appealed the case to the Canadian supreme court. The vessel was seized for fishing within the three-mile limit, and the vessel and cargo, valued at $6600, were forfeited by the Canadian government.

Alleged Ingratitude.

PROVIDENCE, April 24.—The Business Men's association claims that it supported the Olneyville strikers during the last strike by allowing them credit, and thinks that the strikers should patronize them during the present strike. The strikers are purchasing their provisions at cost from wholesale dealers, thereby saving the retailer's profit. The strikers last night informed the Business Men's association that they were able to manage their own affairs, and practically stating that they have money enough to carry them through the strike. Several of the business men have big bills against a number of the operatives.

Biddeford Operatives May Strike.

BIDDEFORD, April 24.—Indications point to a strike of the operatives in the Pepperell and Laconia mills next week. These two mills employ 3300 persons, and it is possible that the big strike of two years age will be repeated. The loom-fixers and mule spinners recently requested Agent McArthur to grant an increase in wages, but the company will wait until business has further improved.

Probably a Fake.

LYNN, April 24.—Miss Kitty R. Poor, who is employed at a boarding house here, is a sister of F. H. Poor, who, it is claimed, is heir to $15,000,000. The young woman declares she knew of no relative who could leave her brother so much money, and never knew that he was named for a millionaire. The family name of Poor's mother was Taintor.

A Boston Mystery.

BOSTON, April 24. —A mysterious case of suicide or possible murder is being investigated here. Michael Murray early yesterday morning heard screams and saw a woman in the water of the Charles river near the West Boston bridge. The police searched the river yesterday, but failed to find a body.

Want Ten Per Cent Cut Restored.

PITTSFIELD, April 24.—About 500 operatives of the Belair and Taconic mills here are out on a strike, demanding of the management a restoration of the 10 per cent cut in wages made a year ago. The management state that a restoration is impossible under the present conditions of business.

New Help Being Employed.

HYDE PARK, Mass., April 24. — The strike at the Boston Gossamer Rubber company's works shows no signs of ending. The mill managers stated that to call the change in the pay schedule a reduction does not give a true idea of the situation. New help is being secured.

A Mania For Stabbing.

HANOVER, N. H., April 24.—Mrs. Joseph Bussee, aged 60, attempted to stab her 12-year-old daughter for some misdemeanor, but was prevented by her son. A short time ago she stabbed her husband with a shears. The woman was fined in court yesterday afternoon.

Evidence of Drowning Accident.

SALEM, April 24.—A drifting boat which was picked up near here has been identified as belonging to Philip St. Pierre, who used it Sunday evening to land a party of friends from his yacht and started to return to the yacht, since which time he has not been seen.

Firemen Kept Busy.

MALDEN, April 24.—Two fires here yesterday afternoon caused an aggregate loss of $6200. The first blaze was in the storehouse of George P. Cox, which was partially destroyed. The second fire was in a large tenement house, the upper stories of which were burned.

Gobbled by Providence Police.

PROVIDENCE, April 24.—Providence police have two Boston men in custody who were arrested on suspicion of having been concerned in many recent burglaries that have occurred here of late. The police are holding them until further evidence is secured.

Stebbins' Poor Memory.

DEERFIELD, Mass., April 24.—Chairman Jones of the board of selectmen is authority for the statement that the exact shortage of Albert Stebbins, tax collector for 1892, is $6200. Stebbins still insists that he does not know where the money went.

Thieves Punished.

CONCORD, N. H., April 24.—James McAvoy of this city, aged 19 years, a criminal with a state prison sentence on his record, was yesterday sentenced to 10 years in the state prison for burglary. George Thompson, for the same offense, got two years.

Missing From Home.

LYNN, April 24.—Della Cloutier, aged 15 years, has been missing from home since April 15, and inspectors have been unable to find any trace of her. She had been threatened with chastisement by her mother for playing truant from school.

Horribly Mutilated.

FALL RIVER, April 24.—William Sullivan, aged 18, an employe of the American Printing company, was caught on a shaft, sustaining injuries from which he died. His right arm was torn off, both legs were broken and he was hurt internally.

Killed by Avalanche of Coal.

BOSTON, April 24.—John Padden, an employe of the Edison Electric Light company, was killed last evening at the Atlantic avenue power house by the cover of a coal shute suddenly opening, letting several tons of coal down on him.

Increase in Pay Wanted.

LAWRENCE, April 24.—Thirty-five men employed in the color department of the Pacific Print works struck yesterday for a restoration of the wages paid before the cut of 1892—an advance of 8 per cent over the present scale.

Youth Charged With Incendiarism.

THOMPSONVILLE, Conn., April 24.—Walter Melledew, aged 13, was arrested on the charge of setting fire to a barn which was destroyed yesterday afternoon. There have been a number of incendiary fires in this place lately.

NO AMERICAN VESSELS

To Protect Our Interests In the Event of Trouble In Nicaragua.

British Warships to Enforce Payment of Indemnity.

Not Likely, However, to Go to the Extent of Bombarding Coast Cities.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The Nicaraguan minister is advised of the arrival of three British warships at Corinto to enforce the British ultimatum. Much surprise is expressed that there is no American war vessel at Corinto.

As far as can be learned, the British government did not take United States officials into its confidence as to its intention to send its entire available Pacific squadron to Corinto at this juncture.

Both the state and the navy departments declare that they have received no official confirmation of the movements of the British vessels, although it was well known that the British ships under Rear Admiral Stephenson met at Panama two weeks ago.

The Satellite has been there some time, and was joined by the flagship Royal Arthur, which had spent the winter in Chilian waters, and by the Wild Swan, from Callao. The admiral commanding the squadron is an experienced officer, and as he has a very large landing force on his vessel, he should be able to promptly enforce any demands his government might authorize him to make.

Unsolved Problem.

Just how the ultimatum will operate is not known here. The indications now are that Nicaragua will offer a passive resistance to the British demands for some time at least, and meanwhile the United States will do nothing but watch development of events, unless the British take some action that affects our purely selfish interests, such as interfering with our shipping or other interests of American citizens.

This attitude is assumed in the confidence that no attempt will be made by the British to secure any Nicaraguan territory, no matter what course she may be obliged to pursue to accomplish her purposes of collecting the "smart money" demanded for the expulsion of Vice Consul Hatch.

There is reason to believe that not only the Nicaraguan affair, but the whole subject of the extent of the protection to be extended by the United States to the sister republics of Central and South America, has been very earnestly and deliberately discussed by the president with his full cabinet, and that the attitude assumed in the case of Nicaragua may be taken as an indication of the line of policy to be adopted for the treatment of all questions arising between the European powers and these republics having such a basis as the present Nicaraguan incident.

Bombardment Unlikely.

Notwithstanding the presence of the English war vessels in the harbor of Corinto, it is regarded as unlikely that any overt action will be taken by the commanding officer because of Nicaragua's failure to comply with Great Britain's ultimatum.

The state department was advised several weeks ago that while the English government was determined that the indemnity to pro-Consul Hatch should be paid, their efforts to collect it would not go to the extent of bombarding any of Nicaragua's coast cities.

To Rehear Income Tax Cases.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—At the opening of the supreme court of the United States yesterday, Chief Justice Fuller made the following announcement: "The consideration of the two petitions for a rehearing of the income tax cases is reserved until Monday, May 6, when a full bench is expected, and in that event two counsels on a side will be heard at that time."

Iron Furnaces Close Down.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., April 24. — Every furnace in New Castle shut down last evening, but for how long no one knows. The men asked their employers to restore the wages of a year ago, and gave them 24 hours to determine the matter. The latter declined to take the time, but decided to close at once.

Two Thousand Out.

NEW YORK, April 24.—The threatened strike of the tailors in this city was formally declared yesterday, when the 2000 union men left their benches because the contractors had refused to grant their demands for an extension of the agreement entered into last September.

British Interests Not Badly Hurt.

LONDON, April 24.—The Daily News says it understands that the government will not join any combination of powers to interfere with the results of the Japanese victories. The ministers do not consider that British interests are injuriously affected by the terms of peace.

O'Rourke's Bluster.

CINCINNATI, April 24.—Tom O'Rourke, manager of Walcott and Dixon, came out on the stage last night and abused Jim Corbett roundly, saying that he was no gentleman. He said he would put up $500 that Corbett could not knock out Joe Walcott in four rounds.

The Bolivia Stove Up.

NAPLES, April 24.—A collision occurred in the harbor here between the steamer Cyrenian and the steamer Bolivia, en route to New York with 1100 immigrants on board. Nobody was hurt, but the Bolivia was considerably damaged.

Perished After a Carousal.

AMHERST, Wis., April 24.—Seven Poles, who were at work clearing land in Wild Rose, were burned to death in their shanty. The men had been drinking, and it is supposed that all were drunk when the fire occurred.

James M. Nowland, principal of the Adams school, was this week granted a patent for a drawing kit.

Superintendent Lull is able to be about once more although he is still quite weak from the effects of a severe cold.

There is some talk of reviving the Quincy school reunions.

Teachers' Association Meeting.

Tuesday evening was Horace Mann night with the Quincy Teachers' Association which met in the High School building. Most of the teachers of the city were present and many invited guests, the latter including Mr. George C. Mann, a son of Horace Mann, and master of one of Boston's High schools. A brief sketch of Horace Mann from the Encyclopedia Brittania will not be out of place in this report:

"Horace Mann, one of the best known of American educationists, was born at Franklin, Mass., May 4, 1796, and died at Yellow Springs, Ohio, August 2, 1859. He entered the junior classes in Brown University in the year 1816. He graduated in 1819. In 1821 he entered the school of law at Litchfield, Conn., and was called to the bar in 1823. In 1827 he was elected to the State legislature of Massachusetts, and in 1833 he was returned to the upper house. He suggested and organized the State lunatic asylum of Worcester. In 1837 the legislature appointed a board of education to revise and reorganize the common school system of the State; and Mann was appointed secretary.

"In 1848 Mann was elected to Congress to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John Quincy Adams. He tried to induce the government to establish a bureau of education at Washington, but this was not done till much later. He resigned his seat in Congress in 1853, and became the first president of Antioch College, at Yellow Springs—a college for the combined education of men and women. Mann's chief work in American education is the reform which he brought about in the common and normal school system of Massachusetts; and this reform is largely due to his twelve annual reports."

The programme was arranged by Mr. Litchfield of the Quincy school and Miss McGinley of the Coddington and opened with selections by a double quartette: Miss Burns, Miss Emery, Miss Sullivan and Miss McGinley, Mr. Merrick, Mr. Litchfield, Mr. Kingman, and Mr. Pollard.

Miss Eaton of the Quincy read an admirable paper on the "Qualities and Characteristics of Horace Mann," and Miss Forsaith of the Coddington followed with an expressive piano solo.

Miss Haley of the Quincy spoke of "Mann as Secretary of Board of Education," and the next number was a recitation by Mr. Hennessy, which was encored.

After a recess Mr. George C. Mann, the special guest, spoke at length of the life of Horace Mann, whom he termed as a self-made man of plain honest English ancestry. He alluded to his college life; his profession as a lawyer; his early loss of his wife, and a financial loss which crippled him; his official life, and his works for education, temperance and anti-slavery.

Miss Aston, a young and promising vocalist, gave two selections, one in response to an encore.

Several teachers then gave quotations from the works of Horace Mann, and the meeting closed with a selection from the double quartette.

Quincy Schools Crowded.

Several of the school buildings are more than crowded.

At the Quincy school every available space is occupied and the teachers' desks are surrounded by pupils.

At the Wollaston school twenty-four new pupils have entered this term and in order to accommodate them thirty seats have been placed in the hall. The other rooms are also crowded and more room must soon be had.

At the Willard school 77 new pupils have entered this term and more room in this district is imperative.

The only thing that will relieve these three buildings are the new school buildings at Norfolk Downs and the Rail, but unless the city government moves faster than it has, the buildings will not be ready for occupancy when the September term opens.

The Bicycle Era.

The Foxboro Reporter makes the suggestion that no school building should now be built without provision for the stabling of the pneumatic steed. Think of it! Pupils and teachers throughout the country must now "ride to school" where once they walked, and yards and enclosures about New England's halls of learning are "alive" with bikes of all degrees waiting for their owners to go home. Nor is this prevalence of the machine confined to towns near Boston. It exists nearly everywhere, and the boy and girl who once trudged miles to the district school now scorn shanks' mare. What influence the bicycle will ultimately have on the brains of this country cannot be forseen, but its almost universal use certainly marks a new era in the educational system.—Herald.

A Word of Caution.

Mothers are cautioned by a physician not to permit their children, who carry a load of school books back and forth from home and school each day, to carry the load in the same hand or over the same shoulder, as many instances have been known where the habit lengthened the arm or enlarged the hand disproportionately, or caused the child to carry one shoulder higher than the other. If the books are carried first in the right and then in the left hand every second day, or the bag of books suspended from the shoulder be changed about as frequently, the danger will be met with and overcome. Even in cases of decided right or left-handedness a changing about of the burden not only prevents this lack of symmetry, but strengthens the weaker hand wonderfully. —Ex.

THE COUNTY TAX.

The Legislative Committee Reports on Eight Counties But Not Norfolk.

The Committee on County estimates of the Legislature reported on Tuesday resolves granting county taxes in eight counties as given below, but Norfolk county is conspicuous by its absence. The committee has adopted a new plan in reporting: instead of one resolve for all counties, a separate resolve for each county, in which the sum to be raised is specifically apportioned.

The grants are compared in the summary below with the population of 1890 given in thousands, and the valuation of 1892 given in millions. It will be noticed that the county tax in most counties is less than $1 per capita, and that without exception they raise more than $1 per $1,000 of valuation.

Upon the population basis the Norfolk county tax should be less than $118,000; on the valuation basis it might be over $161,000. The county commissioners asked for $160,000, which will probably be reduced, so that Norfolk will be an exception in either case. Norfolk is a small county but includes the rich towns of Brookline and Milton.

DEATH OF MRS. CRANE.

Widow of the Donor of Thomas Crane Memorial Hall Passes Away.

The trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library have received the intelligence of the death of Mrs. Thomas Crane of New York city and Stanford, Conn., after a four weeks' illness of pneumonia. She was the widow of Thomas Crane, a native of Quincy, who donated upon his death about fifteen years ago, funds with which his family erected on Washington street, in this city, the Thomas Crane Memorial hall, which was presented to the city and is now the home of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Mrs. Crane was born in Troy, N. H., March 3, 1813, and married in 1836. She was highly esteemed and did many good works. At least once a year she visited the library, and on founder's day and other occasions forwarded flowers.

Funeral services will be held Thursday, in New York, and the interment will be at Greenwood cemetery. By order of the trustees the library will be closed during the day.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Ford, Charles Brown and Charles Miller were fined $5 each for drunkenness.

Thomas Fallon was arraigned for drunkenness. Case continued one week.

DIED.

CRANE—In New York, April 22, at the Hotel Cambridge, of pneumonia, Clarissa L., widow of the late Thomas Crane, of that city and of Stamford, Conn. Funeral services on Thursday, April 25, at 10.30 A. M., at Church of the Divine Paternity, 5th avenue and 45th street. Interment at Greenwood Cemetery at convenience of family. Boston, Mass, papers please copy.

ENDED WITH A RUSH.

Senators Beat the Bostons in a Game Replete With Brilliant Plays.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Wagner's boys pulled themselves together and beat out the visitors in a sharp and exciting game, full of brilliant stops and showy throws, and ending with a perfect shower of baseball fireworks, in the shape of a triple play by Wilson, Warner and Tucker that took the breath away with its suddenness and sharpness of execution. It was like death by electricity to the three Senators, and the leather flashed between the trio of Hubites like the real thing with 'steen thousand voltage.

Russian Dickering.

LONDON, April 24.—The Standard's Berlin correspondent telegraphs: The action of France, Russia and Germany has not yet exceeded a friendly, but energetic, protest against the Japanese annexing any part of the Chinese mainland, but I hear that a Russian minister at Pekin has already been instructed to negotiate with the Chinese foreign office regarding the cession of Chinese territory which Russia demands in compensation for the Japanese acquirings. China, being unable to reject Russia's demands, hopes to confine them to the cession of a portion of Manchuria and an ice-free port.

Tried to Thwart Justice.

NEW YORK, April 24.—District Attorney Fellows has been investigating a conspiracy to thwart justice by means of straw bail. The result is that warrants were issued for the arrest of five persons. The names of the persons whose arrests are called for are Diercha Triedman, Fred R. Watson, George Williams, John O'Brien and Maggie Anderson. So far the investigation shows that Triedman, under different names, has gone on the bonds of five persons awaiting trial, and O'Brien on two. The others, whose names appear on the warrants, are at present on bail furnished by Triedman.

Respite For Dr. Buchanan.

ALBANY, April 24.—Dr. Buchanan's wife and Mrs. Coleman of New York city waited upon Governor Morton yesterday. Mrs. Buchanan made an earnest plea for the life of her husband. The governor at first said he could not interfere, but Mrs. Buchanan's pleadings were so pathetic that he finally granted a week's respite, principally to give the condemned man time in which to prepare for death.

Constable's Sale.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
Norfolk, ss.

City of Quincy, April 4th, A. D. 1895.

BY Virtue of an execution which issued on a judgment in favor of George A. Mayo of said Quincy, against William C. Kelly of said Quincy, at the District Court of East Norfolk in said County, I have taken all the right in equity that the said William C. Kelly had on the twentieth day of December, A. D. 1894, the day when the same was attached on mesne process to redeem a certain mortgaged real estate, situated in that portion of said Quincy known as West Quincy, being lo's Nos. 36 and 37 on a certain plan of house lots, made by Whitman & Breck, surveyors, dated July 12th, A. D. 1882, and bounded as follows:

Northerly on Centre street, in all a distance of one hundred and sixteen [116] feet; easterly on lot numbered 35 on said plan about one hundred [10.] feet; southerly on land owned by Wilson Arnold and John Hannon, in all a distance of about one hundred and twelve [112] feet, and westerly on lot numbered 38 on said plan, about one hundred and two and eight-tenths [102.8] feet, and containing 11,700 square feet of land, more or less, with buildings thereon.

Being the same premises conveyed to said William C. Kelly, under the name of William Kelly, by John Quincy Adams, by his deed dated November 22d, A. D. 1887, and recorded with the Norfolk Deeds, in libro 598, folio, 631, and the same that is described in a mortgage deed thereof, from the same William C. Kelly, under the name of William Kelly, to John Quincy Adams, recorded in the Registry of Deeds for said County, libro, 598, folio, 590, and on MONDAY, the twenty-seventh day of May, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, at my office, No. 12 Adams Building, in said Quincy, I shall offer for sale by public auction to the highest bidder said right in equity of redemption.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE.

BY Virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgaged deed given by "Minnie A. Moreton" to Napoleon B. Furnald, dated October 1st, 1888, recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds, libro, 612, folio, 9, for breach of the condition contained in said mortgage and to foreclose the same, and will be sold at public auction on THURSDAY, the ninth day of May, 1895, at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon, on the premises, the following described real estate, viz:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and State of Massachusetts, bounded and described as follows, viz: Southwesterly on Main street, four [4] rods, southeasterly on land now or late of Leonard N. Perry, six [6] rods; northeasterly on land now or late of Charles Newcomb, four [4] rods; westerly by land now or late of L. Goodnow and of Charles F. French six [6] rods, being all these measurements more or less, and being the same premises conveyed to said "Minnie A. Moreton" by deed of Elizabeth F. Furnald and Napoleon B. Furnald, dated October 1st, A. D. 1888, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, libro, 612, folio, 8.

Two hundred [$200] dollars will be required to be paid in cash at the time and place of sale, and the balance thereof in five days therefrom. For further particulars inquire of

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co, Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

The Cemetery Work.

Some members of the Board of Managers of Public Burial object to the report that work was stopped at the Hancock cemetery for political reasons. Mr. Bennett was put to work by Chairman Hall, but the point was raised that Mr. Nicol was elected "superintendent of public burial places," instead of superintendent of Mount Wollaston cemetery, as in the past, and therefore he had entire charge of work in both cemeteries.

May Magazines.

The complete novel in the May issue of Lippincott's is "The Lady of Las Cruces," by Christian Reid. It gives a later (and last) episode in the life of that beautiful and gifted Mexican who was the heroine of "The Picture of Las Cruces," in the magazine for February, 1894.

"Odds on the Gun," is a stirring anecdote of South Africa, the first of sundry surprising adventures of a war correspondent which will be offered.

The May number of Godey's Magazine appears in an even more attractive cover than the Easter one. It contains as leading features Milton's beautiful May poem, illustrated by Newman; a continuation of the "Fair Women Series;" "Artists in Their Studios," by Cooper; "Circe," by Miller; and "The Angora Cat." This last article, which is beautifully illustrated, cannot fail to attract considerable attention, on account of the fact that the Angora cat is one of the fads of the day.

Twenty-three portraits of Prince Bismarck, presenting him at every important epoch of his life for sixty years, from 1834, when he was a student at Gottingen, 18 years of age, down to the present time, will appear in McClure's Magazine for May.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

NOT MORE.

My life has found its noontide, and my days
Have gone in quiet by to outward gaze,
In such side places have my feet been set,
So few of all my fellows have I met,
So small the ground my scanty strength could gain
To hold and till. What wonder if the grain
I reap is told by short and slender sheaves,
And if where flowers might bloom are only leaves,
Yet shall I sorrow that my friends are few,
That wealth I have not, that my power to do
Is held in narrow bounds? The power to be
Is mine, unchained, to grow as fast, as free
As winged wind that blows across the night
Or morning sunshine on a mountain height.
So I, deed poor, may have whereof to yield
To you, brave worker, in a wider field.
If what I am has blessed your lot, my own,
I ask not more than my still life has known.
—Aurilla Furber in Housekeeper.

A PRIMEVAL STORY.

Chug did not know that he belonged in the post tertiary period of the world as he stood beside the tawny waters of a great inland sea whose waves gently washed the warm shores of the young earth.

He was in Kansas, although he was not aware of it, although as he stood he looked off into the northwest anxiously for the clouds that would bring rain to break the drought.

The little brook which now winds through the valley where he stood is a mere glimmering ghostlet of its mighty post tertiary predecessor, the sea.

Chug was young and lithe and stalwart, like the machairodus of the cataclysmic caves. His whole body was hard as wood and covered with a coat of thick nut brown hair that harmonized with the reddish beard that flowed over his broad chest as that of a post tertiary Peffer.

His heavy mane of weather beaten locks had never felt a hat.

About his loins from one shoulder was draped the skin of a cave lion.

A ponderous mace of flint lashed by leather thongs to the handle lay at his feet.

Chug, who derived his name from the sound of the mighty blow with which he smote to death the cave lion whose hide he wore, was not thinking of the pterodactyl from which he narrowly escaped the night before.

Nor did he notice the cyclopean crocodiles in the sea.

His thoughts were sad and roamed afar.

At a distance, too great for his computation, he had been born amid a little clan of post tertiarians.

A strange impulse, such as his brothers and sisters had never known, came over him.

The monosyllable conversation of his kin made him tired. Chug was wont to twine wild flowers in his hair and wear sandals of woolly hippopotamus hide.

"Spat-Spat," a young woman who could skin an Irish elk quicker than any woman of the clan and who scorned the luxury of sandals or robes of hide, one day pointed her reeking finger at Chug as she paused in her work and cried contemptuously, "Dude, dude!"

"You didn't say 'dude' when I saved you from the claws of the ichthyosaurus!" retorted Chug and passed on.

Thus Chug gathered up his weapons and went forth alone and wandered from his own fireside.

Long he had pondered over the mystery of life.

He had repeated in his sleep the refrain, "There are others."

If his clan existed, he argued, why not other clans somewhere?

Was it not possible that in their society he could lose that tired feeling which had so oppressed him?

But moons had come and waned, he had traversed unknown leagues of morass and forest, crossed the tide of rushing rivers, and still nothing but packs of great hyenas, trumpeting mammoths, giant graminivorous and carnivorous mammalia and monstrous reptiles and amphibia.

Man was nil, and woman existed not.

If Chug had lived nowadays, he would have known what troubled his breast.

He would have found love in the eyes of beauty and become happy.

Poor Chug did not understand love. His soul yearned unconsciously.

His thoughts went back homeward.

It had not been quite so bad there as in this solitude.

He thought of how he built a house for his mother of the ribs of a horned iguandon that in life was 70 feet long, with legs thick as the fluted columns of a Corinthian temple.

He recalled how he used to arise early and build the fire, and how he once had mashed his finger while chopping kindling with the old stone ax.

An idea came to him as he stood there looking across the great sea.

Why not float upon its bosom on a raft and mayhap come upon another people?

Chug worked with feverish fervor, and in two days was launched upon his hazardous journey.

But, alas, as he was putting to shore a few days thereafter, an air breathing, cold blooded pleiosaurus, which was hidden in the reeds, suddenly shot its horrible head at him, its long, flexible neck seeming like a monstrous serpent.

Chug pushed away madly, tore himself loose from the jagged jaws, but fainted across his raft, and the tawny waters bore it out to sea, the rude funeral car of a post tertiary hero.

For days the apparently dead voyager floated.

His system stood the strain, and the spark of life remained due to the fashion of the time of eating but once a week or so.

Chug had dined the day prior to his misadventure.

Old Chief Tushe-tushe of the fishermen at the mouth of the river, now known as the Arkansas, intercepted the raft and found Chug.

After due consideration among the tribe it was decided to put him to death.

The Tushe-tushes had dwelt by the sea many generations, and the legends gave their origin as the children of a gigantic mastodonsaurus which had formerly infested the coast.

Their village was on the site of the present city of Wichita, somewhere near the soap works, and was laid out in town lots even into the bed of the sea.

They were brown skinned, beardless, and with hair black as the alluvial soil and stiff as the whiskers of the giant post tertiary leopard.

Their numbers had brought about many improvements in the mode of living, such as wearing loin cloths of native grasses and the hanging of shells from the ear and nose.

For generations the fashion of flattening the forehead had prevailed.

Chug had small hands and feet, was hairy as a cave lion and wore whiskers, and besides his head was not flattened.

Such a monstrosity could not be permitted to live.

The natural curiosity of the Tushetushes, however, impelled them to nurse Chug to life to see what he was like when well.

The job of nursing Chug fell to Sunbird, the only daughter of the old chief.

She marveled at the brawny proportions of the strange voyager.

She whiled away the long hours by plaiting his whiskers and grooming his brown fur until he shone like a blooded carriage horse.

Sunbird was young and impressionable.

She had been wooed by every youth of the clan, had listened for awhile, and then repulsed every man of them.

No woman of the tribe was so beautifully shaped as Sunbird, nor was there so smart a flathead among the Tushetushes.

She had a Trilby foot and the shoulders of a Lillian Russell.

Her old father loved her devotedly, still he chided her.

"You are getting much too gay for the tribe, my precious darling," he would say in his blunt, rough way.

During Chug's convalescence his days were sweet with newness.

Instead of bullet headed Spat-Spat, covered with fur like a megatherium, here was a creature with a head like a triangle, and with a graceful figure, smooth and soft to the touch, and the broiled steak of post tertiary reindeer was charming to his palate.

The vocabulary of the language of Chug and Sunbird contained but 600 words and nurse and invalid could soon converse.

So happy was Chug that he hated to tell the story of the passion which filled his heart, and he reserved it from day to day.

But his stalwart form trembled with emotion as Sunbird's hand gently smoothed the fur of his broad shoulders.

When Sunbird's father comprehended the trend of affairs he did not grate his teeth because, as a matter of fact, he was a fish eater and toothless.

But he spoke his mind.

"Come—the jig is up!" he shouted, and dragged Chug to the place of execution.

This denouement astonished Chug so much that he was pinioned by withes of elastic bush before he could make up his mind to resist.

The executioner brandished a ponderous dinotherium tusk, when Sunbird dashed through the throng of Tushetushes and wrested it from him.

"Stand b-a-c-k!" she shrieked, with the furious mien of a post tertiary saber toothed tigress robbed of her cubs.

"I love him, and if he dies I d-i-e with him!" cried Sunbird as the tribesmen wavered before her as before the awful presence of a 50 foot high pterodactyl.

"What! that hairy animal with small hands and feet and little round head—that Populist freak!" yelled the old chief.

"I love him because he is so different from other men, papa. He is so perfectly unconventional!" replied Sunbird.

"That's all right," said old Tushetushe as he released Chug and blessed his children. "It will be my turn to laugh when you want a divorce, young woman! Remember that Chicago is only 20,000 years hence!"

But Chug eventually became chief of the tribe, and through his example the people became exceedingly mild mannered and took to whisker raising.—Kansas City Star.

He Mistrusted His Sex.

A Durham miner, aged 73, visited a Newcastle lawyer, a bachelor, for the purpose of making his will. The old man's property consisted of two small cottages, which had cost him £150, and a little furniture.

The lawyer having asked his client how he wished to dispose of his property, the latter replied:

"Ma auld woman hes to hev all so lang as she's ma widdow. Efther that ma bairns gets all."

"What age is your old woman?" asked the lawyer.

"Seventy-two," replied the miner.

"And how long have you and your wife been married?" asked the lawyer.

"Over 50 years," replied the miner.

Thereupon the lawyer suggested to his client that he should give the wife the interest during her life, whether she continued a widow or otherwise.

"Hinney, I winnot. I'll hev me aan way," said the miner.

"But, surely," replied the lawyer, "you don't expect your old woman, now 72 years old, would marry again after your death?"

The miner, looking the lawyer full in the face, answered, with much solemnity:

"Wey, hinney, thor's nae knaaing what young cheps like yourself will do for money."—London Tit-Bits.

THE WHEEL IS THE THING.

One Hundred and Twenty-six Manufactories Are Making Half a Million Bicycles.

The magnitude of cycling as a pastime is hard to grasp in these end of the century days, when one is told that "everybody" is now a wheelman. Within the last five years the popular craze has extended to all civilized countries on the face of the globe. It is in America, however, that the greatest progress has been noted, and in cycle construction this country now leads the world.

In 1885 there were but six makers of cycles in this country, with a total output estimated at under 11,000 wheels. Five years later 17 manufacturers turned out in the neighborhood of 40,000 wheels.

From 17 to 126 is an amazing stride for a period of five years, but the latter sum accurately represents the number of factories turning out bicycles in America today. An output of nearly 500,000 machines is the estimate for this year for this country alone.

A territorial division of the 126 cycle manufactories shows that the Empire State alone has 25. The New England states have 24 between them; New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland have 15; Indiana, Michigan and Ohio, 35; Wisconsin, Illinois and Missouri, 27. Between 18,000 and 22,000 hands are employed in these factories. Such enormous interests, growing at the present rate, cannot fail in a short time to take the lead and set the pace for domestic manufacturing trades.—New York Times.

BABY RUTH A BICYCLIST.

She Rides a Tiny Wheel and Takes a Header Now and Then.

The eldest daughter of the president has joined the ranks of the merry lady bicyclists. Miss Ruth Cleveland is only 3 years old, but she has already shown a great deal of American enterprise and sits astride of a tiny bicycle as gracefully as any rider. The first day the tiny cyclist appeared in public on her wheel she created quite a sensation. People watched the little rider eagerly, and the ladies all declared that she was "just too cute for anything!"

A day or two ago she ran into a small bowlder and took a fine somersault on the grass. Being a little girl, with limbs just as tender as any other child, she set up a lusty yell, and, rubbing her little bruised shin, hobbled into the house, dragging her bicycle after her and blubbering loudly.

She wears a funny little hood when she goes out for a spin. The rest of her wardrobe consists of an olive green cloak, very short, with big, puffed out sleeves. Her jacket has pearl buttons up and down the front and is cut in an old fashioned style. Her dress is a light yellow dimity affair. She wears black stockings and red morocco shoes, and although she does not look at all stylish she looks very pretty and doll-like perched on her tiny wheel.

ODD SPOKES.

The bicycling window cleaner is a specialty in Berlin.

Brown is to be the proper color for this season's riding costumes.

A wheel club, membership in which is limited to Freemasons, has been formed in Liverpool.

A tandem pair were recently fined in Holland because the machine had only one lamp and one bell.

It is indeed a sign of the times when proper riding of a bicycle is one of the things now taught in Y. M. C. A. gymnasiums.

Parisian wheelmen are asking to be allowed to use the sidewalks, proposing that one side be reserved for them and the other for foot passengers.

French wheelmen will again have to pay $3 per annum taxes on their machines, the effort to have the rate of taxation reduced having failed.

The wheel club of York, Pa., is conducting a lecture course for the benefit of its members. General Gordon and Henry Watterson have already appeared before the club.

Wooden rims are much used in France. Some who have machines with steel rims paint them yellow to be in the swim, so that people imagine they are wooden rims.

FAMOUS FOLK WHO RIDE WHEELS.

Fanny Davenport is learning to ride a bicycle.

Lady Colin Campbell has patented an improved bicycle wallet.

Miss Frances Willard has written a book on "How I Learned to Ride a Bicycle."

Cycling is a fad in the family of ex-President Harrison, and the general himself is said to be contemplating joining the ranks of the wheelmen in Indianapolis.

For Intercollegiate Cycle Contests.

The formation of an intercollegiate cycling asssociation to be distinct and separate from the Intercollegiate Athletic association is indorsed by the principal riders at Harvard, Columbia, Cornell and Pennsylvania. The idea is to hold the annual intercollegiate cycle races prior to the Mott Haven games and on a track better adapted to cycle racing.

The Gunn Was Loaded.

A wheelman named Gunn was arrested recently for being drunk and "scorching" to the danger of other users of the highway. His lawyer made the original plea that when a gun got loaded a discharge should follow. The judge said the argument was good where the load was not wet, as in the case before him, and to the cooler went the "scorcher."

Paris' Spiral Track.

A spiral track is to be constructed out of an old panorama building in Paris. The track will reach the height of three stories, and its grade will be three-quarters of an inch to the yard. It is 1,625 feet in length.

ALONE!

No Child to Call Her "Mother."

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

How desolate is the marriage state without children!

How unnatural!

The law of nature is the perpetuation of life by reproduction, and applies to both animal and vegetable life. Nature makes but few mistakes; and where her great law is not carried out, the cause is not a natural, but an unnatural, one.

Two loving beings have joined hands,—a loving wife and husband. Years pass by, and still there are but two. The sound of little footsteps never patters in their ears, and no child's voice calls that loving woman "Mother." They have wealth, position, all that heart could wish for, but the greatest of all blessings is denied them,—a child.

Sterility is curable in nine out of ten cases. Every mail received by Mrs. Pinkham brings letters from women on this subject; and success follows her advice. Write her at Lynn, Mass., and bring happiness to your home.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restores the latent organs to a normal action, and also removes all weaknesses, aches, pains, and irregularities.

SELF JUDGED AUTHORS.

Cooper once said that "The Spy" was his best written novel.

Smollett agreed with posterity in considering "Roderick Random" his best.

Robert Browning is said to have preferred "The Ring and the Book" to any of his other works.

Halleck prided himself especially on "Marco Bozzaris," which he once said had the genuine ring of poesy.

Keats seemed to regard "Endymion" as his best, though one of his biographers says that he spoke very well of "Hyperion."

Hazlitt thought that his "Characters of Shakespeare's Plays" better deserved consideration from the reading public than any of his other writings.

De Foe expected his fame to rest on his political writings, which form the bulk of his works, and did not appear to attach much importance to "Robinson Crusoe."

Isaac Watts prided himself on a very dull treatise, "The Improvement of the Mind," and seems to have thought little of the hymns that are now sung in every English speaking land.

Grote once compared his "History of Greece" to Gibbon's "Decline and Fall" and took pains to point out the various excellencies of each and to show in what particulars his own work excelled that of Gibbon.

Byron is said to have preferred "Childe Harold" to all his other works. He said it contained more of his heart history than all the others combined. He seems to have regarded it as Dickens did "David Copperfield"—as his own biography.

Thackeray always alluded to his books in a half comic, half satiric vein and would rarely express any preference, speaking in a contemptuous strain of them all. His friends believed, however, that he regarded "Vanity Fair" as his best—one says, because it paid him best.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A woman in West Virginia claims to be 120 years old, but the females of the neighborhood insist that she is 145 if she is a day.—Detroit Tribune.

Jilson says he does not see why there should be any objection to women entering the legal profession. Nine out of every ten married men know well enough that her word is law.—Buffalo Courier.

It is believed that women everywhere would cheerfully fall into the habit of removing their hats in public places if it were not for the fear that they couldn't get them back on straight.—Kansas City Journal.

Perhaps when woman carries the pocketbook then men will think it safe to attend the church fair, but will the woman be as fierce for going as she now is? Awful doubt, terrible uncertainty!—Boston Transcript.

Now that the Ohio women are actually participating in politics, the Ohio man will be deprived of the time honored excuse for staying out late at night. His wife will also attend the caucus.—Washington Post.

PROPOSED MARRIAGE.

Charge of Insanity Prevented Lord Douglass Carrying Out Plans.

Queensberry's Third Son Cutting a Wide Swath.

Frequent Visits to Bakersfield's Tenderloin Leading to His Ruin.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., April 24. — Lord Sholto Douglass, third son of the Marquis of Queensberry, was arrested yesterday at the instance of several of his friends, who declare he is insane. This is simply a device to prevent him from disgracing his family by marrying a woman of whom he is desperately enamored.

Several months ago Lord Sholto came here to look after a 40-acre fruit ranch which his mother had bought. The agent of Higgin & Levis, the millionaire landowners who are developing this richest part of the San Joaquin valley, showed young Douglass over the whole country and introduced him to several rich Englishmen who have fine ranches near town.

Lord Sholto, seemed to be favorably impressed. He lived like a gentleman for a time,

But Has Lately Changed.

He began to drink very heavily and resorted without shame to disreputable houses.

Bakersfield is one of the toughest places in California, having 60 saloons and a dozen disorderly houses, though it has only 5000 inhabitants. Lord Sholto became a conspicuous figure in the local tenderloin, and on Monday night he was swindled out of $600 by tin-horn gamblers. He gave checks on local banks.

In the saloon where he was swindled is a pretty waitress, named Loretta Addis, and of her Lord Sholto became desperately enamored. He importuned her to marry him, and yesterday he amazed his friends by applying for a License to Marry the Girl.

When this was learned, one of his friends, M. G. Brewster, swore out a warrant for his arrest upon the ground of insanity; and he was locked up. He is in a great rage.

The girl came from San Francisco recently with her mother. The latter returned a short time ago, after her son had been arrested for vagrancy. The girl remained and sold beer in a sort of variety theater connected with the saloon.

She is pretty and is said to have maintained a good character. She made a profound impression on Lord Sholto, and only yesterday she agreed to marry him. The local British colony was thrown into the wildest excitement by the news.

Long-Lost Heir Found.

MARIETTA, O., April 24.—Attorney Sargent has discovered, through D. W. Dye of this city, the whereabouts of the long-lost son of Fred McDonald, son of Lord Greenville. The mother of the boy was Lou Kountz, who went to England, married McDonald, ran away from him, taking their son, whom she kept in seclusion while she lived an abandoned life in Columbus. McDonald died recently, willing $2,000,000 to this son. Mr. Dye married a half-sister of Lou Kountz, and was able to identify the boy.

For Sound Money.

LOUISVILLE, April 24.—The board of trade yesterday considered an invitation extended to the board to send delegates to a sound money convention to be held in Memphis, May 23. Declarations were made for a sound currency on a single gold basis, and it was decided to send a delegation of 15 to the Memphis money conference.

Crooked Collector Resigned.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 24.—George H. Hall, Jr., county collector of Buchanan county, resigned his office yesterday, and E. J. Breen was appointed as his successor by Governor Stone. Hall was about $18,000 short in his accounts, which shortage was made good by his bondsmen.

Escaped Death Sentence.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24.—The Turkish soldier Mustapha, who, on Jan. 20, ran amuck, killing Mr. Stupe, an American, and two other men and wounding 10 others, has had the death sentence that was imposed upon him commuted to 15 years' penal servitude.

Stole $75,000.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 24.—John H. Rolland, cashier of the Merchants' and Farmers' National bank of this city, has been discovered short in his accounts to the amount of $75,000. The bank is considered perfectly solvent.

Cannot Recover.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., April 24.—Mrs. Parnell is so much worse that the physicians in attendance despair of her life. They say now that they have little if any hope of her ultimate recovery.

Back to Matteawan.

TRENTON, April 24.—Governor Werts yesterday afternoon granted a requisition for Perry, the train robber, who escaped from the Matteawan asylum, and who is now in Hudson county jail.

Adolf Rules For the Present.

BERLIN, April 24.—The diet of Detmold has confirmed the regency of Prince Adolf of Scaumburgh-Lippe pending a judicial settlement of the dispute regarding the succession.

Ready For Governor's Signature.

ALBANY, April 24.—The Lexow bi-partisan New York city police bill passed the assembly by a vote of 96 to 21, and the bill now goes to the governor.

Cooney Couldn't Stand Ten.

CINCINNATI, April 24. — Jim Murray knocked Jack Cooney out in the sixth round last night. They were to fight 10 rounds for $400.

Wool Values Hold Firm.

BOSTON, April 24.—Although the inactivity which has pervaded the wool market here for some time past still prevails, prices are steady and the firm tone of the markets abroad is having a beneficial effect in strengthening the market here. The near approach of the new clip is the principal factor in keeping buyers from making large purchases. Although the offers are liberal, values hold firm. The following are selling prices for leading descriptions: Ohio and Pennsylvania fleeces, X X and above, 16½@17c; X and above, 15½@16c; No. 1 combing, 20@21c; No. 2 combing, 19@20c; unwashed 11@12c; Michigan X, 14@15c; Michigan No. 1 combing, 18@20c; Michigan unwashed 10@10½c; X New York, New Hampshire and Vermont, 17@18c; Montana fine, 9@11c; scoured, 30@32c; Northern California spring, 10@11c; scoured, 28@30c; southern California spring defective, 6@6½c; scoured, 22@25c; Australian combing superfine, 41@42c; Australian combing good, 38@40; cross-breds, ¾-blood, 26@28c.

LONG-HEADED SMUGGLERS

Devised a Novel Plan For Wriggling Chinamen Over The Border.

MONTREAL, April 24.—A novel mode of smuggling Chinamen into the United States has just been brought to light by the shrewd work of the United States customs officials in this city. About a year ago an organized gang of smugglers were frightened off by the same officials, their chief point of operation then being Richford, Vt.

Not to be outwitted, the leaders of the gang put their heads together, and last month devised another means of getting the Celestials across the line. This time the wily Chinamen were consigned to rude pine coffins with concealed air hole, and with the aid of forged death certificates were safely snipped from St. John, N. B., to Vanceboro, Me., where the supposed corpses were Claimed by One of the Smugglers.

After staying in hiding for several days, the "corpse," attired as a female, would be spirited away under cover of night, and before morning dawned was safely lodged in either Boston, Springfield or New York.

When this new means of entrance into United States territory became generally known among the resident Chinamen in Vancouver, they took steps to instruct their conferrees from the Flowery Kingdom, as soon as they arrived on the Pacific coast, in a new manner of gaining access to the land of the free.

Arriving in Montreal, the Celestials were taken in hand by the smugglers, who shipped them this time to Quebec, and from there over the Intercolonial railway to St. John, N. B., where other members of the gang ran them into the states as dead Chinese.

Waller's Alleged Offense.

PARIS, April 24.—The Soir states that ex-American Consul John L. Waller, who was brought from Madagascar to Marseilles under arrest, acted as the medium between the Hovas and the English for the conveyance of orders for munitions and arms. When France declared war against the Hovas, Waller, according to The Soir, acted as a spy at Mojunda, and by means of waving different colored lanterns at night advised the Hovas of the movements of the French. This once nearly resulted in 600 French troops falling into the hands of the enemy.

Green Goods Men In Tow.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—G. W. Robinson, John Brash and Samuel Wilkinson, New York green goods men, were inveigled to this city by a decoy message last night, and are now locked up at police headquarters. Robinson had nearly $2000 of good money and a loaded revolver; Brash, $23, and a tin box filled with green goods and another with 10,000 stamped envelopes addressed to persons throughout the country, and Wilkinson had $1.

Suit For a Million.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., April 24.—The Northern Investment company has filed a cross petition against the Boston Investment company and its trustees for $1,000,000 damages for wrongful and fraudulent transfer of property to the Northern company and its trustees. It is alleged that much of the property given by the Boston company to the Northern Investment for stock was worthless.

No Use For Donkey Engine.

OTTAWA, April 24.—J. C. Patterson, minister of militia, has resigned his portfolio and left for California this morning. Mr. Patterson has large interests in the Pacific state, and has announced to his friends that as long as Canada is "England's donkey engine" he will not live in the country.

Will Be Fought to the End.

LONDON, April 24.—The grand jury yesterday returned a true bill against Oscar Wilde and Alfred Taylor. Wilde's solicitors deny the story that their client will plead guilty to even one offense. They declare that his case will be fought to the end.

A Fair Start.

WASHINGTON, April 24. — The department of agriculture telegraphic crop reports for the past week contain the following: New England: Weather favorable and farm work generally begun; grass starting well.

Dnieper Over Her Banks.

ODESSA, April 24.—The river Dnieper has overflown its banks and flooded the governments of Kieff and Tchernigoff. Many persons have been drowned, and immense damage has been done to crops and property.

Undermined by Freshet.

LOWELL, April 24.—On account of the recent freshet in the Merrimack river a section of the Lawrence mills yesterday collapsed from being undermined. Two women were severely burned by steam.

Church and Dwellings Burned.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., April 24.—Fire at Victoria Corner resulted in the destruction of the Free Baptist church, the Baptist parsonage, three dwellings and two barns with their contents.

Madden Branches Out.

NEW YORK, April 24. — Jack Madden has issued a challenge to any 105-pound man for the bantam championship of America.

QUEER EPISTLES.

A Specimen of the Sort Received In the President's Daily Mail.

President Cleveland's daily mail frequently contains some of the most remarkable communications that were probably ever indited, and if he acted upon the suggestions of one-third of them congress would be continued in session the year round and the tariff bill constantly undergoing revision. The greater part of the queer letters are from fanatics. The strangest of all letters was received a few days ago from a farmer living in one of the western states, who asks for an immediate session of congress to prevent a strike which he believes imminent among his laborers. This farmer says that a year ago he wrote to J. Sterling Morton, secretary of agriculture, for some rare varieties of seed and also requested that two "gondolas" be forwarded, as he believed that there was a field for profitably raising what he termed that valuable variety of animal in his locality. The seed, he avers, were sent and two strange looking birds, which have since produced a large flock that promises to steadily increase. The "gondolas," he says, are troublesome animals, and early in their career it became necessary to employ two laborers, at a cost of $2 a day each, to care for them. As the number augmented additional help was required until now the farmer has to call to his assistance quite a force of men to care for them. These men, with those employed around his farm, have threatened to strike, and the farmer asks that the president call congress to remodel this tariff law so that American labor may compete with cheap European workingmen. The "gondolas," the farmer asserts, have been at the bottom of the trouble.—New York Sun.

A SILVER ADVOCATE.

Senator Joe Blackburn of Kentucky Gives His Views on Bimetallism.

I have always been and am now and always intend to be in favor of the unlimited coinage of silver. I have been making this fight as earnestly and persistently as it was possible to do ever since it was demonetized in 1873 by what is known as the Sherman act. I believe that the single gold standard means inevitable bankruptcy and ruin to this country. I insist upon both gold and silver being retained as the money of the people, according to the provisions of the constitution. I have always opposed and always will oppose the single standard policy that England and Wall street have fastened upon this country for the sole purpose of robbing the masses of the American people to enrich the holders and hoarders of gold. My record is unbroken as an earnest, uncompromising advocate of the silver metal, and in the coming canvass in Kentucky I intend to force the fight on this line, and upon the record that I have made I am willing to stand or fall.

Strange Marriage History.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Arnold of Brooklyn have recently attended the golden wedding of Mrs. Arnold's sister, Mrs. Charles Hart, in Providence. The Arnolds but recently celebrated their golden wedding and will, in Providence, meet two other sisters who have celebrated similar events. One other sister, Mrs. Powell of Hartford, has been married 41 years.

The four sisters who have seen so many years of married life are all members of the Jackson family, and their aggregate years of married life have been over 200.

In the Jackson family were 14 children. When the mother died, in 1887, she left a great-grandson 18 years old. Mrs. George Wheaton Jackson was the mother of 17 children—seven sons and ten daughters. Four of her daughters married members of the Angell family in Providence.

A New Idea to Stimulate Trade.

To the Editor of The Sun:

SIR—How would this do for an idea to stimulate trade? Let The Sun ask for men who will come forward and put down their names as agreeing to spend $100 in cash on any set day, say the 1st of May, for goods for their own consumption, such as clothes, hats, shoes, dry goods, etc., or see that some member of their family has the amount to spend in cash. One hundred thousand such men could put $10,000,000 in circulation at once. It might be called Booming day.

SAME OLD CONSTANT READER.

Capital. We call upon the 100,000 to promise to spend each his $100, and we hereby appoint April 10, the Wednesday before Easter, as Booming day, on which the said $10,000,000 must be spent.—New York Sun.

A Large Bottle.

At the Bordeaux exhibition the special feature will be the largest bottle ever made. It will be 115 feet high and divided into stories, in the lowest of which there will be a restaurant. A winding staircase will lead up the neck to a kiosk, taking the place of the cork, where there will be room for 35 persons at a time to sit and look over the exhibition grounds and the city.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Foreign Missionary Work Accomplished In Face of Obstacles.

Christian Self-Sacrifice Has Been Exhibited.

A Call For New England Churches to Render Needed Contributions.

BOSTON, April 25.—The series of missionary rallies now being held in this city to stimulate interest in mission work reopened in Park street church yesterday afternoon. The chief speaker was Rev. Judson Smith, D.D., foreign secretary of the American board, who briefly traced the last 10 years' work, and showed by statistics the number of places occupied, number of native pastors, and the churches and church members, the pupils in higher schools and the native contributions had advanced from 81 per cent to more than 260 per cent, and that the rate of increase was greater than at the beginning of the decade.

Notwithstanding wars and rumors of wars in eastern Asia, Turkish oppression in western Asia, and the weight of poverty that overhung missions in India during this very year, the field itself was steadily broadening. The work abroad, in the care of the American board, continually expanded in area and enlarged in its resul s.

While the work and force increased in the last three years at least 15 per cent, the appropriations for that work have fallen off nearly 10 per cent, and an Increasing Debt Incurred.

The present situation was depressing, and, notwithstanding the anxious watchfulness of more than two years, no marked increase could be observed. Under stress of diminished appropriations every reduction had been made and every questionable expense thrown out. The mission force itself had been but slightly enlarged, and many an enterprise, promising in the highest degree, neglected for the want of means.

At the Foo Chow mission, this year, 10 per cent in salaries were voluntarily relinquished that the imperilled work might not suffer, and elsewhere like self-sacrifice had been exhibited. For similar reasons many native brethren had assumed a larger share of work among themselves.

No longer could the prudential committee keep the work from suffering. The resources at command were not equal to the Present Urgent Needs.

A physician could not be appointed for the West Central African mission for want of money. Neither could the committee provide the physician at the Zula mission with tools for his work.

The sum of $150,000 additional to the regular gifts to the board was needed to relieve the present urgency. Let the example of the Second church of Dorchester, which gathered in $1 a member and placed the sum at the disposal of the board, be imitated far and wide! The South church of Springfield had done the same thing. If the churches of New England were to follow these examples, it would yield $246,000, 70 per cent more than is needed for the present exigency.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 25.—The house engrossed the bill providing for a police commission for Woburn to be appointed by the governor. The bill allowing municipalities to purchase existing gas or electric light plants at the cost of duplicating them was rejected—123 to 54. The order for a recess committee to inquire into the present financial and general condition of the town governments was rejected. In the senate the amendment to reduce the appropriation for the extermination of gypsy moths from $150,000 to $50,000 was rejected. The bill to provide additional accommodations for the county courts sitting at Lowell was engrossed. A bill was admitted to confirm and ratify certain doings of the board of aldermen and of certain ordinances of the city of New Bedford relative to cemeteries. The committee on county estimates reported the following estimates for county taxes: Worcester county, $200,000; Essex county, $246,481; Middlesex county in part, $420,000; Norfolk county in part, $69,000. A joint caucus of the Democratic members of the legislature nominated as candidate for treasurer and receiver general James S. Grinnell of Greenfield.

Hale's Stealings.

FOXCROFT, Me., April 25. — The adjourned meeting to hear the report of the attorneys engaged in investigating the Hale defalcation was held yesterday afternoon in the opera house. The attorneys stated that affairs were still in a very uncertain condition, and no definite conclusions had been reached. The amount of the notes at the present time is in round numbers $157,000. The amount is expected to reach a much larger figure.

Signs of Foul Play.

RAYMOND, Me., April 25.—The search is still going on in the ponds and woods of Raymond for the body of missing Henry Britton. Every inch of woods within the radius of many miles and the bottom of nearly every pond have been dragged without discovering any clew of the missing man. Britton's bloody umbrella and hat were found the third day after his disappearance in a place which had been searched over by hundreds of people.

Noted Man Passes Away.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., April 25.—Colonel Franklin Fairbanks died at 10:25 last night. He was born in St. Johnsbury, June 28, 1828. He was the youngest of the four sons in the family of Governor Erastus Fairbanks, who was twice governor of the state of Vermont. Franklin was president of the great scale company and was interested in other industries. He was one of Vermont's most prominent men in public life and church work.

Contractor Killed by Cars.

WAKEFIELD, Mass., April 25.—Jeremiah Cushman, a contractor, of Newburyport, was at work on a flatcar when some cars were run on a side track and struck the car that he was at work on with such force as to knock him between the cars, one car passing over him. He died shortly after. He was one of the best known contractors and railroad builders in New England.

Bitter Contest Likely.

BIDDEFORD, April 25.—At a meeting of the loom fixers of the Pepperell and Laconia mills, it was practically decided to go on strike May 1, unless wages were advanced 10 per cent. The operatives claim they are getting less than any large corporation in New England. Agent McArthur says that wages will not be advanced before July 1, if then, and if operatives went on strike, the corporation would fight to the bitter end. The prospects are that Biddeford will have the biggest labor war in its history.

Waring's Injudicious Remarks.

NEWPORT, April 25.—Charles E. Lawton post, Grand Army, composed of friends and neighbors of Colonel C. E. Waring, superintendent of the street cleaning department of New York city, last evening passed resolutions condemning the language recently used by him in reference to the Grand Army. They condemn his utterances as contemptible and declare him unworthy to be classed among the country's defenders.

To Consider Amalgamation.

BOSTON, April 25.—The annual convention of the Lasters' Protective union of North America opened here yesterday. The most important question to be decided will be whether the union will disband or continue to exist. Many members claim that the new international organization of shoe workers will answer all the purposes of the present lasters' organization.

Looking After Delinquents.

AUGUSTA, April 25.—Fifty subscribers to the stock of the Quebec and Wiscasset railroad, having neglected to pay the amount of their subscription, have been sued by the company to recover the amount subscribed. The defense will be that the agreement was that no call for payment of stock would be made until $300,000 had been subscribed, and that only $180,000 has been realized to date.

Blaze at Bangor.

BANGOR, April 25.—Fire broke out this morning in a building occupied by H. F. Bailey, dealer in hay, grain and straw, and by Thomas F. Tabor, carpet cleaner. The building was entirely consumed. Some large coal sheds near by were threatened with destruction, but at this hour the fire seems to be under control. Loss about $6000. Two horses were burned.

Four Against One.

BOSTON, April 25.—Carimini Pierni, 37 years old, an Italian, was set upon by four young men on Commercial street last night and seriously injured. He received bruises on all parts of the body and was injured internally. George Battos was arrested two hours later charged with being one of Carimini's assailants.

Probably an Accident.

PROVIDENCE, April 25.—The body of a man found floating in the Seekonk river yesterday was recognized as that of Edward McKeon of Westerly. As there is no evidence of violence on the body, and as there were over $50 and a gold watch in the man's pockets, it is believed that he was drowned by accident.

Brown's Ultimatum.

PROVIDENCE, April 25.—Brown university will refuse to allow the regular college games played with Yale to settle the ownership of the loving cup. The Brown officials state that if Yale refuses to go to New York, the judges will have to find another way of making a settlement.

Pilot Had Long Voyage.

BOSTON, April 25.—Schooner Marion Hill, from Bermuda, had a very tempestuous passage and lost several sails. It was so rough on leaving Bermuda that the pilot belonging to that place could not be landed, and was obliged to come to this port.

Death Not Due to Diseased Milk.

LYNN, April 25.—The five herds of cattle quarantined and inoculated at Peabody were examined yesterday and no signs of disease were discovered. A child in one of the families supplied with milk from these herds had died from tuberculosis.

Non-Unionists Will Share.

PROVIDENCE, April 25.—The situation at Olneyville is unchanged. A large store has been rented for distribution of provisions. A committee was appointed to prepare a list of non-union operatives, so that they may share the strike benefit.

Planning to Reopen Bank.

NASHUA, April 25.—A meeting of the corporation of the Nashua Savings bank to reorganize so that it can be opened was held yesterday. A new board of trustees was elected, the only member retained being Mayor Howard.

Unhappy Domestic Life.

LYNN, April 25.—John E. Herlihy, aged 24 years, attempted to drown himself at Lynn beach last evening, but was rescued in an unconscious condition by an expressman who chanced to be passing. Marital troubles were the cause.

Advance at Merino Mills.

PROVIDENCE, April 25.—Notices of an increase in wages were posted yesterday in the Merino mills. The spinners get an increase of 10 per cent, the weavers a trifle less, and the other departments an increase of 10 per cent.

Penrose on the Warpath.

HARRISBURG, April 25.—Senator Penrose yesterday offered in the senate a resolution calling for an investigation of Philadelphia municipal affairs. The resolution was referred to the judiciary committee.

England Not Asleep.

BERLIN, April 25.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Frankfort Zeitung declares that it is firmly believed in the Russian capital that Japan has made considerable secret concessions to Great Britain.

ESTATE IN A TANGLE.

May Result In the Ultimate Closing of Stanford University.

A Strain on Mrs. Stanford's Private Income.

Attorney General Olney's Suit May Cause Famous Institution to Collapse.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25.—The Bulletin says: The teachers at Stanford university are looking for positions in other universities on the impression the university founded by Leland Stanford will soon close its doors. They fear the college will close because there is no money in the Stanford estate to pay for its maintenance, the estate being tangled up in a suit with the United States, which is going on in the federal courts. The probate court has no power to use the funds of the state to keep the college on a firm footing.

Some age the estate began to sell the brandies and wines that had accumulated in the wineries of the estate, and the money derived from the estate was to be used in defraying the expenses of the institution. Meanwhile all the expenses of the university have had to be defrayed from the private income of Mrs. Stanford.

Just as the Stanford properties were being put on a first-class business basis, Attorney General Olney started his big against the Stanford estate. This had the effect of checking proceedings in probate looking to a speedy distribution of Senator Stanford's estate and tying up things generally.

Suit For $15,000,000

It was this, so it is said, coupled with the previous feeling of unrest that has prevailed to a greater or less degree ever since the senator's death, that stimulated some of the educators to seek openings elsewhere and set in circulation the report the university is likely to be closed for a season. When asked as to this matter yesterday, Mr. Lathrop said:

"It is all this government suit. If it succeeds it seems inevitable that the university must be closed. At it is, it has tied up the estate in probate and prevented distribution of the estate, so that it may seriously embarrass us. We are pressing the suit and wish to have it determined as soon as possible.

"It must be remembered the university cannot pay its own expenses, for the institution is free. The board from the department manages to pay its own expenses, but that has nothing to do with paying the professors. There are now somewhere between 1100 and 1300 students connected with the university and about 75 men in the faculty."

Held For Boston Police.

MONTREAL, April 25. — Three Boston sharps, giving their names as Thomas Henri, Philip Ross and John Phelps, were yesterday remanded for eight days in order to give the police authorities time to communicate with the Boston police, where it is believed the men are wanted. The men had been in Portland, where they tried to swindle men by hiring them to work on the Boston subway. They were frightened away by the police, however, and came on to Montreal to pursue their operations.

A Timely Suggestion.

LONDON, April 25.—Sir Henry Howorth, M. P., a well-known authority of Eastern affairs, has written a letter to The Times urging Great Britain to take council with America to formulate a common policy in the Chinese seas. Great Britain and America, he says, have no political rivals there, and the operation will ripen into results that would be beneficial to both in other difficulties else where.

Of Good Old Stock.

SPRINGFIELD, O., April 25.—Thomas C. Busby, a pioneer residing near here, died yesterday, aged 80. He introduced Governor McKinley to the first political meeting he ever addressed outside of his own district. Mr. Busby's father was a quartermaster in the war of 1812, and his grandfather a revolutionary soldier. His five surviving sons are all prominent newspaper men.

In Memory of Author Key.

BALTIMORE, April 25. — A delegation called on Governor Brown yesterday and requested him to ask the governors of all the states and territories to aid in securing money to erect a suitable monument over the grave of Francis Scott Key, the author of the "Star Spangled Banner," whose remains are buried in Frederick. The governor promised to do as requested.

Will Be Voted Down.

OTTAWA, April 25.—In the house of commons yesterday Mr. O'Brien introduced a bill to do away with French as an official language and with separate schools in the north west territories. Both government and Liberal members will unite in voting it down, as any other action would antagonize the French and Catholic province of Quebec.

Family Feud Ends In Murder.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 25. — John Swearingen, brother-in-law of Senator Tillman and ex-Congressman Tillman, was killed yesterday by B. L. Jones, a relative. There has been a bitter feud between their families for some time. Jones emptied every chamber of his weapon, putting four balls into Swearingen.

De Campos Is a Hustler.

HAVANA, April 25.—Captain General de Campos is displaying extraordinary activity in visiting different places on the island. He has been enthusiastically received at every place he has visited. Two insurgents who have surrendered confirm the reports of the death of Jose Maceo, the rebel leader.

Journalistic Generosity.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The American Wheelmen, largely through whose efforts the Asbury Park wheelmen secured the national meet of the L. A. W. of July next, has volunteered to back the meet financially, should such assistance be required.

☞It's better to buy a bicycle at a reliable store than to buy from an unscrupulous agent whose only motive is to sell a wheel. Try Henry L. Kincaide & Co., Columbia agents.

Brussels Carpets.

Our Spring stock is particularly strong in Brussels, of self-colored designs, or two or three tones of colorings, with border to match. The same may be said of our assortment of Wiltons, for that matter.

Our line of these goods is unquestionably larger than that of any other Boston or New England dealer — very likely on a par with any house in New York, even.

We have for years made a specialty of exclusive styles, which are owned by us, and cannot be obtained elsewhere.

The present tariff (which only went into full effect Jan. 1) has combined with other causes to greatly lower the prices of all carpets, whether foreign or domestic.

SOCIABLE AND DANCE.

Loyal Ladies Celebrate Their Anniversary at Doble's Hall.

The third anniversary of the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor No. 1, was celebrated by a sociable and dance in Doble's hall on Tuesday evening. The ladies, together with their husbands and friends, completely filled the hall and the decorous enthusiasm which they displayed throughout the evening, gave ample evidence of the business ability that has made their society such a pronounced success since its start.

The proceedings were opened at 8.30 by a grand march led by floor director Lizzie Smith and Mr. H. Sprague of Wollaston. Mr. William Wilson's orchestra furnishing the music.

After dancing had been engaged in for a few hours a recess was called, and a short literary programme submitted. A song was rendered by Miss Martha Brooks, and a reading by Miss B. Porterfield, after which a farcical sketch entitled "The Love of a Bonnet" was presented by six of the members, the characters being:

Mrs Clipper, a widow,	Mrs L Perry
Kitty, her daughter,	Miss H Birnie
Aunt Hopkins,	Miss Mabel Ellis
Mrs Fastone,	Miss H Esson
Dora, her daughter,	Miss B Smith
Katey Doolon, Irish help,	Miss L Kane

Though the presentation was destitute of many of the modern theatrical surroundings, the parts were so well sustained by the ladies who essayed them, that stage devices were forgotten in the keen enjoyment of the piece.

A varied collation followed these exercises, after the service of which, dancing was resumed and kept up with spirit until 2 A M.

The whole arrangements were under the careful directions of Mrs. Maggie Smith, president of the order, assisted by a committee of seven.

GREAT CITIES.

Quincy High School Club Debate on the Evil and Good.

The president, Miss Cummings, took the chair Wednesday at the meeting of the High School debating club. Mr. Winlock was elected secretary, and Mr. Nelson was chosen treasurer.

The debate of last week was concluded, and the board of decision retired. The critic, Miss Hay, then gave her report.

The entertainment was as follows:

Recitation, Miss Rose Coyle, '96; a very pleasing selection given with excellent effect.

Recitation, Miss Garrity, '96; Longfellow's celebrated poem, "The Bridge."

Recitation, "Woodman, Spare That Tree," Mary Sampson, '95; appropriate to Arbor Day.

Recitation, Miss Briggs, '96; an excellent temperance lesson.

The board of decision for last week's debate brought in an unanimous verdict for the negative of the question, "Resolved, That wealth causes more crime than poverty does."

The new debate followed: "Resolved, That great cities are a greater evil than they are good."

The affirmative was taken by Misses Bassett, Cashman, Bates, Bryan, Bryant and Dinnie.

The speakers in the negative were: Misses Flood, Haley, Jones, Keating, Leary, Lowe, Greany, McGovern.

When the debate became general, Misses Bemis, Flood, Keating, Lowe, Greany, Bates, Temple, Bryant, and Mr. Northcott spoke.

Miss Peterson, the critic, then presented her report, which was adopted. The board of decision decided in favor of the negative.

A lively debate followed on the report of the board of decision.

With Permanent Horse, Wagon and a Driver.

THE NEEDS OF DEPARTMENT

As Set Forth by Chief Hayden in His Annual Report.

Many improvements are asked by the department officials and boards of the city in their annual reports, but few copies of the City Book are printed and fewer still are carefully read. Thus it is that few had heard the recommendations of Chief Police Hayden.

If Mayor Hodges favored the improvements he did not endorse them in his inaugural, or provide for them in the annual appropriations. The order of Councilman Bigelow seeks a little light on the subject.

Chief Hayden informs the LEDGER that he is not very sanguine of obtaining anything this year, but thought the needs should be agitated. The following is an extract from his annual report:

I believe that the convenience of the Police Department are behind those of all other departments and we are not keeping pace with the growing City. I think it advisable for the City to have three more regular officers. I know better work could be accomplished.

The Police Department has asked for nothing and receives nothing, and it has now come to the point where its needs should be looked after by some one. What officers we have are faithful and do their duty the best they can with what they have to do with.

There should be some method of communicating between the different routes and the Police Station. It is not infrequent that we receive notice by telephone, during the night, of teams strayed or stolen and various other happenings and desiring that the police be notified to be on the watch; but what way have we to notify them. The police in different cities and towns are dependent on each other for assistance and Quincy should try to render as good service to others as she receives. In the early part of the evening, through the courtesy of the street car conductors we have been able to receive and send notes, lanterns, etc., to different parts of the City, but when the cars are done running for the night, communication is cut off. I desire here to express my thanks to the conductors for their assistance in this manner.

Quincy has so many places of "resort" and picnic grounds that are visited by all classes, that there is hardly a day in the summer that there is not word sent to the police station of a disturbance somewhere and a demand for police officers. There should be a horse and wagon provided for the use of the department to convey officers to such places, and kept in the night time where it could be sent to convey arrested persons to the police station. As it is now, if an officer arrests a person after the cars have stopped running (and often when they are running, such language is used that he would not take them on a car) there is no way but to hunt the neighborhood over for a team and then perhaps not find one, and finally is obliged to wrestle with his prisoner for one or two miles to the station house; and this takes the officer from his route from one to two hours at the very time, perhaps, when he is needed to look after others.

The place we now occupy is a poor apology for a police station. Situated as it is in the cellar under the City Hall, without sunshine or ventilation, it can be nothing but an unhealthy place, totally unfit for the purpose for which it is used. It might have answered the purpose twenty-five years ago, but the City has grown and the demands on the police have increased as rapidly as on any other department. There is practically one room for lodgers, tramps and prisoners, drunk or sober, be they, men, women or children. If we had as good a place as the abandoned fire station on School street, that was considered not fit to keep horses in, we would be well provided for in comparison with our present quarters. In my opinion it would be wise to look the situation over and ascertain whether or not the old stone school house on School street can be repaired and put in proper shape for a police station at a comparatively small cost to the City, and whether it would not answer all requirements for several years.

Crooked if Not Paralyzed.

A woman giving her name as Mrs. Blanchard has been trying to obtain money from philanthropic people but how well she has succeeded is not known. She called upon a well known business man and to him she told a pitiful story, saying that she was paralyzed on one side and had just been discharged from the City Hospital, and that one of the physicians had sent her to him. He did not contribute anything, telling her he had other ways for his charity and was therefore not a little surprised to learn the next day that she had been exhibiting a book upon which was written his name, against which was the sum of $18. The woman was evidently a fraud.

SEVENTY-SIXTH ANNIVERSARY.

Mt. Wollaston Lodge of Odd Fellows Happy Over Event.

Odd Fellows' hall was crowded Wednesday evening, at the celebration by Mt. Wollaston lodge, of the 76th anniversary of the order. Odd Fellowship was never more popular, and Mt. Wollaston lodge grows in numbers and in wealth, the present term being an unusually prosperous one. Among the conundrums sprung by one of the artists of the evening was this: Why is Mt. Wollaston lodge like a drum without a head? All agreed with his answer: Because it cannot be beat.

Past Grand Franklin Jacobs extended a welcome to the brethren and ladies, and made a short address on Odd Fellowship. In conclusion he said it was an occasion for rejoicing, and he therefore resigned the floor to "The Bijou Entertainers."

The artists were: Miss Grace E. F. Bacon, madolin, guitar and banjo; Mrs. Emery Coulter, soprano and pianist; Mr. Emery Coulter, humorist; Mr. Harry Bacon, guitar and banjo; Master Walter Bacon, banjo.

The Bacons appeared in trios, duetts and solos, Mrs. Coulter gave a vocal number, and two musical novelties for piano. The greater part of the entertainment was by Mr. Coulter, who was down for character songs, readings, original imitations and "Twenty Minutes with the Minstrels." He was repeatedly recalled.

The new McPhail piano just purchased by the lodge was much admired, particularly when played by Mr. Beal of the firm of J. Q. Beal & Son.

Ice cream, cake and coffee were served after the entertainment.

Suit Over Right of Way.

In the equity session of the Superior court in Boston Wednesday, the case of G. F. Lovell vs. Neil McNeil came to a trial. It is a bill in equity for an injunction to restrain deft. from continuing to trespass upon plff.'s private way in Braintree. The way is known as the Drift road and affords access to granite quaries that lie between Braintree and West Quincy, and the deft. has been using the road for that purpose. The plff. claims that the road is his own private property, while deft. claims a prescriptive right to pass to and fro on the road which, he says, has been used by the public uninteruptedly for 20 years. Not finished.

GIANTS COLLAPSED.

The Boston Team Immediately Proceeded to Take Advantage of It.

NEW YORK, April 24.—The Giants put up a magnificent game for four innings. In the fifth inning, after two men were out, Doyle made an error. This appeared like a signal for the new York men to collapse, which they did. The Bostons then began to find Rusie, and of course then it was all over—that is, as far as Davis' men were concerned.

BRILLIANT WAR TACTICS

SIMLA, April 25.—The British column, under command of Colonel Kelly, which was proceeding to the relief of Chitral from Gilgit, reached Kogazi, 19 miles north of Chitral fort, on April 19. Upon arriving there, Colonel Kelly received direct news from Dr. Robertson, the British agent in Chitral to whose succor the British force was hastening, that Sher Afzul, who had captured the town of Chitral, had fled with all the besiegers of the fort.

Dr. Robertson reported that the casualties during the investment of the fort, to which he retreated upon the capture of the town, were 39 killed and 62 wounded. He and Captain Campbell were severely wounded. Captain Baird was killed. Lieutenant Gurdon, who was reported to have been killed, is still alive. All the wounded are doing well. The garrison had only 200 troops and seven officers there.

The highest praise is due to Colonel Kelly's brilliant feat at arms. All concerned in the march from Gilgit merit rewards such as were accorded to the then Lieutenant (now Major) C. J. W. Grant, the leader of the expedition, who, in 1891, relieved the British at Manipur.

A Whack at Oil Monopoly.

PARIS, April 25.—The Republique Francaise, commenting on the petroleum monopoly, said: It is not enough to merely note this act of brigandage which seems to be an accepted thing in America. The old regime struggled vainly against monopolists, yet the latter had not then perfected the means they are possessed of at the present time. The laws recently promulgated against them have also proved ineffective, and the problem has become more delicate.

Queen Victoria's Large Family.

DARMSTADT, April 25.—Queen Victoria yesterday attended the christening of the daughter of the Grand Duchess of Hesse, daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh, second son of her majesty. The baby is the 70th direct descendant of Queen Victoria, who has nine children, 40 grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren. Sixty-one of these descendants are living.

Worthy of Investigation.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 25.—A. W. Terrell, the American minister, is inquiring into the case of a man named Weber, bearing an American passport, who was arrested on suspicion at the railway works near Koniach. Weber was compelled to walk to Broussa, where he died from exhaustion and the effects of rough treatment.

Ex-Millionaire Dead.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Nat C. Jones died at St. Joseph's hospital last night. Jones was at one time one of the heaviest and wealthiest speculators in the country, but his fortune was much decreased of late years. He had for a long time been helpless on account of paralysis.

Slowly Sinking.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., April 25. — Mrs. Parnell is very weak. Her physicians say she may die at any moment. Rumors are current that important arrests will be made.

Mrs. Frank Leslie Dead.

KINGSTON, N. Y., April 25.—The first Mrs. Frank Leslie, who was divorced from the New York publisher many years ago, died yesterday of heart trouble.

Still Unsolved.

BOSTON, April 25.—The West Boston bridge mystery has not yet been fathomed. The police are beginning to think that there is no body in the bottom of the river.

China's Security.

LONDON, April 25.—The Times says that the Chinese government has undertaken to float a loan of £1,000,000, giving as security the revenues at the treaty ports.

CITY BREVITIES.

WITH SPRINKLING FROM CENTER

A Local Budget Which Contains the News in a Nut Shell.

Warm today.

Elijah tonight.

The old dead leaves in Hancock cemetery are being raked up.

The concert of the Quincy Musical society will be given May 8.

Who are the census enumerators who are to start in next week?

A thunder shower struck the city just as the LEDGER went to press.

McConnell, the fruit man, is out with a handsomely painted delivery wagon.

Garden violets and daffodils are in blossom in some of the warm corners.

A large yellow butterfly was seen this morning. Surely summer is coming.

Mrs. A. B. Packard has the first pansy bed of the season in front of her greenhouse.

John Page is making extensive alterations to his residence on Washington street.

Councilman George A. Sidelinger, who has been suffering with the grip, is convalescent.

Time to call upon your "Uncle Isaac" and leave your heavy winter coats and take out your springers.

Although the season is a little early, loads of furniture pass through town every day on their way to the south shore.

The alarm from Box 45, which was heard in Quincy about 7 45 Wednesday evening, was for a brush fire on Elliott street, Milton.

If you are out of employment the DAILY LEDGER will insert an advertisement free for you next week. See announcement today.

The bicycle track at Lovell's grove should prove an attraction to Quincy riders, and some good races may be expected this summer.

Summer residents have begun to arrive at Houghs Neck, two families having moved their household effects down on Wednesday.

Commissioner Eaton says he does not know about other departments, but at City Hall he has not refused to give work to men who were not naturalized citizens.

No business of any nature in the district court this morning, and if anybody got drunk the night before they took good care to keep out of the clutches of the guardian of the peace.

Christopher T. Bailey, formerly railroad police at the Quincy depot and one of the Old Colony martyrs because of the Abington riot, is to be at the head of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. police force.

Our city apothecary, Mr. Joseph S. Whall, his left his pretty residence on Greenleaf street and bought a farm at Ashburnham, Mass., where he has moved with his family, to enjoy the pleasures of a farm life.

There was a spoony time at the Granite City club rooms last evening. The whist contest was quite exciting, but it was finely decided that the prizes belonged to Miss Curtis and Mr. Tilden and they went home jollier than ever. Can't tell what may happen next.

A Pleasant Gathering.

The Universalist Society had a very jolly and pleasant time at their vestry last evening. After the members and a few invited guests had enjoyed a nice supper there was chorus singing which was followed by speeches.

The most taking one of the evening was by Miss Carrie F. Parker a popular teacher who resides with her parents on Quincy avenue. She desired to present Rev. A. E. White with a slight token of respect which she and other members had for their pastor, and had quietly circulated a paper and gathered a purse of about $130, which she in a very pleasing and becoming manner presented to him on this occasion.

It took the beloved minister by surprise, and he was at first somewhat lost for words to express his thoughts. But being a ready speaker he soon warmed up to the task and thanked his many friends most heartily. Seldom has this society had a leader whom they appreciated more kindly than they do their present pastor, and it is hoped that he may be able to move to this city and spend his whole time with them. He certainly is a gentleman who would be an honor and a credit to Quincy, and beloved by christians of all denominations.

—Matters are said to have pretty nearly reached a crisis in the little city of Woburn, and the House passed to be engrossed Wednesday a bill to establish a board of police.

—Henry E. Sheldon was on Wednesday appointed administrator of the estate of his mother, Mrs. M. P. Sheldon. He gave bond for $70,000.

THE FIRST THING IN THE MORNING

take a little Carlsbad Sprudel Salt in a glass full of water. That will set you right and keep you right, if you're inclined to be bilious or dyspeptic or constipated.

People wonder, sometimes, why it is that the Carlsbad treatment, the world's remedy for habitual constipation, should be recommended for diarrhœa and such disorders, too. Simply, because it leads the stomach and bowels naturally into a healthy condition, whatever their derangements—it doesn't accomplish its results by harmful irritation, as most pills and purgatives do.

Beware of imitations sold as "improved" or "artificial" Carlsbad Salt.

The only genuine Carlsbad Salt, with all the properties of the Sprudel Spring solidified, has the seal of the city of Carlsbad and the signature of "EISNER & MENDELSON CO., Agents, New York," on every bottle. All others are worthless imitations.

FIRE AT WOLLASTON

Box 56 on Wollaston Hotel Pulled at 2.25 Today.

H. B. BAILEY HOUSE STRUCK.

The Damage Slight and No One Was Hurt.

Lightning this afternoon struck the residence of H. B. Bailey on Grand View avenue, causing an alarm from box 56 at 2.25.

It made a hole in the roof of the L, but no one was hurt, and the damage was slight.

Adams Academy vs. Tombstones.

A strong team came out from Harvard, Wednesday, to defeat Adams Academy. They brought with them a high wind and a name that was very suggestive of a funeral. The combination was successful and Adams lost her first game, 9 to 7.

Besides these disadvantages the home nine had to contend against a change of arrangement in their make-up. Barker, owing to pressure of work, has felt obliged to resign as captain of the nine and give up playing. J. D. Kent has been chosen captain and doubtless the nine will soon be in fighting trim again. The loss of Barker was felt seriously.

The high wind made good fielding impossible. So the victory naturally went to the heaviest batters. Armstrong's home run, on a decent day, would have been a sure "out" to right field. The umpire also seemed to have been hired by the opposition.

However the sad tale remains that when the game ended the Academy team was below the Tombstones. The score tells the rest:

Wollaston Realty.

Wollaston real estate has taken a decidedly upward turn. Councilman Nickerson, whose realty interests in that ward are extensive, reports an active demand for houses and building lots.

Mr. Nickerson has sold 5,000 feet of land at the corner of Central avenue and Fayette street, and 10,000 feet at the corner of Elmwood and Highland avenues to E. S. Thomas.

He also broke ground on Wednesday for a $4,500 house on Lincoln avenue.

Mr. Nickerson has bought 15,000 feet of land at the corner of Fayette street and Central avenue, and he, with Councilman Bryant, has purchased 12,000 feet at the corner of Lincoln and Grand View avenues.

The E. W. Chandler house at the corner of Safford street and Elmwood avenue is rapidly nearing completion. It is a very attractive looking place.

Mr. Arthur Murphy is investing extensively in Wollaston realty.

Mr. Charles A. Campbell is to build two houses on Beale street.

The Congregational church is to be painted this spring.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds. SIMS BROS., Leeds, Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds, croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

THE MAY CENSUS.

The Questions People Will Soon be Called Upon to Answer.

The work of taking the state census of Massachusetts will begin next Wednesday, and Chief Wadlin thinks that he will be able to announce the population of the state by cities and towns next August. The LEDGER expects to publish tomorrow a list of the Quincy enumerators.

The facts desired about families, collectively considered, are the sex of the head of the household, surname, Christian name and initial, residence, town or city, name of village or section, ward, precinct, county. The number of tenements, occupied and unoccupied, the number of rooms occupied and unoccupied, the materials of which the house is constructed, the number of stories, and the number of persons comprising the family, male and female, will also be asked.

In previous censuses houses in the course of construction, but not yet ready for occupancy, were not enumerated in any way. As an indication of the growth of certain villages and sections in cities it has been deemed advisable to secure information concerning houses in the course of construction, and enumerators have been informed to secure information on this point.

The questions asked applying to male members of families are as follows: Surname, Christian name and initial, residence, city or town, name of village or of section, ward, county, precinct, relation to head of family, color and race, physical condition, age, whether or not a ratable poll, a legal voter or a naturalized citizen, conjugal condition, native or foreign born, ability to read or write, whether or not an alien, place of birth, length of residence in place at present living, place of birth of father and mother, number of years a resident of this country, occupation, periods of idleness during the different months of the year, and whether or not a union soldier, sailor or marine during the war.

CHURCH MEETING.

The Annual of Evangelical Congregational of Ward One.

The annual church meeting and supper of the Congregational church was held Wednesday evening, and was largely attended and an enjoyable occasion.

From 6 to 7 o'clock a social hour was held and at the latter hour an adjournment was made to the lower room, where something like 225 sat down to supper.

The business meeting followed the supper and was presided over by H. Walter Gray. Encouraging reports were read by the secretary and treasurer and the roll call showed the church to number 298.

These officers were then elected:

Clerk,—W. P. Bailey.

Treasurer,—James S. Baxter.

Church Committee,—Messrs. Elbridge Clapp, R. D. Chase, Franklin Hardwick, Theophilus King and E. W. Branch.

The visitation, strangers and deaconess committees were reelected.

A vote of thanks was extended to the building committee for what they did in remodeling the chapel, also to the Chapel Builders for the financial aid rendered by them.

JUST WHAT THEY ASKED.

Tax Levy of Norfolk County to be $160,000, an Increase of $10,000.

In the Legislature, Wednesday, the Committee on County Estimates submitted a resolve fixing the tax of Norfolk County at $160,000, which is just the sum asked by the County Commissioners, and $10,000 more than last year.

The report causes surprise to those who made the fight against the expenditures of the present board, and at the same time improves the chances of the Quincy court house bill. Had the committee failed to endorse the commissioners, they might also have refused to have entrusted them with the erection of a court house at Quincy.

It will be remembered that the Quincy court house bill, authorizing the erection of a $70,000 building at Quincy, was favorably reported some weeks ago, but there it stopped.

It was reported that it had been tabled pending a movement in Quincy to remodel City Hall, which contemplated quarters for the district court. But the City Council has refused to appropriate money for plans for remodeling City Hall, and it comes back to the original question: Shall a court house be erected at Quincy? It would not be a surprise if the bill was taken from the table and passed.

GARZA'S LATEST DEATH.

There are reasons for believing that Catarino Garza has finally met a permanent death.—Washington Post.

A man like Garza, who dies so often, only swells the death rate without benefiting the undertakers.—Wheeling Register.

With Garza dead and Bill Cook in prison, the wild west and bloody border will become monotonously tame and uninteresting.—Detroit Journal.

It is reported that Garza has been killed in a fight. In a man of his prudence and experience it is remarkable that he should have gotten into a fight. He had made a specialty of revolutions and should have stuck to that.—Washington Star.

The Mexican bandit Garza, prominent in the Colombian revolution, is said to have been really killed, which will deprive him of the distinction of rivaling the late Mr. Bill Dalton in the number and variety of his deaths.—Baltimore Herald.

It seems that the turbulent life of Garza, the Mexican revolutionist, has come to a bloody end. Garza was a professional revolutionist, without any adequate cause for revolution. Mexico, under Diaz, is a remarkably well governed country, and hence Garza's insurrections were causeless.—Boston Globe.

Bessie Potter, the clever Chicago artist who is kept busy executing portraits in plaster because of a special talent for catching exact and faithful likenesses of her subjects, is to spend the spring and summer abroad traveling and studying in Italy.

Albert Bruce Joy, the English sculptor who made a bust of Chauncey M. Depew recently, was the creator of the bust of Professor J. C. Adams, the discoverer of the planet Neptune, which was recently unveiled in the great hall of St. John's college, Cambridge, England.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

Every American will sustain the administration in maintaining the Monroe doctrine!—New York Recorder.

England, France and Germany may yet have to be diplomatically informed that the Monroe doctrine has never been abrogated.—New York Telegram.

The United States under the Monroe doctrine could not look on complacently at such an absorption of Venezuelan territory. Whether Great Britain refuses or not to submit the question to arbitration the United States could not do less than make the request. The Monroe doctrine is positive on this point.—Chicago Tribune.

DIPLOMATS DISTURBED

England's Attitude Toward Nicaragua May Mean Endless Aggression.

Much Anxiety and Apprehension at Washington.

Occupation of Corinto by the British Almost an Assured Fact.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The diplomatic representatives of the Central and South American republics are very much disturbed by the latest feature of the British Nicaraguan case (the meeting of bond obligations), for they fear that it opens a vista of endless trouble and aggression in the future.

Their idea is that once Great Britain is permitted without interference to collect this special indemnity, she will avail herself of the excuse offered by the failure of Nicaragua to meet her interest payments on foreign debt to assume the task of collecting this forcibly in the same manner, notwithstanding the fact that the failure may be brought about by her own seizure of the customs receipts, which were to be applied to the payment of this interest.

Of course this would necessitate the occupation of Corinto until the original indemnity shall have been collected, which would only add to the financial distress of Nicaragua, and should she be unable, as seems likely, to meet this last demand, the occupation may be prolonged so indefinitely as to amount to a permanent occupation of the territory.

This is the reasoning of the South Americans, and they find individual cause for apprehension in the fact that almost all of these little republics owe sums of money to European bondholders on account of interest or principal of national debts, and they fear that for the first time the principle may be laid down and enforced that a European government may assume the collection of debts owing to its citizens as individuals, and not to the European nation, a doctrine which they assert would be particularly obnoxious if applied to some of the states of the American Union, which have defaulted in their debts to foreign bondholders.

Worriment at the Capitol.

It is felt here that the present situation is one justifying apprehension and anxiety on the part of our own government. While it is not expected that the Nicaraguan government will offer any armed resistance to the landing of the British forces, still it is feared that during the time the town of Corinto is occupied by the foreigners the natives may be restrained with difficulty, and the close contact into which the two discordant elements will certainly be brought might at any moment lead to an outbreak, winding up in a general war.

The tenure of the present Nicaraguan government is none too secure, and it is felt that it would be expecting almost too much from it to hope that it could resist successfully an impulse of the people toward war, even should the cause be without probable success for their side in the end.

It is evident that our state department has not lost sight of this possibility, for Secretary Gresham has been in consultation with the president and the Nicaraguan minister on the subject, and it is believed that he has been using his best efforts to prevent a resort to extremes by intimating that the indemnity had better be paid.

England's Ultimatum.

A despatch from Managua states that Commander Stokes of H. M. S. Royal Arthur, now at Corinto with the Satellite and Wild Swan, has handed the Nicaraguan minister of foreign affairs Great Britain's ultimatum.

It gives the government of Nicaragua three days in which to settle the claim made by Great Britain, failing which settlement England will blockade the port of Corinto and also land troops and occupy the city.

Corinto is the best port of the Central American states on the Pacific coast. It is most important to Nicaragua, as it is the terminus of the line of the Central railway. It is a very old place, and was formerly called Raelejo. This was one of the best Spanish-American harbors in the old days, but it is becoming filled up, and is now somewhat smaller as to anchorage.

There is no difficulty, however, in the entrance, and there is a depth of 18 feet of water in the harbor at low tide. Between the island of Cardon and the point of Castanones there is a dangerous bar. The port of San Juan-del-Sur has a harbor of average size and there is sufficiently good anchorage. It is filling with sand, however, and the entrance is becoming choked, making shipping more difficult. San Juan-del-Sur is in communication with Lake Nicaragua by a macadam road built by the New York and California Transit company.

Corinto is the heaviest import point in Nicaragua. The imports there for 1891-92 were $6,006,805, while all imports to other points did not exceed $500,000. It is evident from this why the British chose Corinto for their stroke. Almost one-half of the imports at Corinto are from Great Britain, so that the British seizure of the custom houses will result in their receiving the customs dues from British merchant ships. The British imports for 1891-92 were $2,132,691; those of the United States came second, at $1,497,650; Germany, $1,042,055; France, $998,144. The rest of the import trade was with neighboring South and Central American countries.

McBride Exonerated.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 25.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor exonerated President McBride from the charges made against him by Mark Wild, who claimed that McBride betrayed the A. R. U. in the settlement of the strike and that he had been bought to keep quiet.

Excitement Subsiding.

PARIS, April 25.—The strike of the omnibus men in this city is decreasing. There were a few slight conflicts yesterday and some arrests. The directors of the omnibus company have agreed to increase the pay of new hands by 25 centimes a day. The strikers refused it as being too small.

A Terrible Explosion.

LIMA, O., April 25.—Five tons of nitroglycerine at the factory of the Ohio and Indiana Torpedo company, two miles from here, exploded yesterday. The shock was felt for 20 miles. Over 1000 panes of glass were shattered. Two employes barely left the building when it went up.

FOR THE THIRD TIME.

The Northern Pacific Road Falls Into the Hands of Magnate Villard.

ST. PAUL, April 25.—Henry Villard has again secured control of the Northern Pacific. The deal has been completed, and the famous financier has come to this country for the purpose of making arrangements to wind up the receivership and assume the direction of the property. This, it is said, has been accomplished through the efforts of the Deutsch bank of Berlin, which has been Mr. Villard's backer, ever since his connection with the Northern Pacific began.

HENRY VILLARD.

Twice has he enjoyed control of the road, once at its beginning and once later, and each time, it seems, he has had the American stockholders to contend with in his efforts to look after the interests of the bondholders, who are represented by the Deutsch bank. The stockholders have invariably carried the day, for the time being at least, and Villard has been ousted from power. The last time, however, the ousting was followed by the receivership, so that the stockholders did not gain any very great benefit from the process.

Japan Had Better Yield.

LONDON, April 25.—The Times, commenting editorially upon the dispatch stating that Russia, Germany and France have formally protested to Japan against the incorporation of any of the Chinese mainland into the Japanese empire, says that the dispatch will arouse considerable interest in Great Britain, but perhaps the predominant feeling that it will create will be one of wonder, not unmingled with amusement. If the protest is genuine and the powers are prepared to support their words by action, Russia must be congratulated upon a signal diplomatic triumph, but the small interest that Germany and France have in the question makes it appear a game of bluff, which Japan will possibly see through. Her wisest course will probably be to yield, as the consequences of a mistake might prove exceedingly grave.

De Lome Reaches America.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The Spanish steamer Panama arrived here last night, having on board Dupuy de Lome, the Spanish minister to Washington. The minister said: "The excitement caused by the troubles in Cuba is dying out. I am confident that they will be soon settled by Captain General Campos." The minister will remain in New York for several days to await the arrival of his family from Europe.

Second Husband Quickly Secured.

BALTIMORE, April 25.—Professor Reinhoh Faelten, now a resident of Boston, was yesterday granted an absolute divorce from his wife. The eldest children were awarded to the custody of the father; the two youngest children were left with the mother, the husband not claiming paternity. Professor David Melamet and Mrs. Faelten are to be married this afternoon.

To Consider Confederation.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 25.—The local legislature meets today, when, it is likely, the terms of confederation with the Dominion will be submitted. There is much dissension among the members of the government party, a majority of them being opposed to confederation. Among the electorate the bulk of the people regard the union as inevitable.

Triangular League Favored.

AMHERST, Mass., April 25.—Amherst men enthusiastically express their willingness to co-operate with Dartmouth in a triangular league of the three colleges, providing post graduates, medical and scientific students shall be debarred from championship contests, this having been a cause of contention between the colleges since last season.

Many Reasons Given For Famine.

CHE-FOO, April 25.—The famine in southern Manchuria is due to the bad harvests of the past year, to the occupation of that territory by the armies of China and Japan, the stoppage of transportation by land and water, and the total paralysis of trade at New-Chwang, the principal port of Manchuria.

Killed Without Warning.

PADUCAH, Ky., April 25.—Jake Brower yesterday shot and instantly killed his cousin, William Whitelauf. The latter and some friends were seated at the breakfast table when Brower came in and fired without a word. Brower claims the shooting was an accident, but the tragedy was doubtless premeditated.

Two Army Promotions.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Zenas R. Bliss was appointed brigadier general yesterday. He is now colonel of the Twenty-fourth infantry at Fort Bayard, N. M. General Wesley Merritt was appointed as major general of the army, to succeed General McCook, retired.

Struck the Wrong Party.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—Robinson, Brash and Wilkinson, green goods men, who were arrested for trying to swindle a man whom they supposed was a farmer, named Hoeffer, but who turned out to be a detective, were yesterday held in $2500 bail each for court.

Big Ones Matched.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The card of the Seaside Athletic club, as announced for May 6, includes bouts between Jake Kilrain and Steve O'Donnell, 25 rounds; Young Corbett and Jimmy Holmes, eight rounds, and Marty McCue and Frank Paterson.

Getting Down to Business.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 25.—The government has sent a note to Japan, intimating that there are various conditions in the treaty of peace between Japan and China that Russia cannot allow to be put into execution.

THE LIGHT WEIGHT CRAZE.

Let Your Wheel Weigh Enough to Carry You, Says a Cycling Sharp.

It is a significant point to note in connection with the light weight craze that no really high grade maker—at least, none who has obtained recognition—catalogues a machine weighing less than 21 pounds, catalogue weight, at what is known as the popular price, unless a specific statement is made that such a machine will not be guaranteed for road use, and even those who do make a roadster supposed to weigh under 20 pounds and listed at $25 higher than the standard line object in most instances to stand behind them with a broad guarantee. The good saint hath well said that "there is reason in all things," and, with the exception of the average bicycle crank, I think that the saying is a true one. What earthly difference does a couple of pounds weight make in the running qualities of a road machine? Can any one answer? I trow not, but any repair man can tell the difference that a couple of pounds make in the wearing qualities.

It is no doubt very pleasant to be able to pick your machine up on one finger and call the attention of admiring friends to its lack of avoirdupois, but even an 18 pound bicycle is quite a load to carry under your arm (on a redhot day in August), with a twisted frame and buckled wheels and the nearest railroad station five miles away. In the words of the poet, don't be a chump; buy a bicycle that bears a first class maker's name, fit it with standard road tires and let it weigh enough to carry you safely.—New York Recorder.

HUMOR OF THE WHEEL.

A new proverb—"An amateur is known by the company that keeps him."

"Conquered your bicycle yet?" "Not yet. I've got so the darn machine doesn't win more than two falls out of three, though."

Possibly riding a wheel doesn't indicate some people's natural bent, but it shows the way they're inclined for the time being.

It is said that in spite of all statements to the contrary the New York wheelwomen who wear knickerbockers are in good shape.

"It costs more to avenge wrongs than to bear them." This is particularly the case where the road hog, who wrongfully forces you into the gutter, is bigger than you are.

The important news is given out that Miss Frances Willard calls her bicycle Gladys. It is pretty safe to wager that she didn't call it that just after alighting the first time.

"A French cycling paper is on sale at the newsstand on the summit of Vesuvius."—American Cyclist. Evidently an attempt on the part of the French editors to supply "hot stuff" to "scorchers."

The riders of the newly named Trilby bicycle will have one advantage over the users of any other machine, if there is any virtue at all in a name—they will be well fitted to foot it home in case of accident.—Sporting Life.

The Fate of Globe Girdler Lenz.

Alas, poor Lenz! There seems to be little doubt that the ill fated all round the world tourist is dead—murdered by barbarous and semisavage Kurds. It is known that he reached Chilgani on May 9. He arrived at Chilgani a little after sundown on May 9 and was the guest of a man named Avak Parsagh. He was in good health and spirits. He left early the next morning. About a month later the villagers heard that he had been killed in the vicinity of a village named Kurd Ali. The Turkish soldiers massacred the Armenians just about the time Lenz was in that vicinity.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Pleading For Professionalism.

There should be a professional class. An honest professional racing man is as good as an honest A or B man, or, in fact, is as good as any other honest man. It is no disgrace to turn one's feet as a means of livelihood. The status of a professional depends not upon a class, which should not carry with it a ball mark of disgrace, but upon himself, upon his personality, upon his equipment. It should be once a gentleman always a gentleman. Zimmerman, Banker and many others have proved that the proverb can be lived up to.—Wheel.

The Women Crowded Out.

Peace now reigns in the old Massachusetts Bicycle club of Boston. A year or so ago the club voted to admit women to membership. A number took advantage of the opportunity. It soon resulted in friction and dissatisfaction among the male members. The ladies were given to understand that they were not wanted. They resigned in a body a few days since. All is now peaceful.—Wheel.

A Three Hundred Pounds Bicyclist.

A Massillon (O.) paper says: A bicycle is being built to order to accommodate the massive frame of Mr. Peter Sailer, who weighs 301 pounds and wants to be a wheelman. Mr. Sailer claims that he will be the biggest wheelman in the middle states. He is proprietor of a hotel and a man of wealth.

Johnson Must Ride In America.

The referee in the case of John S. Johnson against E. Stearns & Co. has decided in favor of the latter. This will force Johnson to stay in this country and carry out his contract with Stearns, and he will have to pay the cost of the suit, about $500.

White the Wheelman's Color.

Bicycle clothing for summer should be a very light shade, in order not to attract and retain heat. White fabrics exposed to the sunlight receive only 100 degrees of heat, while black is capable of receiving 208 degrees.

Only one sovereign in the world has ever been up in a balloon. This exciting event occurred some three years ago, when Queen Regent Christina of Spain happened to drive near a field where some experiments in aerial navigation were being made, and immediately stopped her carriage and asked to be permitted to make the ascent.

GLOOMIER THAN EVER.

Textile Industry In Olneyville May Be Completely Paralyzed.

Weavers In Two Big Mills Leave Their Looms.

Much Now Depends Upon Action of the Manufacturers' Club.

PROVIDENCE, April 26. — The textile situation in Olneyville reached a grave crisis yesterday afternoon when 300 weavers employed by the Providence and National Worsted mills went out on strike. Over 2000 operatives employed in both mills were obliged to cease work, as both mills shut down.

The principal owner of these two mills, which comprise the biggest plant in Olneyville, is Charles Fletcher, a leading member of the Rhode Island Manufacturers' club. If the agreement of club members to close their mills at the first sign of a strike in any mill is carried out, every textile manufacturing concern in Olneyville will be closed at once. Should this action be taken by the club, 9,000 operatives will be thrown out of work.

How It Was Brought About.

The cause of the strike yesterday afternoon was the introduction of non-union men into the weaving rooms of both mills. Early last week the overseers of the weaving rooms brought in a number of green hands, and requested the union weavers to teach them how to weave. The weavers refused and the management informed them that they could leave the mills at once.

The textile union considered the matter and soon after made an application to the management for $15 a week for each weaver instructing a novice. The management was also requested to make a contribution of $15 to the textile union for each green hand introduced into the mills.

The management considered the requests, and yesterday afternoon the union was informed that they could not be granted. At 3:30 o'clock every union weaver in both mills stopped work. Meetings of both the operatives and the Manufacturers' club were held last night to consider the situation.

Strikers Will Hold Out.

The operatives, at meetings held last night, completed arrangements and asserted themselves to be ready to accept the general lockout, should it come. They are of the opinion that the mills connected with the Manufacturers' club will not dare to break their contract with Mr. Fletcher, and will be compelled to close their mills.

The sentiment of the manufacturers is against such action, however, on the ground that the present strike is not one strictly involving wages, and so cannot be considered as involved in the contract.

Mr. Fletcher stated that he would cancel all his orders and close his mill for an indefinite period if the strike continues. This threat had little effect upon the strikers.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 26.—The legislature, in joint convention, elected E. P. Shaw of Newburyport treasurer and receiver general. He will be inducted into office Monday next. The house refused, by a vote of 109 to 3, to refer to the next general court the bill giving war veterans the preference in appointments to public services. The bill appropriating $25,000 additional for the four new state normal schools at Lowell, Fitchburg, North Adams and Hyannis was rushed through both branches under suspension of the rules and sent to the governor. The senate non-concurred with the house in recommitting the adverse report on the bill providing for the use of the Keeley cure at the Foxboro hospital. The bill relating to the use of wide tires on heavy draft wagons was rejected. The adverse vote on the plumbing bill was reconsidered. Several amendments to the Boston charter bill were adopted.

Guests Scrambled For Safety.

BOSTON, April 26.—A gas explosion in the basement of Mrs. Vercelli's restaurant and beer saloon on Lagrange street last night wrecked the lower portion of the building, and created a panic among 50 or more guests who were on the upper floor. Joseph Vercelli was severely burned, and several others were slightly injured by broken glass. The damage amounts to $1000.

Y. M. C. A. Presidents Meet.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., April 26.—The annual conference of college Y. M. C. A. presidents from New England, New York, New Jersey and the Provinces opened last night at Williams college. The opening session was given up to organization and the discussion of the situation in the college fields represented. The conference will continue until Monday.

Record Breaking Performances.

NEW HAVEN, April 26.—At the annual spring games of the Yale Athletic association Hickok threw the hammer 130ft. 5in., breaking his own intercollegiate record of 123ft. 9in. He also put the shot 42ft. 9in., smashing his other intercollegiate record of 42ft. Thrall broke the college record in the mile walk by 2 1-5s., making it 7m. 5s.

The Thatcher Will Contest.

BOSTON, April 26.—In the probate court Judge Holmes appointed Carrie B. Thatcher temporary receiver of the accounts of W. A. Folsom, her coadministrator of the Rebecca Thatcher estate, valued at over $1,000,000. It was charged that Folsom has fraudulently appropriated to his own use $200,000 out of the estate.

Long Sentence Before Him.

BOSTON, April 26.—A man calling himself John Davis, who was arrested here yesterday morning while trying to break into a liquor saloon, has been identified as John Lane. Lane has the reputation of being one of the most notorious safe blowers in the country. Three cases are now pending against him in this city.

An Important Decision.

BOSTON, April 26.—The United States circuit court of appeals decided that musical compositions composed abroad do not come within the proviso of the law which requires that the two copies of the subject matter of the copyright necessary to be filed with the librarian of congress shall be manufactured in this country.

Creditors Will Investigate.

LYNN, April 26.—The liabilities of C. W. Varney & Co., who recently assigned, are $42,495; assets, $28,075, besides property in Milton, N. H., announced to be worth between $4000 and $5000. The creditors will make an investigation before they entertain any offer of settlement.

Victim of Electric Car.

LEWISTON, April 26.—Samuel Llewellyn was driving a spirited horse attached to a road wagon and met an electric car. The horse bolted and the car ran into the wagon and completely demolished it. Llewellyn's right hand was so badly injured that it was necessary to amputate it.

Should Be Severely Punished.

PORTLAND, April 26.—John McShea and James McCoy, tramps, attempted to gain entrance to the house of Kate V. Huter, yesterday. The men broke open the door, smashed all the windows in the dwelling, assaulted Mrs. Huter, and were only arrested after a long chase.

Nichols Mill Raises Wages.

PROVIDENCE, April 26.—The management of the Nichols mill at Tarkiln notified its employes yesterday afternoon that an increase in wages would go into effect at once. A few days ago the operatives contemplated going out on strike. The increase is satisfactory.

Alleged Dealers In Opium.

HARTFORD, April 26.—Three Chinamen were arrested here yesterday by Chinese Inspector Scarf of New York city on the charge of violating the internal revenue laws by smuggling and manufacturing opium. The prisoners were held in $500 bonds.

Preparing For Big Convention.

BOSTON, April 26.—The eighth annual meeting of the Boston Christian Endeavor union was held last night. The committee in charge of the July convention made a report on proposed arrangements toward making it a success.

Hunting For Runaway Son.

LYNN, April 26.—William Mitchell of New London was here yesterday in search of his 17-year-old son, who left home March 26. The runaway had been traced to this city, but as he found no employment he left a few days ago.

Going to Supreme Court.

NEW HAVEN, April 26.—In the United States district court here the appeal to the supreme court of the United States of Dr. George E. Whitten was declared valid, and Whitten was admitted to bonds in the amount of $10,000.

Signs of Prosperity.

FALL RIVER, April 26.—The Jesse Eddy Manufacturing company, the only woolen mill in this city, has announced a general advance in wages of from 10 to 15 per cent. About 200 operatives are employed.

Lasters' Minds Not Made Up.

BOSTON, April 26.—The International Lasters' union convention yesterday discussed the advisability of the amalgamation of the unions. A vote has not yet been taken.

New England Briefs.

Residents of Newton Centre complain of inadequate school accommodations.

Bones were found in profusion in another grave opened by the subway excavators at Boston.

Joseph H Bernier, aged 50, of Worcester, was struck by an engine and died shortly afterward.

Hon. Wainwright Cushing of Foxcroft, Me., while alighting from a wagon, slipped and broke his left leg.

A middle-aged man, evidently a tramp, was killed by the cars while walking on the track near Chester, Mass.

A report is current at Fall River that a new fine goods mill, to cost $400,000, will be built in the eastern part of the city.

The commissioners of Rockingham county, N. H., are about to issue $12,500 in 500 4 per cent funding bonds, maturing July 1, 1905.

Figures are furnished by the Boston News Bureau to show that the Brookline Gas Light company has been giving away millions of feet of gas in its efforts to get business.

Herbert F. Taylor, Dartmouth, '94, has become principal of the Canaan (N. H.) high school, and E. V. Spooner of the same class has joined the staff of the Marlboro Daily Enterprise.

The town of Southboro, Mass., has accepted the state's offer to rebuild a mile of road, and the new highway will be constructed on the Willow Bridge road toward the center of the town.

An Oklahoma Battle.

GUTHRIE, O. T., April 26.—A desperate fight occurred in Pottowatomie county between outlaws and deputy marshals. One of the deputies was killed and one of the others was seriously injured. The deputies shot at the outlaws, but the desperadoes wore steel plates over their back and chest. The deputies, unable to do anything with the outlaws, returned to Norman, bearing their dead comrade.

Police Magistrates Bill Passed.

ALBANY, April 26.—The New York city police magistrates bill passed the senate by a vote of 20 yeas to 12 nays, a party vote. The police magistrates bill has been opposed by the Republican state machine and Tammany Hall more vigorously than any other measure introduced in the legislature, and its passage is a great personal triumph for Governor Morton and for his ally, Lieutenant Governor Saxton.

Triumph of Mechanical Skill.

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—The conning tower of the man-of-war Massachusetts is one of the largest steel castings ever made. It is a hollow cylinder, 7ft. 3in. in diameter and a little over 7ft. high. It is cast in one piece. When placed on board the Massachusetts it will be topped by the wooden pilothouse, from which the ship is steered when not in action.

IN A FIGHTING MOOD.

Lord Douglass Searched For Newspaper Men---and Found Them.

He Afterward Looked a Little the Worse For Wear.

Pays a Little Fine as a Sequel to the Sensational "Insanity" Case.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., April 26. — Lord Sholto Douglass appeared yesterday in the superior court to answer the charges of insanity. Only five Englishmen were in the room, and one of them was Burmeister, the complaining witness. The young lord sat alone at the attorneys' desk in company with physicians called as an examining board. No sooner had Judge Conklin taken his seat than he said: "There being no complaint against this party, he will be discharged," and the famous insanity case was ended. No other word was spoken, and those present opened their mouths in wonderment. Burmeister had refused to swear to the second complaint necessary for a hearing for insanity cases, so there was no foundation for the action, and the young prisoner's dismissal from court followed as a matter of course.

Douglass hurried to his hotel, then to the bank, where he drew some money and began a series of hurried visits to different stores. He stopped Constable Seroy and asked "How much would it cost me to assault a man?"

Seroy answered: "Now, look here young man, you behave yourself like a gentleman. If you have a case against anyone bring suit, but do no fighting."

About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the mystery was solved. His lordship went into The Californian office and asked George Weeks, the editor, if The Chronicle correspondent was employed there. The reply was that that was a professional secret. He left, but soon returned. He was seen to enter the office soon after, and in a remarkably brief space of time

He Emerged Like a Shot.

After him came Mr. Weeks and the office force, apparently bent on the destruction of the young lord. A few moments later his lordship, somewhat ruffled in appearance, entered the office of Justice Fox and informed his honor he had assaulted The Chronicle correspondent. "I hit him three times in the face, when four or five men set upon me from behind and put me out. I desire to plead guilty."

Constable Seroy swore to the complaint, and Douglass was fined $5 35, the exact costs. The justice then read the law, which says he could fine him for battery in any sum not exceeding $1000 or imprisonment not exceeding six months or both. Douglass said: "Ah, is that so, and I thought $5 was the limit. I was informed that was the case."

Mr. Weeks gives a very different story of the encounter. He says Lord Douglass, after saying he had been publishing lies about him, struck him. He missed his aim, and before he could try again was thrown into the street. Douglass left, saying he would return with his crowd and settle things. Weeks told him he would shoot the first of his crowd that entered the building. His lordship is at present hunting for other correspondents.

'Frisco's Murder Sensation.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—Rev. John G. Gibson, pastor of the Emanuel church, was in the witness chair yesterday in the preliminary examination of Theodore Durant, charged with the murder of Minnie Williams. The defense believes it has a case against the clergyman, and will try to show that he, and not Durant, killed both Miss Williams and Miss Lamont. Gibson was calm and collected on the stand and a good witness. Nothing tangible against him was brought out by cross-examination.

Settlers' Homes Threatened.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., April 26. — Forest fires are again raging in the vicinity of Phillips, and it now looks as if that devastated region will suffer a second visitation. The woods near Prentice are ablaze and the homesteaders and farmers are rushing into the city for safety. The weather is hot and the woods and trees are as dry as tinder. Unless rain comes, the fire will certainly create wild desolation.

The Mackaye Divorce Suit.

NEW YORK, April 26.—The suit begun by Arthur Loring Mackaye, son of the late Steele Mackaye, for an absolute divorce from his wife, Flora Louis Cutter Mackaye, was begun yesterday in the supreme court. Mackaye put forth an alleged confession of undue intimacy with a friend. Mrs. Mackaye claims the confession was extorted from her at the point of a revolver.

A GRAND PRODUCTION

The Oratorio of Elijah a Musical Success.

CONDUCTED BY CARL ZERRAHN

Notable Soloists and a Large Well Trained Chorus.

Many oratorios have been given in Quincy but for a musical success that of Elijah on Thursday evening probably eclipsed all predecessors. It was given in the Centre Congregational church before a large audience, but not a full house which was needed to make it a financial success. Had our people realized the grand musical treat in store they would have given the production their encouragement.

The veteran Carl Zerrahn was the conductor, and with the assistance of Mr. A. L. Hood a well trained chorus of 150 voices had been organized, and they had a very efficient accompaniment in Mr. Frank Wrigley, organist, and Mr. Arthur Raymond pianist.

The principal soloists were all stars, viz; Mrs. E. Humphrey Allen, soprano: Miss Lillian Carlismith, contralto; Mr. Geo. Parker, tenor; Mr. Ivan Morawski, bass. Not only were these artists appreciated in their solo rendering, but in duetts, trios and quartettes. Their voices blended so harmoniously and they sung in such unison that every number was a treat to the audience.

In the double quartette and double chorus the above were assisted by Mrs. Alice L. Page, soprano; Mrs. Mattie S. Curtis, contralto; Mr. C. B. Dickey, tenor; and Mr. Walter Arnold, baritone. This quartette materially strengthened the parts in which they appeared.

It would be a waste of words to praise the work of Conductor Zerrahn. For years he has stood among the leading directors of New England, and no word here could add to the lustre of his fame. He was particularly pleased with the work of the chorus in the second part, and it was inspiring and grand.

So well pleased was the audience with the whole production, that the success of Mr. Hood's future ventures seems assured.

WHY HE WENT HORSEBACK.

Chief Williams Stops to Hug a Tree in Responding to an Alarm.

Chief Engineer Williams met with quite an accident Thursday afternoon, while responding to the alarm from box 56. He was coming down Hancock street at a rapid gait as usual, and at the time the accident happened he was guiding his horse with one hand. When opposite the house recently occupied by Dr. Welch, where he has recently been at work, the animal suddenly turned to enter the yard, but instead of that he went onto the sidewalk between a tree and the fence.

The horse went over the fence and the team brought up against the tree, demolishing the front part of the wagon and throwing the Chief against the tree, which he embraced. He was, however, uninjured, and without stopping to see what damage had been done, he caught his horse, and throwing off the harness, completed his trip to the fire on horseback.

TODAY'S COURT.

John E. Collins of Quincy was fined $5 for drunkenness.

William R. Taylor also contributed $5 for the same offence.

James A. Manning is a State of Maine man. He left Portland Thursday morning for Boston to look for work. He brought up in the Quincy police station, but how he did not know. The court said pay $3 for your experience, which he did.

Weekly Outings.

The Outing Committee of the Wollaston Congregational society, Mr. A. L. Baker, Mr. Wm. S. Sayward, Mr. Levi Nichols, Miss Thompson and Mrs. John A. Barbour, held a meeting on Wednesday evening at the residence of the Rev. E. A. Robinson, to arrange the summer's programme. It was decided to have an outing on every Saturday afternoon of the season. The first one will be held on Saturday, May 4, when it is proposed to take a bicycle trip to Ponkapog going via Braintree, where a lunch, will be served, and returning by the way of Milton.

Sewer Assessment.

According to the report of the sewer committee of Melrose the assessment in that town by their plan would be 25 cents per linear foot on each lot frontage and an area assessment of 8 mills per square foot on lots extending back as far as 120 feet, with an exemption of 50 feet on each corner lot.

ACCIDENT IN CITY SQUARE.

A Fortunate Escape of Occupants of Two Carriages.

There was an accident in the centre, Thursday afternoon, which came near resulting seriously.

It lacked but a few minutes of 5 o'clock when a horse attached to a carriage in which was seated C. Theodore Hardwick and his man was observed coming down Granite street at a breakneck gait.

The horse had become unmanageable, and all efforts to guide or stop the animal were fruitless.

When in front of the Congregational church the wheels of Hardwick's carriage locked into those of a buggy in which was Capt. Doane of Sailors' Snug Harbor, and in an instant there was a confused mass of men, carriages and horses.

Neither of the men were injured, but the hind feet of Hardwick's horse were tangled in the wheels of Capt. Doane's carriage and it was some moments before the horse was freed. A large crowd gathered.

When the wreck had been cleared the extent of the damage was found to be broken shafts to Hardwick's carriage and a collapse of one of the rear wheels of Capt. Doane's carriage.

The Lightning at Wollaston.

During the heavy thunder storm which passed over Wollaston early on Thursday afternoon, a bolt of lightning struck the residence of Mr. Herbert B. Bailey, Grand View avenue. The bolt entered the peak of the roof, and after running along a few feet came out. The house was set on fire. An alarm from box 56 was turned in, and Hose 2 responded in quick time and extinguished the blaze before any serious damage was done. The occupants of the house escaped injury.

The only other damage reported at Wollaston was the burning out of A. L. Baker's telephones.

Quincy Extension Through Hingham.

The directors of the Hingham Street Railway company have decided not to build any portion of the road this season. Lack of financial backing is said to be the reason for this decision. It intimated that the directors have made overtures to the management of the Quincy & Boston street railway to assume control of the Hingham franchise and build the road. If this statement is true nothing has as yet materialized from it.—Herald.

CO. K DRILL.

The Young Ladies of Faxon Guards Give an Exhibition.

[From the Braintree Observer.]

The most interesting and successful public drill that Company K of the 5th Regiment has yet given was witnessed at the armory Monday evening. The company was put through the regular drill exercises by the officers, and as an innovation there was a short skirmish exhibition with blank cartridges. The men were in regular field uniform, with overcoats and haversacks, and when the armory was nearly full of smoke the scene was extremely realistic. The men could be seen but indistinctly in the thick cloud, and one could easily imagine the genuine skirmish.

The Faxon Guards' drill was the feature of the evening and the great drawing card. The company of seventeen girls from Quincy were drilled in the usual exercises and received great applause for their fine exhibition.

After the drilling those present danced till midnight.

The following men were presented with marksmanship badges by Captain G. A. Devlin of Company F, 6th Regiment, formerly second lieutenant of the local company:

FIRST CLASS.

Second Lieutenant F. N. Benson, Sergeant Wm. Cahill, Captain Wm. H. Whiting, Privates P. J. Fritchoff, F. W. Jones, Ives Lowe.

SECOND CLASS.

Captain W. E. Morrison, First Lieutenant H. L. Kincaide, First Sergeant E. W. Adams, Sergeants M. A. Colbert, C. F. Spear, Corporal J. R. McGrath, Musician P. E. Quill, Privates J. W. Boyce, H. F. Barrett, W. J. Leslie, W. C. Moses, Burton Pinkham, C. M. Hunter, T. C. Smith, James Stancomb, C. F. Whiting, M. Gunderson.

THIRD CLASS.

Captains O. F. Smith, T. B. Crane, Privates F. L. Bent, W. F. Donovan, F. A. Gannon, O. A. Johnson. A. S. Morrow, F. W. Newcomb, J. S. Odum, O. Peterson, F. H. Raymond, F. E. Woodworth.

The qualifications for the first class are: Two twenty-ones at two and five hundred yards out of possible twenty-fives. The second class, two eighteens out of possible twenty-fives at 200 yards, and the third class, two fifteens out of possible twenty-fives at 200 yards.

Cities May Regulate.

The following act of the Legislature took effect upon its approval last Saturday:

"Any city or town may from time to time establish reasonable by-laws and ordinances, subject to the approval of the superior court or any justice thereof, as now provided by law, to regulate the width of tires used on vehicles on the highways and owned in such city or town.

Baseman Lowe Made an Error Which Lost the Game For Boston.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Bobby Lowe led his team at the bat—made a hair-raising stop back of second base and got his man out at first and made the only fielding error of his side, and the error that lost the game. This error allowed two runs to come in, making three runs in the third inning, while the Bostons made but two runs in the whole game.

Trying to Place the Blame.

MADRID, April 25.—An animated debate took place in the chamber of deputies yesterday on the loss of the Spanish cruiser Reina Regente. Deputy Moreu complained of the unseaworthiness of the vessel, and declared that somebody ought to be held responsible, in view of the fact that the cruiser was sent to sea when she needed to go on the drydock. The minister of marine defended the construction of the Reina Regente, and contended that no warship could have lived through the weather that the Reina Regente encountered.

Paper Company Reorganized.

KINGSTON, N. Y., April 26.—The extensive paper making plant of the Sheffield Manufacturing company of Saugerties has just been reorganized and will hereafter be known as the Saugerties Manufacturing company, with a capital stock of $225,000. The receiver of the old company sold the personal property for $180,000, and as referee under the mortgage sold the real estate, machinery, etc., for $47,024.74.

Final Answer Not Ready.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 26.—The legislature met yesterday afternoon and the annexation delegates presented a formal declaration that the Canadian government is still considering the proposals submitted by the representatives of Newfoundland. The delegates recommended that the legislature adjourn for two weeks, in order to receive a final answer from Canada. This recommendation was adopted.

All For Free Silver.

TOPEKA, April 26.—At the opening meeting of the Republican State league, Judge Horton, associate justice of the supreme court, severely scored President Cleveland for his financial views, and declared for the importance of the recognition of silver. Senator Baker opposed President Cleveland's financial policy and Representative Beekman also made a strong speech for free silver.

Lippert Gets Seven Years.

CAPE TOWN, April 26.—William A. Lippert, who was extradited from the United States after having been charged with having committed forgeries to the amount of $843,675 in Cape Colony, has been sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. It was within the power of the judge to send Lippert to prison for life.

THE WATER BOARD.

The Business Last Night—More About Houghs Neck Extension.

At the meeting of the Water Commissioners Thursday night bids were received from seven different parties to furnish pipe. The lowest bid was $21.16 per ton of 2 240 pounds delivered in Quincy and the highest $21 50. This is the lowest bid ever given in this section of the country.

The board voted to send out shut off notices May 1, to all parties owing water rent at that time, with the notice if not paid inside of ten days water would be shut off.

Hereafter all dead ends will be blown off once a month.

Work on the Hough's Neck extension is going rapidly forward, and the pipes are now going down Breakneck hill, and are being laid at the rate of about 600 feet per day. Fifty men are being employed.

A 10-inch pipe will be laid as far as the junction of Manet avenue and Sea street.

From this point an 8-inch pipe will be laid through Manet avenue to Bay View avenue to Sea street, thence by Sea street to its junction with Manet avenue.

From this main pipe smaller pipes will be laid across the short streets as service is required.

From Palmer-street to the end of the pipe about 25 hydrants will be put in, which will give this section ample protection in case of fire.

It is expected that this extension will be completed by June 1.

A Wollaston Sociable.

The last sociable of the season given by the Wollaston Unitarian society was held in the church vestry on Thursday evening. There was a large attendance. It was one of the most successful sociables of the season. The entertainment was particularly good. It was opened by a duet upon the piano by Miss Wellington and Miss Hatch. Miss Marion Sherman then read with excellent expression a story from the life of Mario, the great Italian tenor. In response to an enthusiastic encore she read one of James Whitcomb Riley's bright little sketches.

The "Shaking Quakers" was then given by nine of the younger members of the society, Miss Sherman playing the accompaniment.

Each person who attended the sociable contributed a pound of some article which was worth at least ten cents. After the ice cream was served the packages were sold at auction, bringing good prices and furnishing considerable amusement.

Credit for this successful sociable is due to Mrs. Charles R. Sherman, Mrs. Edmund F. Taylor, Mrs. Eugene H. Sprague, Mrs. Arthur Sibley, Mrs. George B Totman, Mrs. Edward J. Cummings and Mrs. E. G Thayer.

Braintree Rebekahs.

At the regular meeting of Amana Lodge, D. of R., No. 96, held at Odd Fellows' Hall, South Braintree, Thursday evening, the degree was conferred upon one candidate. The work was witnessed by D. D. G. M, Emma F. Thayer and suite, and a delegation from Golden Star Rebekah Lodge of Randolph. Remarks were listened to from the visiting members, and they very highly complemented the lodge for the manner in which they performed their work, and said that Amana lodge should be proud of their degree team. About fifty members were present. After the close of the lodge ice cream and cake were served.

The course of entertainments at this popular auditorium given under the direction of Mr. James H. Dunne, manager of the Dunne Lyceum Bureau, has been of unusual excellence. The last and most brilliant of the series will be given April 30th, by the famous Boston City Band of 25 pieces, each of which is played by a specialty artist. They will be assisted by Miss Lizzie Trinder, soprano, Miss Vora Burpee, reader, Mr. Karl Marshall White, impersonator and the original "Old Homestead Quartette" whose splendid singing has given pleasure to music lovers all over our land. This will be a fitting close to the most successful season ever known at Berkeley Temple.

BRAINTREE.

Rev. and Mrs. S. E. Ellis of the Methodist church held a grand reception in the lower Town Hall, last evening, to meet their new, old, parishioners.

At the chapel of the South Congregational church Wednesday evening was seen one of the prettiest gatherings of the season; it was the entertainment given by the King's Daughters of the church and proved a highly succesful affair.

Next Sabbath Rev. Mr. Hyde of Weymouth will preach at Mayflower chapel.

Mrs. Ambrie Field, wife of Rev. Ambrie Field of East Braintree, is very sick at Dorchester.

Mr. G. D. Willis, of the firm of Stevens & Willis, has returned from a business trip to Montreal, Canada.

The Braintree Pine Tree club are to hold their monthly meeting next Monday evening at Odd Fellows' ball.

Instructor George A. Arnold of Thayer Academy has been ill the past week and unable to attend to his duties at the gymnasium.

The date of the First church reception has been changed from May 15 to May 1st. The entertainment of the evening will be the "Album pictures."

The following Braintree people attended the "ladies night" held in Boston by the Norfolk club Tuesday evening: Hon. and Mrs. James T. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Gage and Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Dearing.

Messrs. Rice & Hutchings are removing all their machinery, racks and office furniture from the old trunk factory to Rockland. There is a rumor that the building will be turned into a large boarding house.

Ora C. Oakman's traveling minstrel company gave a very fair entertainment in the Town Hall, Tuesday evening, before a crowded house. The entertainment was given under the auspices of Post 87, G. A. R.

The Norfolk Sunday School conference commences at the First Congregational church tomorrow forenoon; a specially interesting address will be given at 3 P. M.

Monatiquot lodge, No. 83, K. of P., went to Holbrook in a body Wednesday evening, on a special car, to institute a new lodge at that place. After the Brockton lodge had done their part of the programme the Braintree Knights went in and did some good "floor work" that merited and received enthusiastic applause. Twenty-nine men went up to Holbrook, but ten of the members decided that they would walk home as it was too early for the special car.

During the thunder shower yesterday afternoon the lightning struck the house of Miss Mary Thayer of Pearl street, South Braintree.

The bolt struck near the chimney and ignited the inside of the attic. Box 45 was at once rung in and the South Braintree companies responded promptly.

The interior of the attic of the L of the house was well afire when the water was turned on, but the firemen did a good job; the fire broke through the roof in only one place. The loss from water damage is considerable, but the house is insured. Miss Thayer was away when the fire occurred.

A very excellent concert was given by the Baptist society Wednesday evening in the Town Hall.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

MEMORIES.

Yes, I remember every note
That brought me pain or sadness
And each sweet letter that she wrote
To fill my heart with gladness.
I call to mind the many days
Our sky remained unclouded,
When every thought of sorrow's ways
In mystery was shrouded.

The pretty flowers she kindly sent
I still can fondly treasure
In memory of acts that lent
Their quota to my pleasure.
But when the love she freely gave
Was taken from my keeping
A life was filled with nothing save
Vain bitterness and weeping.

Yet sometimes, when my lonely soul
With grief grows tired and weary
And listen's to the thunder's roll
Till all seems dark and dreary,
I wonder if the storms of life
Make dim her coming morrow.
If so, I'd gladly bear the strife
To give her less of sorrow.

A HEADACHE.

I had a headache. I don't see any especial reason why a young man of good moral character and temperate habits, who takes eight hours' sleep seven nights in a week, should have a headache, but I did. It was one of that popping kind of headaches that make one feel as if his lungs had gone to his head and they were trying to expand there about four diameters at intervals of a minute. I believe they call them nervous headaches, but I fancy they wouldn't be any more agreeable by any other name. Then my heart was as heavy as lead, and once or twice as I walked along I really feared it was going to pull loose from its fastenings and drop. Possibly it was the heavy heart that gave me the headache. But no. I recall now that I was going to see Kitty, the one girl in the whole world that made it any kind of a world for me, and we had had a slight misunderstanding. It wasn't the head that gave me the heartache; it was the heart that gave me the headache. I believe I said that I took eight hours' sleep seven nights in the week. At this point I wish to modify that statement. In the week past I had done so only six nights, for the night before the day on which I was on my way to see Kitty we had disagreed with each other. I don't think I slept at all.

I was going now to see the young woman and settle the matter finally, and though I was a promising young lawyer, ready to make a case for anybody else, I had no papers in this case and was going empty handed. I didn't even have so much as my brief with me.

At the door Mrs. Miltby—Mrs. Miltby is Kitty's mother, and a most exemplary and motherly soul—met me and on the instant started back in amazement.

"Why, John"—she always called me John, for she had known me since I was a mere baby—"why, John," she exclaimed, "whatever is the matter with you? You look like you were going to have a bad spell."

"Oh, that will be all right in a day or so," I replied evasively. "I have a severe headache. Is your daughter at home?"

"You mean Kitty?" she asked in surprise.

"Of course," said I. "You haven't any other daughter, have you?" and I made believe to smile.

"Oh, I didn't know," she stammered.

"Didn't know what?" and I tried to smile again. "Didn't know whether you had another daughter or not?"

"Why, to be—certainly I know that. Why, how queer you do talk!" she rattled on half hysterically, and laughing one of that creepy kind of laughs one dreams of when he hasn't eaten the right thing for supper. "Are—are—you quite sure, John, she broke out excitedly, "that that headache hasn't gone to your head?"

It was cruel to tease her, and with a supreme effort I talked rationally to her for a few minutes—they seemed like hours to me, and then she said she would go and tell Kitty.

As for myself, I went into the little parlor and waited. How sweet and pretty it looked, and how like a sandstone on a gold setting I felt! Everything was as I had seen it so often, the picture of her grandpa over the cottage piano, the frame in which my picture had been for so many months, but empty now, on the corner of the mantel; the large photograph of St. Cecilia looked heavenward, as we had often told each other we always felt when we were together; the two big friendly chairs inviting each other to come nearer, which we always sat in when I first came in the evening, and the snug little sofa in the corner that was always my point of departure when I bade her good night and went my way back to my own cheerless apartments in a homeless boarding house. I looked at them all, and as the drowning man sees all his sins before him so did I see all these things twice over and multiplied by a thousand as the greatest blessings of my life. Then I shut my eyes. I couldn't help it. My head felt as if a dozen sets of lungs had got into it and were doing expansion turns for a prize.

I opened my eyes suddenly at the sound of a voice.

"Mother told me you wished to see me" it said as chilly as if it had been left out over night in the frost.

"Oh, Ki"—I began, as I stood up before her. "I beg your pardon," I continued; "your mother was quite right. I did wish to see you."

"I can scarcely understand why," she went on, "after what occurred last night. Still, you may be able to explain, and I am willing to listen, at least for a few minutes, as I have an engagement," she added, with the faintest kind of a smile.

It was such a miserably mean little smile, I thought, that it was ashamed to show itself openly.

"Oh, don't let me detain you," I tried to say, with biting sarcasm, but I only bit my tongue in saying it.

"I shall not," she replied. "When I am ready to go, I will let you know. Pray, be seated," and she waved me to my chair again, taking one of our—"our," think of that—big chairs and nestling down into it so cozily that I wanted to throw a book at her. I really wanted to throw myself at her, but I had never dared do that, and this was scarcely an appropriate time to begin.

"I presume," I said, "your engagement is with Mr. Kilmer and my presence here is an intrusion?"

Kilmer had been the cause of the trouble the night before, and Kilmer was such a good fellow generally that I couldn't help but wish that he had died several years before with the cholera or some of the other epidemics which visit our shores and carry away so many excellent people.

"Oh, no," she said, "no intrusion at all. At least not yet. He was here this morning and told me he would not be around again until 4 o'clock."

She looked up at the pretty brass clock I had given her. Both its tiny hands were clasping the figure 3. Three-quarters of an hour and a whole lifetime thereafter!

"Isn't it enough that you should have killed me," I said, "without being so eager to cut me up?"

"I was merely defending a friend," she retorted.

"And you claim Kilmer as a friend?"

"I certainly do. Isn't he a friend of yours?"

"Not at all. If he were, he would not have interfered with my happiness as he has done."

"I beg your pardon," she said. "I didn't know he had."

"Didn't I tell you last night he was a scoundrel, intent only upon separating us?" I asked hotly.

"And didn't I tell you that I would permit no friend of mine to be called a scoundrel by any one without resenting it to the utmost?" she replied.

"But I did call him that," I insisted.

"Yes, and what good did it do you?" she said, stepping to the mantel and holding out the empty frame in which my picture had formerly been the attraction.

"His will take the place of the former occupant?" I said scornfully.

"His, or another's," she responded, and actually giggled.

A giggle from a girl is dreadful enough under any circumstances, but at this time it was positively galling.

"Great Scott!" I exclaimed, staggering to my feet, "am I then a twofold dupe? Are the returns all in? Have the back counties been heard from, Miss Miltby?" and I buried my face in my hands.

I could hear the click of the frame as she set it back on the mantel and a mild sort of a dull thud as she dropped into the big chair.

"Mr. Kilmer is, at least, enough of a gentleman, scoundrel though you say he is," she said, "not to talk to a lady as you do."

"Oh, Ki—I beg your pardon, Miss Miltby," I apologized, "I hope you will forget that I spoke so rudely. Indeed I did not mean it."

"I don't see what reason you have for objecting to Mr. Kilmer paying me any attention he sees fit to pay," she told me for answer. "I have known him for a long time, and he is held in the highest esteem by every one except you."

"But I have known you quite as long as he has," I contended.

"Which is hardly a reason for acting as you are now acting," she said.

"Does he love you?" I asked, and I could feel a thousand throbs in my head at once.

"I presume not," she replied, smiling. "If he does, he has been too modest to say so."

"Do you love him?"

"That is my own affair," she answered freezingly.

I threw my hand quickly to my side, for as I live I thought that instant that my heart would certainly break loose and drop down. I think if I could have stepped on a scale that moment with it in my bosom I would have weighed a ton.

"It is not altogether yours," I said, with a gasp.

"No?" and the interrogation point ran up into her eyebrows and arched them sharply like a spear point, it seemed to me.

"No, and I want you to understand it." I was growing desperate. "I have some rights which I propose to see are respected, and I shall not stand like a post and be dumb as one."

"And what rights have you, pray, that I should respect them?" she asked so sarcastically that it felt as if I had stepped across the path of a cutting hailstorm.

"The right of having my claim heard before it is disallowed and thrown out of court," I responded, dropping into shop talk without knowing it.

"Have you ever presented your claim?" she inquired, with judicial dignity.

Had I? That was the question. Had I? For years I had known Kitty Miltby. We had grown up from children together. We had gone to school together. For months I had loved her. By day she was ever in my thoughts, and by night her spirit filled my dreams with music. I had given her my heart without the asking, but I had never asked for hers. It didn't seem necessary. I thought, of course, she knew I wanted it. Now I was brought face to face with the facts. Had I ever presented my claim? Well, I had not—at least not with the formality which my training as a lawyer demanded that I should.

"Oh, Kitty, Kitty," and I almost cried from the reaction, "I love you more than all the world, and I want you as much as I want the world, for you are the world to me. Now, will you say that my claim has not been presented?"

It doesn't make any difference what she said, or how she said it, or whether my arms were on the mantelpiece, or where they were, and it is nobody's business how much that man Kilmer had to do with bringing me to a realizing sense of my situation, or why he and Kitty smiled when I told him it was all right.

I think Kilmer is the best fellow in the world, and so does Kitty, with one exception.

When I left the house, Mrs. Miltby met me in the hall.

"Here's a sovereign remedy for the headache, John," she said, handing me a bag of herbs, "I've used it for 40 years, and it never fails."

"Oh, that's all right, moth—Mrs. Miltby," said I. "I guess I'm cured of that kind of headache forever." And if she hadn't stood in the door as I went down the walk I'm sure I should have jumped clean over the gate and acted in a manner utterly unworthy of my dignity as a rising young lawyer.

It was 6 p. m., and Kitty had not missed her engagement at 4, because by that time it was permanently settled.—W. J. Lampton in Free Press.

The Great Danubian Catfish.

One species alone has managed to take up its abode in Europe. This is the wels of the Germans, the true silurus, from which the family as a whole derives its name of siluroids. It occurs in the Danube and other eastern rivers, but has never made its way into the Rhine or any streams to the west of it. Except the sturgeon, the wels is the biggest—and, I will venture to add, the ugliest—of European fresh water fishes. Its huge, gaping mouth, its soft, slimy skin, its six big barbels and its murderous expression all combine to render it peculiarly hideous. Some specimens reach the length of 16 feet and turn the scale at 400 pounds, but these figures, being fisherman's weight, may be accepted by the wise cum grano salis. I do not guarantee them. According to Yarrel, a Prussian specimen of silurus had the entire body of a baby in its stomach, but a noble Hungarian catfish goes this story one better, for it is said to have contained "the body of a young woman with a wedding ring on her finger and a purse full of money hanging at her girdle." I can swallow the lady, but I decline to accept the wedding ring and the florins.—Cornhill Magazine.

MERITED REWARD.

SALES OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Unequalled in the History of Medicine. Honesty, Excellence, Faithfulness Fitly Rewarded.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Never in the history of medicine has the demand for one particular remedy for female diseases equalled that attained by Lydia E. Pinkhams Vegetable Compound and never in the history of Mrs. Pinkhams wonderful Compound has the demand for it been so great as it is today.

From Maine to California, from the Gulf to the St. Lawrence, come the glad tidings of woman's suffering relieved by it; and thousands upon thousands of letters are pouring in from grateful women, saying that it WILL and does positively cure those painful

Ailments of Women.

It will cure the worst forms of female complaints, all ovarian troubles, inflammation and ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, and consequent spinal weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the change of life.

Every time it will cure

Backache.

It has cured more cases of leucorrhœa by removing the cause, than any remedy the world has ever known; it is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills work in unison with the Compound, and are a sure cure for constipation and sick-headache. Mrs. Pinkham's Sanative Wash is frequently found of great value for local application. Correspondence is freely solicited by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., and the strictest confidence assured. All druggists sell the Pinkham's remedies. The Vegetable Compound in three forms, — Liquid, Pills, and Lozenges.

IS PARESIS CURABLE?

The Remarkable Case of District Attorney Quinby of Buffalo.

When District Attorney George T. Quinby was sent to the state hospital, it was announced that he was suffering from paresis. As paresis is admitted by the medical profession to be an incurable disease Mr. Quinby's friends gave up hope when he was committed to the hospital.

The symptoms were well defined, and it was asserted that the disease would make short work of him, as he was in a bad physical condition — emaciated, nervous and troubled with insomnia—but the patient has improved steadily since he became an inmate, and the attending physicians are greatly puzzled.

Experts in insanity who have been called in say that it is the slowest case of paresis they have ever seen. They also say that if there was such a thing as recovery from the disease they would consider this a hopeful case, and that, in fact, they have some reason to hope. If this hope proves well founded, Mr. Quinby will be the first man to recover from this dread disease.—New York Sun.

A Curious Phenomenon.

A large area of land near Leprignano, in the Rome district, Italy, has subsided about nine yards. Loud rumblings were heard, and water spouted from the earth at the center of the sunken surface. The flow was so heavy that this afternoon it has made a lake covering 15 acres.

The water smells of sulphur, and sulphurous gas frequently bubbles to the surface. All the old springs in the neighborhood are impregnated with sulphur, and the new springs which have gushed from the earth since the disturbances are hot and sulphurous.—New York Herald.

Worse Than Crazy.

That the people of a Long Island rural Methodist church should allow a suit to get into the courts growing out of a crazy quilt contest would seem to indicate that there was more craziness thereabout than in the quilt.—New York Telegram.

NEW BEDFORD, April 26.—Fred Steere, shortstop of the New Bedford Baseball club, has resigned. He will coach the Brown university nine.

WOES OF NICARAGUA.

The Little Republic Finds Herself In Uncomfortably Close Quarters.

United States Will Not Prevent Seizure of Corinto

Having No Constitutional Precedents to Guide Us In the Matter.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The very latest information receivad here is to the effect that there will be no change in the attitude assumed by Nicaragua toward the British ultimatum, and confident belief is expressed that the British will occupy Corinto today to enforce their demands.

Late last night a well-known diplomat received private information from connections in New York city to the effect that Nicaragua had decided to refuse to accede to Great Britain's ultimatum, and would resist it. Dr. Guzman, the Nicaraguan minister, has not received any information from his government respecting the matter, but he is of the opinion that matters will transpire as indicated above.

Last Hopes Shattered.

Nicaragua's last hope of assistance from the United States in her controversy with Great Britain, to prevent the seizure of Corinto, vanished yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Guzman, the Nicaraguan minister, who had been waiting with intense anxiety to see Secretary Gresham, was finally successful about 3 o'clock, when the secretary came from the White House, where he had been in consultation with President Cleveland, presumably on the same subject. The interview was very short.

In five minutes the minister emerged from the secretary's office, looking very depressed. He refused to say a word as to what had taken place, but it can be stated that the secretary gave him to understand very clearly that the United States would not interfere in the case as it stands. So there are now three courses open to Nicaragua, namely, to pay the indemnity, to permit the occupation of Corinto, or fight, and the next 12 hours must find what choice is to be declared, for the British troops are to land today at Corinto.

The position taken by the president in this matter is that the dispute is one entirely between Great Britain and Nicaragua, in which the United States has no call to interfere. Thus, there had been committed no injuries to American interests in Nicargua should there be shown a disposition by Great Britain to acquire Nicaraguan territory.

On each of those points a favorable assurance has been had from Great Britain, and all, it is said, that can now be done is to watch the course of events. This decision was not hastily reached, for the entire subject of our relations to the countries of Central and South America was considered and discussed very carefully by the president with his constitutional advisers, and there has been made a close scrutiny of the precedents that might suffice for our guidance.

Upon these precedents rests the decision of the administration to refrain from interferefice between Great Britain and Nicaragua at this stage of the proceedings.

How It Was Brought About.

In behalf of Nicaragua, though without success, it would appear that it has been urged that the occupation of Corinto by the British troops would be in direct violation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty between the United States and Great Britain. A provision of that treaty prohibits British occupation of Central American territory.

Article 1 covenants that the United States and Great Britain agree "that neither will ever erect or maintain any fortification in Nicaragua or in the vicinity thereof, or occupy, or fortify, or colonize, or assume a protectorate over Nicaragua or the Mosquito coast, or any part of Central America."

It is pointed out that this is even more binding than the Monroe doctrine, as the latter is a principle asserted by the United States, while the treaty is an agreement to which Great Britain is a party. There have been individual claims on both sides of the water that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty was abrogated, yet the governments have never formally abrogated it.

A resolution was introduced in the last senate to abrogate it, adjudicating that those who oppose it could consider it in force. The terms, it is held, appear to be very definite against Great Britain's "occupying" or "exercising any dominion over Nicaragua."

Nicaraguans' Argument.

In the late war between Nicaragua and Honduras, the Mosquito reservation was occupied by Nicaraguan troops.

The inhabitants, who had long enjoyed a measure of self-government, which was regulated under the treaty of Managua, concluded between Great Britain and Nicaragua in 1860, resented the presence of the Nicaraguan forces, and finally offered some kind of armed resistance to their proceedings.

This was easily suppressed by the Nicaraguans, who expelled Prince Clarence, the Mosquito chief, in the summer of 1894, and took over the administration of the country. The Nicaraguan minister made up his mind that the opposition offered to the troops had not been the spontaneous act of the people of the reservation, but in part was the work of foreigners, and among those foreigners he believed was Mr. Hatch, the British vice consul.

He sent for Mr. Hatch one morning and placed him under arrest. Another Englishman was arrested at the same time on similar grounds, and other British subjects were expelled from the country, and suffered, it is said, injuries to their property. It is for these alleged wrongs that Great Britain now demands reparation from Nicaragua.

The Nicaraguan government sought refuge in the statement that it had not officially acknowledged Mr. Hatch as vice consul or granted him his exequatur. This excuse did not avail.

By the terms of the ultimatum Great Britain demands indemnity of $75,000 in gold for the alleged outrage committed on the person of its vice consul and the appointment of a commission to adjudicate upon the injuries sustained by other British subjects at Bluefields. In answer to this, Nicaragua claims justification and asked that the matter be referred to arbitration. This Great Britain refused to do, and sent her warships to collect the indemnity at the mouth of the cannon.

Warehouse Consumed by Fire.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 26.—Fire destroyed the big brick warehouse of Sanders & Blackwood yesterday. The loss is about $125,000.

LEAP FOR LIFE

Made by Several Female Employes In a Montreal Fire Trap.

MONTREAL, April 26.—W. C. McDonald's extensive tobacco factory on Ontario street, east, was partially destroyed by fire last evening. The loss will reach $500,000, on which there is no insurance.

There was not a fire escape on the outside, nor any appliances on the inside for the fighting of fires. Even the windows were guarded by heavy iron screens, presumably to prevent theft on the part of the employes.

The fire started at 5 p. m. in the drying room, and for a while smoldered. Then suddenly the flames burst out, and a most awful panic ensued. There were 900 employes in the building, and more than half of this number were women and girls. The shrieks of the women as they beat against the iron window screens, praying the crowd to do something to save them, were most heartrending. As the flames burst out, three firemen were on the roof, and for fully 20 minutes their lives were despaired of, till finally ladders were found to bring them down. They were badly burned.

The girls were nearly all on the fourth-story floor and were frantic with fear. With much trouble, one of the iron lattices was knocked off, when one of the girls jumped and was almost shattered to pieces when she reached the roof of an adjoining warehouse. In a similar manner the others followed to the number of 30.

The ambulances were kept busy carrying the women and girls to the hospitals, and some were driven in cabs to their homes. So far one is known to be dead and several others are believed to be in the ruins.

From inquiries at the hospital concerning the condition of the girls injured by jumping from the windows of the building, it was learned that little hopes are entertained for the recovery of at least five.

Many Minor Battles.

HAVANA, April 26.—A band of 100 insurgents attacked the town of Dos Caminos, but were repulsed by 22 Spanish soldiers. The rebels left on the field four killed and 10 wounded. In an engagement at Valenzuela an insurgent officer was killed and three wounded. At Adelaid the government troops had a skirmish with an insurgent band and five of the soldiers were wounded. Antonio Maceo, the insurgent chief, whose reported suicide proved to be erroneous, will remove his camp to another district.

The Boom Is On.

BALTIMORE, April 26.—Special reports to The Manufacturers' Record show a very decided increase in the southward tendency of population, illustrated by the large purchases of lands in Georgia, Arkansas and other southern states for western and northwestern colonists. Reports from the northwest show a very widespread disposition on the part of the farmers to move south. In industrial matters the chief attention is still given to cotton mill enterprises.

The Blue and the Gray.

ATLANTA, April 26.—Governor Atkinson, accompanied by his staff in full uniform, yesterday paid a formal call upon Colonel Kellogg, in command of the United States army post at Fort McPherson, in return for the visit recently paid him by the colonel and his staff. This completes the first formal exchange of courtesies between the governor of Georgia and the military representatives of the federal government since the war.

The Ayes Have It.

SEDALIA, Mo., April 26.—In answer to the question: "Are you in favor of the free coinage of silver by the United States at the present ratio?" five Republican and seven Democratic senators in the legislature answered in the affirmative, and four Republicans answered in the negative. In the house 14 Republicans and 24 Democrats replied in the affirmative, and 14 Republicans, two Democrats and two Populists in the negative.

For Whisky Trust to Settle.

CHICAGO, April 26.—Nelson Morris has filed in the United States court proofs of an additional claim against the Distilling and Cattle Feeding company in the sum of $55,000 for breach of contract for the feeding of 42,000 head of cattle. This claim, added to a claim filed by Morris about two weeks ago, makes a total of $1,050,000.

Hoboes Captured a Train.

HUNTINGTON, Pa., April 26.—A gang of about 30 desperate tramps boarded a freight train near Ryde station. When the trainmen tried to put them off, the tramps stoutly resisted. When the train reached here an attack was made on the desperate tramps, and, after a fierce fight, five of the ringleaders were put in jail.

An Unrepentant Sinner.

COLUMBUS, O., April 26.—George Geschiwlm was hanged here this morning. He showed wonderful nerve on the scaffold, maintaining the composure which has marked his conduct ever since his confinement. He received the news of Governor McKinley's refusal to interfere without any demonstration.

German Oil Tariff.

BERLIN, April 26.—The reichstag adopted a duty of 10 marks on both refined and raw cottonseed oil, with the modification that the oil which is rendered up for the ordinary purposes to which it is applied is only to pay a duty of 4 marks.

One of Lynn's Leading Citizens.

LYNN, April 26.—Sumner I. Parker, clerk of the board of overseers of the poor, died suddenly yesterday from an internal hemorrhage, aged 56. The deceased was a direct descendant of the first white settler of Lynn.

A Kick From Kansas.

TOPEKA, April 26.—The State League of Republican Clubs adopted resolutions condemning Secretary of Agriculture Morton for throwing open the American market to the diseased and inferior cattle of Mexico.

Strike About Ended.

PARIS, April 26.—Omnibusses are running on most of the lines, guarded by police. The strikers have agreed to accept the terms of the omnibus company, provided MM. Proust and Delville are liberated.

NILES, Mich., April 26.—A body found at New Buffalo has been fully identified as C. H. Stone, one of the members of the Chicora crew.

Rowdy Joe Changes Hands.

MEXICO, Mo., April 26.—Pacer Rowdy Joe, 2:08, owned by J. B. Hawkins of this city, was sold yesterday to eastern parties for $2000.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 28. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Communion with Christ.—John xiv, 18-23. (Suggestion, A meeting for prayer only.)

Prayer is not only an offering up of our desires unto God for things agreeable to His will, but it is also communion and intercourse with God, and with Christ when requests may not be the subject in our thoughts. In the Old Testament dispensation God dwelt between the cherubim on the mercy seat, and there He gave audience as a prince on his throne, there He communed with the representative of the people. This typified His willingness to be reconciled to us and to keep up communion with us, in and by the mediation of Christ. Christ has come, and the shadow has passed away, and in its place we now have the reality, and not only the representative of the people, but all the people may have sweet and intimate communion, fellowship and intercourse with their divine Lord and Master, Jesus Christ.

This communion with Christ is heart to heart communion between Christ and the believer. That it may be possible Christ abides in the heart of His disciples, and it is here that they hold communion with Him, as friend with friend. This mystical union between Christ and the believer is something that the world cannot understand, because it does not fulfill the conditions necessary to experience it. After the resurrection the world was not to see Him, but He was to manifest Himself unto His disciples, and this manifestation does not refer simply to His appearances after the resurrection, but to His dwelling in the heart of the believer, even after His ascension, and there manifesting Himself unto him. On earth it is Christ who makes His abode with the believer. In heaven the believer will make his abode with Christ, and thus the fellowship between them will be perpetual.

Three conditions are mentioned by Christ as necessary to be fulfilled before He will reveal Himself unto us or before He will take up His dwelling place in our souls. We must love Him; we must obey His commandments; we must be loved by His Father.

The devotee of the world does not fulfill these and does not enjoy the raptures of communion with Christ. These requirements are easy of fulfillment; they are reasonable in every way, and we should fulfill them that this great joy may be ours.

This announcement of Christ to His disciples that though absent in the body He would still be with them must have brought great joy to them. He was about to leave them, and they feared forever. What blessedness it must have been to them, therefore, to know that He would still dwell with them and commune with them! Christ is absent from us in body. Still He will dwell with us, still He will commune with us, if we will have Him. Let us open the doors of our hearts for Him. Let us constantly hold sweet and blessed communion with Him.

Bible Readings.—Ex. xxv, 21, 22; II Chron. xv, 1, 2; Ps. lv, 17; Isa. lviii, 9; Dan. vi, 10; Zech. xiii, 9; Math. vii, 7, 8; Mark xi, 24; Luke xviii, 10-14; John xv, 4-7; Rom. xii, 12; I Cor. i, 9; x, 16, 17; Eph. vi, 18; Phil. iv, 6; I Thess. v, 17; Heb. iv, 16; Jas. i, 6; iv, 8; I John ii, 3-6; iv, 12, 13.

Committee Reports.

A St. Louis society found that the custom of having detailed reports by all the committees and officers read at each semiannual business meeting was not as interesting to the greater part of the members as some other parts of the exercises, so they had the reports submitted two weeks in advance, and a synopsis of them transcribed on the typewriter. Copies of this "review," as it was called, were mailed to all the members and church officers some days prior to the meeting. Thus all were enabled to have the fullest possible understanding of the condition of the society.—Exchange.

Guilds of Courtesy.

Every junior society could with profit adopt the suggestion, made by an Australian superintendent, that "guilds of courtesy" be formed among the juniors. The object is to encourage a spirit of chivalry, to be courteous, to promote habits of neatness and cleanliness and purity of action and speech. The rules are very simple and could be printed at a trifling expense on small cards and distributed among the children. Here they are: "Courtesy, at home, at school, at play, in the street, at the table, to yourself, everywhere."—Selected.

Christian Endeavor Notes.

The Denver societies have been conducting a revival that has resulted in gracious showers of blessing to the whole city.

York, Pa., has between 20,000 and 30,000 inhabitants, and one out of every eight of these is a Christian Endeavorer.

There is a prosperous Christian Endeavor society in a Kansas insane asylum. It is composed of the officers and attendants and represents six denominations.

The Rochester local union has established a Christian Home bureau that is doing admirably in providing respectable boarding places for the young people who go to the city as strangers.

And now they report a Christian Endeavor society in connection with the Y. M. C. A. The news comes from Kansas City, where a junior society of 15 members has been formed among the younger boys of the association.

A Christian Endeavor society recently celebrated the one hundredth birthday of its oldest member. The other young people presented him with a substantial purse as a token of their esteem. Truly Christian Endeavor never grows old.

RANKS ARE SWELLED.

Many More Operatives Go Out on Strike at Olneyville.

Manufacturer Fletcher Will Not Restore Schedule.

A General Lockout In All the Mills Is Now Anticipated by Strikers.

PROVIDENCE, April 27.—The situation at the big plant of the Providence and National Manufacturing company in Olneyville has grown more serious, and over 1500 operatives are out on strike, while over 1000 others have been obliged to cease work. A special meeting of the Manufacturers' club, of which Proprietor Charles Fletcher of the Providence and National mills is a member, will probably be held within the next 24 hours. The mills controlled by the club employ 9000 operatives.

At the present time all the weavers and spinners in No. 2 mill, all the weavers and spinners, carders and finishing room employes in No. 4 mill, all the weavers in No. 6 mill, all loom fixers, day help in the shops and all of the dresser tenders in all the mills are out. The loom fixers, dresser tenders and day help struck at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and the mills which were running some of their departments were obliged to close.

A committee was appointed by the weavers and spinners yesterday afternoon to wait on Proprietor Fletcher and demand a restoration of the old schedule. The committee was also instructed to demand that the cloth "purchase" should be inspected and adjusted so that the future measurements will be 36 inches to a yard instead of from 38 to 40 inches, as the operatives claim it has been in the mills for some time.

The loom fixers also appointed a committee to demand that their pay be increased to the prices paid in other mills. They claim that other manufacturing concerns of the same class pay $2.50 a day for fixing 16 looms, while they receive only $2 10 for attending to 17 looms. Both committees will report later.

Fletcher Won't Yield.

In an interview, Mr. Fletcher stated that it did not make a particle of difference what the strike was about, as the Manufacturers' club had agreed to order a general lockout if there should be a strike of any kind at any of the mills. The next meeting of the club was not to have been held until the last of next week, but a special meeting will be held as soon as the members can be gotten together.

The strike at the Providence and National mills is making it harder for the Atlantic mill strikers, as the employes of the former mills were contributing $1500 a week for the benefit of the Atlantic strikers. A larger assessment, therefore, will have to be made in the other mills, providing the Manufacturers' club does not order a general lockout.

As the Textile union has not ordered the strike at the Providence and National mills, the operatives are not entitled to the usual union strike benefit. The union is confronted with a peculiar state of affairs, and a meeting of the district council has been called to straighten the tangle.

The action of the Saranac mill yesterday in ordering the weavers to mark their cloth next Monday, something that is only done when operatives are to leave their work, is taken as evidence that a lockout is anticipated by the mill owners.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 27.—The city amended the city charter bill of Boston and passed it to be engrossed. The house killed the bill to allow the Taunton Street Railway company to lease and purchase street railways in Bristol county. The judiciary committee reported a bill to prevent discrimination on account of race or color at places of amusement. The senate passed to be engrossed the anti-gaming bill. A bill to perfect the caucus law was ordered to a third reading in the house. The house passed the bill to prohibit the sale and manufacture of cigarets.

May Be Important Capture.

BRIDGEPORT, April 27.—Officer Kirchoff last night saw a man hurrying along, carrying a large bundle. On being questioned, he gave evasive answers and was taken to police headquarters and searched. He was found to be heavily armed, while a black mask and slouch hat were also found on him. He gave his name as William Smith. The bundle contained several blankets.

Inquest Deemed Necessary.

NEWPORT, April 27.—The body of Patrick Connolly was found floating in the harbor yesterday, bearing marks indicating foul play. Medical Examiner Ecroyd found a deep flesh wound over the left eye and another on the left cheek bone. Connolly was 55 years old and had been a member of the marine corps for 22 years. An inquest will be held.

Warwick Wants to Become a City.

PROVIDENCE, April 27.—A petition will be presented to the legislature asking for the establishment of the Pawtuxet Valley manufacturing villages in the town of Warwick as a city. The amount of territory which it is proposed to take from the town of Warwick is 12 square miles, having a population of 16,000 and an assessed value of $9,000,000.

Two Hundred Quit Work.

OAKLAND, Me., April 27.—The entire working force of the Cascade Woolen mills, numbering 200, went out on a strike yesterday for a restoration of wages. In October, 1893, a reduction of 10 per cent was made, and the operatives claim that the company promised to restore the cut as soon as business would permit of it.

New Hotel Badly Damaged.

BOSTON, April 27.—The Hotel Belevoir, a new six-story, unoccupied apartment house on the Bay State road, near Beacon street, was badly damaged by fire this morning. The hotel was one of the handsomest in the Back Bay, having cost $300,000. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss will reach $50,000.

Schedule of '93 Wanted.

LOWELL, April 27.—The Cotton Mule Spinners' union last night voted to restore the wage schedule of 1893. Delegates were chosen to wait upon their respective agents and make the demand.

Old Wages to Be Restored.

BIDDEFORD, April 27.—The threatened strike of the 3300 operatives in the Laconia and Pepperell Cotton mills was averted yesterday afternoon by the management agreeing to advance wages June 1. The restoration means practically an advance of 10 per cent in every department of the mills of both corporations.

Robbers Shot a Man.

GORHAM, N. H., April 27.—Near this place Fred and George Curderett, brothers, claiming to come from Aroostook, Me., waylaid and shot William Everett, the bullet inflicting a bad wound in the shoulder. The assailants took Everett's money, which amounted to only a few dollars. The robbers were captured in Berlin, Me. They confessed the crime and were landed in jail.

Mill Strike Averted.

CLINTON, April 27.—Operatives in the Lancaster mills considered the advisability of demanding an increase in wages, but the more conservative among them have successfully argued that they await action on part of the management, on May 1. If an advance is not made voluntarily at that time, a formal demand will be presented. The mills employ more than 2000 hands.

Lumber May Rise In Price.

AUGUSTA, April 27.—Ira Randall of the Augusta Lumber company says that the chances of getting clean drives on the streams tributary to the Kennebec are doubtful. Unless heavy rains fall by May 1 it will be impossible to clear the streams. This condition will cause a rise in the price of lumber.

Celebrated With Fireworks.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, April 27. — The first trip over the South Middlesex electric street railway to Hopkinton was made last night. Officials, citizens and newspaper men filled the special cars. A large company of people gathered to receive the party at Hopkinton, and fireworks were burned.

Part of the Operatives Went Back.

SANFORD, Me., April 27.—The strike of the spinners and twisters was settled by part of the operatives going back yesterday and the balance agreeing to return to their frames Monday, with the understanding that the wages shall be advanced as soon as business will warrant.

New Corporations In Maine.

AUGUSTA, April 27.—The following new corporations have filed certificates with the secretary of state: The Oldtown Boot and Shoe company, Oldtown, stock $100,000; Eddy Milling company, Edgecomb, stock $5000; the International Novelty company, Kittery, stock $60,000.

Dispatcher to Blame.

AUGUSTA, April 27.—The state board of railroad commissioners, in their report on the accident on the Maine Central at Veazie, place the blame largely on Train Dispatcher William Barry. Barry forgot to notify his relief of orders for one of the trains that caused the wreck.

Risley Was a Director.

HARTFORD, April 27.—Judge Thayer has appointed James E. Hayden of Willimantic receiver of the Natchaug Silk company of Willimantic. This is the concern of which the late Cashier Risley of the First National bank of Willimantic was a director.

Saved by Brother Student.

CAMBRIDGE, April 27.—A. W. Ryder of Andover, a Harvard student, while out on the Charles river, upset his boat and became tangled in the rigging. S. L. Fuller, a student, jumped from a bridge and held Ryder out of the water until help arrived.

Will Pay Five Per Cent More.

SALMON FALLS, N. H., April 27.—The Salmon Falls Manufacturing company has advanced the wages of its employes 5 per cent. The company employs over 600 hands. There is general rejoicing on account of the raise.

Will Keep Quarrymen Busy.

WESTERLY, R. I., April 27.—The Rhode Island granite works has been awarded the contract for the Masonic temple to be built at Albany, and a full force of men will be occupied for several months to complete the job.

Charges Not Sustained.

NEW HAVEN, April 27.—The charges of malfeasance in office preferred by the Law and Order league against Police Commissioner Gilhuly were dismissed last night by the board of aldermen by a vote of 12 to 7.

To Enlarge Deaf Schools.

AUGUSTA, April 27.—The governor was yesterday authorized to draw his warrant in the sum of $8700 for the purchase of a lot on which to build a dormitory for the Portland school for the deaf.

Forest Fire In Maine.

KENNEBUNK, Me., April 27. — Forest fires five miles west of here burned over 50 acres of valuable woodland, destroyed fences and caused considerable damage to railroad property.

Bullet Through His Mouth.

BOSTON, April 27.—Alexander Frazer, 40 years old, committed suicide last evening by shooting himself through the mouth. Frazer had been despondent for some time.

Fatally Hurt by Electric.

LYNN, April 27.—Inez Hobbs, aged 7, was fatally injured last evening by being struck by an electric car while crossing a street.

Should Have Known It Before.

MONTREAL, April 27.—The chief building inspector says that the arrangements of McDonald's tobacco factory were in direct violation of the law. The work of clearing up the ruins has begun.

A RED LETTER MONTH.

Seventy-Five Thousand People Got Better Wages In April.

Healthy Improvement In All Lines of Business.

Hide and Leather Market Keeping Shoe Manufacturers In Suspense.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Bradstreet's today says: The feature of the week is the continued strength of prices of staples after the striking advances of preceding weeks. Perhaps the most relentless advance has been in hides, 2 cents within 10 days, from 4 to 10 cents from the lowest point.

There is a firmer undertone in nearly all lines of trade, but at a number of points gains in industrials are more marked than in commercial lines.

Woolen dress goods mills have secured a number of orders for fall delivery, which accounts for the moderate activity in the market for wool. Cotton goods are firm on the advance in cotton and higher wages paid eastern mill operatives.

During the past two weeks the wages of 50,000 operatives, most of them in textile lines, have been advanced without strikes, and fully 75,000 industrial operatives appear to have had their wages advanced since the beginning of April.

Dun's Review.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Neither the rising in speculative markets nor the steady gain in industries has ceased, and it is wholesome that there are fewer signs of hesitation in the productive industries than in speculative prices. Wage strikes grow more numerous and cause some trouble, and retail demand lags behind wholesale sales and jobbing purchases behind production in some branches, but through many conflicting reports the fact shines out that the industries are gaining, not with a rush and a whirl, but more safely.

Recovery is not often mathematically equitable. When the load of depression is lifted and men find that better things have come to stay, there must be many contradictory changes. Quite a number of works have advanced wages during the week, but strikes to compel an advance, possible for some but not for others, have grown much more numerous. Some shops are closing for want of orders, but a larger number are resuming work.

Prices of shoes and cotton goods are rising; wool and woolens are lower. It would be a distinctly unnatural movement, inviting only distrust, if it were sympathetic and with equal step in all branches.

Manufacturers In Doubt.

Doubt whether hides and leather would be held at higher prices hindered shoe manufacture for a time, but now jobbers want to give more orders than manufacturers dare to take who have their leather yet to buy. The hindrance is the advance in hides and leather, for while 7½ to 10 cents more is paid for shoes, the present cost of leather makes many 10 to 18 cents dearer, and 8 cents paid for western hides is said to mean higher prices yet for some kinds of leather. Shipments from Boston for the month have been 294,447 cases, against 284,615 in 1893.

Cotton mills are getting more money for goods and have quite generally advanced wages. Consumption of northern spinners at the maximum would be in eight months 1,350,000 bales, but they have actually taken 1,950,000 bales, and have a profit on 600,000 bales controlled of over $4,000,000. The consumption is large and Advances Seem to Be Warranted.

Iron production, stimulated because ore, coke and oil were to be dearer, is retarded by shrinking demand for products, for, on the whole, new business is said to be smaller than in February or March. Bessemer pig is lower, and sales of southern pig in northern markets have been large at 25 cents advance. Finished products are nearly all at their lowest prices.

Wool has sold at the lowest price on record this week, 16 cents for Ohio XX and 9 cents for year's Texas, and offers to clear off stocks before new supplies come forward tempt manufacturers to purchase beyond present needs. Sales of foreign, 8,117,300 pounds in three weeks of April, against 9,262,500 domestic, make the total 17,409,800, against 15,906 100 in 1892, and less, of course, in 1893 and 1894. Demand for dress goods continues large and improving, but uncertainty in men's wear goods continues, and is somewhat increased by more numerous strikes. Colored flannels are 5 to 7½ per cent lower and an auction sale is to be held, and some irregularity appears in prices for fine fancy goods.

Wheat Exports Checked.

Higher prices for wheat, nearly 3 cents above last week's, tend to check Atlantic exports.

Cotton touched 7 cents, receding to 6.93; 9,312,396 bales had come into sight last week, and British exports of goods were 120,000,000 yards less in the first quarter this year than last. With such facts, the rise does not help to lessen southern acreage.

The failures for the week have been 230 in the United States, against 179 last year, and 37 in Canada, against 26 last year.

Cuban Insurgents' Tactics.

HAVANA, April 27.—The insurgents in the Manzanilla district are levying on the owners of plantations for contributions of money and arms. Threats are made by the insurgents that if their demands are not complied with, the torch will be applied to the fields of standing cane and the plantation buildings.

Western Men Buy The Mercury.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The New York Mercury has been sold to a syndicate, and the new management is already in possession. The purchasers are silver men from the west, who will make the paper a silver organ.

A BICYCLE RESPONSIBLE

For the Fatal Accident to Grandson of Letter Carrier Loud.

Mr. and Mrs, Francis P. Loud returned today from their sad journey to New York, having also visited Frederick City, Md., where the body of their little grandson was interred. The accident to little Howard Brandau occurred on the Western boulevard as he was crossing from school to join his mother, Mrs. Lucy Loud Brandau, who was on the opposite sidewalk awaiting him. She and his schoolmates witnessed the affair and the mother was the first to reach him. A swift running bicycle had caused the boy to jump suddenly, but he only escaped one danger to encounter a worse one, as he ran squarely into a heavily laden lumber truck and fell beneath one of the rear wheels which crushed his arm and severely bruised one leg. He recognized his mother when she arrived, but did not live long after he was taken to the Roosevelt hospital. It was necessary to amputate the arm near the shoulder, and he did not survive the shock.

The bicyclist who caused the accident did not stop and is unknown. The truck driver did not know of the accident when arrested later, and as no blame attached to him he was discharged.

Postmaster Duggan.

The appointment of John A. Duggan as postmaster at Atlantic, on Thursday, comes as a surprise to a great many, but D. C. Lyons is reported to have resigned. The term of Mr. Lyons was a short one, a little over a year, he having been appointed Oct. 2, 1893, to succeed Thomas Gurney, Atlantic's first postmaster.

Mr. Gurney established the office in 1873, but previous to that time he accommodated the people of Atlantic by getting their mail at Neponset, and many regretted when politics demanded a change.

Mr. Duggan is a prominent Democrat of the city and the owner of the largest block in Atlantic, in which the post office is now located. He is a director of the Quincy & Boston and other street railways, and has filled some town offices.

The new appointment does not look much like the extension of the Quincy free delivery system to Norfolk Downs and Atlantic, but the government does some queer things, and surprises are always in order.

The Hyde Park Gazette has the following account of the wedding of a young lady who formerly resided in Quincy: A pretty home wedding was witnessed Wednesday evening at 6 30 o'clock by the intimate friends and relatives of Miss Hellen Reed, daughter of Mrs. Lucy F. Washburn of Spring street, Savin Hill, and Mr. H. E. Gleason, the well known provision dealer of Hyde Park. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. W. Brown of Melrose. The best man being E. D. Manter of Boston. The bride, a pretty blonde, was attired in ivory-white satin, en traine, the tulle veil was arranged in her hair with sprays of orange blossoms and she carried a large bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor, Miss L. B. Smith of Boston, wore an artistic gown of lilac silk and white satin with garniture of lace; her bouquet was of white carnations. The reception was held at 8 o'clock, and the collation was served from a table brilliant with spring flowers. Immediately following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Gleason came to their new home in Hyde Park.

Rev. F. A. Frigugliett is expected home from his southern trip to-day.

TIN WEDDI G.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pratt Surprised by Friends and Tokens.

On April 23, 1885, at the residence of Mr. Andrew Young on Granite street, Miss Annie Young and Mr. William Pratt were united in marriage. Last evening, ten years later, a number of friends assembled in the same place to surprise the couple and to celebrate in a fitting manner the successful close of the first decade of married life. At the appointed time the company sallied forth and took Mr. and Mrs. Pratt, who live in the next house, by storm. Bewilderment was unmistakably manifest in the faces of the surprised pair. Mr. William B. Donald, in behalf of the company, explained the purport of the invasion, and to fittingly mark the occasion presented them with small tin utensils. He remarked that owing to the hard times the gift itself was a modest one, but hoped it would be appreciated for the kind feelings and good wishes that were back of it. Mr. Pratt accepted the gift in a deliciously earnest manner, and regretted that he was so ill prepared to receive such a company.

The company then re-adjourned to its first meeting place and passed a few hours pleasantly dancing, singing and playing games. Songs were contributed by Mrs. Barbara Fuller, Miss Martha Brooks, Mr. David Drummond and Mr. Alexander Hall.

The festivities were interrupted about eleven o'clock by a second event. In the room where ten years before the nuptial knot was tied that made two one, Mr. George Chalmers invited them to accept a more tangible token of regard than had yet been accorded. A parlor time piece and a wall picture were unveiled, the officiating speaker remarking that times had already improved, and that the company wished to be remembered by something of a more substantial nature than tin. This time, Mr. Pratt was unequal to the verbal call, and could only express his thanks in a few words.

Meanwhile a bountiful supper had been spread to which the company did ample justice, and then a few more hours of recreation brought the evening's proceedings to a close.

Among those present were: Mrs. Robertson and Mrs. Fuller of Milton, Mr. and Mrs. Cramond, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Young, Mr. and Mrs. John Robbie, Mr. and Mrs. David Drummond, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McGregor, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Mr. and Mrs. George Chalmers, Mr. and Mrs. Alex M. Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Emslie, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. W. Birnie, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Donald, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Kirkland, Mrs. William S. Murray, Mrs. John Weir, Mr. John Weir, Jr., Miss Martha Brooks, Mrs. W. Thomas.

Young Men's Christian Association.

Mr. Price T. Edwards of Chelsea will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. Subject: "The One Thing."

Much interest is manifested in the Monday evening Bible study, which has a remarkable attendance for this season of the year. A second Bible class for beginners will be organized Tuesday evening. All young men are invited to join.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

"The Fire Patrol," a thrilling drama with a number of exciting scenes and many novelties, will be the next attraction at the Bowdoin Square Theatre. While the play is sensational in character, it is constantly of absorbing interest, for its serious moods are quickly followed by those of lighter and merrier vein and afford pleasant relief to the strained periods. It is a well written play, superior in many respects to the average melodrama. Manager Atkinson of the Bowdoin Square Theatre has just received all of the models for Sutton Vane's new melodrama, "In Sight of St. Pauls," which will be the great melodramatic production of the season at this theatre.

—W. Q. Baxter of East Milton and Charles H. Thayer of West Milton have been appointed as census enumerators for the town.

TO VISIT THIS CITY.

Supreme Court Commissioners Coming to Quincy on Monday.

AT REQUEST OF MR. BLACKMUR

To See How Much Quincy is Benefited by Blue Hill Reservation.

This morning the commissioners appointed to apportion the cost and maintenance of the metropolitan reservations among the cities and towns of "greater Boston" met in the Boston court house and heard the report of the counsel of the Metropolitan Park Commissioners as to what had been done and what it was proposed to do. The attendance was smaller than on previous occasions.

City Solicitor Blackmur was there, for he wants justice done to the city of Quincy. He objects to the state taking 2,500 taxable acres from the city and then levying a large assessment annually for the payment of the same. A stranger would suppose that the park being largely in Quincy would be a great benefit, but not one in a hundred of our citizens were ever upon one foot of the new reservation, and few know where it is.

At the request of Mr. Blackmur the commissioners agreed to visit Quincy Monday afternoon, arriving on the 1.15 train from Boston. They will view the approaches and the character of land taken.

Tuesday the commissioners will visit the Middlesex Fells reservation, and Wednesday morning will hold another hearing in Boston.

For the Hospital.

"Art Poster Show" is the title of the exhibition to be given at the Unitarian chapel May 7th to 10th, and for which tickets have just been placed on sale.

The commonplace and inartistic bill poster which we have known so long is fast becoming obsolete; and the application of art has entirely revolutionized the poster, the most conspicuous means of advertising. The ever increasing demand of the public for more artistic work has called out the best talent of the designers and printers in Europe and America. The result has been that many wonderfully artistic posters have been designed purely for advertising purposes.

The exhibition above referred to has many examples of the best French, English and American designers, and will be the most complete collection of the modern artistic poster yet shown in the vicinity of Boston. It will repay the careful inspection of every one in Quincy interested in this subject.

As the sale of tickets is for the benefit of the Quincy City Hospital, it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

—The trustees of Milton cemetery are arranging to soon have placed the markers over the graves of the revolutionary soldiers.

RAILROAD MEN HERE.

Supt. Anderson Shows N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R Officials About Town.

Superintendent J. C. Sanborn and general freight agent C. Peter Clark of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad passed the day in Quincy yesterday as the guests of Superintendent Anderson of the Quincy Quarry Co. The morning was devoted to an inspection of the quarries in the North Common and of the facilities at Quincy Adams. After dinner the guests were driven via. Goffe and Adams street's to Milton hill and then to West Quincy depot. At this point locomotive 774 was boarded for a trip over the Quarry railroad, where visits were made to several quarries along the line. The visitors returned to West Quincy at 4 30 and left for home at 5 P. M. from Quincy station. The object of this trip was to obtain a thorough insight into the needs of the granite industry of the city as regards good facilities for loading and transportation both at Quincy Adams and West Quincy.

Blue Hill Predictions.

Sa	Su	Mo	Tu	W	Th	Fri	Sa
27	28	29	30	1	2	3	4

The coming week promises to average cooler than the past week. The coolest days will probably be on the 28th, and between the 31 and 5th. The warmest will probably be between the 30th and 2d. The greatest probability of showers is between the afternoon of the 29th and afternoon of the 30th, and on the 31 or afternoon of the 2 1. The remainder of the week will probably be fair with the greatest probability of clear weather on the 28th and 1st.—Norfolk County Gazette.

TODAY'S COURT.

The liquors seized from John Lyons of Weymouth were forfeited.

John O'Keef of Randolph was arraigned for assault on his wife and was sent to the House of Correction for four months.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. In many instances the attacks may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

The people of Port Huron witnessed a remarkable mirage recently, showing the Canadian bank of the St. Clair river for about 18 miles, and both banks from Marysville to what is known as McGregor's point, a mile below the Oakland house.

Until the dissolution of the old German empire, the arms of Austria were the most complicated of any in Europe, for they contained those of Hungary, Bohemia, Dalmatia, Slavonia, Avagon, Sicily, Brabant, Swabia, Antwerp, Flanders, Burgundy, Naples, Jerusalem, Lombardy and Milan.

Not Able to Play.

CINCINNATI, April 27.—"Bug" Holliday, centerfielder of the Cincinnati baseball club, is seriously afflicted with appendicitis. It will be a long time before he can play ball.

Plague Carrying Off Cattle.

ODESSA, April 27.—A cattle plague is raging in several of the governments of South Russia.

Four Towns Almost Annihilated.

BUDA-PESTH, April 27.—Four towns in Hungary—Mosrin, Kutoz, Vibva and Rudolfegrad—were almost destroyed by the recent floods. The damage amounts to $5,000,000.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co, Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

Arbor day.

Decidedly cooler.

Did you plant a tree?

May day next Wednesday.

A cool Sunday is predicted.

New hours at the public library May 1.

Two new houses are being erected at Rock Island.

A white flag with the letters P. O. floats from Capt. Boyd's office.

The Cosey club has moved into its new quarters on South street.

The walks through the First church yard have been nicely trimmed.

About the only store open at Houghs Neck is that of Capt. Boyd.

The estate of James Beckford is to be sold at auction next month.

Tirrell & Sons are to add horseshoeing to their business next mouth.

Houghs Neck is on the map this year and things are going to boom.

Mr. Squires and family are among the early arrivals at Houghs Neck.

Swithin Bros. have opened a real estate office in Durgin & Merrill's block.

Ex-Congressman Everett will occupy the pulpit at the First church Sunday.

The John Boyle O'Reilly club held a dance Friday evening, at St. Mary's hall.

Mr. A. G Durgin is one of the recent additions to Quincy's list of bicycle riders.

There have been but few deaths in Quincy of late. None have been reported since April 19.

Councilman Charles H. Johnson has sold out his grocery and provision business on Washington street.

Charles Stover of this city has rented the Thomas Porter estate, on Norfolk street, Weymouth.

Charles F. Adams offers some valuable land for sale at just one-half what it was taxed for last year.

The branch of the gold cure remedy for drunkenness is located in the upper room of the court building.

Two new houses are going up on Sea street, Houghs Neck, near Taylor's, one of which is nearly completed.

The Adams Academy team will try and defeat the Cambridge High and Latin school team this afternoon.

The North Weymouth Land Co., are celebrating Arbor day by setting out two hundred trees on their property.

St. John's C. L. & A. A., attend Holy Communion in a body Sunday morning, at 8 o'clock, at St. John's church.

The recent additions made to the residence of Friend Crane off Washington street improves its appearance very much.

A great improvement has been made in the appearance of the Hancock cemetery by removing and trimming some of the old trees.

Now that the water mains are being extended to Houghs Neck, a hose wagon should be located there and a company formed.

The Park Commissioners are repairing the back stops on the ball fields at Merry Mount park and on the Atlantic play grounds.

G. F. Wilson & Co. will appear out Monday with two handsomely painted delivery wagons which can not fail to attract considerable attention.

An unusual large number of cottages have been engaged at Houghs Neck this season and the indications are that the season will open early and last late.

We are indebted to Mrs. A. B. Packard for a beautiful bouquet of roses and maiden-hair ferns. Mrs. Packard will please accept our thanks for the fragrant gift.

But little remains of the house built of glass, on the corner of Sea street and Manet avenue, Houghs Neck, except a quantity of broken glass and a few timbers.

Several enterprising firms have entered into a novel advertising scheme. They are erecting a number of large sign boards along the line of the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R., upon which are painted their advertisements.

Superintendent Weeks says the Quincy & Boston will probably not build its extension to the Hingham line until the Hingham company makes some move and in case that company does not do anything the Quincy & Boston may petition for a location in Hingham.

—The contractors for the Grant monument for New York have promised to have it completed on Dec. 1 next.

AN EASY MARK.

New Yorks Got Runs Off Wilson Just About as They Pleased.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Wilson pitched four innings for Boston. In three of them the New Yorks rolled up nine runs, most of them being chiefly due to bases on balls. Dolan, the young man from last year's Portland club, replaced Wilson in the fifth inning. The game at that stage was already lost, but, nevertheless, Dolan showed up well, and with a little mere experience he will undoubtedly prove a "find."

A Monometallist Combine.

LONDON, April 27.—The Standard announces the formation of an association for the defense of the gold currency. The paper says the whole nation is monometallist at bottom, but it would be needless to deny that the subject needs skillful handling to interest the public. The Times urges that the association should in the first place address a letter to the government protesting against any change in the currency question.

A New Orleans Sensation.

NEW ORLEANS, April 27.—Police Commissioner Beanham committed suicide yesterday afternoon. He was captain of battery B of the Louisiana Field artillery, a member of all the prominent clubs, and was well known throughout the country. He was the most popular man in New Orleans. Beanham was about 45 years of age.

But Who Is "Ex-Consul?"

LONDON, April 27.—There appears in The Standard this morning a letter signed "Ex-Consul" alleging that American intrigues are at the bottom of the Nicaraguan difficulty, America regarding the Central American states as proteges that will some day be annexed or incorporated into the United States.

Stepped In Front of Train.

CLEVELAND, April 27.—William Kirt, Charles Walters and Alfred Tells were walking on the railroad tracks at Rockport. They saw a train coming and stepped aside to the other track just in time to be struck by another train. Kirt and Walters were killed and Tells seriously injured.

Not Credited by Reading Men.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—Officials of the Reading road say, relative to the rumors of a probable war of rates in the coal trade, that such a movement is unlikely, and express the belief that the existing complications would be temporarily adjusted in a short time.

Boat Capsized.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Tossed by a swell from a steamer, the little skiff in which three youths were in was dashed upon a rock in the East river and capsized. Joseph Cronin and James McEvoy were drowned. John Fitzgerald, who could not swim, was rescued.

Rain In Some Parts, Dry In Others.

MILWAUKEE, April 27.—Specials from the northwestern part of the state indicate that the much-needed rain has come to break the drought and put a stop to the forest fires. Correspondents in the western and southwestern counties say the ground is very dry.

Case of Manslaughter.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Caroline Kraft, a midwife, who has been on trial on a charge of performing a criminal operation on Bertha Kearns, was yesterday afternoon found guilty of manslaughter in the second degree.

Women Missionaries In Session.

CINCINNATI, April 27.—The quarterly session of the executive board of the Woman's Home Missionary societies of the Methodist church of America began here yesterday, and will continue until next week.

Something New For Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, April 27.—The first legal hanging in Conway county in 22 years occurred at Morrilton yesterday, when George Whiteker, colored, was hanged for the murder of his father-in-law on Oct. 8, 1894.

"Manhattan Exchange" Goes Under.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The "Manhattan Exchange," 10 Wall street, the successor of the Baldwin Bros. company, has suspended, after an existence under the present title of two weeks.

BRAINTREE.

The Braintree Commercial and Social club held its regular rehearsal for the minstrel show Thursday evening.

Business at B. H. Woodsum & Co.'s tack factory is rushing. They are turning out about 2,500 pounds of tacks and nails per day.

There have been several fine days this week which induced many to enjoy the out-door pleasures of the early spring. Several parties from the north end of the town have visited Eagle Mountain and the Blue Hills.

Many of the older citizens have been attending court of the equity session, new court house, Boston, this week as witnesses in the case of McNeil vs. Lowell, and if you could look in as I did at the dining room at the Parker house, any day at 1.30 you would think this witness work was very interesting.

In the 16th century there was a curious enactment in England whereby street hawkers were forbidden to sell plums and apples, for the reason that servants and apprentices were unable to resist the sight of them, and were consequently tempted to steal their employer's money in order to enjoy the costly delicacies.

The wine jars, or amphore, of the Romans resembled our demijohns, with the curious exception that the bottom tapered to a point, which was thrust into the sand that covered the floors of the wine vaults, and thus the vessel was held upright. Many perfect specimens are to be seen in the museums.

ROTHSCHILD ON FINANCE.

He Frankly Tells a Reporter How Much He Doesn't Know About It.

I was a reporter on The Daily Graphic and was considered a remarkably successful interviewer. I had to be to get my bread and butter. So I was sent to talk finance to the Baron Rothschild. The fact that I knew nothing about finance and he knew little about English made no difference. I went to the Brevoort and found a very young, weak eyed, pallid, blond Frenchman showing in his person the worst results of the constant intermarriages in his family. In his brain I fancy that he showed a marked ability to fret over the cut of his clothing and the fashion of the moment in buttonhole bouquets.

"I am from The Daily Graphic,' said I.

"Ah, ze London Graphique! Yes; I have mooch pride in zat jourrrrnal."

"No; I am from the New York Graphic, sir."

"Ah, ze New Yorrk Grraphique! Zat is sumsing I do not at all know."

"I have come to you to talk to me about finance."

"Fynerce, fynerce?"

"Finance, sir—money banking, the movement of gold, the borrowing power of Russia, for instance—about finance."

The prince of the cloth of gold looked worried.

"Adolphe," he cried in French, "come here. Tell me what is it, 'the fynerce?'"

Adolphe explained.

"Ah," said he delightedly, "feenarnce, feenarnce! Oui, je comprend. Ah, sir, I am vaire sorry, but ze feenarnce—zat is sumsing about wheech I know nussing. I haf, sir, ze plaisir to make you my complaimong and my regrets; also to make you goodby."—Julian Ralph in Providence Journal.

FOUR MILES FOR A CENT.

Self Propelling Vehicle Perfected at Springfield, Mass.

The latest and apparently most practical self propelling vehicle yet produced in this country has just been perfected at Springfield, Mass., after three years of experimentation. This improved motor carriage is daily traversing the roadways of western Massachusetts. The total weight is 600 pounds. The wheels are rubber tired and run on ball bearings.

The front wheels turn on their own pivot located in the hub, the axle being firmly held by the side bars. The lever in front wholly controls the carriage. The lateral movement turns the wheels, the vertical motion starts and stops the vehicle, changes its rate of speed and also reverses its movements, driving it backward when desired.

The variable speed ranges from three to 16 miles an hour, the normal rates being three, six and ten miles. To obtain a greater speed than ten miles an hour the pressing of the button at the front of the seat will increase the speed of the motor. The motive power is gasoline.

The cost of running this carriage is one-fourth of a cent a mile. A supply can be carried sufficient for 150 miles and can readily be replenished at any town en route.

The motor has proved entirely reliable, having been run several weeks on a test and shows no variation in power or speed. It is simple, will cost but little to run and is applicable to business as well as pleasure purposes.—New York World.

A CONSTANT MENACE.

Japan's Possession of Liao-Tung Thus Regarded by Triple Alliance.

"Friendly Advice" From Russia, France and Germany.

United States May Be Called Upon to Give Counsel In the Matter.

LONDON, April 27.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Times telegraphs:

"Russia has requested the Chinese government to delay for a few days the ratification of the peace convention entered into by the Chinese and Japanese plenipotentiaries at Shimonoseki. I believe that Japan was surprised by the protests made by Russia, France and Germany against the permanent annexation by Japan of territory on the Chinese mainland. The dispatch of the latest Japanese expedition to Port Arthur was ordered for the purpose of allaying the discontent that exists in that portion of the army which has not shared in the honors of the campaign, and also to force the Pekin government to ratify the peace treaty."

A Pekin dispatch says it is the cession of southern Manchuria, as provided for in the treaty of peace, that is chiefly opposed in the Chinese capital. The agreement to this end made by Li Hung Chang grieves the emperor, because the province of Manchuria is the ancestral portion of the empire.

There is less opposition regarding the cession of the island of Formosa, which is a new province.

Direct and Positive Information from official sources is at hand concerning the exact negotiations between Russia, France and Germany on one hand, and Japan on the other.

The Russian, French and German ministers separately interviewed the Japanese vice minister for foreign affairs, under instructions from their respective governments, and presented memoranda, in which it was stated that the governments of Russia, France and Germany, upon examining the terms of peace imposed by Japan upon China, have found that the possession of the peninsula of Liao-Tung, claimed by Japan, would be a constant menace to the capital of China, and at the same time would threaten the independence of Corea and render it non-effective in fact.

In this sense and for other reasons it would be, it was stated, a constant menace to the permanent peace of the far East. Consequently the governments of France, Russia and Germany, desiring to show their sincere friendship for the government of Japan, advise it to renounce the absolute and final possession of the peninsula of Liao-Tung. The memoranda of the three governments make it plain that they are presented in the way of friendly advice to the Japanese government and are not intended in any way to convey any open or covert menace.

The impression is gaining ground that Japan can rely upon the friendly counsel of the United States at the present moment.

England and Italy Out of It.

The governments of Great Britain and Italy have made it plain that they do not intend to follow the example of Russia, France and Germany, and the great commercial interests of the United States in the far East, which the Japanese-Chinese treaty of peace would largely benefit, no less than the constant attitude of the United States toward Japan, lead diplomats to believe that the United States at this juncture will not fail to make such a use of its good offices as will prevent Japan from being deprived of the fruits of her victory.

The treaty of peace has already been ratified by the Emperor of Japan, and it would be extremely difficult to effect any change. The only effect of Russia's, France's and Germany's attitude must be to encourage the party in China which is opposed to any moderate and reasonable settlement, and thus to prolong the war indefinitely.

It may be stated in the most positive terms that the reports previously circulated concerning Japan's reply to the powers are not correct. The reply had not been sent as late as the evening of the 26th, and from intimations received from the highest and most reliable sources here, it may be stated that the reply, while moderate and conciliatory in tone, will not contain any recession from what Japan regards as her rightful due.

Why the Sudden Change?

LONDON, April 27.—The Post this morning says: It may be that France and Germany have far deeper insight in commercial matter than either America or Great Britain, but if statistics count for anything, the advance that America has made in the last half century compares more than favorably with the advance made by either France or Germany; nor is the surplus stock either here or in America so great that immediate profits can be the aim in view by these two powers. It is difficult to find a reason for the change in policy France and Germany have so suddenly adopted.

Further Complications Threatened.

LONDON, April 27.—The Daily News says that yesterday's telegrams will increase the satisfaction of the country with the government's policy in regard to China and Japan. The interposition of other powers already threaten complications, while there is no clear statement of the powers' objections, and it does not appear that they are united by any common interest.

Suspicious of United States.

BERLIN, April 27.—The National Zeitung declares that Japan must not be allowed to drive German trade out of China nor to acquire a permanent military footing in China such as would enable her to shut the door in Germany's face, perhaps in agreement with the United States.

Woman Wielded a Razor.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Mary Barbello had a quarrel on the corner of Thirteenth street and avenue A with Dominico Cataldo, an Italian. Suddenly the woman drew a razor and slashed the man about the throat. The man died almost instantly.

Mrs. Parnell May Recover.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., April 27.—Mrs. Parnell's condition is reported as much improved, and Dr. Shipps has great hopes of her recovery.

Center of Town Burned Out.

WINNIPEG, April 27.—Fire at Hartney destroyed 14 business places in the central portion. Loss, $75,000.

ANTICIPATES SETTLEMENT.

Nicaraguan Minister Is In the Dark, However, as to Terms.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Dr. Guzman, the Nicaraguan minister, has not received any dispatches from his government indicating what, if anything, has transpired in connection with the British ultimatum. A difference of opinion exists in diplomatic circles as to the precise time at which the ultimatum expires, some persons holding to the belief that it expired Thursday at midnight, while others contend that midnight last night marked the limit.

From the cables heretofore received by Dr. Guzman, he is of the opinion that the limit of time was up at midnight Thursday night, but in the absence of any later news he thinks that some additional time —probably 24 hours—has been granted to Nicaragua within which to make an answer. He is, however, in the dark as to what really has occurred. The minister seems to believe the matter will be settled, but in what manner and on what terms he does not advance an opinion.

An Arkansas Cyclone.

CAMDEN, Ark., April 27.—A terrible hailstorm swept over this portion of Ouachita county. In this city the courthouse, opera house and many residences were badly damaged by the hail. Vegetation of all kinds is beaten into the ground. Meager reports from adjoining counties show that the corn crop is stamped out and new planting will be necessary. The fruit crop is knocked off fully 90 per cent. An old negro woman named Kaufman was frightened to death.

Old Masters Bring High Prices.

NEW YORK, April 27.—At Chickering hall last night $50,000 was paid for work of Van Dyck at the auction sale of the paintings owned by the American Art association. The painting was "The Marchese de Spinola and her little daughter." Knoedler & Co., art dealers, were the purchasers. The works of other old masters were also disposed of at prices ranging from $6100 to $13.5.

May Be Lynched if Caught.

ANDERSON, Ind., April 27.—A mob of 200 men with bloodhounds and guns are in pursuit of two tramps who fatally injured Mrs. William Humes. She was thrown into the cellar half filled with water, which so revived her that she was able to crawl up the steps, where she was found by persons who saw the tramps running from the house.

An Injured Husband's Deed.

SIDNEY, O., April 27.—Some nights ago Mrs. John Verhite was caught in the raiding of a disreputable house. Her husband was away from home at the time and had her hold till he returned. Yesterday he got back and went to the jail to see her and immediately shot her through the heart. She died instantly and he made good his escape.

Ran Twenty-Five Bucket Shops.

BUFFALO, April 27.—John C. Allen, broker, has assigned. Allen was arrested Thursday on the charge of misappropriating $1500. About three years ago Allen made an assignment and appeared to be completely bankrupt, but he came to his feet again. He conducted bucket shops in 25 cities.

Waller In Prison.

MARSEILLES, April 27.—John L. Waller has been placed in the civil prison of St. Pierre, the military authorities refusing to keep him any longer in Fort St. Nicholas. Waller is now awaiting his transfer to some fortified place. He is much distressed at the position in which he finds himself.

Plotting Against Hawaii.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—Consul General Wilder of Hawaii and United States Secret Agent Harris have been warned of a conspiracy on foot in this city to overthrow the Hawaiian government by another revolution. Evidence is now being gathered against those implicated in the plot.

Driver and Cattle Slit Into Ribbons.

PORTLAND, Ind., April 27.—A wagonload of nitro-glycerine, containing 700 quarts, exploded three miles from Bluffton, with a shock that was heard for 40 miles. Will Elmer, the driver, was blown to atoms. The team and a number of cattle in a field near the scene were torn to shreds.

Asks For Three Months Off.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Dr. Don J. M. Yrigoyen, the Peruvian minister, has requested his government either to accept his resignation or grant him a leave of absence for three months. He says the reasons which govern his actions are purely personal ones.

Japanese and Catholicism.

ROME, April 27. — The pope has instructed the congregation of the propaganda da fide to prepare a new plan for the conversion of the Japanese. The pope hopes to enter into diplomatic relations with the mikado and to establish a new mission.

Away Up In Masonry.

JERSEY CITY, April 27.—George H. Farrar died last night from an apoplectic stroke. He was a 33d degree Mason, captain of company A, Twenty-first New Jersey regiment during the civil war and an ex-member of the New Jersey assembly.

New England Briefs.

James Percy Roberts of Andover, Mass., pleaded guilty to larceny from the mails.

Two of the 49 cows owned by W. H. Watkins of Peabody, Mass., are afflicted with tuberculosis.

Edward J. Loomey of Boston died suddenly in a liquor store yesterday afternoon from an internal hemorrhage.

Timothy Hessian, a veteran, died at Amesbury, Mass., aged 59 years. He had served in both the army and the navy.

Edmund Putney, baseball scorer of the Williams college team, who was to have succeeded to the management, has resigned.

The Connecticut house passed the bill which requires that railroad companies shall accept on Sunday trains commutation, mileage and season tickets.

Police Officers Hurley and Rourke of Lawrence, for drunkenness and failure to report for duty on April 16, were suspended for 30 days without pay on each complaint.

M. H. Bemis & Co., the Woonsocket branch of the Baldwin Bros. company, were served with papers in a suit for $2500, for breach of contract, brought by Edwin Aldrich.

Another attempt was made to do business in the Lowell common council, but action on the propositions of the Democratic members was delayed to give the Republicans time to consider.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

Miss Ivey Thinks She Was Svengalied Into Marrying a Convict.

HERZIG—IVEY.—On board the 2:05 train, N. Y. C. and H. R. R., Friday, April 19, 1895, Theramutis Ivey of Jarvis, Ontario, Canada, to Jacob S. Herzig of New York city, by Rev. Dr. William Lindsay.

Hypnotism is said by Theramutis Ivey to have played no small part in her marriage to Convict Jacob S. Herzig. The ceremony was performed in the baggage car of a train on the New York Central and Hudson River railroad, which was carrying the bridegroom to imprisonment in Sing Sing.

The bride is an exceedingly pretty Canadian, not yet 20 years old. She has been disowned by her parents for the persistency with which she has clung to Herzig, even after he was convicted.

At first she said that she did not care what her parents thought or did, but now that she has married a man who will forever be branded as a convict she hesitates.

"I had no intention of getting married when I went to the train to accompany my lover to Sing Sing," she said, "but before I knew it we were standing before the clergyman, and I became 'Jock's' wife. I must have been hypnotized. It seems as though I have been in a trance ever since the day that that dreadful word 'guilty' was pronounced. You know I fainted then, and a court officer carried me out of the room."

The next instant she added: "Well, I am glad I did it. I don't believe 'Jock' is guilty. I told him I would marry him when he insisted on it. I didn't know the minister was going to be on the train, but 'Jock' must have arranged it.

"Well, why shouldn't I marry him? I love him, and I could never love any one else.

"But I shall try to get my husband pardoned. 'Jock' always seemed to have such an influence over me he could make me do almost anything. I am not sorry I married him, and yet—and yet—well, I don't know. It all seems so strange and weird like."—New York Herald.

Combining Business and Pleasure.

A Kensington flagman at a railroad crossing has his own pet device for a trysting place. His duties keep him busy all night long at the flag and the gates. Then when he is asleep by day his sweetheart, a neighbor's rosy cheeked daughter, is away from home at work. His predicament has worried him. If he should neglect his post for even a quarter of an hour during an evening to call at the home of his charmer, the gates would be left up, and some wayfarer might be killed by a wildcat locomotive at the crossing.

So Mr. Flagman the other night evolved and entertained a happy thought.

There is a vacant house, with an amply shaded veranda, only 20 feet from his crossing. Upon this porch he placed an easy chair from the parlor at home. The sweetheart was covertly informed that the chair was there, and that it would certainly be vacant from 8 to 9 nightly unless she should consent to fill it, and that it was big enough for two.

The chair is now fully occupied each evening, the lovemaking is not neglected, and yet all the trains and wildcats and wayfarers are properly watched and flagged.—Philadelphia Record.

She Routed the Dog Catchers.

Mrs. R. C. Foster, wife of Commissioner of Elections Foster of Kansas City, Kan., had a tilt with the dog catchers, and by exhibiting courage gained a victory. Mrs. Foster saw the dog catchers coax her water spaniel into the street and wire it. They had it in the wagon before she got out of the house. When she reached the sidewalk, she demanded the return of the dog. "You can't get it till you pay $1," said the head dog catcher. "Well, you wait here a moment," said Mrs. Foster, and she went into the house. When she returned, the dog catchers were sitting on the wagon box. Mrs. Foster walked to the gate, and drawing a revolver said: "Now, I will give you three minutes to turn that dog over to me. One—two— I will shoot with the next count." The head dog catcher ceased to smile. "Well, I ain't afraid of her," said the head dog catcher, but he opened the door and released the dog.—Kansas City Star.

A Corner In Lilacs.

A young man entered the shop of an Oakland florist and asked, "Do you want any lilacs today?" "Yes, bring me half a dozen bunches of white ones."

When the young man had gone, the florist said: "That young man is a born speculator—a natural business man. Pretty nearly all the lilacs in Oakland were failures this year because they made the mistake of starting to bloom last fall during a warm spell and got nipped by the frost. As soon as this young man found that out, he slipped down to San Jose, went to every person who had a lilac bush in his yard, contracted for the blooms, and now he has a corner on the lilac trade of San Francisco and Oakland."—Oakland (Cal.) Enquirer.

When His Highness Comes.

The report that the Prince of Wales is to come to Newport this summer will boom spring housecleaning and give an extra dignity to the butlers and flunkies who may wait upon his "royal 'ighness" when he arrives in all his glory. —Philadelphia Press.

For the Olympic Games.

Five hundred thousand drachmas, or $100,000, have been given to the fund for the Olympic games by M. Averof, a Greek merchant of Alexandria. He wishes the money to be used to put the Stadlion, the running course, in order.

"I WOULD RATHER DIE!"

On the third floor of an ordinary lodging house in the City of Brooklyn was found the body of a lodger, with a revolver by his side and a bullet in his head. In his pocket was found a book in which was written:

"I am tired of life because I am suffering from consumption. I would try to work but it is useless while I have no hope of getting better."

What a commentary on our boasted civilization! A poor wretch, suffering from what he supposed was an incurable disease, snuffs out his flickering life with a bullet. Where did he get the idea that his disease was incurable? From an old-time theory which modern investigation has exploded. Many diseases may be considered incurable, but that does not make them so. During the past few years scientists have discovered, in the tuberculosis germs, the cause of consumption. Their investigations have found a cure for the malady, in Ozone and Guaiacol. These agents destroy the germs which produce the disease Compounded with pure Cod Liver Oil, they form Ozomulsion, which is sold by all Druggists. This remedy cures consumption and all lung troubles. It first destroys the cause of disease—the poisonous germs which produce it—and then restores the patient to perfect health. The Ozone and Guaiacol kill the germs. The Cod Liver Oil provides the flesh and strength. That is the principle on which this medicine works. It is both rational and reasonable; and it is doing more for the cure of lung troubles than any other preparation.

CITIZENS ARE EXCITED

Over an Onslaught on Gravestones In a Pawtucket Cemetery.

Appears to Have Been Purely Malicious Mischief.

Seventy Graves Desecrated Without the Least Regard to Ownership.

PAWTUCKET, April 29.—The people of this city were intensely excited yesterday morning by the discovery that vandals had operated in the Mineral Spring avenue cemetery Saturday night.

The devastation wrought surpassed anything of the kind ever known here, for headstones, slabs and pedestals were torn up, broken and scattered broadcast about the avenues and upon the graves, 70 graves being desecrated by actual count.

The vandals evidently entered the cemetery on the side near the Consolidated railroad, and made an onslaught on the stones regardless of who they belonged to, for they followed a course which led through the center of the cemetery and went out at the gate on Conant street.

Attributed to Drunkards.

A resident on that street heard noises in the cemetery at 1 and again at 3, and it is thought a drunken gang must have taken possession of the place.

Blood was upon several of the stones, and it is evident that some of the party cut their hands by coming in contact with the jagged edge of a marble slab.

None of the monuments were disturbed and in some instances where the stones were too firmly set the scoundrels were obliged to leave, although they left marks of an attempt to overturn them.

Several pieces of broken marble were thrown through the windows of Dr. Beaudry's residence, a short distance from the cemetery.

The police are working on the case, with no tangible clew as yet.

American Citizenship Extolled.

BOSTON, April 29.—Archbishop Ireland lectured at the Boston theater last night, in aid of the Working Boys' home, on "American Citizenship." He said in part: "Never was there a title which meant so much as 'I am an American citizen.' What shall be the future of the republic? Let her children say. What she needs is good citizenship. This and nothing else will perpetuate the republic. Those who obey the ten commandments are quick to respond to their country's call. But if intemperance and impurity prevail, the shadow has begun to fall upon the land. Citizens are accustomed to divide into parties, which have their uses in controlling each other. But a good citizen party is inferior to country. Be Republicans or Democrats, but first of all be Americans."

Killed by Gas.

BOSTON, April 29.—Horace E. Daniels and a woman were found dead in bed Saturday afternoon, both having died from asphyxiation. The police are of the opinion that both committed suicide, although in come respects the little evidence at hand does not contradict a theory that murder and suicide were committed.

More Must Be Killed.

READING, Mass., April 29.—Seventeen cows have been killed in North Reading by Cattle Inspector Hame. Of this number 16 were found to have tuberculosis. The lungs of a 5-weeks'-old calf were found to contain hunches of tuberculosis, and the inspectors say that there are 350 animals here which will probably have to be killed.

Thought to Be Murder.

PORTLAND, April 29.—Hugh McGuire was found two weeks ago in the entryway of the Friendly Inn, suffering from a wound in the back of his head. He was sent to a hospital, where he died. It has since transpired that McGuire was struck with a blunt instrument. It was probably a case of murder.

Said to Constitute Treason.

PROVIDENCE, April 29. — The Textile union, which has been considering the advisability of forbidding its members to be enrolled in the state militia, has been informed by a state official that any such action would be a death blow to the union, as it would be treason, punishable by law.

An Extraordinary Case.

BOSTON, April 29. — The case of Miss Mary E. Bartlett against the estate of the late Dr. Henry J. Bigelow, to recover $175,000 for alleged breach of contract to marry, will come up for the second time in the Middlesex county civil court at the coming term.

Little Fellow Set Free.

MALDEN, April 29.—C. E. Gammons, aged 11 years, was arraigned on the charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Newman Sederquest, a playmate. The evidence showed that the shooting was accidental, and the boy was discharged.

Couldn't Control Appetite.

BRIDGEPORT, April 29.—Charles K. Belknap, a theatrical manager, was a graduate of the Keeley institute, but had gone back to his old habits again. He went to an institute at White Plains, Saturday, where his sudden death occurred.

Fell Under Train.

WINDSOR, Vt., April 29.—John Phillips, station master at Putney, in stepping from the cars to the platform, slipped under the cars. One leg was cut off and he was terribly bruised about the body. He lived but three hours.

Bridgeport Bell Blessed.

BRIDGEPORT, April 29.—Bishop Tierney and Catholic clergy from all parts of the state took part yesterday in the ceremony of blessing the new bell at St. Augustine's church. St. Michael's was the name selected for the new bell.

Bicycles and Poultry Assessable.

BROCKTON, April 29.—The board of assessors have decided to tax bicycles this year, and poultry, which has always been exempt from taxation, will be also assessed.

Careless Handling of a Rifle.

BANGOR, April 29. — Michael Moran, aged 14, was probably fatally shot by the accidental discharge of a rifle in the hands of a companion. The boys were hunting for Mayflowers and had a small 22-caliber rifle with them.

Jumped From Three-Story Window.

HOLYOKE, April 29.—Mrs. Bridget Osterhoust, aged 69, killed herself by leaping headlong from a third-story window to the pavements below, death resulting almost instantly. She had been insane for some time.

Norwalk Mills Raise Wages.

NORWALK, April 29.—The wages at the Norwalk woolen mills have been raised on par with those paid before the business depression of last year, when they were reduced 20 per cent.

Troubled Conscience Relieved.

BOSTON, April 29.—Mayor Curtis found in an envelope in his mail on Saturday four $50 bills, with a note which read "Conscience fund. Please deliver to the city treasurer."

Fell From Windmill.

SPRINGFIELD, April 29.—Joseph Sawyer, while painting a new windmill tank on a farm in West Springfield, fell from his ladder and, striking on his head, broke his neck.

New England Briefs.

Archibald D. Chisholm of the Boston Herald staff is dead.

The jury in the Bilbruck will case at Portsmouth failed to agree.

Rev. Daniel March, D.D., of Woburn celebrated his 50th anniversary in the ministry.

The farm buildings of Charles Foster at West Biddeford were burned to the ground. Loss, $3500.

Lasters at the Portsmouth Shoe company's factory went out and a general strike is threatened.

Woonsocket has disposed of $150,000 water works improvement bonds to M. W. Harris & Son of Boston at $104.41.

The Fall River public library trustees have voted to accept a lot of land owned by Sarah S. Brayton as a site for a new library building. The price is $50,000, one-half the value of the land.

Endeavorers' Plea to Satolli.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., April 29.—The recent attacks made by Father Phelan, the Roman Catholic priest, of St. Louis, and editor of the Western Watchman, on the members of the Christian Endeavor societies of the United States, have created considerable feeling here. Rev. J. P. Dawson yesterday made a reply from the pulpit to the charges, during the course of which he denounced Father Phelan in the warmest terms. A petition was signed by nearly every one in the building, calling the attention of Mgr. Satolli "to the wicked and false and slanderous statements published by Father Phelan as being unparalleled in their baseness and enormity, and asking that the creature from which it emanated be degraded, unfrocked and deposed from the high position which he has so recklessly disgraced."

Tennessee's Cubernatorial Fight.

NASHVILLE, April 29.—The gubernatorial investigating committee's report finds that illegal votes were cast for Turney and Evans. The losses and gains for each candidate in the country districts investigated are given, and the committee reports that 22,000 illegal votes were cast by both parties. After making proper deductions from the vote of each candidate shown by the face of the returns, Governor Turney has a plurality of 2358 votes over Mr. Evans. Seven Democrats signed the report. The five Republican members will file a minority report.

In Waller's Behalf.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Ex-Congressman Langston, attorney of ex-Consul Waller, is determined to push the case with all the power he possesses. He says: "We propose to maintain the concessions obtained by Mr. Waller in Madagascar. The whole purpose of the prosecution and persecution of Waller by the French government was to despoil him of the concessions he procured. Then we intend to force the French government to pay to Waller an indemnity commensurate with the persecution he has undergone."

Naval Veterans' Secretary Dead.

BROOKLYN, April 29.—George Bostwick, national secretary of the National Association of Naval Veterans of the United States, died here yesterday of pneumonia. He was born at New Haven in 1845. On the breaking out of the war he enlisted in the navy, receiving an honorable discharge at the close of the rebellion. For five years he had been secretary of the National Association of Naval Veterans.

THE FUTURE OF JAPAN

Outlined by That Nation's Representative In the United States.

Her People Imbued With Patriotic Principles.

Rapid Strides In the Interests of Order and Complete Civilization.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Today's issue of The North American Review (May number) contains a most interesting contribution from Mr. Kurino, the Japanese minister at Washington, on "The Future of Japan."

He acknowledges that the Japanese have received from the United States proof of a spirit of altruism rare, if not unique, in the intercourse of nations, but he points out that the interest which Americans have hitherto taken in the East has been in the main sentimental. He thinks there are signs, however, that this is now happily giving way to the distinct recognition of the fact that no Western power has greater or more vital interest in Eastern affairs than the United States.

Mr. Kurino thinks that the great advantages achieved in the struggle with China must be regarded either as the ultimate aim of the Japanese people or as the consummation of their hopes. If they have recently attracted the world's notice by their martial prowess, it is simply because war is spectacular. But in truth the Japanese are animated by the wish to show that they are capable of triumphs in peace as well as victorious in war. In fact, the military affairs have been developed only as an indispensable adjunct to the national warfare.

Mr. Kurino shows how the military power of the country grew out of the legislation which provided for general conscription among all classes of Japanese. This spread abroad among the people at large a lively and patriotic

Interest In the Army and Navy.

The most significant event which has occurred in recent years in Japan is the establishment of a constitutional and parliamentary form of government. Some of the critics of Japan have assumed that this step was the result, if not of a sudden whim, at least of a resolve hastily taken and quickly carried into execution. Here, however, the critics have gone astray.

The regime of the Shoguns was one under which the mikado and the people already had suffered. The emperor had been deprived of the direct control of the empire, and the people had suffered under a despotism which had concerned itself with the most trivial affairs of private life. On the downfall of the Shiogunate in 1868 the emperor assumed the power of the prerogative of honor, and assured to the people a fuller measure of personal liberty and a more direct participation in the affairs of the government. The most careful efforts were made to determine in what manner the constitutional government could be best acted on.

Various changes in the methods of administering public affairs were made in the years intervening between his majesty's declaration of his intention to promulgate a constitution and establish a parliament and its consummation of that purpose. Prefecturate and municipal assemblies were established, each having a certain control of local affairs and serving to educate the people in the exercise of their franchises, and it was not until 1890 that the constitution and the parliament became accomplished facts. The experimental stage has now been passed and constitutional government is now one of the Recognized Institutions of the Country.

The patriotic passport which the parliament has rendered to the government at home and abroad is the best possible evidence that that body is capable of exercising its prerogatives.

Whatever the result of the new order of things may be, it will only affect the people who are engaged with a problem involving solely their own welfare and trying to work it out for their own best good. The adoption of Western civilization and modern progress have not been inspired by the desire for novelty, but by the purpose to take advantage of whatever was best adapted to supply the necessities of national development.

One of the most significant factors to be taken into account in any forecast of the future of Japan is the change in the treaty relations existing between Japan and the Western powers. The conditions from which the old treaties resulted have entirely disappeared. The difficulty has been in the presumed necessity for maintaining the jurisdiction at capitulations which absolved foreigners from trial in Japan by native courts and punishment under native law, and were rendered necessary, as Mr. Marcy stated, by the fact that cruel and unusual punishment was inflicted under the laws of most Oriental countries.

Certainly for the last 20 years there has been no necessity in Japan for such provisions, and yet, instead of being relaxed with the lessening need, they have, if anything, been strengthened and increased. In point of fact, foreign life and property is as safe in every part of Japan as it would be in London or New York. Complete systems of codified laws, based upon the best methods, are in successful operation, while the judiciary is not only competent and educated, but entirely independent of executive control.

Sensational Murder Case.

GUTHRIE, O. T., April 29. — W. H. Thorn, president of an investment company, and C. C. Seely, a prominent contractor, are charged with the murder of Frank Ledgers. William Knowles, a member of the police force, and Frank Thorn, a negro porter, are also charged with being implicated in the murder, the object of which was robbery.

Japs Not In a Hurry.

BERLIN, April 29.—There is no foundation for the statement that Japan has already answered the protest made by Russia, Germany and France against the annexation of any portion of the Chinese mainland.

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Sunday in the Churches of Quincy and Vicinity.

DR. EVERETT AT FIRST CHURCH.

Dr. Angier Discourses on Patriotism at Presbyterian Church.

In the First Presbyterian church, the Rev. L. H. Angier of Boston, preached both morning and evening. In the evening he spoke on "Patriotism." In giving out the hymn he made a few remarks on the beauty of clear enunciation, of which he himself is a good example. His speaking was copiously interspersed with patriotic anecdotes and reminiscences. He recited from memory one of his Sunday School tasks learned over seventy-five years ago from Matt. 2:1, 10, and compared Bethlehem, the birthplace of our Saviour, to Lexington, the birthplace of American Independence. His auditors of Scotch leanings he pleased with appreciative references to Bruce's victorious battles for freedom and Burns genius for verse. From Burns he quoted:

"When soon or late they reach that coast,
O'er life's rough ocean driven,
May they rejoice, no wanderer lost,
A family in heaven!"

The Rev. Edward A. Robinson of the Wollaston Congregational society exchanged on Sunday with the Rev. Mr. Hardy of the Holliston Congregational society.

At the Universalist church, Sunday morning, Rev. A. E. White preached a very interesting discourse, taking for his subject Rev. Hosea Ballou, or as he was more familiarly called Father Ballou; whose 124th anniversary occurs tomorrow, Tuesday, April 30.

Rev. Oliver M. Fisher of Atlantic preached at the West Quincy Methodist church Sunday morning in exchange with the pastor. He took for his text, 1 Kings, 9:19, "What doest thou here Elijah?" and gave a very interesting discourse upon the subject, "Places."

He spoke of the memories and associations which cling about certain places, of the lessons which we may learn from these associations and especially should we care for, attend and help along the church, the sacred place of the town, state and nation.

The Neighborhood prayer meeting of the Wollaston Baptist society will be held on Tuesday evening at Mr. Howard Gannett's.

The Wollaston Congregational society suffers a great loss in the retirement of its organist, Miss Minnie Parker Prescott. Miss Prescott, it will be remembered, will be married to Mr. Amos T. Leavitt at the church in June. Miss Prescott will be succeeded as organist by Miss Ada F. Hinckley of Wollaston. Miss Hinckley has been for some time studying under Herman P. Chelius of Boston. On Sunday, May 5, the new quartette will sing. The quartette consists of Mrs. Ralph F. Alvord of Newton, soprano; Miss Stella M. Haines, contralto; Mr. Charles P. Tanner, tenor; and Mr. Fred K. Belcher, bass. Mrs. Alford is studying under George J. Parker of Boston; Mr. Tanner under Charles B. Dickey of Wollaston; and Miss Haines and Mr. Belcher under Sumner Coolidge of Boston.

The Sunday School concert of two weeks ago at the West Quincy M. E. church will be repeated next Sunday evening. The Light House service will be used.

A good sized audience welcomed Dr. William Everett at the First church Sunday. Dr. Everett is always an eloquent speaker and his sermons are listened to with pleasure and attention by his hearers. Sunday he took for his text the words found in Acts 1: 6. The singing is also a feature now at the First church and adds greatly to the service. In the afternon vesper services were held at which the choir rendered a special musical programme.

Rev. Mr. Parker of Cambridge preached an excellent sermon at the Wollaston Baptist church on Sunday morning. At the close of the service the ordinance of baptism was administered.

At the Calvary Baptist church Sunday the pastor, Rev. C. A. Parker, spoke from Rev. 1:11, "I am the last."

GRANITE CHIPS.

Death of an Inventor—The Blacksmiths' Bill—Improvements.

Such firms as Thomas & Miller, McGrath Bros., Long & Sanders and Swithin Bros., that deal almost exclusively in retail work, are putting on many new men, and pushing their orders for Memorial Day.

Joss Brothers are building a large polishing shop in the rear of their sheds, and intend to stock it with the latest and most approved machinery. They have lately added to their cutting establishment and give many evidences of enterprising activity.

Reports are being circulated with more or less claims of authority, that one or two of the Quincy Granite firms are in rather embarrassed financial straits. Considering the prolonged depression in the business, it is not surprising that this condition prevails. Indeed few industries have been so little disturbed by failures as the granite trade in this locality.

Quite a number of Quincy granite workers are being employed on the new stone crossing that the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad is building near Brockton. The further extension of these improvements would be hailed as a decided boon for the granite interests.

The death of one of Quincy's best known mechanics Mr. Maxwell McIntosh from a complication of pleurisy and pneumonia was reported on Sunday morning. Mr. McIntosh had not been feeling well throughout the whole winter but only within the last few days was his condition thought to be critical. He leaves a widow and five children. The deceased was a skilful and ingenious worker. Last year he patented an iron straitedge that is being very extensively used in the trade, and which is claimed by experts to be greatly superior to anything of the kind hitherto introduced.

Last Friday, a joint meeting of representatives from the executive committees of the manufacturers' and workmen's associations was held to consider the still undecided points of the blacksmiths' agreements. Not only do the committees fail to agree upon any basis of settlement, but up to the present they have not been able to unite upon the choice of a disinterested party, to act as referring arbitrator, and whose decisions under the peculiar condition of the case, would necessarily be final. The real questions involved, seem to be becoming overshadowed by the less important trifles that have been introduced. In a city like Quincy, with so many citizens whose reputations for sagacity and honest integrity are unimpeachable, it is surely not a hard task to name one who could command the confidence of both parties interested. To further prolong the difficulty is a libel upon the intelligence of all those chosen to devise ways to end it.

JOSIAH B. STETSON DEAD.

He Commits Suicide on Steamer Cleopatra off Marseilles.

A cable dispatch to the Herald from Marseilles, dated Saturday, announces the death of a former resident of Quincy as follows:

Josiah B. Stetson, aged 55, a professor of music, lately a resident at Cairo, shot himself in the smoking room of the steamer Cleopatra, shortly before the vessel arrived here.

It is said that mental trouble was the cause of the sucide, and that Mr. Stetson had been acting in a strange manner on board the steamer, after leaving Alexandria. The policy taken out in the Mutual Life Insurance Company, dated April 17, 1890, gives Boston as his former place of residence. His effects have been handed over to the American vice-consul here, and he will be buried tomorrow.

Mr. Stetson was a son of the late Dr. Stetson, and an only brother of Mr. James H. Stetson, one of the present board of Water Commissioners. He has not resided in this city for fifteen year. He was for some years organist at the First church. Many regarded him as a bachelor but he was a married man, although he and Mrs. Stetson lived apart by agreement.

THE ADAMS MANSION.

Late Residence of C. F. Adams Regarded as a Model Club House.

Many have recently had an opportunity to view the mansion on President's hill, recently vacated by Charles Francis Adams, and have admired it greatly. The following description is from the Herald:

The mansion contains 24 rooms, finished in hardwood, with a commodious stable adjacent.

There is a tennis court on the wide lawns in front of the house and golf links in the rear.

The main entrance to the mansion opens into a high studded hall. The entrance to the main room is on the right of the hall. In this room, which is finished in antique oak, there is a large open fireplace on the south side. The wainscoting and ceiling are massive panel work of the 16th century style, and the attractiveness of the room is enhanced by the light falling through a beautiful stained glass window at one end.

On the left of the main hall there is a large reception room, connected with which there is a handsomely finished room, formerly used by Mr. Adams as a library.

China closets, butlers' pantries and other convenient lockers abound on all of the floors.

A commodious and well-appointed kitchen is located at the rear of the first floor.

A massive winding stairway leads from the main hall to the second floor. The hall, rooms, bath rooms, etc., on the second floor correspond in elegance to those on the first floor. There are two bath rooms, each finished in glazed white tilting, fitted with porcelain-lined tubs and white marble lavatories, and are examples of fine sanitary plumbing.

The third floor is similar in design to the second floor. Each room contains an open fireplace.

The view from the windows on this floor, as well as from the roof, is one of the finest in Massachusetts.

SUNDAY NIGHT FIRE.

$2,000 in Bonds Among the Property Destroyed.

The fire department was called out at 11 o'clock Sunday night by an alarm from Box 46 to extinguish a stubborn blaze in the Lamb block, numbered 140 to 146 Copeland street.

The building was occupied on the street floor by John Grimaldi, an Italian barber, and his family occupied part of the rooms upstairs.

Mr. Grimaldi was away at the time and his wife discovered the fire, which evidently caught from a lamp, and gave the alarm by her cries.

The house was full of smoke, and while she succeeded in getting out safely with her children they were unable so save any of the house furnishings.

The department from the central station made a quick run and upon its arrival soon had the fire under control.

The loss on the building will not be over $300, and Grimaldi's loss on furniture will foot up $500.

Besides this Grimaldi had a lot of Italian government bonds amounting in American money to about $2000, which were destroyed.

These bonds Grimaldi says were not registered and he fears they can not be reclaimed, as he has not the numbers even, and they were in a trunk that was destroyed.

ADAMS NOT IN IT.

Cambridge High and Latin School, 27; Adams Academy, 11.

The Academy boys suffered an overwhelming defeat at the hands of their opponents on Saturday, the score standing 27 to 11. The batting of the visitors was very heavy, and this alone would have won them the game, but the playing of the home nine was extremely loose, and this made the defeat more disappointing. The score tells the story of the game:

The South Quincys will play the Adams Academy on Saturday on Merry Mount Park. A good game is expected.

Saturday the Young Giants defeated the Young Eagles 13 to 9, at grounds corner Canal and Chestnut streets.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co, Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.

Formosa In a Turmoil.

HONG KONG, April 29.—Serious disturbances have broken out in Formosa. On April 22 the Chinese soldiers killed their general. The governor's body-guard attacked the mutinous soldiers, and 30 men were cut to pieces and 50 wounded. The Chinese artillery threaten to fire on any vessel leaving the island with treasure. The savages are coming down from the hills to attack the Chinese and others, and the position of the whites on the island is critical.

Ensign Perhaps Fatally Hurt.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—The cruiser Olympia was coming to anchor when the chain became unshackled and ran out. A big part of it struck Ensign Allison on the leg, shattering and mangling it so that it only hung by a few shreds. The leg was amputated. It is not known whether the wound is fatal.

Killed by Whitecaps.

SEVIERVILLE, Tenn., April 29.—Thomas Gibson, a well-to-do farmer, was shot down in cold blood by whitecaps. Sixty-three shots entered Gibson's body. The whole county is excited over the deed. Gibson had received a whitecap notice a few days ago, but had not heeded its warnings.

Redskins on the Warpath.

WINNIPEG, April 29.—Reports come in from St. Johns, N. D., just over the Manitoba boundary, that 1500 Indians and half-breeds are on the warpath and 700 women and children are in tents on the prairie. Troops from Fort Totten are ordered to St. Johns.

Crack Cruisers Fixing Up.

NEW YORK, April 29.—United States cruisers Columbia and New York have arrived at the navy yard at Brooklyn to prepare for participation in the ceremonies at the opening of the North sea and Baltic canal in June.

Government Troops' "Victory."

MADRID, April 29.—Rebels pillaged a small township on Wednesday last. They were pursued by government troops, and in a skirmish that ensued the insurgents lost one killed and three wounded.

UNDER A CLOUD.

Station Agent Safford Enlarges Freight Bills.

ONE FIRM OUT ABOUT $200.

Others Probably Have Been Victims of His Manipulations.

Some days ago the LEDGER was aware that Harry H. Safford, recently station agent, or really freight agent, at Quincy Adams was under a cloud, and that he had been removed from the employ of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Developments show that he has collected more than he should on certain freight.

Up to a few weeks ago Safford had been employed at the Quincy Adams station, and has forwarded and received considerable freight, few stations on the road doing a larger freight business.

For some time past Malnatti Bros. have been aware that their freight bills were larger than they should be, and sought legal advice of Lawyer McAnarney, who advised them to obtain an Italian accountant. This they did and things were discovered to be wrong.

The officials of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad were notified, but they took no notice of it. After waiting a reasonable time and receiving no reply, Mr. McAnarney threatened suit, which resulted in the road taking some action.

Safford was transferred to the South Boston station and the road sent out an auditor, who took Malnati Bros.' receipts and went over Safford's books and discovered that the firm had overpaid $200.

Safford was thereupon discharged and a formal demand made upon him for the money.

Malnati Bros. are not disposed to push the matter but they want their money returned, and have given Safford until Tuesday to return it or be prosecuted.

When accused of the crime Safford is said to have acknowedged the theft. He said when he first went to work for the railroad he lost $100 of its money, which was taken out of his pay, and he determined to get it back and took this method.

He further says that the amount taken during the past year has not exceeded $36. This may be so, but the belief is that the $200 taken from Malnati Bros. represents only a part of the money taken, and that the exact amount will never be known unless some of the other firms at South Quincy became suspicious by the recent disclosures and demand an investigation.

Safford's method was an ingenious one and might have been carried on for an indefinite period had not Malnati Bros.' suspicions been aroused.

When freight arrived for different parties, Safford, instead of presenting the bill sent with the freight, would make out a new bill which he would present for payment.

Safford has retained Walter P. Grant, Esq., of Boston, as counsel.

The affair has created a profound sensation at South Quincy, where Safford is well known, and up to the present time has had an excellent reputation, and nothing but sympathy is expressed for his family.

This morning when the affair became generally known there was quite a little excitement among the other granite firms at South Quincy who have been doing business at this station and several of them have commenced to go over their freight bills for a few years past.

An effort of the LEDGER to obtain a personal interview with Mr. Safford has been unsuccessful as he is in Boston today.

HEROIC WOMEN.

Their Struggle Against a Common and Merciless Enemy.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Woman's heroism is not enhanced by fearlessness or enterprise in time of danger, but her courage and fortitude are unquestionable in time of suffering. Think of the woman who smiles and tries to make those around her cheerful, while she is racked with the excruciating tortures of womb trouble.

Think of one who, day by day, begs her physician to help her, while the torture of tortures could not add to her misery.

Does she yield? No! She endures her agonies, and meets her friends with cheerfulness.

This is woman's heroism, and few men realize how prevalent they are. Physicians rarely render relief in such cases.

After twenty years of success, with ever-increasing popularity, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is, to-day, woman's only sure and safe refuge from inflammation, ulceration, falling and displacement of the womb, ovarian trouble, leucorrhœa, painful and suppressed menstruations, kidney trouble, nervous prostration, and all manner of distressing and life-sapping female diseases.

"O my sisters, believe what is told you of this wonderful medicine! Before I took it I had falling of the womb and leucorrhœa. My womb came down so badly I could not walk across the floor; the pain was excruciating; now all is so changed, and I so happy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved me from a life of misery. Don't, don't suffer, I say, when a cure is so easily obtained."—MRS. WILLIAM HOWE, 163 Antoin Street, Detroit, Mich.

NEW UNION OF LABOR

AMERICAN INDUSTRIAL UNION JUST FORMED AT CHICAGO.

Union of All Working Folk—No Distinctions of Sex, Creed, Birth, Color or Trade Recognized—Eight Hour Law the Objective Point.

The American Industrial union, meant to draw its membership from every walk of life, has been formed at Chicago. At the same time national officers and directors were elected, and the organization put in shape to plant its standard in every city, village and hamlet in the United States.

The new union declares for organization for every one who works, no matter what the creed, sex, birth or color may be.

The union will start out with a membership of nearly 5,000, most of whom are telegraphers. The first union was organized in Chicago four weeks ago, and it has since been holding secret meetings in order to give the organization a chance to get some kind of a membership. It has nearly 300 members.

In its declaration of principles the most striking is that which seeks to establish a universal eight hour day, and the time for the supreme effort is set for September, 1897. It is held by the promoters of the union that it will be so strong then that it will be irresistible and will be able to put the eight hour day in force without difficulty.

It is set forth that the establishment of the eight hour day would mean the employment of 20 per cent more workmen than now find work, and the further claim is made that there will not then be an idle person in the country who desires to work. The deduction is made that with all at work wages will rise, and with wages higher prices will be higher.

The union declares for the settlement of all disputes by arbitration, and the referendum is to govern in all final decisions, as it will also govern in elections of officers. It is said that where women do the work of men they should receive the same wages as would be paid men, and the union pledges itself to work in this direction.

The first national convention is to be held in Chicago in January, 1896. Chicago is to be the general headquarters, and all subsequent conventions are to be held there.

It is designed to establish employment bureaus in every prominent city in the United States, and the services of these bureaus will be free to members. Records of vacant positions and applications for work will be interchangeable, so that through the bureaus a man in New York may secure a position in Chicago or California.

It is also meant to establish practical co-operation along various lines, so that the union will at all times be in a position to give employment to any of its members who may be in need of it. No person addicted to the use of liquor may hold an elective office, and no bondholder, member of a corporation or trust can hold membership. Politics is barred, the members being expected to vote for the best man on all occasions.

PHONETIC TESTAMENT.

Mr. Mason's Idea For Making English Easy For Foreigners.

Robert W. Mason of Springfield, Mass., has invented a phonetic alphabet which, he says, is a marvel of ingenuity and simplicity. He has reproduced in phonetic spelling the whole of the New Testament. He proposes to run in parallel columns the plain English and his phonetic translation. He contends that this will be of great assistance to the foreigner in enabling him to understand English and will also facilitate the education of small children.

In the first part of this fin de siecle New Testament of Mr. Mason's will be four pages of decidedly novel matter. It consists of pictorial definitions. The foreigner, not being familiar with our language, would not know, for instance, what cow means. So Mr. Mason spells it out, "c-o-w," and prints the picture of a cow right alongside. In the same way he illustrates "dog," "bug," "tree" and several hundred other words.

In his phonetic system Mr. Mason joins together certain letters which, when they appear in conjunction, are sounded as one letter. For instance, "ashamed" is rendered phonetically with the "sh" joined together and the silent "e" between the "m" and "d" dropped entirely, making it read "ashamd."—New York Herald.

He Believes In Free Wool.

Webster Flanagan, the Texas gentleman who got himself into trouble by trying to import 20,000 sheep from Mexico without regard to the customs duties, will be recalled as the statesman who made a national reputation in congress by his inquiry, "If we are not here for the offices, what are we here for?" He is said to be of an acquiring as well as inquiring mind.—New York Mail and Express.

Two Great Comedians.

"This," says a Chicago paper, concluding a long article on Chauncey Depew, "is a slight picture of the most popular man in the United States." Nonsense! Joseph Jefferson is a much more popular man than Mr. Depew and a far abler comedian.—Kansas City Star.

The Shower.

Fall, gentle rain, in blessed, brimming drops.
Cool with thy kiss the city's burning streets,
Moisten the meadows where the hot sun beats
And fall refreshing on the thirsty crops.

The warm wind for thy cordial greeting stops,
The panting flock a merry welcome bleats;
The famished fields unfold a thousand sweets;
The grass bends dimpling on the mountain tops!

Fall, gentle rain, on the rejoicing land!
The incense rises from the dusty plain;
The valley's violets, for a moment blurred,
Twinkle for joy, and where the live oaks stand
There rings a glad thanksgiving for the rain
In the wild music of the mocking bird!

BREEDING BUFFALOES.

Some of the Hybrids That Are Produced Are Fine Animals.

A famous Montana character is Charlie Allard of Ravalli. Mr. Allard is famous mainly because he is one of the owners of the largest herd of buffalo in the country, and no man living has given to these now rare animals more patient study and attention than he.

"The coldest storms of winter do not trouble them," he says, "for their thick, shaggy coats are windproof. During the heavy snows and blizzards they climb the hills, and turning their breasts to the wind defy the storm. They feed where the snow is thinnest. Cattle are driven before a storm and will often go with a wind 60 or 100 miles from the accustomed range unless they reach a sheltered spot. Horses turn their backs to a storm, but the buffaloes face it every time. They seem to keep in about the same condition of flesh the year round and are as good eating in the spring as they are in the fall, and a buffalo steak is about as fine a morsel as ever a man made a meal of. About two years ago I purchased the Jones herd of buffalo, which was at Omaha. There were 31 of them in the herd, and we paid (for I have a partner now) $18,000 for the lot. Marchiel Pablo, a well known cattleman, has joined me in the business and for the past year has had entire charge of them, so that I do not know just exactly how many we have—about 140, I should judge, now, and by next fall there will be fully 200 of them.

"We have experimented in crossing buffalo with all breeds of cattle, and the results are most satisfactory. The Polled Angus stock when crossed with the buffalo produces a magnificent animal. The fur is finer and closer than that of the buffalo, and the meat is sweet and wholesome. We are producing as many of these animals as possible, but will not put any on the market for several years yet. We are not selling any buffalo either, for the reason that we need them all at present. We receive letters every day from museums, parks and shows wanting them in all quantities, and though we might dispose of one or two singly we have no pairs to sell.

"A good buffalo hide is worth $100 now in the market, and heads bring from $200 to $500 when mounted, and the value of these is steadily increasing, so that buffalo breeding is as good an investment as real estate. Our herd is about the only one I know of any size. There is a small one in the Texas panhandle, and these, with the few that roam in the national park, are the sole remnants of the thousands which roamed the prairies but a few years ago."—Anaconda (Mon.) Standard.

TWO INVENTIONS IN ONE.

The Kinetograph the Latest Marvel Turned Out by Edison.

"We are progressing, progressing," said Thomas A. Edison to a Boston Herald representative when informed that his retreat had been invaded for the purpose of getting information concerning the latest and greatest of his inventions, the one which is being eagerly awaited and which very few have had a chance to see—that is, the combination of the phonograph with the kinetoscope, the contrivance to which Mr. Edison applied the term kinetograph on this occasion.

"The object of this machine," he said, "is to afford the spectator two inventions in one—that is, two senses are simultaneously appealed to. Suppose, we will say, an opera is to be reproduced. The phonograph already repeats the sound. The kinetoscope afterward affords a view of the movements. Now, however, we wish to combine the two and combine them far more effectively than ever their distinct elements have heretofore been rendered by separate instruments.

"Thus, if one wished to hear and see the concert or the opera, it would only be necessary to sit down at home, look upon a scene and see the performance reproduced exactly in every movement and at the same time the voices of the players and singers, the music of the orchestra, the various sounds that accompany a performance of this sort, will be reproduced exactly. The end attained is a perfect illusion. One really hears and sees the play, because the conditions necessary to the suitable impressions upon the eye and ear are obtained."

LIKELY TO SETTLE UP.

Nicaragua Cannot Long Resist the Demands of Great Britain.

United States Facing Many Possible Complications.

Some Interesting Opinions From Diplomatic Sources In Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The situation in Nicaragua with the British occupying Corinto, and that port declared closed by the Nicaraguan government, presents many possible complications. From the best information obtainable it seems almost certain that the administration will not attempt any interference with the dispute between Nicaragua and Great Britain as long as the latter confines itself to the collection of the indemnity.

The United States always maintained in the past that European powers could, in their international dealings with South and Central American countries, conduct their disputes in their own way as long as they did not seek to overthrow existing governments, set up monarchies, or acquire territory. Such was the substance of the notice served by Secretary Seward on France and Great Britain with regard to Mexico in 1862.

If the occupancy of Corinto fails in its object, and Great Britain should declare war on Nicaragua, it is said that the administration would still decline to interfere, so long as the war was carried on not for the aggrandizement of Great Britain or the acquisition of territory, but for the sole purpose of collecting the indemnity. To go beyond that, however, the administration, it is said, would consider a violation of the Monroe doctrine also an express violation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty and it would not be tolerated.

It is pointed out that for the United States to interfere to prevent England from carrying out the present method of collecting the debt would be equivalent to declaring a virtual protectorate over Nicaragua and would commit this government to a policy with regard to the Central and Southern American countries that would keep her involved in endless broils with European powers. It would give these states the privilege of resisting just claims of other countries and taking refuge behind the skirts of the United States. In other words, all diplomatic correspondence relative to those states would practically be carried on through Washington. Besides, it would greatly embarrass this government in the enforcement of its own

Claims Against These Countries.

But it is not believed in official circles that Nicaragua will carry her resistance much further. Public sentiment in Nicaragua, it is believed, has compelled President Zelaya to make a show of resistance and to issue his appeal to the world, but it is confidently believed that rather than suffer the seizure of other ports or bombardment she will comply and pay the indemnity.

There is some difference of opinion here as to whether the declarations of Nicaragua that Corinto is closed as a port of entry will be recognized. It is plainly within the power of any country to close a port in time of peace, and Senator Morgan has expressed the opinion that in this way Nicaragua could prevent England from collecting revenue, but this country has always maintained, and in this we have been sustained by international custom, that in order to close the port an effective blockade must be sustained. England insisted upon this when the United States declared the Confederate ports closed during the war.

For the purpose of learning the real situation respecting affairs at Corinto, Dr. Guzman sent a telegram of inquiry to his government. Yesterday a dispatch came in reply to the minister of foreign affairs at Managua, confirming the report that the British are in possession, the dispatch saying: "Corinto is today under the British flag."

The minister does not know whether his government has declared Corinto a closed port, but he is of opinion that such steps have been resorted to. Dr. Guzman made a negative reply when asked whether he had any news as to whether his government had changed its attitude and had taken any steps to satisfy the demands set forth in the British ultimatum.

Friendly Aid Proffered.

Dispatches from London and Costa Rica make it evident that both the United States and the Central American republic were anxious to secure a peaceful settlement of the difficulty by the payment of the indemnity demanded by Great Britain for the expulsion of Consul Hatch.

President Yglesias of the republic of Costa Rica, if the cable advices are correct, offered to contribute a portion of the money, while the state department here, arranged for an extension of two weeks in which the money could be raised if Nicaragua would agree to settle on this basis.

Secretary Gresham drove out to Woodley yesterday afternoon and had a consultation with the president. It was thought that some official statement would be made, but, upon his return, the secretary declined to give out anything. The fact that the United States has been officially advised of the occupation of Corinto by the British is, however, definitely ascertained. From present indications, all the correspondence in the case will be held by the state department until the incident is closed.

Chitral Disturbers Captured.

SIMLA, April 29.—Sher Afzul, who, after the murder of his nephew, the Mehtar of Chitral, usurped the throne and besieged Dr. Robertson, was captured Saturday, together with his brothers and 300 of his followers. They are now in prison. The Khan of Diras is captured. It is expected that more of the family will be captured.

Double Murder and Suicide.

SUMTER, Or., April 29.—The dead bodies of Mrs. Waldt and her two children, aged 2 years and 8 months, respectively, were found in Powder river yesterday. The woman was driven to desperation by the ill-treatment of her husband, who drank to excess.

De Lome at Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The new Spanish minister, Senor E. Dupuy de Lome, has arrived in this city. His family are detained in Gibraltar by the illness of the oldest son, who has the scarlet fever.

Two Square Miles of Fire.

ALLEGAN, Mich., April 29.—Forest fires are raging west of here, and a territory of over two square miles has been burned over.

VIEWS HAVEN'T CHANGED.

Crisp Declared Himself For Free Coinage—As He Has Always Been.

ATLANTA, April 29.—Speaker Crisp, in an interview, declared for the free coinage of silver, and gave it as his opinion that the Democrats should nominate a western man for the presidency. Mr. Crisp said, among other things: "There should never have been any doubt as to my position on the question. I made a speech for free coinage 10 years ago. I stand to what I said then, and I have never varied.

SPEAKER CRISP.

"The majority of the American people in both political parties are in favor of restoration of free coinage of siver. In the next campaign the rehabilitation of silver will be the main and controlling issue upon which the Democracy will appeal to the people.

"The talk of Mr. Cleveland for a third term, under any conditions, has no basis. The people will not make that break in the record. His views on the financial questions are not shared by the people."

DIKE GAVE WAY.

More Than a Hundred Persons Perished In a Flood In France.

PARIS, April 29.—The fatalities caused by the breaking, on Saturday, of the great Bouzey dike in the Epinal district of the Vosges increase every hour. One hundred and fifteen deaths have already been reported, but only 50 bodies have been recovered. It is believed that the death list will be greatly in excess of the figures above given when all the districts devastated are heard from. It is supposed that many of the dead were swept into isolated places where it will be a long time before the bodies are found.

The whole region over which the thousands of tons of water swept in a resistless flood is strewn with every sort of wreckage, and the whole country presents a most dreadful aspect. In many places the crops were swept clean out of the ground, and the losses thus incurred will be very heavy.

All the municipal authorities are working ceaselessly in distributing relief and seeking to bring order out of the chaos prevailing. Over 50,000 persons from the towns and burough visited the scene of the disaster yesterday.

United States Mixing In.

VIENNA, April 29.—A cablegram from Tokio announces that the American envoy there is doing all in his power to make the envoys of Italy, Belgium, Austria, Spain and Holland help him persuade Count Ito, president of the Japanese council of ministers, to comply with the wish of Russia, France and Germany. It is also reported that the United States means to come forward with a proposition, according to which the convention, which interests only Russia and Great Britain, will be settled by those countries, while the difficulty regarding the annexation by Japan of the Liao-Tung territory will be put before a European conference. The dispatch adds that the mikado will convene a council to have a detailed discussion of the military situation in Japan discussed.

Widows and Orphans Must Suffer.

BUTTE, Mon., April 29.—The grand jury called to investigate the disastrous dynamite explosion of Jan. 15, by which 58 men were killed, refused to indict anyone, on the ground that they were unable to locate the responsibility upon any individual. Civil suits for damages aggregating $250,000 have been brought against the two hardware companies.

Supporters of White Metal.

MEMPHIS, April 29.—A free silver movement in opposition to the "sound money" convention, which is to meet here May 23, was begun here last night. Permanent organization was effected and resolutions were adopted favoring the free coinage of gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 by the United States, independent of the international agreement. A convention will be called May 2.

Killed His Brother-In-Law.

MILWAUKEE, April 29.—Ex-City Treasurer Luscombe is under arrest, charged with murder, for shooting his brother-in-law, Emil A. Sanger. The prisoner was released on $1,000 bail. Public sympathy seems to be with Luscombe. The murdered man had cruelly beaten his wife and threatened to kill Luscombe.

But One Man Drowned.

TOLEDO, April 29.—Captain Hayward and four of the men of the steamer Sadie Shepherd, which foundered and sunk outside of Maumee Bay, arrived in Toledo yesterday. They left the sinking steamer in a yawl just before she sunk and safely made the Michigan shore. William Jones, the cook, was drowned.

Messiah Cranks Indicted.

ROCKFORD, Ills., April 29.—The grand jury returned three indictments against George J. Schweinfurth, the pretended messiah, charging him with living in open adultery and fornication with three women, all angels at the famous "heaven." The women are also indicted on the same charge.

Triple Drowning Accident.

MARQUETTE, Mich., April 29.—Mrs. Mary Post, Mrs. P. Finley and little Ethel Finley were drowned in the Au Train river by a swift current driving the boat on a hidden ledge and capsizing it.

Fifty Per Cent Dividend.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The comptroller of the currency has declared a first dividend of 50 per cent in favor of the creditors of the Dover National bank of Dover.

Shutters Are Up.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Merchants' National bank of Rome, Ga., has closed its doors. The bank has a capital of $100,000.

THE ORIGINAL ARYAN.

I am the ancient Aryan,
And you have done me wrong.
I did not come from Hindustan—
I've been here all along.

I never traveled from the east
In huge successive waves.
You'll find your ancestors deceased
Inside your own old caves.

There my remains may now be sought,
Mixed up with mastodons,
Which very long with flints I fought
Before I fought with bronze.

In simple skins I wrapped me round
Ere mats I learned to make.
I dug my dwellings in the ground
Or reared them on a lake.

I had no pen, I'm sure of this,
Although you say I penned
All manner of theologies
In Sanskrit and in Zend.

My nature you've misunderstood.
When first I sojourned here,
I worshiped chunks of stone or wood;
My rites were rather queer.

The more my little ways you scan
The less you'll care to praise
And bless the dear old Aryan
Of neolithic days.

They've mixed me up till, I declare,
I hardly can report
Whether I first was tall and fair,
Or I was dark and short.

But on two things I take my stand
Through all their noise and strife—
I didn't come from Asia, and
I had no higher life. —Punch.

DECEIVED BY A DUDE.

How a $3,500,000 Bid by an Unknown Man Was Taken Seriously.

Samuel P. Schuckers died recently at Wooster, O. He was a brother of J. W. Schuckers, private secretary of Salmon P. Chase, and brother-in-law of John H. Oberly, ex-civil service commissioner. An interesting incident is recalled by Schuckers' death which has never found its way in the newspapers. The incident occurred a number of years ago, and during the time of the sale of the Lake Shore railroad at Cleveland it happened that Schuckers and John McSweeney, the great criminal lawyer, met at the sale. McSweeney had but a short time before made a great hit by his political speeches at Cleveland and Philadelphia and was attracting attention all over the country. At this particular time he was trying a case at Cleveland. Young Schuckers was in these days a veritable dude and very sprucy.

He went to Cleveland to have a time, as he always left Wooster to celebrate, and was having a good, glorious time on this particular occasion. He was small and wiry in stature and always carried a silk umbrella. It happened that he met McSweeney in the rotunda just as he had finished an argument and while the sale of the Lake Shore railroad was going on. They stopped for a moment at the edge of the excited crowd bidding in the road. There were a number of syndicates represented—foreign, Vanderbilts, Goulds and others. The bidding had reached $3,100,000. In a spirit of devilishness young Schuckers bid $3,500,000. In a moment a rush was made toward the new bidder, and a demand was made to know what syndicate he represented. His only reply was, with a wave of his silk umbrella, "Go away from me." The excited representatives of the other syndicates asked for a recess, which was granted, and in 20 minutes they came back, when the bid was raised to $4,000,000 and sold.

Mr. Schuckers' sprucy appearance and being in company with the great criminal lawyer had led them to believe he represented some secret syndicate who were trying to gain possession of the valuable railroad property.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Napoleon's Memory.

Napoleon had a wonderful memory. When emperor, he once surprised his council with his intimate knowledge of Roman law and was asked how he had obtained it. He stated that when a lieutenant he had once been placed under arrest and was in prison for two weeks. During that time the only book at his command was a treatise on Roman law. He sat down and in two weeks mastered the volume so completely that 20 years later he could repeat long passages from its pages. He never forgot a face or a name and would often greet private soldiers by their names, sometimes alluding to the march or the battle where he had seen them before. He kept in his head all the details of his military movements, and it was said of him that during the march to Italy and Marengo he knew where every pound of the supplies for the use of the army was located. It is said that he remembered the name of every officer to whom he ever issued a commission.

Orderly Music.

A colonel in the French army, who had a great eye for neatness, but not much of an ear for music, took occasion one day to compliment his bandmaster on the appearance of his men. "Their uniforms are neat," said the colonel, "and their instruments are nicely polished and kept in order, but there is one improvement that I must insist upon."

"What is it, colonel?"

"You must train your men, when they perform, to lift their fingers all at exactly the same time and at regular intervals on their instruments, so—one, two! One, two!"—London Answers.

Sure to Be the Case.

"I can't tell you," said the experienced suburbanite in reply to the question of his new neighbor, "when the next train goes, but I can tell you what your chances of catching it are."

"What are they?" inquired the new neighbor eagerly.

"Well, if you run as hard as you can," said the experienced resident, "you have 15 minutes to wait, and if you merely walk you'll find the train just pulling out."—Chicago News.

Mozart had a very sweet voice, though it was by no means strong. His conversational tones were well modulated and pleasing.

WILL BE A LOCKOUT.

The Decision Finally Arrived at by Manufacturers of Olneyville.

Operatives Must Now Play a Waiting Game

As Their Employers Are Keeping Precise Date of Lockout a Secret.

PROVIDENCE, April 30.—When the Manufacturers' club met at Narragansett hotel last night, it was determined that no outsider should even learn that the meeting was to be held. The story leaked out, however.

The discussion of the situation naturally led up to the question of closing the mills, and raised the first sign of ruction. There were manufacturers present who would be glad to keep their contract and close their mills as they had agreed to do in case there should be a strike at either of the mills connected with the combination, but there were others who were opposed to taking this course.

The discussion that followed was a long one, and it is stated that it was finally decided to follow the original agreement and close all the mills in Olneyville

As Soon as Practicable.

Everything was not all harmony, however, and the settlement of a time for closing the mills was the cause of another heated debate.

While it was impossible to determine just when the lockout will come, it was stated that it was to be at an early date and that when the gates were locked upon the operatives it would be done so suddenly that every one would be astonished.

In order to accomplish this, it was necessary to do some hard personal work. But when the contrary manufacturers came downstairs there could be no doubt but that they had agreed upon the course to be followed.

Just what will be done, therefore, is still in doubt. While the mills are as soon as possible, the precise date of the lockout is undetermined, and the strikers will have to play a waiting game until the members of the club are willing to make their business known.

Unquestionably to Be Closed

One thing, however, may be said to be a certainty. It was not all peace and harmony in the meeting, and some persons claim that it will be impossible to keep all the members to the spirit of their agreement.

The operatives, therefore, can do nothing but wait, although they will be able to feel reasonably sure that the mills are to be closed upon them.

On Beacon Hill.

BOSTON, April 30.—The legislative fight against the Boston subway was terminated when the house—104 to 72—refused to engross the repeal bill; reconsideration is not likely to be asked. The senate concurred with the house in recommitting the bill for the use of the Keeley cure at the dipsomaniac hospital. A petition was admitted in the senate authorizing the Interstate Street Railway company to own certain property and do business in the commonwealth. A petition was admitted to permit Worcester to make an additional water loan of $500,000. A large number of remonstrants was received against the child insurance bill. The house refused to consider the vote on the anti-cigaret bill. The senate debated the Bradford water bill, but postponed further consideration.

May Turn Out a Murder.

BARTLETT, N. H., April 30.—John J. Bennett, Thomas J. Hinds and Frank Mullen, all trainmen, were playing pool in a saloon here when a section hand named Walter Parker became angered at Bennett and threatened to kill him. Half an hour later Bennett was walking to his boarding place when he was repeatedly struck over the head by the handle of a pickax wielded by Parker. Bennett was taken to Portland, and doctors say he cannot live. Parker is still at large.

Pepperell Company Exonerated.

PORTLAND, April 30.—The case of the United States against the Pepperell Manufacturing company of Biddeford for violation of the alien contract labor law was tried yesterday. The jury brought in a verdict for the company after half an hour's deliberation. The case was brought about by the action of Knights of Labor.

Couldn't Make It Pay.

BRIDGEPORT, April 30.—Judge Robinson yesterday made an order for the sale of the patents of the Wadell-Entz Electric company, whose plant is in this city. The company manufactured a storage battery and spent a large sum of money in perfecting it, but it was found to be too expensive to be practical.

Good Catches Reported.

GLOUCESTER, April 30.—The latest news from the Iceland halibut fleet, dated at Dyrefjord, April 8, reports the arrival there of four vessels. On March 28, on the passage up, John King of the schooner Concord was washed overboard and drowned. The cod fishermen and whalers report good catches.

Engineer Was Fortunate.

BANGOR, April 30.—The locomotive of a train from Bangor to Bucksport left the rails at South Brewer last evening and rolled over an embankment. The engineer stuck to his post and was uninjured. Fireman John Arthur jumped from the engine, fell on the track and lost a leg.

Averted For the Present.

CLINTON, April 30.—Contrary to expectations, there was no strike or attempt to strike made yesterday at the Lancaster Gingham mills. It now looks as if everything will run smoothly at the mills until June 1, the time set by the Weavers' union for taking action.

Britton Case Still a Mystery.

PORTLAND, April 30.—The body of Henry Britton of Raymond, who is thought to have been murdered, cannot be found. The ponds for miles around have been dragged and searched. His hat and a bloody umbrella are all the clews the officers have to work on.

Cleaned Out the Safe.

GOSHEN, Conn., April 30.—C. J. Porter's general store and postoffice here was entered by burglars, who blew open the safe, taking $1000 in bonds and $650 in stamps.

More Work For the Mayor.

BOSTON, April 30.—Alderman Flood, at a meeting of the board of aldermen last night, created a sensation by presenting an order authorizing the chairman to petition the general court for the passage of an amendment to the city charter providing for the abolition of the board of aldermen of the city of Boston. The order was passed—6 to 5. Alderman Flood said he believed in abolishing the board and giving over to the mayor the entire running of the city government.

Authorities Will Investigate.

WORCESTER, April 30.—The head of a new-born infant has been found in a stone-wall on a piece of property owned by Lumen Carter, South Ashburnham. The head had been severed from the body, apparently with an ax, and had been exposed for five or six weeks. The house on the lot where the discovery was made is now vacant. An effort will be made immediately to find the body of the child and the perpetrators of the crime.

Work For More Weavers.

FALL RIVER, April 30.—The directors of the Tecumseh mill voted to increase the capacity of mill No. 2 by adding 12,000 spindles and building a weave shed to accommodate enough looms to balance the plant. The Chase mill is also to add about 10,000 spindles to its plant.

Incendiary Causes Two Deaths.

MILFORD, Conn., April 30.—The barn of John Guyer, two miles from here, was destroyed by fire of incendiary origin. A horse and $4000 worth of property were destroyed. Emil Furrer and Joseph Katte, both of whom slept in the barn, were burned to death.

A Congregational Club.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., April 30.—The Congregational pastors and members from this section met here yesterday afternoon and formed a Congregational club, with Rev. C. H. Merrill temporary chairman. Permanent organization will be effected later.

Received a Fractured Skull.

BOSTON, April 30.—Charles E Aldrich, Jr., 15 years old, while "putting the shot" with some other students at the Roxbury Latin school grounds, was accidentally hit by a 16-pound ball. His skull was fractured, and he is at the point of death.

More Help and More Hours' Work.

TAUNTON, April 30.—The Mason Machine works, which have been running on short time during the past 18 months, returned to full time yesterday with quite an increase in the number of employes.

Boy Attacked by Highwayman.

LOWELL, April 30.—George Aldrich, aged 15 years, was held up by a highwayman last night, and during the struggle he was shot through the hand. The highwayman got nothing for his trouble.

An Enforced Rest.

CAMBRIDGE, April 30.—The Harvard crew just now are in a disabled condition. Captain Bullard is suffering from tonsilitis, and Hollister, the stroke, is suffering from blistered hands.

Lewiston Strike Ended.

LEWISTON, April 30.—The labor strike in this city has been declared off on the promise that the question of wages involved will be brought before the mill board of directors.

Bay State's New Treasurer.

BOSTON, April 30.—E. P. Shaw of Newburyport qualified before Governor Greenhalge as treasurer and receiver general, to succeed Henry M. Phillips of Springfield, resigned.

Youthful Criminals Sentenced.

BATH, April 30.—William Cripps, aged 15, and Herbert Savage, aged 14, were sentenced to the reform school during minority for breaking and entering.

Merits Severe Punishment.

PORTLAND, April 30.—Albert W. Bean was caught last night in the act of setting a fire in a stable. Bean is about 20 years old, and belongs to a good family.

New England Briefs.

Camden, Me., voted not to light the streets with electricity.

May 17 has been fixed as the day for the Harvard class races. The four classes will compete.

Chester T. Porter, '96, of Danvers, Mass., was elected president of the Amherst College Glee club.

Work is to be commenced on a new Catholic church in the parish of SS. Peter and Paul's at Fall River.

Abram Davis, one of the oldest residents of South Biddeford, died of apoplexy. He was 86 years old.

A Lynn man tells the police that he was knocked down and robbed while several persons stood and looked on.

At Middletown, Conn., Mrs. Julia Harris Clinton was killed by the Shore line express while walking on the track.

The trustees of the New Hampshire State Agricultural college adopted plans for a new barn to replace the one destroyed by fire recently.

James Marshall, owner of the Fall River hat factory, has purchased the Wyoming mill property in that city. He will remodel it at once and equip it as a hat factory.

At a meeting of the Portsmouth board of mayor and aldermen, the Berlin Iron Bridge company was awarded a contract to build an iron bridge across the South Mill pond.

Four Houses Wrecked.

OMAHA, April 30.—A cyclone here yesterday demolished four houses and a number of out-buildings, and trees were blown down. Nobody was seriously injured.

DOLLAR OF OUR DADS

Will Be Restored In White Metal, According to Voorhees.

Endangered Only by Greed and Unholy Speculation.

Indiana Senator Tells Where He Thinks Advantage Can Be Gained.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 30.—The Washington correspondent of The Sentinel gives the following as the views of Senator Voorhees on the silver question:

"The real and vital issue now presented to the American people is the proposed elimination of silver from our currency, its total overthrow and destruction as a money metal and the use of gold alone. This movement means the destruction of one-half of the debt-paying money to the United States and the world. If it should be successful, it will double burdens of every debtor and multiply the gains and income of every creditor wherever the sun shines.

"The debts of the American people at this time, both public and private, are appalling in amount. They have been contracted on a bimetallic basis and it is now proposed to make them payable on the basis of gold alone. The two metals also constitute the specie basis for such paper currency as may be put in circulation. If silver money is destroyed, paper circulation must be contracted in that proportion. Every form and kind of money must become that much scarcer and harder to get in exchange for labor and the products of labor.

"Such a policy is to my mind simply horrible. I have not a particle of doubt as to the result of the contest now going on. The enemies of silver will be driven to the wall. Silver money will not only survive, but it will be fully restored to its old place as a leading and controlling factor in the development and the Progress of the Country.

"Nor have I any fear for the future strength and harmony of the Democratic party. Some men may discard its principles and abandon its organization, but others will take their places. I have been in favor of the free coinage of silver at the ratio fixed by Jefferson all my life, and whatever others may do I shall neither abandon my principles nor my party.

"Danger from the coinage and the use of silver as money in this country never occurred to the sane mind until greed, avarice and unholy speculation reared their serpent head and aimed a vicious, deadly blow at the honored dollar of the fathers in 1873. Since that time we have had nothing but financial vexation, distrust, depression and ruinous panics.

"The five years which immediately followed the demonetizing of silver in 1873 were freighted with more calamity and suffering on the part of laboring and producing people than was ever before known in this country. A wave of confiscation swept over the country, annihilating values, depriving labor of its reward, destroying all market prices for property, except such as were bid at sheriffs' sales. Nor did this wretched condition of affairs show any signs of improvement until the partial restoration of silver to its money functions took place in 1878.

"If I am told that silver bullion as a marketable commodity at this time commands a low price, my answer is that if gold had been conspired against as persistently, and assailed by foul means as well as fair for nearly a quarter of a century past, it would be in a far worse crippled condition than silver. No other form of money could have withstood, as silver has done, such a malignant, unsparing crusade as the last 20 years have witnessed in this country.

On the Face of the Earth

"The need of the white metal in the hands of the people is even greater now than ever before. There is scarcely a speck of gold in sight of the laboring classes.

With silver demonetized, plain people, the wage-workers and those who raise and sell the produce of the soil will handle specie money no more and will catch even a glimpse of it but seldom. Gold will be hoarded and hid away in the vaults of the great magnates of wealth, and the people in their business will be put on the half-rations of paper money to which the shrinkage and non-traction from a basis of bimetallism to a basis of monometallism will reduce the money.

"If the free and unlimited coinage of silver as full filed legal tender money, and as a standard of statutes and the unit of account and payment without a word of international agreement on the subject will put this country on a silver basis, then we were on such a basis every day and hour since the passage of the first coinage act on April 1, 1792, until the demonetization act of February, 1873, a period of 81 years, during which we rose from weakness to the foremost rank among the nations of the earth.

"I commend to all croakers in regard to silver basis a careful reading of the act of April 2, 1792, formulated by Hamilton and Jefferson and approved by Washington."

Ex-Mayor Weds Senator's Daughter.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Miss Julia Murphy and Hugh J. Grant, ex-mayor of New York, were married today at the residence of Senator Murphy in the presence of a family gathering. Archbishop Corrigan of New York performed the ceremony. The couple will at once go abroad for a wedding trip.

Expert Working on Books.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—C. S. Smith, cashier of and bookkeeper for L. W. McGlaughlin & Co., wheat brokers, who managed the late Senator Fair's big wheat deal, is missing. An expert is now examining Smith's books.

America Not Supporting Russia.

ROME, April 30.—An official note has been issued denying the accuracy of the Vienna dispatch saying that the Italian and United States legations at Tokio are supporting the Russian demands.

One Kidney

may be diseased while the other may be healthy and doing the work of both—nature rebels, and the trouble is indicated by a pain in one side of the back and frequent inclination to pass urine. Kidney trouble may exist and not be indicated by the state of the urine, which remains clear. Constipation generally exists and the Backache may extend down the thigh. The diseased Kidney becomes inflamed and the waste matter which is retained promotes the growth of stones and gravel. If taken in the early stage, Buker's Kidney Pills will remove the stoppage, allay inflammation and help the Kidneys to perform their proper functions. Send for book on Kidney troubles—it's free. Pills cost 50 cents at the druggists.

WOMEN SHOULD VOTE.

Grandpa Faxon Comes Out Squarely for Woman's Suffrage.

Henry H. Faxon, Esq., attended Monday evening the reception given by the Independent Voters of Boston to Mrs. Carrie Oostdyke of Detroit, Mich., at the Thorndike, and spoke as follows:

Madam President, Ladies and Gentlemen: "I consider it a great privilege to join in the festivities of this occasion by adding my word of greeting to your worthy guest and in advocating the cause which she represents.

"The Independent Women Voters' organization of Boston, which was called into being to avert a danger which threatened our free public school system, has silenced the unbelievers as to the ability of women for political work. My experience has taught me that women discharge great responsibilities more faithfully and satisfactorily than men and that their moral power is needed as much at the ballot-box as in the church.

"When I realize the dangerous facility afforded uncivilized multitudes to become voting citizens, I am thoroughly convinced that the influence which is most needed to preserve our country from impending peril must be exercised by woman. The corrupt, wire-pulling, political manipulators predict that if equal suffrage should prevail the Irish women will vote in large numbers. Why this fear? Let them vote. I am not afraid to trust the mothers and sisters of even this nationality. In my experience at enforcing the laws, I have been bitterly opposed and hindered by the Irish politicians, while the women of foreign birth have rendered me valuable assistance and upheld me in my efforts to suppress rumselling. History tells us of scores of men hurriedly departing for Canada, but seldom do we hear of a woman emigrating to escape the penalties of the law.

"The natural tendency of woman is to use every weapon that is given her in such a way as to protect her home and purify public affairs. For this reason, we find that a large majority of those who are doing everything in their power to retard the movement which will invest her with greater authority, are Democrats. Can we blame them for taking this stand when they know that the moment woman's influence is exerted in the caucus and at the polls, Democracy, and the saloon element which it represents, will be buried in sneaking obscurity. If a rumseller could be found voting for woman suffrage, he would immediately be treated as a political outcast by the leaders of the Democratic party. I do not propose to heap all the odium of political rascality upon the Democrats. In our large cities many Republicans are ready to serve their master, the Devil, and fall down in worship before him, if by so doing they can secure a lucrative office at the expense of, and detriment to the people.

"When all has been said concerning what the ballot in the hands of woman will accomplish in the line of purer politics, there is yet to be considered the most important and highest reason for an extension of suffrage. When young women are receiving only $5 to $10 per week for performing the same work for which men are paid $12 to $15, a great injustice is being perpetrated that should be speedily remedied. Give woman the ballot and she will right many of the wrongs she is now suffering. Let us labor with a will, never relaxing our efforts until the glorious day dawns upon our vision."

☞ We regret our inability to supply the trade as rapidly as they desire with Columbia Bicycles, but can assure our many customers that 1895 Columbias are worth waiting a while for. To intending buyers we would say: Order your wheels as early as possible. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

Business Firms Suspicious That They Have Overpaid

TO STATION AGENT SAFFORD.

They Used Checks However and May be All Right.

Business firms at South Quincy, especially the granite men are considerably aroused over the disclosures published Monday in relation to Harry H. Safford, late station agent at the Quincy Adams depot.

A trip among the granite men finds a feeling that they have unconsciously been among the victims although they can not say whether they have been or not. Nearly every firm seen said they recalled instances where they thought the freights were too much, especially so on Westerly granite which afforded the best opportunity to raise bills, as that granite came all the way by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

In many cases, and in fact in practically all cases, the bills were made out for so many pounds of granite and when they thought they were overcharged, the only method of ascertaining was to cart the stone to some scales and weigh it, which would necessitate a large amount of extra work.

McGrath Bros. said they did not know whether they had been overcharged or not but as they always paid large bills in checks made payable to the railroad, they did not see how there could have been any crooked work.

F. H. Crane & Sons report they have discovered errors in their bills a number of times, but did not think Mr. Safford made them intentionally. They had found him very obliging.

Thomas & Miller recall several occasions when they thought they were overcharged but had not decided whether they should look up the matter or not.

Swingle & Falconer have in mind a lot of granite upon which they think they were overcharged and will look it up.

Fred Barnicoat says he had two stones arrive recently, one from Barre and the other from Westerly. The latter was by far the smaller stone but the bill presented for freight made it weigh over 1000 pounds more. They had begun to work the stone when the bill came and so it was too late to weigh it.

All of the firms seen said they paid in checks.

Mr. Safford was seen this morning by a representative of the LEDGER and asked if he desired to make any statement. He replied that he did not. He thought the Boston papers had used him unfairly. It was only a little matter anyway. He had placed his case in the hands of counsel and after the matter had been compromised he might say something.

May Magazines.

The Jenness-Miller Monthly for May has a charming artistic cover and the contents are appropriate to the season. There are "Fashions for Merry May," "May Day and Its Observance," "An Apple Blossom Luncheon," "Hints on Moving," etc., etc.

The Delineator for May is called the Commencement number, and is the third of the three great issues of the season. The articles on Gowns for Commencement Day is in most attractively illustrated, and is planned to give ample time for preparing the attire for this important occasion. Another timely article is Mrs. Roger A. Pryor's on Weddings and Wedding Ceremonies, given with fac-simile invitations to some very distinguished social events. A very interesting paper on Oberlin College is from the pen of Edith Dickson and Mae Harris Anson writes cleverly of Government Clerkships as an Employment for Women.

A Golf Club.

Quincy has a golf club numbering 30 members, and if all reports are true it is a good one and hereafter Saturday afternoons will witness them enjoying this sport at their "links," as they are called, in the rear of the mansion formerly occupied by Charles Francis Adams. This game is but little understood but for all that it is an exciting one and furnishes plenty of exercise for the players. A golf field covers considerable territory and at intervals there are pockets into which the ball is driven and the game is to drive the ball into the pockets with the least number of blows.

I. O. G. T. Election.

George W. Jones advises you to wear diamonds on your feet.

April showers today, but as they bring forth flowers one should not complain.

A missionary rally is being held this afternoon in the chapel of the Congregational church.

D. E. Wadsworth & Co. offer some bargains to reduce their stock previous to extensive alterations.

The Clover club holds its last meeting of the season Wednesday evening with Capt. and Mrs. Hultman.

The Indian family in Durgin's show window advertising Sagwa are attracting considerable attention.

The State census enumerators will not commence work in Quincy, Wednesday, as the papers have not arrived.

Today is the day called for in the street watering order for the watering to commence. Nature was on time.

George Dunham has made an improvement in his street car head-light and has placed it on No. 16 car for trial.

The central fire station has to send a man to West Quincy every morning to take care of the horse in Hose 3 house.

Mr. Rufus N. Poor of Bridgewater will build a house for his own occupancy on Prospect avenue, Wollaston, this spring.

Quincy has been almost free from grass fires that have given the fire departments in neighboring towns considerable trouble.

Don't hesitate if in want of employment to have an advertisement inserted free in the DAILY LEDGER. Remember this week only.

The services of Frank F. Crane as an auctioneer are much in demand, not only in this city, but in Weymouth, Milton and Hyde Park.

Three Atlantic young men have determined that man should not live alone and today enter the ranks of matrimony, viz Redmor Coombs, William Jameson and Jerry Donovan.

The gunning stand at the Sailors' Home beach, Wollaston, owned and occupied by Allie Williams and Stephen D. Welch was totally destroyed by fire on Sunday evening. It was undonbtedly the work of incendiaries.

The members of the Wollaston Bowling club are now contesting for the elegant silver trophy which Steward Williams has offered. It is a large silver cup of exquisite design, standing thirteen inches high surmounted by a cover upon which rests a minature bowling ball. Upon the front is the figure of a man in the act of bowling.

Quite a number of our readers will probably go to Plymouth tomorrow, if it is pleasant to gather May-flowers, and to enjoy a good dinner. The railroad carries the excursionists from Quincy both ways for $1.35, which includes the dinner ticket. Some 400 were provided with dinner last May-day by the Plymouth Universalist society.

The Park and Downs Union Society.

This young society is growing rapidly and promises soon to become one of the leading societies in the city. They have recently become incorporated with a charter from the State. At the first meeting of the corporation the following officers were elected:

President,—Alvar W. Polk.
Vice President,—Mr. Millbury.
Secretary,—Levi Nichols.
Treasurer,—Arthur Linnell.
Trustees,—Charles Marr, Henry Weymouth, William Given.
Officers of the Sunday School:
Superintendent,—Henry Weymouth.
Assistant Superintendent,—Levi Nichols.
Secretary and Treasurer,—Frank Rogers.
Librarian,—Herbert J. Polk.

Through the generosity of Wood, Harmon & Co., the society has just come into possession of a lot of land on Rawson road, on which a church building will probably soon be erected. For the present the society will worship in the Quincy mansion on East Elm avenue. The service last Sunday was conducted by Rev. James Yeames of Jamaica Plain. A chorus of twenty voices assists in the services. Mr. Alvar W. Polk is the musical director; Miss Carrie Hanscom, pianist.

PARK ASSESSMENTS.

Visit of Inspection to Quincy by the Commissioners.

Messrs. Clifford, Harriman and Richardson, the commission appointed to apportion the cost and maintenance of the Metropolitan park among the several cities and towns, visited Quincy Monday to view the character of the land taken in Quincy and the approaches to the park. Accompanying the commission was Secretary Carruth of the Park Commissioners.

The commission arrived on the 1 33 train and were met by Mayor Hodges, City Solicitor Blackmur and Herbert T. Whitman.

Carriages were immediately taken and when the party arrived at the reservation they were joined by Judge Asa French of Braintree and Louis A. Cook of Weymouth.

The inspection lasted an hour or more after which the commissioners went on to Hyde Park and the Quincy gentlemen came home.

The New Water Bill.

The new draft of the Metropolitan water bill provides that Boston is to pay according to its valuation, and the other cities and towns one-third of their valuation and two-thirds on their population, including, however, only one-sixth of the total valuation and one-sixth of the total population of a city or town that has not reached the safe capacity of its sources in a dry year.

Over seven thousand men, it is said, have been sheltered at one time beneath the branches of one banyan tree.

LIVELY SCORING.

Cleveland Men Had a Picnic With the Louisville Aggregation.

LOUISVILLE, April 29.—The Cleveland men began by batting and scoring about as they pleased, and kept it up to the end, although the Louisvilles tried three pitchers and two catchers. Cuppy was batted freely, but stupid base running and weak fielding told against the home team. Glasscock and Childs made home runs.

Concerning Trilby's Authorship.

DENVER, April 30.—"Did Du Maurier write 'Trilby?'" This sensational question was yesterday propounded in the federal court in good faith, when the suit of Harper Bros. and A. M. Palmer for an injunction against the Lyceum Stock company to restrain the production of "Trilby" was called. The defendants assert that the original title and book of "Trilby" was first published in France in 1820 and afterward in England in 1847, and the book has been common property for 75 years.

More Rebels Routed.

HAVANA, April 30.—A detachment of government troops in Santa Cruz do Sul has deposed the rebel band led by Mauricio Montejo. The insurgents left three dead bodies in their flight. A detachment of rebels were overtaken and surprised at Arroyo Hondo. They made a feeble attempt at resistance, but were put to flight. Nine of them were killed and many wounded. The troops lost two killed and five wounded.

Iron Hall Settlement Near at Hand.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 30.—Judge McMaster thinks that the Iron Hall trust will be speedily closed. Next Saturday he will begin the investigation of the troubles in Branch 76. Last Saturday the Pennsylvania branches settled with Receiver Faily. The members of the order in Pennsylvania will be therefore permitted to take part in the dividend, and it will take about $250,000 to pay the certificates.

Saddlery Dealers Forced to Assign.

MILWAUKEE, April 30.—The C. M. Sanger Sons company, wholesale saddlery dealers, made an assignment to the bookkeeper of the company yesterday. The bond was fixed at $36,000. The assignment is the result of the killing of Emil A. Sanger, the president of the company. His death drew forth pressure from the creditors of the company. The company's affairs appear to be badly tangled.

Oscar's Wife Wants a Divorce.

LONDON, April 30.—It has been learned that immediately after her husband was arrested, Mrs. Wilde took her children and her belongings from the Wilde residence and instructed her lawyer to institute proceedings for a divorce. The proceedings will hinge somewhat on the decision given in the present criminal proceedings against Wilde.

Cutting Down Expenses.

OTTAWA, April 30.—The minister of finance laid before parliament last evening the estimate of expenditures for the year beginning July 1 next. The estimated expenditure is $41,243,417, while last year's expenditure was $41,710,613. The total public debt of the Dominion is shown to be $278,177,817, as against $266,048,994 last year.

No Foundation For Strike Rumor.

MASSILLON, O., April 30.—There is no foundation for the report that a miners' strike would take place in this district on May 1. The miners will suspend work on the day mentioned, pending the adjustment of a scale, as is customary. This will undoubtedly be settled without difficulty.

Deputies Seceded.

MARQUETTE, Mich., April 30.—There was a small riot last night in the ore districts, the union trimmers driving out men imported by the old bosses. A number of men were badly beaten. Ten imported men were sworn in as deputies, but they ran at the first attack.

An Alleged Embezzler.

NEW YORK, April 30.—John Hunt, 46 years old, for a long time secretary of the Musical Mutual Protective union, is charged with embezzlement by Alexander Bremer, president of the organization, who says that a shortage of $3729 has already been discovered.

Pictou Company Sells Out.

HALIFAX, April 30.—The sale of the Renfrew gold mine by the Pictou Developing Company to James P. Page of New York was concluded last night. The price is said to be $75,000.

Headed For Home.

DARMSTADT, April 30.—The queen, Princess Beatrice and Princess Victoria have started on their return to England.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

The kaiser has been nicknamed "William the Sudden."

Art works valued at nearly $15,000 were stolen in New York.

Five prisoners and four officers were injured in a riot in the St. Louis jail.

The wedding of the Duke of Aosta and Princess Helene of Orleans has been postponed.

Schooner William Smith of Boston was wrecked on a reef of the Bahamas and abandoned.

Parlor Furniture.

You know the old saying, "First impressions last," is as true today as the day it originated. The parlor or reception room should be attractive to create an impression. The expense need not be much, on the contrary our store is full of suggestions at wonderfully modest prices. Hints from time to time only are possible. It's better so, otherwise you would lose much of the pleasure of discovery.

Chamber Furniture.

The last glance at night and the first in the morning should be suggestive of the sunny side of life. We are here to assist you. We think of furniture all day and dream of it all night. If there's anything new you're sure to find it here. Elegant Chamber Sets, ... $15 to $50

Glenwood Ranges.

By all odds the best, and so fittingly called "The King of the Kitchen." Our sales are continually increasing, and the best of it all is we hear nothing but words of deserving commendation. Scientific in construction, castings heavy and smooth as marble. Easy to keep clean, ecomical coal burners, the greatest bakers on earth. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. A stove on trial if you wish, prices . . . . . $20 to $33

White Iron Beds.

To be sure the idea is English, but the universal custom of using them is wonderfully American at the present time. No wonder! They are light, clean and healthy. Newest designs, prices as usual, on the ground floor, within the reach of everyone, . . . $5 to $15

HENRY L.
Kincaide & Co.

Refrigerators.

We've watched the refrigerator market for years, and we can knowingly say that no refrigerator will give service like the Eddy. Pure, clean, free circulation of air, no hidden corners where disease germs can lurk, they stand at the head. Take no other. A complete line and 20 per cent. discount to our customers.

Gasoline Stoves.

The recent advance in oil has been a boon for gasoline stoves. They are growing more popular each day. Wonderfully powerful, no smell, no smoke, no dust, no ashes, no coal, no wood, no over heated cook. A fire piping hot when you want it and where you want it. Absolutely safe and economical in price, $3.50 to $10. A stove in operation at our store.

Baby Carriages.

Nothing can be too fine for the household pet. There is wisdom for everyone in buying their carriages at this store. Twenty different patterns, the most attractive and nobby sort with all the latest notions. Bicycle wheels, foot brakes, etc. The latest design in a quartered oak carriage just arrived. Prices that make you wonder, they seem so low, from $3.95 to $25

Bicycles.

This is the bicycle year and in selecting your wheel, like selecting a piano or watch it is best to buy a standard make with a reputation. Nothing so good as a Columbia. They almost fly. For ladies or gentlemen, $50, $70, $80, $100.

THE NEW CLUB.

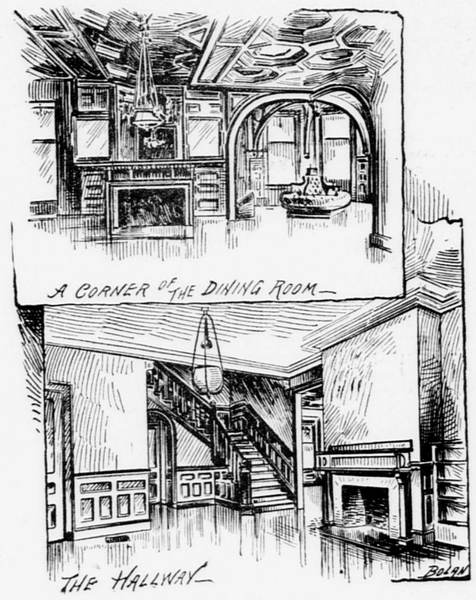
First Meeting Called for Friday Evening at the Adams Mansion.

Cards have been sent out by those interested in Quincy's new club, calling a preliminary meeting for Friday evening of this week. Holding the meeting at the proposed home of the club will give all present an opportunity of inspecting the building and grounds before and after the meeting which is called for eight o'clock.

The site selected is undoubtedly the finest that the city affords, and while in the minds of some there is some objection to the grade of the hill, yet this objection is made insignificant by the advantages. It is but three or four minutes walk from both steam and electric cars; for those driving the way is clear and when properly lighted, the driveway leading to the house will be far safer than many of our public ways.

Already a large number of gentlemen have signified their intention of not only joining the club, but have offered to do all in their power to promote its success, and it behooves every citizen of Quincy to do likewise.

The illustrations accompanying this article are kindly loaned by the Boston Globe.



The First of Its Kind.

The Pharmacy fair to open at the Mechanics' Building, Boston, tomorrow, will be replete with object-lessons for the public, designed to call attention not only to chemical, physical and pharmaceutical operations and products, but also to the physical appearance of many things which are well-known by name but not by sight. The mystery which surrounds pharmacy will be, in a measure, unveiled, and the commonest and most familiar operations exhibited in a way to show the onlooker that skill and judgment are as much required in pharmacy as in its allied professions of surgery and medicine. Their will be many special departments with lectures. Also curiosities, music, etc.

☞ New invoice of Japanese linen warp, inlaid and velvet finish mattings, also newest china weaves. The very latest things on the market, they are stylish on any room in the house and much cheaper than carpet. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

—Our neighboring village, South Weymouth, is in rare luck. The late John S. Fogg bequeathed $50,000 for a public library. The money has just been handed over to the trustees, who have invested it in mortgage bonds and other securities. They intend to erect a $20,000 stone building. It will be located in the centre of the village, and will be a valuable addition to the town. Ground will probably be broken within a year.

—Hon. Everett C. Bumpus of Quincy has been appointed one of the supreme court commissioners to arbitrate the claims against the city of Cambridge for land taken for the Hollis Brook reservoir.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.
☞ Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

—Some idea may be formed of the profits of life insurance companies from the fact that Henry B. Hyde, president of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., of New York, receives annually $100,000, supposed to be the largest salary of any employe in the United States and John A. McCall gets $75,000 as president of the New York Life.

A Railroader's Prayer.

A railroad man is responsible for the following prayer:

"O Lord, now that I have flagged thee, lift my feet from off the road of life and plant them safely on deck of the train of salvation! Let me use the safety lamp known as prudence, make all couplings in the train with the strong link of thy love and let my lamp be the Bible. And, heavenly Father, keep all switches closed that lead off on the sidings, especially those with a blind end! O Lord, if it be thy pleasure, have every semaphore block along the line to show the white light of hope that I may make the run of life without stopping. And, Lord, give us the Ten Commandments as a schedule, and when I have finished the run, and have on schedule time pulled into the great station of death, may thou, the Superintendent of the Universe, say with a smile: 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant. Come and sign the pay roll and receive your check for eternal happiness.'"—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Equal to the Emergency.

An old admiral well known for his power of exaggeration was describing a voyage at supper one night. "While cruising in the Pacific," he said, "we passed an island which was positively red with lobsters."

"But," said one of the guests, smiling incredulously, "lobsters are not red until boiled."

"Of course not," replied the undaunted admiral, "but this was a volcanic island with boiling springs."—Pearson's Weekly.

Baldness.

Men become bald more frequently than women because of the closeness of the hats they wear, which keep the head too hot, induce perspiration and weaken the hair. The boys of the famous Blue Coat schools of London, who never wear hats, never become bald late in life.

Robespierre had a thin face, sharp nose, narrow forehead and small mouth, with thin lips. He always dressed neatly and was often mistaken for a department clerk or bookkeeper.

An Unlucky Draw.

Don Simplicio, to dispel the clouds of melancholy that cast a gloom over his spirits, has taken to theater going. "Ernani" was produced, and everybody spoke highly of the performance, our hero among the rest.

"But there is one fault about it," he said on coming out of the house one evening.

"What is it?"

"I'll tell you. In the third act, where the conspiracy takes place, they draw lots to ascertain which of them is to kill Charles V. Now, what was drawn the first night? Ernani. And the second? Ernani. And the third? Ernani again. Always Ernani. Six nights running! Now, that's unlikely on the face of it. For the same name to be drawn once or twice may pass, but six times running—that is too much."

His remarks were received with a regular ovation.—Giornale delle Donne.

Scott's Favorites.

Scott believed that "Waverley" was his best novel and the "Lady of the Lake" his best poem. He and the Ballantynes had more than one lively discussion on the subject, but he would never admit a change of opinion. He knew the "Lady of the Lake" by heart and once repeated the whole to prove the fact.

A Crime.

"Is it true that Maud Makeface was arrested for intimidating voters?"

"Yes. She threatened to kiss every man who would vote for Johnson."—Indianapolis Journal.

Furniture Plant Damaged by Fire.

ROCKFORD, Ills., April 30.—The Forest City Furniture plant was nearly destroyed by fire yesterday. The cause is thought to have been of incendiary origin. Loss, $75,000; insured.

But Little Hope of Recovery.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The condition of Representative Hitt shows but little change. Extreme weakness and feebleness prevails, and the worst is feared.

New Mill For Fall River.

FALL RIVER, April 30.—There is a movement on foot to build a new print cloth factory in this city. It will have a large capital, and will be filled with Draper looms, having a capacity of 12,000 pieces of goods a week.

There are 10,000,000 married couples in France, and one-fifth of them have no children.

TALK OF COMPROMISE.

Great Britain and Nicaragua May Come to an Agreement.

American War Vessels Receive Sudden Orders.

Their Purpose Said to Be to Protect Nicaraguan Canal Property.

MANAGUA, April 30.—A proposition of compromise and immediate evacuation of Corinto by the British is now under consideration between Washington, London and the authorities here. The proposition embraces the following essential points:

First—Nicaragua is to pay $77,500 at London within two weeks.

Second—The British forces are to be immediately withdrawn from Corinto without waiting for the two weeks to elapse.

Third—A mixed commission of arbitration is to pass on the demands of Great Britain in excess of the $77,500 claim, said commission to be constituted in a manner satisfactory to the United States and Nicaragua.

The foregoing terms, it is believed, will be accepted by President Zelaya and his cabinet. It is understood that the suggestion of this settlement came from the Nicaraguan representative at Washington, and it is believed that such an adjustment would be agreeable to the United States authorities. If Nicaragua's acceptance is given, the proposition will be urged on the London foreign office, and it is believed it will be accepted.

Work For Uncle Sam's Warships.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The Alert, which has been stationed at Panama watching the progress of the revolutionary movement in Colombia, has been ordered to proceed at once to San Juan del Sur, the nearest cable port to Corinto.

The Atlanta was ordered to sail at once to Greytown, the eastern terminus of the proposed Nicaraguan canal. The Montgomery, now at Mobile, will follow the Raleigh, on May 7, with the Nicaragua canal commission board.

Secretary Herbert said that the movement of ships had absolutely nothing to do with the occupation of Corinto by the British, that being a matter to be settled between the Nicaraguans and the British. The real purpose of the orders was to guard American interests in Nicaragua against the consequence of a possible revolution which may result from the disturbed condition of the country.

Being asked what measure of protection the Nicaraguan commission would receive in the pursuance of its work of inspecting the line of the canal, the secretary said the Montgomery would remain at Greytown while the commission was in the interior, and that two ships would surely be force enough to protect the commission and all other American interests that might be endangered by a revolution.

Miller's Influence.

The action taken by Secretary Herbert may be attributed to the visit to Washington of ex-Senator Miller of the Nicaraguan Canal company, and of some representations made by him on the basis of private reports as to the real condition of affairs in Nicaragua, and to those coming to the Nicaraguan minister directly. Certainly the character of the United States vessels which have been ordered to Nicaragua is a sufficient evidence that Secretary Herbert does not expect them to come into hostile conflict with the British ships.

In Mr. Miller's conferences with Secretary Gresham and other cabinet officers, he presented a very strong case on the evidence of the situation and the menace to American control of the canal. He brought out clearly the fact that the British threatened to go to Greytown and to San Juan del Sur, the two important points on the Atlantic and Pacific sides of the canal. The cabinet officers were impressed with Mr. Miller's statement of the case, and one of them characterized it as the strongest presentation thus far made.

Mr. Miller said that the canal company was very much interested in events in Nicaragua. The occupation of Corinto by the British troops does not greatly affect the company in itself, but it may lead indirectly to serious results. The revolution, which has been as a result of British occupation, may disturb the canal company by preventing work on surveys and building operations and the possible destruction of its property. The company, he said, wanted protection to its interests, if not from the Nicaraguan government, then from the outside.

The concessions of the company were safe, being from a de facto government, but the line of the canal was not. Mr. Miller said he had called attention to the necessity for protection to the commission that is soon to make an examination of the route of the canal. He says that it will be very dangerous in case of revolutionary disturbances for an unprotected party to make a trip over the line of the canal. The commission being under the direction of the state department, it will, of course, be necessary for that department to ask the navy department for an armed force in case such a force is deemed necessary.

The Emily Hall Case.

DETROIT, April 30.—Dr. G. B. Seaman and Mrs. Alice Lane were arraigned in the police court yesterday, charged with having caused the death of Emily Hall at Mrs. Lane's lying-in hospital. Both refused to plead. Bail was fixed at $500 each. Meanwhile they were remanded to jail.

Death of a Prominent Odd Fellow.

ST. PAUL, April 30.—J. Fletcher Williams, ex-secretary of the Minnesota Historical society and one of the most prominent Odd Fellows in the northwest, died at Rochester, Minn., yesterday of brain trouble, due to overwork in his studies. He wrote a number of historical works.

Loss Will Foot Up $100,000.

ST. LOUIS, April 30.—Fire partially destroyed the plant of the Kehlor Milling company in East St. Louis yesterday, causing an estimated damage to machinery and building of $100,000. Most of the damage was caused by smoke and water.

Evidently In Earnest.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 30.—The military and naval officials are making every preparation for mobilizing the forces in case the necessity should arise. Arrangements are also being made for the transportation of the forces.

Big Dry Goods Failure.

KANSAS CITY, April 30.—Lloyd, Latz & Thompson, retail dry goods merchants, have failed. Assets estimated at $100,000; liabilities, $80,000.

UNITED STATES' ATTITUDE.

Willing to Exert Good Influence For the Benefit of All Concerned.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The attitude of the United States on the Eastern war trouble has been made clear to the various powers interested. In brief, it is that the unvarying policy of this country is not to form alliances which may involve it in complications with the countries of Europe or Asia.

It is a reassertion of the policy of isolation, except in so far as this country may be able to exert a kindly or advisory influence toward the adjustment of a trouble involving Eastern nations. The foregoing is now accepted by diplomats here as the policy which will guide the United States in the pending European complications over the Japan-China settlement.

At one time within recent days there was a prospect that the United States might co-operate with Great Britain and Italy in endeavoring to effect a solution of the Japan-China trouble and the belligerent protest of Russia, France and Germany. Such action, if it had been taken, would not have been in the nature of assistance to Japan, but merely an exertion of joint influence to persuade China to ratify the peace agreement.

It is said by diplomats that as Japan has already ratified the agreement, similar action by China would make it effective. While, therefore, Russia, France and Germany were protesting at Tokio, the desire of the other powers was to bring to bear their influences at Pekin.

It is known positively that Italy's policy is that of a neutral power, but that it favors the execution of the Japan-China agreement as already made, and to this extent its sympathies are with Japan. This will not, however, go to the extent of opposing the Russo-Franco-German alliance.

It is understood that Great Britain's course is along the same lines. So far as the United States is concerned there will be no co-operation, as already stated, except in such kindly way as may seem for the interest of all concerned, but always short of an alliance or the possibilities of forcible complications.

A Precedent Established.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The opinion of the solicitor of the treasury in the matter of the copyright of Lew Wallace's book, "Ben Hur," has been sustained by the attorney general. The opinion holds in effect that the copyright act of March 3, 1891, does not prevent foreign publications of American books copyrighted under the old law from being brought into this country and sold. Books so brought in and sold are not subject to any copyright previously obtained here. The Canadian edition of "Ben Hur," it is held, may be sold in this country without any infraction of our copyright law and inferentially the foreign edition of any American book published prior to July 1, 1893.

Object to Canada's Copyright Manifesto.

LONDON, April 30.—The Society of British Authors is about to issue a manifesto pointing out objections to the Canadian Copyright association's manifesto and opposing any change in the copyright laws. Fears are entertained that if the matter is fought on imperial lines the authors will lose the day, but they regard the delay in settling the matter as a good sign that their protest is having weight with the imperial government.

A Bank Teller's Presence of Mind.

DUBUQUE, Ia., April 30.—A stranger walked into the Iowa Trust and Savings bank yesterday, and, walking up to a counter window, behind which the funds for the day's use were piled, broke the window with the evident intention of grabbing the money and escaping. Teller Brown was standing near, and as the window broke he took in the situation at once, and grabbing a revolver shot the man. The robber is now under arrest.

Russian Vessels Collide.

VIENNA, April 30.—The Russian warship Penderaklia of the Black sea fleet collided early yesterday morning with the Russian mail steamer Kotzebu, near Takhinut lighthouse. The Kotzebu filled rapidly. Most of the passengers and crew were taken aboard the Penderaklia from the Kotzebu's deck; others were picked up after she went down. Five men sank with the ship and were lost.

Objections Will Still Hold Good.

BERLIN, April 30.—The North German Gazette says that May 8 is the date fixed for the ratification of the Chinese-Japanese treaty of peace. The ratifications will be exchanged at Che-Foo. The paper adds that Japan can derive no advantage by insisting upon the ratification within the stipulated time, as the objections of France, Russia and Germany will still remain in force.

To Be Dumped on the Market.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—Two hundred thousand tons of "syndicate wheat," which has been stored for the winter in the warehouses of the late James G. Fair, has been placed on the market. The wheat is estimated to be worth $1,800,000. Whether sold here or not, getting so large a quantity of wheat out of port will be a problem.

Below Two Million Mark.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The census returns gathered by the police department show that the total population of this city is 1,849,866, the number of males being 925,310 and of females 924,556. The increase in the population of the city has been less during the last three years than in previous years.

Coal Heavers Engage In Battle.

CHICAGO, April 30.—A reduction from 12 to 8 cents a ton for heaving coal brought on a lively riot at the docks of the O. S. Richardson Coal company yesterday. Three men were injured, none of them seriously hurt, however, and it required the presence of 20 officers to quell the disturbance.

Trio of Thieves Bagged.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., April 30.—Three robbers, who made off with $50,000 at Port Royal, Mich., last week, were caught here last evening. They are Joseph West, Edward Parker and Frank Evans. Mr. Hertler, the victim, came here and identified the stolen money.

Murderous Warfare on Women and Children.

SYDNEY, April 30.—Advices from New Ireland, a dependency of the German colony in northern New Guinea, say that several villages have been depopulated by tribal warfare. Women and children have been mercilessly butchered.

Peel Raised to the Peerage.

LONDON, April 30.—Arthur Wellesley Peel, ex-speaker of the house of commons, who was raised to the peerage on April 22, takes the title of Viscount Peel.

SMARTEST MAN ON EARTH.

A Few of the Traits and Powers Which Are Rooted In His Brain.

There is a man who can write a song and sing it or play the music of it.

He is a yachtsman and an equestrian.

He can talk rapidly in five modern languages and read both Greek and Latin.

He can play chess and poker.

He can paint pictures and criticise those of other artists.

He understands engineering and is an experimenter in electricity.

He is a theologian and has composed a prayer.

He can command a ship or a regiment, a fleet or an army.

He can scare people.

He can make speeches that strike the world.

He is a horse breeder and keeps a stud.

He can talk about the art of cookery.

He possesses a literary taste and has read piles of books.

He is a friend of peasants and monarchs.

He is orthodox in religion.

He quaffs both beer and champagne.

He can teach editors how to run their papers, daily or weekly.

He thrums the guitar.

He is rich, and the father of a growing family, and a terror to his foes.

Yet he is only 36 years old.

One would think that he must be a Chicago man or a Bostonian.

Yet he is not.

There may be other interesting people in the world, but they pale their ineffectual fires in his presence or at the mention of his name.

He is a scion of the house of Hohenzollern. He is the German kaiser, Wilhelm II, who, since he was crowned between six and seven years ago, has kept all his traits, talents and powers on full display before the world and Bismarck.

It would be impossible to indicate more than a few of the accomplishments of this foreign contemporary in small space. A summary of them would fill a book. The book ought to be written by himself.—New York Sun.

SPRINGER UNDECIDED.

But Aunt Eliza's Cooking May Have to Do With His Choice of Residence.

Ex-Congressman Springer, judge of the new United States court in the Indian Territory, may be the innocent cause of trouble in his own district. He is undecided whether he will live at Muscogee, Vinita or Tahlequah, and there is a three cornered fight for him that equals a county seat contest in western Kansas.

The people well know that the town which becomes the home of the United States judge will be the big town of the district. The fate of prairie cities of the west is often decided by just such influences. No matter where Judge Springer makes his home, he will have to go to all the towns to hold court, and this is why he took out his notebook when a man who had visited the old Cherokee capital of Tahlequah told him the other day of the wonderful cooking of Aunt Eliza.

There is no hotel at Tahlequah, but the itinerant visitors to the village are cared for by an old Cherokee woman whose fame for fried chicken flies on the wind. Aunt Eliza only asks such pay as the guests are willing to give. With the whole souled hospitality common to her tribe there is no end to the exertions she will make to keep her guests well fed. A man who has once dined at her table will never forget her. Judge Springer has her name in his notebook.—Chicago Times-Herald.

INTERESTING FOLK.

A Life Full of Romance—A Woman Who Spanked the Prince.

There is a man living on upper Main street, who walks to his work back and forth every day, who drifted at sea in an open boat for ten days after his provisions were gone. He never speaks of it.

There lives in Lewiston a woman who spanked the Prince of Wales when he was a child.

Another woman lives in Lewiston who has crowded a life full of romance. Forty years ago she was the handsomest woman in a large Maine village. A lawyer committed suicide because a farmer's son went home with her from a dance and she kissed him good night at her door. A medical student worked five years after she was married for attempting to stab with a surgical instrument the man she had promised to marry. When the war broke out, she was ten years a married woman and made a speech asking the men of her native town to enlist. Twelve of them went to the front for no other reason than because she asked them to. Eleven of them died on battlefields, and one came home a colonel. The man she married did not go.—Lewiston Journal.

Ex-Speaker Crisp's Boom.

The boom for ex-Speaker Crisp for the presidency seems to be a surprise in Georgia, where it was said to have originated. The Savannah News (Dem.) says: "All this is in advance of any discussion of the question by the Democrats of the state, in advance of any sounding of or expression by the ex-speaker on the matter, in advance of any demand for Mr. Crisp's candidacy, in advance of a definition of his position on the silver question—in short, in advance of everything, common sense included."

PROVIDENCE, April 30.—In the fight between Boyle O'Reilly and Dave Ross last night, Ross had the better of the fight to the seventh round, when the police objected to the proceedings and stopped the entire exhibition.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison of Bolan, Worth Co, Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottle.
